In the other world record, Glenda Reiser of Ottawa finished second to Brigitte Lariviere of Sunnyvale, Calif., in the 1,500 metres before a record crowd of 14,385.

Larriere's time of 4:12.2 broke the mark of 4:14.3 set by Tamara Pangelova of Russia in 1972 in Grenoble, France.

Reiser, 18, a University of Ottawa student, won the gold medal in the 1,500 metres at the New Zealand Commonwealth Games.

She was timed in 4:15.5, a Canadian native record, erasing the mark of 4:16.3 she set last December in Saskatoon.

Herb Washington of East Lansing, Mich., won the 50-yard dash for the fourth year in a row second and Jogn Walker, New Zealander, was third.

ANNUAL GENERAL MEETING

TO BE HELD AT

Quinte Secondary School

Thursday, Feb. 21st

AT 8 P.M.

ALL INTERESTED PARTIES WELCOME

For only $296, we give you the Atlantic to cross instead of a lake. The warmth of a pub instead of a snack-bar. And the ancient castle to visit instead of a drive-in. We give you a comfortable seat on the world's largest international airline. And, when you arrive, 22 to 45 days of England, Scotland and Wales.

For very little more than $296, we can also give you one of our many "personalized Holiday" packages, which your British Airways travel agent can tell you all about. So this year, forget about the mosquitoes at Lake Whatchamacallit and have the time of your life instead.

Our 1974 bargain.

Starting April 1, we'll fly you from Toronto to London or Manchester for as little as $296 return or to Glasgow for even less. You can choose a Friday or Saturday departure for only $15 more, your children under 12 travel half-fare, and you fly on a regularly scheduled British Airways jet. So, unlike the charters, there's no deposit required, no risk of cancellation. Flexibility of travel dates, and a full refund if you have to change your plans. And, just as important, you get the kind of superb service and attention you'd expect from British Airways.

Our biggest bargain of all.

Any British Airways or Air Canada travel agent is the expert to see. They'll tell you all you'd like to know about fares and exciting "Personalized Holidays". And they won't charge a cent for doing so. See them soon. Because the sooner you plan your trip, the sooner we see you. And, frankly, we're looking forward to it.

THE UNEXPLAINED

by Allen Spraggett

The Black Box

By ALLEN SPRAGGETT

As scientists increasingly probe the mysterious frontier where mind and matter meet they inevitably will rediscover the work of a great pioneer named George de la Warr.

Until his death five years ago, de la Warr was one of England's most unusual men. Both his friends and his foe and he has plenty of both, called him an "enigma."

His boosters, who included people like writer Jean Cocteau and humanitarian Albert Schweitzer, considered him one of the most audacious thinkers of his time. His detractors said he was a fraud, a fool, or a crank.

De la Warr, an electrical engineer by training, made outlandish claims which he called "paraphysics" - the physics of the 21st century. His critics called them hogwash.

George de la Warr said he had discovered how to bypass time and space. He invented strange devices, called the Black Boxes by which he claimed he could diagnose a person's diseases anywhere in the world from a drop of his blood. De la Warr also said he could "treat" the person from bloodspot.

Moreover, he claimed to have created a "camera" that photographed objects anywhere in the world, even the past and the future.

Incredible? Of course. But many thoughtful, perceptive people came to believe that these claims could at least be carefully considered.

On a visit I made to the de la Warr Laboratories in Oxford, England, the conversation inevitably was talked about his research.

He showed me the Black Boxes, curious machines encased in black leather, ranging in size from a portable model to a monster that looked capable of taking over the world.

De la Warr told me matter-of-factly about an experiment in which he said he had photographed a woman who was in South Africa while he was in England.

"I put a spot of her blood in the Black Box and held in my mind a clear thought. This woman's physical condition," de la Warr said. "And we got this picture."

What he showed me was clearly the figure of a young fetus. "The woman said she couldn't possibly be pregnant," chuckled de la Warr. "But of course, she was."

Such a story takes some believing, and a peek inside the Black Box didn't make it any easier. It was a jungle of wires with a rubber band and a bar magnet thrown in. There was, I noted, no power source, no battery in sight. Obviously, then, I said, the thing couldn't work.

"Oh but it does," de la Warr corrected me. "It runs on thought. You see, my devices are simply mechanical extensions of the operator's psychic perceptions, as the telescope and microscope are of his visual perceptions."

In one important test of his claims, de la Warr was challenged by a prominent surgeon, Kenneth Walker, to photograph an operation he was going to perform in London at a certain time. The surgeon provided a drop of the patient's blood and the time of the operation but no further information.

At the designated time de la Warr got a photograph in his lab of what appeared to be a testicle with a piece of wire through it. The astonished surgeon confirmed that he had removed a diseased testicle from the patient after first inserting a silver pin through it.

As a result of this test, Walker, Hunterian Professor at London's Royal College of Surgeons, became a strong supporter of George de la Warr and wrote: "He should be given a knighthood without delay."

Another converted skeptic was Dr. E.W. Russell, director of Oxford University's soil science laboratory, who set up an experiment to test de la Warr's claim to be able to improve the growth of selected cabbage patch at a distance of miles by using only his Black Box and a photograph of the patch.

The results?

"They certainly appear to support your claim," admitted the nonplussed scientist. The cabbages "treated" by de la Warr (though he had never seen or been near them) grew significantly better than the others.

The secret, said the wizard of the Black Box, was that he used his machine to project growth-stimulating thoughts to the cabbages.

A dramatic vindication of George de la Warr's sincerity, if not of his theories, came in 1950 when a disgruntled buyer of one of his Black Boxes sued him for fraud. The complainant's attorney set out to prove that anybody who made de la Warr's claims had to be either a crook or a fool.

However, after a two-month trial in Chancery High Court, at which 27 scientists, physicians, and assorted others testified de la Warr, the judge dismissed the charge against him with the conclusion? "The body of informed opinion in support of his work is overwhelming and impressive."

De la Warr's most prophetic tribute may have come from Jean Cocteau after that memorable day the French letters had visited his laboratories.

"Chez ami," Cocteau wrote to him, "I consider the de la Warr laboratories to be the most singular place in the world.

"Compared to what you are doing, the Russian and American satellites and journeys to the moon are children playing with toys."

Reaction 'Very Odd'

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Rev. William O'Malley was appeared to and acted as an adviser to the film The Exorcist, which he feels public reaction to the movie "very odd."

"I don't understand and don't know what the answer is, but the film seems to be fulfilling the kind of need," he said in an interview.

"People are reportedly passing out or becoming ill and yet no one became ill or fainted when the media gave reports on the war in Vietnam, where thousands of men were killed, or Biafra, Bangladesh, or mass killings on our streets like what recently happened on the West Coast," Father O'Malley added. "I think we have developed a tolerance for evil."

Many people who have seen the film, and even some who haven't, feel they are possessed by the devil and are coming to priests for help, he said. "That is hard to understand.

"The film makes it amply clear that you have to visit psychiatrists, psychologists and medical doctors before the Church would even remotely consider touching the thing with an exorcism."

Many Watched Palsy Program

TORONTO — A lot of sympathetic viewers were watching the Celebrity Parade for Cerebral Palsy, telecast for the first time in Ontario Feb. 2. This was evidenced by the number of calls received by the 12 switchboards set up across the province from Windsor to Ottawa within Glenn Bell Television Network's constituency.

Global telecast the Cerebral Palsy Parade of Stars for 3 hours from 10:30 p.m. taking feeds direct from Las Vegas and Los Angeles via Buffalo, and locally, including a special appearance by Johnny Wayne who is spearheading the campaign in Ontario along with Bobby Hull, Gordon Carter, Minister of Communications for Ontario, and Jim Paulsen, the disc jockey.

Some 17 other independent television stations telecast the Parade simultaneously across the United States.

Stars who donated their talents included Paul Anka, who will be organizing the extravaganza in New York and Los Angeles next year along with Eydie Gorme and Steve Lawrence, working from the west coast. Juliette Prowse, Rich Little, and Tony Bennett also appeared.

Global pledged the airtime and radio facilities and solicited by flashing phone numbers for Bernhard Ruby on the screen in the 12 centres.

In spite of one ill - intentioned person who, it would appear, drove to the north end edge of Toronto and blocked calls to the main switchboard by leaving the phone dangling on its cork in a phone booth, which was not discovered until the next day; the smaller, alternative board was inundated with calls, says the network.

A spokesman for the Ontario Federation for Cerebral Palsy said that the evening was "fabulously successful, more than we had hoped for. Hundreds of people volunteered for help on our projects and calls and letters are still coming in".

The federation is the parent group for the organization which devotes itself to all physically handicapped adults. (Five out of every 1,000 new-born babies are physically handicapped). Object of the Celebrity Parade was not only to raise money, but to spread information and help.

Although there are residences and facilities in Toronto at Bellwoods Park House and in Markham where 400 physically handicapped go weekly to the workshop and pool, the organization wants to build "participation homes" across the province for the handicapped. A group home for the purpose is already forming in London, Ont. stimulated by the program. Government loan rates are 90 per cent of operating costs. The public is required in the form of donations.

The total amount of money collected by phones in will not be known for some months yet. The initial results were so spectacular, that plans are under way with Global to participate in a similar venture next year, says a Global spokesman.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Sunday, Feb. 17

Aries (March 21-April 19) It's not the big things you do today that will make you look good in the eyes of others...it's the thoughtful little considerations.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) A friend will soon come to you for advice. The matter may seem trivial to you but it's important to her. Hear her out.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) In a situation that you share with another strike your goal a little lofter than it presently is. It can be attained.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) An important decision you'll be making today should be based upon the way you feel about the matter as well as its logical aspects.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) You've been doing some talking lately about a diet or exercise program. Why not begin it today?

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Today will be very enjoyable if you don't get involved with too many people. Just you and your special person fill the bill.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) It will be hard to get you out of the easy chair. You'll feel like relaxing at home with a good book or TV.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) This is the kind of day when you'd enjoy a good jabber with that friend with whom you always find so much to talk about.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You're likely to run around and do some shopping today to pick up little things you forgot when you were at the store.

Capricorn (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) There's a small favor that you need from a friend. You're reluctant to ask. You shouldn't be. Simply jfk she can.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) Something you'll be learning of shortly will be taken on as a new project. It's now just in the talking stage.

BY BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Cancer (June 21-July 22) If you're in the company of an active companion today teamwork will produce results. On your own, not too much will happen.

No Formal Training Courses In Testing Medical-gas Lines

SUDBURY (CP) — The current lack of training in the field of medical-gas systems might be rectified shortly, a coroner's jury was told Friday.

Thomas Davey, a spokesman for Canadian Liquid Air Ltd., told the inquest into the deaths of 23 Sudbury General Hospital patients there are no formal training courses in testing the systems.

However, he added:

"In view of this inquest, there are many things that are going to be done differently by an awful lot of people."

Election TV Bores Britons

LONDON (CP) — The station of television-starved Britons over the return to normal broadcasting during the general election campaign already has produced one effect after a week of Heath, Wilson, Dracula and warmed-up Ironside episodes.

To keep the voters well-informed about all the issues in the Feb. 28 election, Prime Minister Heath announced last week that the power-saving 10:30 p.m. daily TV curfew would be suspended.

Political opportunists, anticipating the snap election, already had been given free rein to stump and quickly commandeered much of the extended viewing time. But viewers, surfeited with apparently caught off guard, were quit dipping into stocks of old movies and reruns to fill in the remaining time until normal closedown around 12:30 a.m.

With the commercial network and the two BBC channels devoting up to three hours or more a day to politics, the public reaction to full-time TV in part-time Britain ranges from disappointment to rage.

"Is this an emergency, or isn't it?" asks an irate home and parlor operator, whose business has been dealt a crushing blow by the three-day work week ordered along with the TV curfew Jan. 1.

"If there isn't enough power for lighting and business, how come we can have Dracula at midnight?"

Some politicians are even getting a bit self-conscious over the monopoly on TV time, with former Liberal party leader Jo Grimond opening a recent broadcast with: "I'm sorry to bore you with yet another party political broadcast . . ."

Out campaigning, several candidates say they are being berated by voters demanding that they get off the screens and let them enjoy the brief three-week respite from the early close-down.

Canadian Liquid Air was responsible for testing the medical-gas system in the new wing at the hospital before gases were used on patients, The jury has been told that a cross-connection in the gas lines occurred in the wing.

The inquest, which ended its fifth week Friday, is into the deaths last June 7 of Jessie Ada and Catherine Dominic who died while receiving nitrous oxide instead of oxygen and into 22 other deaths of people who received gas at the hospital between May and September last year.

"There are no experts as I know it in the area of medical-gas testing," Mr. Davey testified when asked questions regarding the tests done on the gas system by Jack Lepplonen, Sudbury representative for Canadian Liquid Air.

Mr. Davey agreed with Mr. Lepplonen's interpretation of the building specifications, in that he was responsible only for a pressure test to find leaks in the system.

He said that although he had performed gas tests in at least five hospitals he still does not consider himself an expert in the field.

Marmora

The Red Cross Regional Public Relations Seminar held in Peterborough on Friday, February 8 was attended by Mrs. Ruth Bell, president, Rothwell, Fay Lavender, Bernice Smith and Gloria Featherstone of the Marmora Branch.

The meeting was conducted by regional vice-president Betty Spry of Orono and featured a panel discussion on approaches to the news media.

OUR BOARDING HOUSE with Major Hoople

Sooner or later, nearly everybody needs a lawyer. But not everybody can afford one. That's why Ontario's present Legal Aid Plan was established seven years ago — to make sure that legal services are available to everybody who needs them, regardless of ability to pay.

The System has worked well. But now an Attorney-General's Task Force is studying ways to improve it. We need the views and suggestions of interested groups and individuals on how the Legal Aid Plan is working, and how it could be improved or expanded. In particular, the Task Force wants to know:

- What legal needs are not being met by The Plan? Is Legal Aid delivering the service it should in all areas of the law? e.g.: criminal, family, general civil litigation, landlord and tenant, consumer problems, welfare legislation, human rights standards, Workmen's Compensation, class problems and actions and general advice.
- Are enough of the people who need legal aid actually getting it? How can service be improved to lower-income people in rural and urban areas? To minority groups, to native people, to recent immigrants and new Canadians? To middle-income families?
- Are storefront clinics the best way to provide legal service where it's needed most? What other ways are there of making Legal Aid part of the communities it serves?

Injunction Against CBC Show Is Lifted

TORONTO (CP) — A temporary injunction prohibiting the CBC from broadcasting portions of a radio program on environmental lead pollution was dissolved Friday by Mr. Justice Richard Holland of the Ontario Supreme Court.

Shortly after his ruling the two Toronto refining firms granted the injunction issued a joint statement saying they will appeal Friday's decision.

Mr. Justice Holland refused to continue the injunction obtained Jan. 29 by Canada Metal Co. Ltd., and Toronto Refiners and Smelters Ltd., in an ex-parte hearing before Mr. Justice John Wilson.

Mr. Justice Wilson granted the injunction less than an hour before a taped CBC program title Dying of Lead was broadcast in Ontario and Quebec on the program As It Happens.

A CBC spokesman said highlights of the program will be broadcast Tuesday evening. However, she said, this may be affected by the appeal.

Two portions totalling 3½ minutes were deleted from the hour-long program after Mr. Justice Wilson restrained the program's executive producer Mark Starowicz and story editor Max Allen from alleging or implying that the two lead smelting companies had bought misleading favorable medical evidence and had concealed material evidence from medical experts.

"THE CORPORATION OF THE CITY OF BELLEVILLE

PROCLAMATION

"ONTARIO HEART FOUNDATION WEEK"

FEBRUARY 17th to 23rd, 1974

This is "Heart Foundation Week". During the week of February 17th to 23rd, 1974, the Belleville Chapter of the Ontario Heart Foundation will launch an appeal for funds.

Heart disease can effect each of us. The disease can be and is being, controlled but this is only possible through medical research and an informed public.

The rate of progress towards the elimination of heart attacks and stroke depends on the funds available to underwrite the qualified and dedicated people who undertake this work in our university hospitals. In Ontario, Heart Foundation has been asked to support over a million and a quarter dollars in grants-in-aid and fellowships.

Had it not been for the concerted drive in heart research over the past few years, life expectancy in Canada would not be as high as it is today. Many thousands of Canadians owe their lives to the doctors and scientists who have devoted their time and talents towards a better understanding of diseases of the heart and circulatory system.

Therefore, by the virtue of the authority vested in me as Mayor of the City of Belleville, I do hereby proclaim the week of February 17th to 23rd, 1974, as —

"ONTARIO HEART FOUNDATION WEEK"

DATED at the Mayor's Office this 14th day of February, 1974.

Soldier Steals Aircraft

White House Guns End 'Copter Chase

WASHINGTON (AP) — A young soldier, identified by authorities as a washout from army flight training, is being held for mental study after landing a stolen military helicopter on the White House lawn in a storm of police shotgun fire.

Pte. Robert Preston, 20, a helicopter mechanic at Fort Meade, Md., was seized by police after he bounced over suburban cornerstones and monuments in the United States capital for two hours before dawn Sunday.

Preston was treated for minor shotgun pellet wounds at Walter Reed Army Medical Center, then held for psychiatric examination. There was no official explanation for his escapade.

The Secret Service charged him initially with unlawful entry upon the White House grounds, a federal misdemeanor carrying a possible six-month jail term and a $100 fine on conviction.

Preston faced court arraignment on that charge today, and authorities said other charges may follow. Army officials said they are making their own investigation.

Authorities gave this account of the aerial drama:

Preston stole an army helicopter from the airfield at Fort Meade, 25 miles north of Washington, and began buzzing homes and cars along the Baltimore-Washington Parkway.

One citizen in Glen Burnie, Md., called police to complain: "Some guy just landed a helicopter in our trailer park, got out and ran around it twice, climbed back in and took off."

The Maryland state police dispatcher who monitors that army craft put one out of the chase by tearing down on it and forcing the police pilot to turn sharply while the military chopper veered away.

Maryland Trooper Don Sewell, a much-decorated Vietnam veteran at the stick of the other police chopper, also lost the unlighted army craft from time to time and relied on airport radar reports to keep him close.

Midway through the chase, the army chopper veered into prohibited airspace between the Washington Monument and the Capitol building, attracting the attention of officers of the Executive Protective Service (EPS), the uniformed branch of the Secret Service.

An hour later, Sewell saw the army chopper hover near the Washington monument, then lurch forward and upward toward the White House.

As the helicopter passed over the outer fence to the south lawn of the White House, floodlights cut through the darkness and police opened fire with shotguns.

The chopper, its metal skin peppered with buckshot, veered left—it bounced on one runner, then the other, and settled in a halt, heavily on the front of the executive mansion.

President Nixon was at his Key Biscayne, Fla., estate, and Mrs. Nixon was visiting the couple's daughter, Julie Eisenhower, in hospital in Indianapolis, Ind.

Sewell's partner, Cpl. Louis Saffran, leaped from the chopper and with EPS officers pounced on Preston. The soldier, neatly clad in a green fatigue uniform, continued to struggle even after being handcuffed, authorities said.

Army officials said Preston, a native of Panama City, Fla., was admitted on Jan. 26, 1973, to the army's helicopter pilot school at Fort Wolters, Tex., and amassed 127 hours of flight time in 24 weeks of training before being washed out for "deficiency in the instrument phase."

Preston also was said to hold a private pilot's licence for fixed-wing single-engine airplanes and to have earned an associate degree in aviation management from Gulf Coast Community College in Panama City.

Told Sincere Effort Enough, Hearst Plans Food Giveaway

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — Randolph Hearst plans to announce today a food giveaway program "involving a substantial amount of money" in a move toward gaining the release of his kidnapped daughter.

Jay Bosworth, the publishing executive's son-in-law, announced the plan to reporters Sunday night. He gave no other details except that Hearst was encountering some delay.

Hearst spent most of Sunday working on a program to help end what the FBI has called the first political kidnapping in the United States.

An announcement today would beat by one day a deadline originally set by the Symbionese Liberation Army (SLA) for food distribution to begin. The demand was a precondition to negotiations for the release of 19-year-old Patricia Hearst. She was dragged screaming from her Berkeley apartment 14 days ago.

Rev. Cecil Williams, who had been working on a distribution plan with leaders of several groups, said he talked with Hearst late Sunday but would not discuss except to say: "I am optimistic."

Williams met secretly Sunday with leaders of such groups as the American Indian Movement, the Black Teachers Caucus, the United Prisoners Union and the National Welfare Organization.

None of the leaders available Sunday night would comment on the efforts to work out a food distribution plan.

While denouncing the kidnapping, Williams offered through the media to help organize a distribution plan. On Saturday, he found a tape from the SLA after receiving an anonymous telephone call.

The SLA earlier had asked for $70 worth of food for each needy person in California. But in the tape received by Williams the SLA modified the demand and said it would accept "a sincere effort" by Hearst to help feed the poor, disabled, paroled and aged.

48 Soccer Fans Killed At Cairo

CAIRO (Reuter) — Forty-eight soccer fans were killed and 47 others injured, three seriously, when a part of a packed stadium collapsed prior to a match Sunday.

An estimated 80,000 fans had fought their way into the Zamalek Stadium, which normally holds about 30,000 persons, when a concrete wall and iron fence crashed to the ground.

Many in the crowd had already spilled on to the field and a wild stampede followed.

The stand collapsed 15 minutes before the scheduled kickoff for a game between a local club and the Dukla Czechoslovakian team. The match was cancelled.

One injured survivor, Mohamed Abdallah, described how he tried to escape by jumping clear.

"An iron rail pierced my belly and I fainted," he said.

Vancouver Gunman Burned to Death

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two policemen are recovering from gunshot wounds in the aftermath of a shooting, an explosion and a fiery death at a 30-year-old gunman dead in the Kerrisdale district of Vancouver.

Constables Ernie Berube and Jack McCaig were shot Saturday when they answered a disturbance call after Frederick Madden telephoned her sister to say her six-year-old daughter, Debbie, had been threatened by Madden and that he had lived in a basement suite of their house for more than a year.

Constable Berube, shot in the right forearm when he and Constable McCaig advanced into the basement suite, was the second suite against Sagebeen's direction, was released from hospital Saturday night.

Police sealed off the area, evacuated neighbors, and lobbed tear gas into the house when Sagebeen failed to give himself up. A gas grenade sparked a blaze, followed by an explosion and a fire. Firemen doused the blaze in an attempt to prevent it from spreading upstairs.

Sagebeen's badly-burned body was found inside the basement door. Nearby was a sawed-off rifle, its stock burned away. Police also found three shotguns, two of them loaded, and a quantity of ammunition.

IRA Rushes to Remove Bomb It Considers 'Inconvenience'

BELFAST (CP) Irish Republican Army guerrillas Sunday removed a huge bomb they had planted in a supermarket.

Security forces were unaware of the bomb until a group of armed and masked men broke into the supermarket at Cullaville in County Armagh.

The Provisional faction of the IRA said in a statement they removed the bomb because "it presented great inconvenience to the local community." The statement did not elaborate.

Northern Ireland's police refused today to extend an interview prisoners until they are given an assurance that none of their men will be brought to court under the anti-terrorism laws.

The 500 policemen involved have stressed that no other aspect of their duties will be affected.

They are professing the appearance in court last week of a Special Branch detective accused of assaulting a prisoner at a Belfast police station.

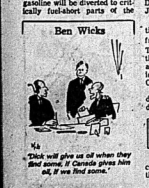
Fellow officers regarded the decision to prosecute as a slur on police activity.

Some Areas to Get Relief

U.S. Gasoline to Be Diverted

WASHINGTON (AP) — More gasoline will be diverted to critically fuel-short parts of the United States this week, says Deputy Energy Administrator John Sawhill.

Sawhill did not say what sections of the U.S. will benefit from the shift, to be announced Tuesday, but he indicated that they may include such problem areas as the East Coast, Florida, Arizona and Washington-Oregon.



Sawhill said on television Sunday he expects the effect of the diversion to be felt "in no more than a week" after the order is issued.

In other major energy-related events:

—The president of Gulf Oil-U.S. said the recent one-cent price increases granted some service station operators should have been larger and should have gone to all dealers.

—A group of petroleum experts urged President Nixon and Congress to launch a five-year, $2-billion search for new oil and gas reserves.

The gasoline-price increase criticized Sunday by Gulf's David Bonner allows dealers whose allocation has been cut by 15 per cent or more to raise prices one cent a gallon.

PM Thinks Price Rise Lies Ahead

TORONTO (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said Sunday the cost of living in Canada may climb just as sharply this year as it did in 1973.

Inflation is mainly beyond the control of government and is caused by people "who want to take more out of society than they put into it," he said in a television interview.

Price and wage controls as advocated by the opposition will not work, he said, because of strong external influences on Canada's economy.

Opposition parties continually press for more government expenditures and thus contribute to greater inflation, he said in an interview broadcast on television station CFTO.

Meany Says Nixon Plan Disaster

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — With unemployment rising and prices outstripping wages, the AFL-CIO today called President Nixon's economic program a disaster and urged Congress to seize the initiative for controlling inflation.

As the labor federation's executive council prepared to open its annual mid-winter conference, president George Meany said the Nixon administration has misled the U.S. public about the economy for the last five years.

Rare Disease Kills Four In Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) — Four children have died and three others are in critical condition from a disease which doctors say is extremely rare but not contagious.

Dr. Neil Aronson, a Chicago pediatrician, said the disease appeared as a complication of minor virus infections. He said it affects the brain and the liver and appears in children who have contracted minor cases of influenza or other virus infections. Its symptoms are vomiting, convulsions and finally coma, Dr. Aronson said.

A spokesman for the Chicago Board of Health emphasized Sunday that the disease is not contagious and "there's no chance of an outbreak."

Mailboxes Wrecked

Provincial police are seeking information that may help them trace vandals responsible for a small wave of rural mailbox wreckings in recent weeks.

Latest incidents occurred in the Roslin-Reid area during the past weekend when eight mailboxes were uprooted and damaged.

"It's caused a lot of nuisance in the area —particularly to old people who can't get out and dig holes for the mailboxes at this time of year," said an OPP spokesman.

He said some rural residents may have observed evidence which might help police but were not coming forward with the information.

Mrs. George Tompkins, Mr. Gilbreath's mother-in-law, said the computer analyst for Square D was one of 10 close friends who went snowmobiling last Thursday.

He's never had an accident with his snowmobile and they went way up there where there was no chance of an accident," said Mrs. Tompkins.

Railway Early OBC Course

This year's graduates of Ontario Business College were honored at a dinner at Sun Valley Motor Inn Saturday night.

Forty-one students have earned OBC diplomas this year. Of these, 24 are honor students and two of the 24 achieved an average of 92 per cent.

One of the guests was Ruth Poling, a former OBS principal who told the graduates that OBC has been in continuous operation since 1860, the year after confederation.

The trans-continental railway had not been completed, and one of OBC's first courses was something called railway.

"I never found out what it was, but it had something to do with Morse code," said Mrs. Poling.

Mrs. Poling said that when she took over OBC she was told it had graduates in 88 countries.

"Now, it seems those 88 countries are sending their students back to us for education," said Mrs. Poling of the present college.

Guest speaker was H. M. Burns of Cybernetics of Ontario and the Success Motivation Institute Inc. a specialist in management, sales and personal development.

"It is time to start having a love affair — with yourself," he said. "Most people keep putting themselves down."

Valedictorian was Deborah Donohoe, an honor graduate now employed by George A. Welch and Company in Belleville.

Is Canada slowly cutting its own throat by extending aid to countries in Africa ruled by military dictatorships and supporting liberation movements against the South Africans, Rhodesians and the Portuguese?

In this context the role of the Trudeau government, as well as that of the Church throughout Canada, must give rise to grave anxiety in the minds of Canadians.

As foreign affairs analyst John Harbron pointed out in his column on this page Saturday, the government has earmarked half-a-billion dollars for these countries, while weighing in with cash and moral support in the World Council of Churches to which body churches throughout Canada presumably contribute tangible support.

It will be recalled that in the names of some of our more liberally-minded, and probably misguided, clerics, appeared in an advertisement in Toronto newspapers recently, lending their support to the cause of the left-wing Chileans holed up in the Canadian embassy, and who subsequently were admitted to Canada after only cursory examination of their political leanings and now are being supported with taxpayers' money.

If nothing else, this shows how the hard-earned earnings of Canadians are being prostituted in the name of liberalism and infiltration of our society by political kooks from around the world.

Somewhere in recent days also we read that Ontario had decided against sending any more trade missions to South Africa, lest it should anger the anti-apartheid lobby. Apartheid is not everyone's cup of tea, but such a move merely plays right into the hands of the Communists among whom there is rejoicing in consequence.

All around these things are happening and the Canadian public remains blandly apathetic. We shall continue to ignore these trends at our peril.

By JOHN D. HARBRON

Gutsy and determined King Hussein of Jordan had his jollies the other day at the 60th anniversary party of the Royal Air Force No. 6 Squadron in Lincolnshire, which once served in the king's homeland. As a skilled jet fighter pilot, the RAF flew a spanking new ground support Jaguar to the squadron airfield for the king to fly.

That evening in the full dress uniform of a marshal of the Royal Air Force, the young and tough-minded king who has survived attacks from Israelis, fellow Jordanians, Palestinian commandos, enemies of the royal family, sang the praises of the jet which is so new it has'n't yet gone into British squadron service.

Of course there was clear purpose in the RAF revival in Jordan with its tiny, but mighty British-equipped air force as a valued customers for the new aircraft.

Before and after the 1967 war, the Royal Jordanian Air Force's basic equipment was the Hawker Hunter fighter, the same kind sold also to Chile and which destroyed the president's palace in Santiago by pin-point bombing to begin the Chilean military coup of last September.

He will do this because so far he can still count on his air force, this comment being made in the light of a recent Jordanian army mutiny allegedly over the failure to win pay increases.

King Hussein the scion of a line of kings and empires going back to the pre 1300, still has no trouble buying the weapons he wants especially from the British who helped his grandfather establish Jordan with British Glubb Pasha's storied Arab Legion.

His troubles lie with the diverse elements which make up this once artificial kingdom carved out of the winnings of the allied powers in the First World War and the Palestinian freedom organizations which made Jordan their base until ousted by him in a bitter civil war in 1970.

Other problems are in the area of economic development with one of the few fertile areas of the tiny kingdom, the west bank of the Jordan severed from the Arab state after the 1967 war.

Whatever parts of the conquered Arab territories Israel might be willing to return to the Arab countries some day, a portion of Jordan namely the old Arab areas of Jerusalem, will never go back.

From 1949 and the end of the first Israeli-Arab war, Jerusalem had remained a divided city split between Israel and Jordan. Mrs. Golda Meir and all other Israeli leaders' are determined to keep the city forever united under Israeli rule, but with the guarantee of complete freedom for visiting Muslim as well as Christian and Jewish pilgrims.

In spite of all this and his family's stormy passage to the throne and on it, King Hussein was the only Arab leader prepared to sit down and talk with Israel before the Yom Kippur Fourth Israeli-Arab conflict.

During 1971 and 1972 rumors persisted that Israeli officials had gone secretly to Amman to discuss the proposed peace between the bitter enemies of the Middle East. And as soon as they appeared they were just as quickly denied, always from the Israeli side, incidentally.

H. H. Hussein i, Ibn Talal, King of the Hashemite Kingdom of Jordan is given much by his country their full titles, ascended the throne in 1952 at 18 years of age when his father was deposed. For the magazine supplements of the 50s he was the fabulous boy king of the Middle East. Many still view the 38-year-old monarch as a boy king in spite of the horrendous struggles for personal survival he has succeeded in surmounting.

Hussein's grandfather was the late Jordanian King Abdullah I who in turn was the son of the World War One Arab hero, the Grand Sherif of Mecca who rebelled under Turkish rule in 1916.

Car Sales Reflect Market Strength Across Canada

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Canada's automotive industry appears to be headed for a record year.

Sales got off to a flying start in January—up 73 per cent over January, 1973, for American Motors Canada Ltd., for example, and 38 per cent for General Motors of Canada Ltd.

So much for the fears that sales would suffer badly because of price increases in gasoline, accessories and even cars themselves.

"There is tremendous economic strength in the Canadian market place as we go into 1974," says W. L. Hawkins, vice-president and general manager of sales, Ford Motor Co. of Canada Ltd.

His company has just introduced a new mid-size model, called the Gran Torino Elite, because "the demand is there for it."

Small cars now account for half of all sales. That, in turn, accounts for the big sales gains by American Motors, which specializes in compacts and sub-compacts. Industry men think that small cars may attain 60 per cent of the Canadian market.

"But that would still leave 40 per cent, or 350,000 Canadians a year, asking for other than small cars," says Ford's Bill Hawkins.

Canada's market pattern shows that buyers of six-passenger cars tend to be concentrated on the Prairies, in the North and in thinly-populated areas generally.

Demand for small cars, on the other hand, is heaviest in larger cities and in the coastal areas.

In both categories, dealers say, the tendency is for customers to order plenty of optional equipment and luxury options which confounds those auto-industry die-hards who have always thought that people buy cars only when they can't afford big ones.

Today's bargain-hunters should look at standard-size cars in their plain-Jane, bottom-of-the-line versions. They are the models that dealers are having trouble selling.

Even the most popular compact and sub-compact models are available for immediate delivery at Canada's high-volume dealerships—provided the customer is flexible about the choice of color and equipment. Otherwise, delivery takes a month or two.

So far, however, few Canadian car buyers have run into the tactics that United States dealers, especially in the gasoline-starved New York City area, are reported to be using.

There, customers complain of having ordered a Volkswagen as early as last October—making large deposits, sometimes even paying in full—on the promise of delivery in a few weeks, only to be told, quite indefinitely while (they suspect) other customers are their new cars with the help of under-the-table payoffs.

Car dealers in the Toronto area have recently launched a program designed to cope with problems arising between customer and dealer. The name of each firm's "problem solver" is to be prominently displayed at the dealership, and dissatisfied customers are invited to complete a problem-report form and send it to the Toronto Automobile Dealers Association for action.

Such an approach to customer relations would be useful in other areas of the country as well. It could help to ward off U.S.-style abuses, should domestic sales take a point like a similar shortages develop in Canada's car market.

Chiropractor Topped Earnings of Medical Men

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau
Thomson News Service

TORONTO — We now know, or at least have a suspicion, who the hardest-working man in Ontario is.

He is an unnamed chiropractor.

The ministry of health recently gave out a list of payments to the medical disciplines by the health insurance plan in the year ended March 31, 1973.

A total of 626 doctors and other health specialists each took in more than $100,000 from the plan.

But the most notable one of this 626 must certainly be the chiropractor who topped the mark of 100 big ones.

A good many of the others would be well up on the fee schedule and have expensive staffs and offices, and in some cases labs, to maintain.

But this chiropractor got his take mainly in $5 bills.

The OHIP schedule of payments to practitioners who are not physicians (optometrists, osteopaths, dental surgeons, oral surgeons, chiropodists and chiropractor) is under stiff restraint.

The payment allowed chiropractors is $7 for the first visit and $5 a treatment thereafter. Also there can be an x-ray allowance, for those practitioners who may have this equipment.

But considering the nature of chiropractic we have to assume that this man (we gather it was a man. If a woman, what muscles she must have!) got most of his payments at the $5 basic.

This would mean he gave some 20,000 treatments a year or approximately 400 a week or 80 a day, on a five-day week.

On this basis he must have been more flurried than two new-arrived fingers and his office must have been lined up like a soup kitchen.

But they must have doted on it.

He also probably had a pretty healthy respect for the buck.

Chiropractors, unlike regular physicians who are part of OHIP, can make an additional charge above their insurance plan fee.

And such a man would need at least a few extra dollars for the liniment he would have to buy for his ever-worked fingers and arms.

Incidentally, there were 13 other chiropractors who took more than 70,000 out of the plan.

Which probably leaves us with a moral.

To hell with being prime minister, bring up your son to be a chiropractor!

Or perhaps: the government should make good on its promise to crack down on the bad-ies in OHIP.

No Halt in Trade

Britain may have a fuel crisis, aggravated by the miners' strike, and its trade imbalance may be one of the most lopsided in the western world, but this does not mean there is to be any halt to the trading pattern of Britain or any of its commercial partners.

This continuing process gives the lie also to the kind of doomsday reports that emanate from Britain from time to time to the effect that the country is on its knees.

For instance the January issue of the provincial government publication, Ontario Trade and Export, indicates that the province's trade with the UK is healthy. Listed is a wide range of goods introduced into the British market in 1973 by more than 100 Ontario manufacturers. At the same time more than 150 British products were offered to Ontario companies for licenced production here. No overall figure for trade volume with Britain last year is mentioned, but in 1971 Ontario exports to the UK (its second largest market) totalled $404 million.

More-ver, as a result of a recent trade drive, Britain is scheduled to take $667,550 worth of Ontario goods ranging from plumbing fixtures, billiard cues and electric motors to chrome supermarket shelving.

According to Webster T. Thompson, manager of the business development branch at Ontario House in London, the British government has set a long term annual growth rate of 3½ per cent — and this despite the oil shortage. He envisages a course of continuous expansion, with ensuing opportunities for the marketing of Canadian products.

Without minimizing Britain's economic troubles, the evidence here of continued trading with Canada for one, and with Ontario in particular, suggests that the country has a lot going for it. To infer that it is in the verge of economic collapse is very far from the truth.

MPP and Teaching of Deaf Children

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

Last December, I spoke in the Legislature about the desperate inadequacies in our teaching of deaf children in Ontario. What moved me almost to tears was to find out, despite all we have done in deaf education, that only six out of a sample of 100 deaf people who had gone through Ontario schools for the deaf could read and write at a high school level or better. Since deaf people have a natural language of people who are deaf is sign language. A deaf baby can start using sign language at about the same time a normal baby starts learning to speak. A deaf baby who learns signs is open to most of the stimuli which develop the mind, but loses the growth if you only talk to him or her.

To my mind, this difference continues in the schools, particularly in most of the deaf children in Ontario apparently are being put in the classroom ineffectively. What is tragic is that sign language of any kind has been actively discouraged at schools, like the Ontario School for the Deaf in Belleville, for many decades, and has only begun to creep into the classroom in the past two or three years. By secrecy and last December it wasn't directed at the staff of the school for the deaf. But I question very seriously the methods they have been directed to use.

I plan to visit the school for the deaf later this month and hope to meet with the staff when I am there.

Yours sincerely,
Michael Cassidy,
MPP for Ottawa Centre

Housing

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

Of all the investments made by any family over the years the purchase of a home is the biggest outlay they usually become involved with.

It has been often pointed out in the past, and it is still today, that the average home buyer is entirely at the mercy of the builder and developer when it comes to the matter of getting them to stand behind their work.

The local bylaws and enforcement activities could be a lot stronger and they should, even in their present unsatisfactory state, be enforced. Really they are not. Casual inspections are made, frequently when the stage of construction is too advanced to adequately make the particular inspection. In some cases, according to the method used to finance the building inspections are made by inspectors from out of Belleville. From personal experience I can state that, all too often, their qualifications for the job are more related to political patronage than training and background in the trade. The recent announcement by Urban Affairs Minister Ron Basford that he will seek legislation to make builders and developers be part of a national home warranty is long overdue.

We can expect that the developers and builders will fight this tooth and nail. After all they have managed to get away with murder for a long that any curtailment of their rights to do as they like will be considered an affront.

Belleville is not particularly different from other communities in this respect. I am sure the same holds true across Canada. For too long the rights of developers have taken precedence over the rights of the home buyer. It is high time that such legislation was placed on the books. It cannot be there and it should be enforced.

Hope Mr. Basford wins the day.

I am not sure of Britain's government in calling an election. I am sure that forcing the coal miners back to work is a result of that party's philosophy.

The coal miners had not been working a week. They've been doing anything illegal; threatening the law enforcers. They've work overtime.

Even if Prime Minister Heath and his party can win the election how does he propose to get the miners back to work?

It is obvious that the prosperity and productivity of the country depends on these men who daily risk their lives and health.

Real estate brokers have made a killing - - no objections. Even the Bank of London recently made over 15 million dollars with stock manipulations - no objections.

I hope that the people of the U.K. will remember the Labor party that they have "no objections" to corporate party claim.

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

Recently I attended an informal meeting at BCIVS. Its purpose was to present citizens with a brief outline of the activities of a firm selected to prepare and advise concerning the growth of Belleville.

I felt as many other Bellevillians fully realize that our city is expanding. What really concerns me is that I am wondering why it is necessary to hire consultants to do a "big city" program for our city?

Perhaps they might give some thought to the idea that Belleville will never be another TORONTO! Thank God.

Wire Strike Over

TRENTON, Ont. (CP) The 115 workers at the Fabricon Manufacturing plant Saturday voted 74 per cent in favor of accepting a settlement to end a strike that began Jan. 27.

The settlement, reached after three days of mediation, will give workers 52 cents an hour to be implemented in stages in the first year of a two-year contract that is retroactive to Nov. 9.

In the second year, the members of the Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers union will receive a seven per cent increase plus a cost-of-living index and other fringe benefits.

The workers had originally sought a 21 increase on the base rate of $3.15 in a two-year contract plus increases tied to the cost-of-living index and other fringe benefits.

Fabricon produces wire and cable products for use in industry at this community 18 miles west of Belleville.

Weather School Destroyed

TRENTON — The fire at CFB Trenton Friday night totally damaged the School of Meteorology and the training equipment it contained according to Captain Robert Burke.

"The cost of the damage is hard to estimate, considering the equipment that was in the building." No figures have yet been released on the damage.

The adjoining Base Training Office, one of the four units in the block was not harmed by the blaze and some educational manuals were spared in that building.

According the Captain Burke, the base commander and other officials will determine whether it will be more economical to relocate the building or rebuild."

The cause of the fire has not yet been determined.

CFB Trenton was not short of men to combat the fire that broke out at 8:30 Friday.

A member of the Military Police said that some of the national defence firemen gathered at the base for a curling bonspiel pitched in to help the Base emergency crew and the Trenton Fire Department unit.

Snowmobilers Warned In Trenton

TRENTON — Snowmobile operators using the ice bridges under the old bridge and on the bay should be wary of open areas according to Trenton Police Department.

Snowmobilers should avoid the east shore of the Trent River where paper mills are pumping hot water into the river.

The centre of the river up to the new bridge seems to be safe but above that point the water is open.

Cherry Valley Couple Contribute to Culture

By DEBRA HOOK
Staff Correspondent

PICTON — Everyone is aware of the contributions to the county of Prince Edward by the families of long-time residents, but one must not ignore the work and often the cultural aid imigrants relatively new residents have given their communities.

Harvey and Ellie Nurcombe have been residents of Cherry Valley since 1970. Not only did they move their home to the county but also their knowledge and skill in crafts.

The Nurcombes reside in what was the original Fennell homestead. The room which is now the livingroom is well over 125 years old. On their property, during excavations, the Nurcombes found several antique artifacts such as forge tongs from the blacksmith shop that was located in Cherry Valley and a crock from the same era.

The Nurcombes have erected a weaving studio on their property behind their house, where they give private lessons and display their finished products for sale. Although their main craft, since 1960, has been weaving, they have expanded their interests and display many of their other crafts.

Harvey Nurcombe builds and sells small belt looms of his own design. He also has been working with a wood lathe and produces many small articles like candle holders and small dishes. His other interests include oil painting, drift wood creations and he is interested in historical artifacts.

Ellie Nurcombe was interested in black and white photography and oil painting before her move to the Valley, but now spends much of her spare time weaving and instructing her students. Ellie also spins her own yarn and has done some of her own vegetable dying.

The Nurcombes own six looms, but house several others as they have a dealership for Canadian made looms. Presently they are members of the Belleville Weavers Guild, the Ontario Handweavers and Spinners and The Handweavers of America.

Their hobby has become a main interest in their lives since their retirement and move from Willowdale. Ellie and Harvey Nurcombe have found since they arrived in the county four years ago they have stimulated much interest in the art of weaving.

The majority of their students are from the Belleville district, but people from Toronto are on their student list.

It is evident that the interest in crafts throughout the county has increased since the erection of many studios as taken place. If it although these crafts and their instructors, the county residents are aiding the enhancement of the Prince Edward County culture.

Milk One of Staples Not Yet in Shortage

By STEVE CAMPBELL
Staff Correspondent

TRENTON — Milk is one of the few items left that does not yet seem to be in shortage.

There are many factors at work to ensure that the consumer is never cut off from this most important supply of nutrition.

Each province in Canada is alloted a yearly quota called the market sharing quota which must be met to supply the market with milk, cheese and butter.

The farmers in turn must produce a percentage of the market allotment in order to fluid and industrial markets.

Armin Quickert, president of Reid's Dairy in Belleville states there is no difficulty in obtaining fluid milk," even in the winter months. However he adds that if extra milk is required to maintain the fluid market, "it makes that slice of the pie for the cheese factories somewhat smaller". This results in a shortage of industrial milk items such as cheese and butter.

According to the Ontario Milk Marketing Board the highest quantity of milk production is reached in April, May and October and drops considerably in the winter months.

The farmers serving the fluid market must supply the monthly quota, forcing farmers of the fluid west to boost winter month production.

Gordon H. Parks, Director of the Interdepartmental Association of Canada and owner of a dairy farm west of Wellington, finds that milk production can be held constant in the winter.

"Milk is harder to get," he said, "but most farmers feed heavier in the winter." All dairy farmers must schedule feed during the summer and fall for the winter months.

With the proper feed and feed supplements, such as protein and mineral extras and vitamin injections, Mr. Parks said that milk production can be "even better in winter than in summer".

Reid's Dairy, a Canadian-owned dairy in Belleville processes and distributes fluid milk to the Quinte area.

Milk from farms Sidney, Thurlow and Prince Edward Counties in bulk truckloads is chilled, separated and homogenized before being packaged. The sole supplement added to the milk is Vitamin D, one of the four vitamins missing from raw milk.

There are no other artificial additives in the milk according to Mr. Quickert. "This is a popular consumer misconception," he stated. "No preservatives are added to the milk in the plant."

At present, fluid milk producers are receiving $8.13 per hundred-weight for raw milk. This reduces to about 20 cents of the retail share per quart to the farmer.

Syl Apps Won't Run Again

KINGSTON — Sylvanus Apps, Ontario's Minister of Correctional Services, says he will not seek re-election in the next provincial election.

The one-time Toronto Maple Leaf Hockey star has been Progressive Conservative member for Kingston and the Islands for 12 years.

Mr. Apps said he will step aside to "leave the riding open to a younger man, possibly with new ideas."

"I think for personal reasons, myself and my family Apps have decided we will get on to something else," he said. "...I'll be 50 in a year and a half, when I am to retire."

He said he will continue to operate his brick and building manufacturing company, Kingston Dunbrick Ltd.

Watch out for these Consumer gimmicks

Ontario consumers lose thousands of dollars annually through various gimmicks and tricks used by unethical merchants and con artists selling everything from pots and pans to magazine subscriptions.

Most of these gyps and gimmicks are available, but gullible and unwary consumers keep getting caught time and time again.

Although there are various laws designed to protect you, the consumer, the best protection you have is your own awareness of the laws and knowledge of the tricks used by unethical salesmen.

Consumer Vocabulary

A car dealer recently advertised 200 gallons of "free" gasoline with any new car purchase. One customer said he didn't want the gasoline since he lived 300 miles out of town and would have to keep returning to the dealership to fill up. The salesman then dropped the price of the car by $150, more than enough to cover the cost of the gasoline. Thus, the gasoline wasn't free at all.

"Wholesale" also causes trouble. It is most unlikely that you will be able to buy goods wholesale unless you are in business for yourself or happen to be the owner's son-in-law. The wholesale price is what the retailer pays when he buys in quantity. To this, he adds his markup for overhead and profit and arrives at the retail price--the price you pay. There are few real bargains in the buyer's world. Shop around before making a major purchase, compare prices, service and return policies in at least three stores.

"Discount" is often a meaningless term. An item that has a discounted price of $1.99 in one store may be discounted to $1.69 in another. Comparison shopping is a must when dealing with "discount" stores because of wide price variations. One outlet may have the lowest prices in sporting goods, but the highest prices in household furnishings.

Common Gimmicks

Driveway Resurfacing

A wandering salesman claims to have just completed a job nearby and, for a low price, offers to resurface your driveway. The material he uses, rather than being of good quality, may be old crankcase oil which won't dry and will cause damage to your floors when tracked into your home.

Model Home

Another ploy is to offer the proud homeowner a reduced price for aluminum siding if the home is used as a "before and after" model. After signing the contract the owner discovers his neighbor's house is also a "model" and both are paying much more money than if they had bought their siding from a reputable dealer.

Carpet

A door-to-door salesman tells you that he has enough broadloom left over from another job to carpet one of your rooms. He offers this at an unbelievably low price to "save transporting it back to his warehouse." The homeowner can't resist the "bargain" but, later, finds that the carpet is poor quality, less quantity than claimed and is a patchwork of pieces.

Termites

A so-called pest exterminator will enter an unfurnished home and find "evidence" of termite damage. After selling a termite control contract to the owner, he will return a number of times in succeeding months to discover new "infestations" resulting in additional expense for the homeowner.

Quinte Cuisine

Dr. John O. Darbyshire of the Ontario School for the Deaf says he has fond memories of the warm fellowship of church suppers in his native Ireland where Irish Soda Bread or Farle was enjoyed. A resident of Kingston, Dr. Darbyshire says the Irish Soda Bread is good served for breakfast. Recipes for white and brown are included.

Irish Soda Bread

White:

6 cups of flour
1 cup of buttermilk, sour milk, or fresh milk. If fresh is used, 1 tsp of cream of tartar is added to dry ingredients
1 tsp. baking soda
1 tsp. salt

Mix all the dry ingredients together in a large bowl and make a well in the centre. Add enough milk to make a thick dough. Stir with a wooden spoon; the pouring should be done in large quantities, not spoonful by spoonful. The mixture should be slack but not wet and the mixing done lightly and quickly. Add a little more milk if it seems too stiff. With floured hands, put on to a lightly floured board or table and flatten the dough into a circle about 1½ in. thick. Put on to a baking sheet and make a large cross over it with a floured knife. (This is to ensure even distribution of heat.) Bake in a moderate to hot oven (375 to 400 degrees F.) for about 40 minutes or until a skewer comes out clean. To keep the bread soft, it is wrapped in a clean tea-towel.

Brown:

Exactly the same as above, but use 4 cups of whole wheat flour and 2 cups of white. A little more milk is used to mix the dough.

The bread is not cut until it is quite cold and "set".

The groom was assisted by David Coton. Ushers were Richard Banks, Dr. Michael Pascoe, Dr. Ed Mednick and Yigel Zilberberg.

A dinner and reception was held at the Four Seasons.

The couple will reside at 56 Burnside Drive, Toronto.

Men, Women Not Equal — In Toronto

TORONTO (CP) Metropolitan Toronto council refused Tuesday to agree that where a man and a woman are of equal capability, the woman should be selected for a senior Metro civic position.

The policy was proposed by Barbara Greene, North York borough controller, after council appointed management consultants to undertake an executive search for a new Metro personnel officer and social services commissioner.

"Women have to be assured that they can be something other than a day-care worker, teacher or nurse," said Miss Greene, adding that Metro must make a stronger effort to place women in senior positions.

Changing Roles in Marriage Cause Conflict

By SHARON AIRHART

They're Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Calder and they have been for 20 years. Janice Calder has always thought of herself as "Mrs. Thomas." She's played the traditional wifely role, running their home and raising their children. Now the children are gone and "Mrs. Thomas" has become Janice Calder with a real estate saleswoman's competent and capable in business and financially independent. Their marriage is failing apart.

The Calders, another mystical couple, are typical of the kind of people who come to marriage counsellors like Norman Slater, of the Belleville General Hospital, for help.

Mr. Slater discusses the changing role of women and its affect on marriage.

"When a woman becomes occupationally more independent, a man, because of our culture, believes he will lose her.

Yet, he says, women are now faced with the social responsibility of making something of themselves yet still retain the social responsibility of making something of their children.

"The pressure of this split identity is creating new pressures in marriage," he says.

Mr. Slater believes that the present generation of women will never escape the confines of the culture in which they were reared. There will always be some guilt in their own minds if they choose to pursue a career.

"We're in a period of moving from one cultural definition of marriage to another," he says.

As he sees it, women are beginning to make choices which allow them to function both in the community and in the home, as men have always been able to do.

"One solution is that before marriage or children, a woman establishes a career and personal identity to which she can return after raising children."

Another increasingly more common solution is the decision not to have children at all.

The third solution is to abolish traditional roles, to mix jobs and create a family unit which works together so that each can be independent and fulfilled.

"These changes are affecting women, creating this 'schizoid' personality but it's having an effect on men too.

"A wife no longer defines herself by her husband; he can no longer define himself as the sole supporter of the family. If he is secure enough, he can accept his wife's need and become more involved in running the family."

Mr. Slater says that in a traditional marriage the man was "master". Now men and women become declsion makers in certain areas and laborers in other areas.

Some men and women can't deal with these changes.

"The man as well as the women is faced with a schizoid conflict. He doesn't want to restrict or imprison his wife but he tends to see her freedom as his loss.

"But actually there is more potential for fulfillment for both man and woman if his attitude can change; his wife's gain can also be his."

Mr. Slater says the marriage can be more vital than it had ever been when they were both confined to roles.

One side effect of woman's changing roles he says, is that women who choose not to work feel pressured by those who do.

Yet when faced with "the empty nest" after years of child raising these same women may experience new traumas.

"When the role someone has assigned himself becomes obsolete he begins to feel meaningless."

Thus, the traditional wife and husband may also arrive in the marriage counsellor's office with different and equally disturbing problems.

For the woman who chooses to stay in the home, the "empty nest" syndrome can be avoided by planning.

"She should become involved in things that won't disappear when the children do," he says.

"The person who tries to grow and change through life has seen it coming (children reaching adulthood) and won't be hit so hard."

Insomnia 'Solution' Puts Ann to Sleep

Dear Ann Landers: I'm sure you are aware that a great many people suffer from insomnia, the torture state of not being able to sleep. Are you willing to help them?

"The tongue is one of the strongest muscles in the body. It is also one of the most tense. Think about your own tongue at this very moment. You can relax it, can't you? Also, your eyes can actually be staring even though covered with closed eyelids. The eyeballs are often tense, even when the eyes are shut.

When you want to rest, or sleep, practice relaxing your tongue and your eyes. Keep your tongue away from "the roof of your mouth, or your teeth. Concentrate on relaxing your eyes. It might take diligent practice, but eventually you will be able to do it and sleep will come. Try it. Ann.—Sweet Slumber

Dear Sweet: I did and I darned near feel asleep at the typewriter. It works! It works! It works!

Dear Ann Landers: I would like to comment on the letter from the woman who was shocked when she told a New Englander she came from Iowa and the lady replied, "We pronounce it Idaho back East."

A great many people who are employed by the postal, telephone and telegraph industries are just as ignorant. I go to the post office with a letter addressed to Port Louis, Mauritius and get asked, "What country is Mauritius in?" A reporter who works in the post office should know that Mauritius is a country.

Recently, I sent a letter to Pago Pago, American Samoa. The letter came back for additional postage. The idiot in the post office didn't know we own American Samoa and it requires no extra postage.

It's the same with telephone operators. I place a call to Hamilton, Bermuda, and the operator says, "We don't have a state called Bermuda. You must mean Bermuda, Florida."

Another operator says, "I can't locate a Prince Edwards Island in British Columbia." When I told her I wasn't surprised, since it happens to be a Canadian province, she replied, "Oh, really?" A wire service telegraph employee asked a friend of mine, "What part of Africa is Manitoba in?"

Successful Living

Lovely on Surface, Seething Underneath

By DORIS CLARK

"Probably there was no family, in the history of the family, that was as destructive to people in many ways as the Victorian family. Nobody ever told anybody anything. Everything looked lovely; mother loved father; father loved mother; the parents loved all their children; and everybody was seething underneath ... but I think there were the strengths of the extended family."

—Kathleen Crowe, at Conference on Education For Family Living, Ottawa.

Conference discussion indicated the conviction that the nuclear family cannot and cannot meet all the emotional needs of its few members. No longer do we find (as a generation) three generations in one house.

So young people and young families are looking for ways in which the community can help with these emotional needs, no matter how short-changed the community is. It was thought this might explain why so many persons are moving into communes, with the hope of filling emotional needs that the small family has not met.

It helped when grandmother was around to bake Uncle Willie Lulu or Grandpoo was able to show Johnny, age six, how to drive a real live 4-board. It seems mothers and fathers all too often have pressure of other things on their minds.

Dear Doris: I have a heavy malodorous perspiration problem. Wherever I go, people will try to avoid me.

I realize that inferiority is slowly developing in me, and I find that I begin to resent people. Could you suggest any medication? It not, what kind of attitude should I take for the rest of my life?

The Depressed.

Dear Depressed: B.O. can ruin clothes, careers dispositions, friendships. And the victim may not even know it.

It has so many causes! Other accumulations of perspiration or inner bodily malfunctions, to name a couple. Your doctor can tell you more.

A daily bath might be the answer in one case; in another, frequent washing of underclothing, frequent trips to the cleaner's, for suits and woolens that will not wash successfully.

I'm sending you the name of a good deodorant; but there are several fine brands, one working better than another, depending on individual chemistry.

Leukemia Virus Believed Found

TORONTO (CP) — Two Toronto cancer researchers have found and photographed what they suspect to be a human leukemia virus.

Dr. W. M. Mak and Dr. A. F. Howatson of the Ontario Cancer Institute reported their work to the Toronto Biochemical and Biophysical Society Saturday.

The photos are the clearest yet taken of such suspected virus particles, showing structures characteristic of known animal leukemia-causing viruses, they said.

The two researchers stressed that they still lack the final proof of a human leukemia virus. They now are trying to find out if the particles they discovered are biologically active and can transform normal cells into leukemia cells.

Dr. Mak and Dr. Howatson also said that even if leukemia is found to be caused by a virus it will not be an infectious disease like measles or polio.

The leukemia virus in animals gets inside the nucleus of the cell and behaves like a gene.

The two researchers said two centuries of study have produced no evidence that the disease can be passed from one patient to another.

In reporting their work, the Toronto researchers said they used the work of U.S. scientists as a starting point. U.S. medical investigators had discovered a special enzyme that was believed to be characteristic of tumor virus.

The Canadians believe the major significance of their findings is that it provides researchers with "preparations of virus-like particles of human leukemic origin in relatively pure form."

Toronto Firms File Libel Suit

TORONTO (CP) — Two Toronto refining firms served the CBC with a writ of summons Saturday, claiming damages for libel resulting from a radio broadcast of a documentary on lead pollution.

The writ of summons by Canada Metal Co. Ltd. and Toronto Refiners and Smelters Ltd. also names The Globe and Mail; its president and publisher, James L. Cowper; and Blair Kirby and Graham Fraser, reporters for the newspaper.

On Friday, a temporary injunction prohibiting the CBC from broadcasting portions of the radio program was dissolved by Mr. Justice Richard Holland of the Ontario Supreme Court.

Mr. Justice John Wilson had granted the injunction less than an hour before the taped CBC program titled Dying of Lead was broadcast in Ontario and Quebec on the program As It Happens.

In their statement of writ, the firms cited 15 separate "innuendoes and meanings" contained in the program.

The writ adds:

"The plaintiffs have suffered and will in the future suffer incalculable irreparable harm to their business.

"They have lost customers, reputation and have been subjected to humiliation, contempt and rejection by the community and have been put to abnormal expenses."

It also asks for an injunction prohibiting "any reference ... to the program Dying of Lead."

In a related action, the two companies again asked for an injunction, until the libel case is heard, restraining not only the CBC, The Globe and Mail and their employees, but "any other person with knowledge of such an order" from publishing "anything complained of in the statement of claim" and also from publishing particulars of injunction documents.

Dixie Lee Sparkles In Defeat

PETERBOROUGH (Special) — Belleville Dixie Lee came up with a solid team effort here Sunday but it wasn't enough to keep the team in the hunt for an Ontario Minor Hockey Association title.

Outscoring the visitors 3-1 in the final 20 minutes of play, Peterborough recorded a 5-1 win in the Triple A minor peewee match in wrap up the best of five series in straight games.

The home team held a slim 1-0 lead after one period and scored the only goal of the second 20 minutes.

Dixie Lee's lone marksman was Louis Crawford who combined with Tony Parks and Alexander Sheffield.

The Belleville squad got sound goaltending from Norbey; a steady effort by the defence and a two-way performance from the forwards to make it interesting for the Peterborough skaters. Forward Danny Hounslow was chosen the game's third star.

Peterborough won the first two games handily by scores of 12-1 and 6-0.

Basketball Lancers Finish in Third Place

Flyers Come to Aid Of the Team Captain

By GLENN COLE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Earlier this season, defenceman Barry Cummins of California Golden Seals made the mistake of whacking Philadelphia's Bobby Clarke on the head with his stick during a National Hockey League game.

Clarke, the captain of the Flyers and the most valuable player to his team in 1972-73, fell to the ice but was quickly joined by Cummins who was surrounded by several of Clarke's team-mates.

Clarke got into a bit of trouble again Sunday afternoon in Montreal when the Flyers took on the Canadiens. As the siren wailed to end the second period, Clarke and Montreal defenceman Pierre Bouchard became embroiled in a minor scuffle along the boards.

As soon as the Flyers saw their little team captain was in trouble, they raced off the bench to his aid, precipitating a general melee which resulted in three players being ejected from the game by referee Art Skov.

The best tussle of the session was a four-punch fight between Montreal defenceman Larry Robinson and Dave Schultz of the Flyers. Robinson got in all the punches.

But the brawling seemed to inspire the Flyers and they came back with three power-play goals by Gary Dornhoefer and Ross Lonsberry to tie the Canadiens 2-2.

In other games, Chicago Black Hawks downed Toronto Maple Leafs 4-1, Buffalo Sabres defeated Detroit Red Wings 4-2 and Minnesota North Stars beat California Golden Seals 7-1.

Saturday it was New York Rangers 9 Vancouver Canucks 4, Toronto 7 Atlanta Flames 2, Pittsburgh Penguins 7 California 3, Chicago 4 New York Islanders 0, Boston Bruins 5 Los Angeles Kings 2 and Minnesota North Stars 4 St. Louis Blues 2.

Flyers 2 Canadiens 2 . . .

"We stick up for each other," said Schultz. "That's why we're going so good. And we really got into it if Bobby's in trouble."

After a scoreless first period, Montreal took a 2-0 lead in the second on goals by Chuck Lefley and Murray Wilson.

Lonsberry's goal came after defencemen Barry Lapointe fanned on an uncomplicated pass and the Philadelphia forward poked the puck in on the short side.

Referee Skov assessed 91 minutes in penalties.

Hawks 4 Leafs 1 . . .

Jim Pappin scored three goals and Dennis Hull added the other as Chicago stretched its unbeaten string to nine games.

Paul Henderson spoiled goalie Tony Esposito's bid for a third consecutive shutout with a goal at 3:45 of the third period.

Sabres 2 Red Wings 1 . . .

Rick Dudley's goal at 14:36 of the third period gave Buffalo the win. Don Luce got the other Buffalo goal and Mickey Redmond scored his 32rd goal of the year for Detroit.

Stars 7 Seals 1 . . .

Buster Harvey scored twice and veteran goalie Gump Worsley, appearing in his 820th NHL game, stopped 25 shots as Minnesota handed California its second straight loss under new coach Marshall Johnston.

Johnston, a former member of Canada's national team, took over the coaching reins Saturday. Play resumes Tuesday with a day from Fred Glover after the Islanders got home to Montreal. NHL had purchased the fran-treal, Vancouver at Los Angeles chise from Charles O. Finley, and Atlanta in St. Louis.

Clarke – Plenty of Help

Coaching Debut For Lou Angotti

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Lou Angotti, who overcame lack of size as a player, hopes his perseverance also will pay off as coach of St. Louis Blues of the National Hockey League.

"I told the players it's going to be tough," the dark-haired veteran of 10 NHL seasons said after assuming the Blues' reins Saturday.

"That anything that's worthwhile is going to take an effort," the 5-foot-8, 170-pound Angotti added. "I'm not going to panic. I don't see any reason why any of us should panic."

Angotti, who scored 12 goals and totalled 23 assists for the Blues this season, was speaking at a news conference.

Eight hours later, in his debut behind the bench, he watched his team perform strongly during the first period only to collapse in the next 20 minutes and lose 4-2 to Minnesota North Stars.

"It isn't going to happen overnight, but we're going to have to rectify the situation as fast as we can. We played a strong first period only to beat ourselves the next."

Angotti, schooled during six of his NHL playing seasons by Chicago Black Hawks coach Billy Reay, indicated he favors the Reay system.

"It's having your defence stand up and your wingers coming back," he said. "And meeting them at the blue line, forcing them to make their play.

"If you clear out your own end, you're always going to get your chances offensively. I think we have more than adequate personnel."

"Interim, I think, is perhaps not a fair word," Salomon said of Angotti's chances for coaching longevity. "I want to see this year concludes and how he gets along with the job."

Knights Set Sights On A Playoff Berth

By GERRY SUTTON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

It might only be a dream, but New Jersey Knights were thinking about a World Hockey Association playoff berth after Sunday night's 10-3 whitewer Quebec Nordiques.

"This could be the game that turns us around," said coach Harry Howell of the Knights. "We're back on the beam again."

"This was a great game for us," said centre Andre Lacroix. "Quebec is one team we have to beat to get into the playoffs — as long as we keep playing this way, we can make the playoffs."

However, before the Knights start getting playoff tickets, they should take another look at Quebec's roster, depleted Sunday because of injuries.

Among the missing were Alain Caron, with 26 goals, and Serge Bernier, 25 goals and 36 assists. Also out of Quebec's lineup were Jean-Guy Gendron, Jean Payette and Norm Descoteaux.

"They're better than they showed tonight," said Howell. "They only had two real lines and we were throwing four lines at them, simply overpowering them."

In other games, Edmonton Oilers nipped Toronto Toros 3-2 in overtime; New England Whalers beat Houston 5-3 in overtime; Cleveland Crusaders downed Chicago Cougars 6-5; Winnipeg Fighting Jets defeated Houston Aeros 6-1; and Vancouver Blazers blanked Los Angeles Sharks 4-0.

Saturday's scores were: Cleveland 3, Quebec 2; and Toronto 5, Chicago 4.

Knights 10 Nordiques 3

Wayne Rivers, Mike Laughlin, Brian Bradley and Brian Mavety each scored two goals for the Knights, in sixth and last place in the East Division with 52 points.

The Whalers lead the division with 66 points, two more than the Toros. The Nordiques have 61, the Crusaders 59 and the Cougars 53.

Andre Gaudette scored two goals for the Nordiques.

Oilers 3 Toros 2

The Oilers snapped a six-game losing streak when Al Hamilton — who played 30 ls. 30 minutes — scored his second goal of the game with two seconds remaining in a five-minute, sudden-death overtime period.

The win gave the fourth-place Oilers 58 points in the West Division, two behind the Aeros and 10 ahead of the Blazers. The Aeros lead with 73 points, more than two behind the Saints.

Hamilton trailed 2-1 after the second period, but Hamilton's first goal and that of the season at 14:34 of the final period sent the game into overtime.

The Oilers' announced that Jim Harrison, embroiled in a dispute with general-manager Bill Hunter over terms of his four-year contract, will undergo surgery today to repair a disc problem in his back.

Harrison is out for the remainder of the season, said the Oilers, who have called up Don Anderson from Winston-Salemor of the Southern Hockey League.

Whalers 3 Jets 2 . . .

John Cunniff's second goal of the game at 5:32 of sudden-death overtime gave the Whalers their win, their second in a row over the Jets.

Crusaders 6 Cougars 5 . . .

Centre Ken Ward, recently traded to the Crusaders, had three goals and an assist to lead Cleveland. He snapped a 5-5 third-period tie with his 17th goal at 16:33 after taking a pass from Gary Jarrett, who picked up three assists.

Salats 6 Aeros 1

Wayne Connelly got three goals, giving him 34, and Jimmy Johnson scored twice as the Saints won their third in succession and snapped the Aeros' seven-game unbeaten streak.

Needd Back in Action In Marlies 4-2 Loss

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Greg Neeld is a determined hockey player.

The 18-year-old Toronto Marlboros player returned to Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A action Sunday for the first time since he lost the sight of an eye as the result of a high stick last Dec. 7.

While he missed two scoring opportunities and was called for a hooking penalty on his first shift in the ice, Neeld wasn't feeling pessimistic after his team's 4-2 loss to Hamilton Red Wings.

"I felt good out there. I thought I had no trouble carrying and passing the puck. (Mark) Napier and (Bruce) Boudreau are smart players, I knew they'd be in the right places when I needed them."

Neeld wore a clear protective plastic mask over his face while playing.

"I want to play so good next season that the National Hockey League will change its ruling and allow me to play. I've got to prove that the injury won't affect my play, that I'm as capable if not better than anybody in the pro league," he added.

At present, an NHL ruling prohibits hockey players with the use of only one eye from playing in the league.

Kevin Cornforth and Dave Norris scored the first two Hamilton goals as the Red Wings built a 3-0 lead into the final period.

John Smith and Brad Winkler tied the game for the Marlboros only to have Hamilton's Wilfred Wing and Dale Smart score in the final 10 minutes of the game.

In other games in the series Sunday, Oshawa Knights bowed Oshawa Generals 6-1, downed Oshawa Generals 6-1, downed Oshawa Generals 6-1, downed Ottawa 67s defeated Kitchener Rangers 4-3, Sudbury Wolves edged Peterborough Petes 2-1 and St. Catharines Black Hawks trounced Kingston Canadians 11-3.

Black Hawks 11 Canadians 3

Ties Make Difference For Six AHL Teams

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Thirty-one became a popular number over the weekend for the six teams battling for divisional championships in the American Hockey League.

Ties made the differences in the standings for Rochester-Americans, New Haven Nighthawks, Providence Reds, Hershey Bears, Baltimore Clippers and Cincinnati Swords, who all came out of the weekend with 31 wins.

The Americans took over sole occupancy of first place in the North Division by beating Jacksonville Barons 4-2 Sunday night.

That gave them a one-point edge over the Nighthawks, who managed only a tie in two weekend games, and a three-point edge over the Reds.

The Bears saw their lead over the clippers and Swords shrink to three points in the South Division, with six weeks to go in the regular schedule.

The Americans scored three goals in the third period in Jacksonville to come from behind and win.

Rick Merrell, Jake Rathwell, Rick Pagnutti and Bob Eliott scored for Rochester. Brad Boetow and Steve Warr scored for Jacksonville.

In other Sunday games, Cincinnati edged Nova Scotia Voyageurs 6-5, Providence edged Hershey 4-3 and Richmond Rifles downed Boston Braves 6-4.

Swords 2 Wings 1

Veteran centre Billy Inglis broke a 1-1 tie with 14 seconds to play as the Swords won their fifth in a row. Peter McNab of Cincinnati and Len Fontaine of Virginia were the other scorers.

Clippers 3 Nighthawks 2

Steve West scored with 2:21 to play to give New Haven the tie. Jerry Byers, Charlie Burns, John Rogers and Dave Lee scored the other Nighthawk goals.

Howie Menard scored twice and Brian Murphy, Marc Dufour and Rick Foley once each for the Clippers.

Kings 6 Voyageurs 3

Nova Scotia staged a three-goal rally in the third period that fell short. Wayne Cherneckli scored twice for the Kings, with Phil Hadley, Scott Seagrist, Ross Webley and Gordy Smith added one each.

Reds 5 Bears 4

Don Borgesse slipped a short backhander home midway in the third period to give the Reds, who had a 52-32 edge in shots on goal, the narrow win.

Robins 6 Braves 4

Alan MacAdam scored two goals for Richmond, including an intrance marker with seven seconds to play. Other scorers for the Robins were Doug Volmar, Larry Goodenough, Larry Keenan and Larry Wright.

Bob Gryp with two goals, Al Simmons and Ron Anderson scored for Boston.

Tuesday, Springfield visits Baltimore and Rochester travels to Jacksonville.

Dave Stockton — Startled

His 276 Total Good for $30,000

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sam Snead almost fell over in excitement when Dave Stockton at the 18th tee in the final round of the Los Angeles open golf tournament Sunday.

"He's a great needler," said Stockton.

Snead just made a birdie on the 17th to get within one stroke of Stockton. Now, on the 18th, he birdied the last two holes to beat Ben Hogan.?

"It kind of startled me. I didn't know what to say."

But it didn't startle him enough. Stockton birdied the final hole for a last-round 69 and—with a 276 total—a two-stroke victory over Snead, 61, and John Mahaffey.

Both Snead and Mahaffey matched par-71 over the 7,026-yard Riviera Country Club course.

Tom Watson was in a four-man fight for the lead until he made a pair of double bogeys on the back nine. He finished with a 72—280 and fourth alone.

Johnny Miller, a three-time winner this season, went over par for the first time this year. His 72—281 put him in fifth place and stopped his string at 23 consecutive rounds in which he had shot par or better.

Tom Weiskopf blew to 76 and 283, Jack Nicklaus had a 75—285, Lee Trevino a 72—287, and Arnold Palmer a 76—281.

George Knudson of Toronto, who was four strokes behind the leaders after the third round, soared to a 79 for a 290 total and $1,087.

Stockton, 33, now the winner of seven titles in his 10 years on pro tour, needed only 29 putts in his final round.

He won $30,000. Snead and Mahaffey each claimed $13,875 from the total purse of $150,000.

Toronto "Home" For Tom Okker

TORONTO (CP) — After Sunday's performance, Tom Okker may consider making Toronto his second home.

"I've always done well here," said the 29-year-old Dutchman after defeating top-seeded Ilie Nastase of Romania 6-3, 6-4, in the $50,000 Rothman's International tennis tournament.

Okker won $8,000 last summer's Canadian Open in Toronto and plans a return to this year's tournament in August, is on the negotiating list of the Toronto franchise in the fledgling World Team Tennis (WTT) league.

"I was hitting a lot of good shots today," said Okker who received $10,000 for his 53 minutes of work in disposing of Nastase.

TORONTO NEWS ADVANCES

TORONTO (CP) — John Matthewson of Toronto RCMP round up with six wins and a second Sunday to win the Ontario Police Curling Association title and advance to the Canadian final March 11-16 in Calgary. Bay Stag of Ottawa RCMP was second with a 5-2 record.

Lecavalier On Spree

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

For Gilbert Lecavalier it was the kind of weekend most junior hockey players dream of, even though it wasn't quite that good for Donald Nationals in the team he plays for.

Lecavalier, last eligible year in the Central Junior Hockey League, Lecavalier scored four times in a 13-7 win over Nepean Raiders Saturday and three times in a 6-3 win over Hawkesbury Rangers Sunday.

The other weekend game was a 5-3 victory Sunday by Pembroke Lumber Kings over Brockville Warriors.

But Lecavalier's scoring spree boosted his season total to 67 goals, only two short of his record set last year by Ed Hahn of the Kings.

The big difference is that Hahn played with a team that ran away with the league championship. Lecavalier plays for a team that has won only 12 of its 37 games in a 52-game schedule.

Still, the only team Rockland has yet to beat is Gloucester and for the handful of fans at Sunday's game that was the big disappointment.

Trailing marginally throughout the game, the Nationals rallied into an 8-7 lead in the third period only to see it dissolve with two late Gloucester goals.

In their Saturday win, the Nationals also got three goals from Charbonneau, two from Feindel and one each from Menard, Kerry Young, Dave Dale and Mike Dumont.

With Nepean going to Smiths Falls to play the Bears Tuesday, the league now has Smiths Falls in the lead, Pembroke and Nepean tied for third, Nepean a close fourth, Brockville third, Rockland bolt out of the playoff.

Avalanche Hits Skiers

VALEMOUNT, B.C. (CP) — One man was killed and six other skiers injured, two critically, Sunday when an avalanche tore through a group of ski skiers on Miss Mountain, 180 miles north of Kamloops.

The RCMP identified the dead man as Geoffrey B. Taylor, 44, of Montreal. Taylor's body was found under three feet of heavy, wet snow less than 20 minutes after the avalanche swept down. He was the only skier completely buried by the slide.

Two other skiers were flown to hospital in McBride, B.C., 50 miles west of Valemount.

One, a Montreal doctor, was listed in critical condition with severe head and leg injuries. A woman was also in critical condition with chest injuries.

Four other skiers were treated for minor injuries in Jasper, 130 miles east of the avalanche site, and in McBride.

Raids Made

BRIGHTS GROVE, Ont. (CP) — Sarnia Township Reeve Ken James said he was concerned about charges of violence and police brutality following two raids on cabins near here during the weekend.

About 40 policemen took part in a Saturday raid after a policeman was hurt in an other raid the night before.

Occupants of the rented cabins charged that police then kicked their doors in and roughed them up.

A spokesman for Sarnia Township police would not say whether any arrests had been made or whether search warrants were used.

The ambassador, accompanied by his wife and other dignitaries from the Ottawa embassy went to Niagara Falls, met provincial and civic officials and toured a Toronto packing plant, the newspaper says.

Oppression Seen

Traffic Down

ST. IGNACE, Mich. (AP) — Larry Rubin, gazing out his window at the deserted lanes of the Mackinac Bridge and half-a-dozen toll-takers sitting idly in their booths, said:

"If this is a forerunner of what's going to come, we're in trouble."

Although dealers insist they have the gasoline to handle the state's needs, Rubin, a tourist Peninsula is losing a good share of its economic base because, as Rubin says, tourists simply don't believe it.

Rubin, head of the Mackinac Bridge Authority, says traffic on the bridge has fallen by 21.3 per cent so far this year.

White House Blames Blank Tapes on Defect

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (AP) — Questioning the findings of a committee of experts it helped select, the White House says a gap in a subpoenaed 18½-minute tape in one of President Nixon's key Watergate conversations probably was caused by a defective recording machine.

Nixon's chief Watergate lawyer, James St. Clair, issued a statement Sunday night disclosing that the White House made its own technical investigation, which did not support the earlier indication by tape experts that the erasure was deliberate.

St. Clair said erasure marks found on the tape of a June 20, 1972, conversation between Nixon and H. R. Haldeman then his staff chief, "could well have been, and probably were caused by the admittedly defective recording machine."

The court-appointed committee found that a defective part in a recorder apparently accounted for a hum on the tape but suggested the Nixon-Haldeman conversation was obliterated by someone pressing the machine's record button five to nine times.

St. Clair and White House lawyer Fred Buzhardt were flown to Florida Sunday aboard an air force jet to meet with the Nixon aides on the continuing

Power Plant Operators Strike at GM

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP) — Supervisory personnel took over the operation of power plants at the General Motors of Canada Ltd. works here at midnight Sunday night when operating engineers went on strike.

The 37-man local of the International Union of Operating Engineers is seeking a wage pack similar to that won in 1973 by auto workers.

Supervisors took over operation of the two steam plants at the Oshawa works and a company spokesman said they should be able to operate them indefinitely.

However, the spokesman added, the supervisors would be required to build power up in the plants for the day shift of assembly-line workers.

"We won't know for sure how things will go until then," he said.

End Protest

TORONTO (CP) — More than 1,000 interns and resident doctors in Ontario hospitals will end their work-to-rule protest for higher wages and shorter work weeks at 5 p.m. today, Dr. Andrew Padmos, president of the Professional Association of Interns and Residents of Ontario, said early today).

Many members expressed concern that continuation of the protest would lead to antagonism . . . and of course there was concern for patients."

Energy Seen Top Business Problem

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal cabinet was told today the Canadian Chamber of Commerce considers development of energy resources the most significant issue now affecting business.

Chamber president J. E. King listed the basic issues facing what he called "a time of economic and social important, as determined by a survey of members."

In a statement to the cabinet, he also outlined policies the chamber wants the government to adopt.

These include: Continuation of lower tax rates for manufacturers, adoption of a ceiling on government spending, and opposition to wage and price controls.

The Montreal-based chamber represents about 700 community organizations and, in the opening paragraph of his text, Mr. King had this terse comment:

"Perhaps it is of more than passing interest that there is at least one community chamber and usually several in every electoral riding in Canada."

The survey showed that after energy and inflation, the issues concerning businessmen were in order of importance, government expenditures, strikes, inessential services, incentive to work and taxation.

In a separate statement to the cabinet, the chamber asked for speedy adoption of a long-term policy on energy.

It also endorsed construction of a natural gas pipeline from the Arctic along the Mackenzie River Valley and extension of a pipeline to carry western crude oil to Montreal refineries.

Mr. King said the chamber supported many current government policies to fight inflation, including income supplement payments, tax cuts and the floating Canadian dollar.

The chamber proposed that lower tax rates for manufacturing and processing industries be extended permanently and that a first write-off allowance on capital spending be confirmed until "until such time as the full review currently being done on all capital cost allowances is completed."

Mr. King said the chamber concluded its meeting to revise the social security system but it had certain reservations.

"In view of the increases in old age pensions and family allowances resulting from cost-of-living indexing, on top of the mounting costs of the unemployment insurance program, the government seriously questions the seemingly endless spiral of social security costs."

The chamber said people on fixed incomes needed aid but said this would only be possible if the economy were strong.

"We recommend that the federal government seize the initiative and set a ceiling on its spending, which would include transfer of payments to provinces and individuals."

The chamber asked that cost estimates for social security programs be prepared for the next three years.

Mr. King urged the government to not increase taxes because they would be inflationary.

Perc Explodes

NEW YORK (Reuter) — Two stewardesses were injured Saturday night when a coffee-maker exploded aboard a jetliner carrying Egyptian and Saudi Arabian foreign ministers to Washington, a Trans World Airlines spokesman reported.

Ministers to Study Welfare Problems

OTTAWA (CP) — A proposed community employment program for the hard-core jobless will probably come up for discussion for the first time at a federal-provincial welfare ministers' meeting this week in Edmonton, a federal spokesman says.

The meeting is the third in a series of conferences being held with the aim of overhauling the country's welfare plans. Its previous meetings, the ministers have agreed to increase family allowance and Canada Pension Plan (CPP) benefits.

There will likely be further discussion on the pension plan at the Tuesday and Wednesday meetings, particularly with regard to provisions which critics say discriminate on grounds of sex.

Stewart Wants Ban On DES Removed Here

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — William Stewart, provincial agriculture minister, says Ottawa should remove the ban on use of the controversial beef-growth stimulant diethylstilbestrol (DES) or close the border to United States beef.

He said Saturday that these are the only choices open to Ottawa now that the United States Supreme Court has removed the DES ban in the U.S.

DES was banned last year in both countries under pressure from consumer groups who said there could be dangerous long-term effects on humans by the carcinogenic (cancer producing) drug, a synthetic female hormone.

Mr. Stewart told about 500 persons at a government-sponsored dinner for delegates to the Canadian Beef Breeds convention that there has never been clear evidence of a health hazard from eating DES-fed beef.

"U.S. research indicated that less than two per cent of the beef livers examined in a testing program had traces of DES in them," he said. "None of these had more than two parts per billion."

DES increases the rate of growth of beef animals from 15 to 20 per cent thereby reducing production costs.

Soviet Poet Calls For End to Silence

MOSCOW (CP) The Soviet Communist party leadership faces the problem of how to handle the sudden rebellion of poet Yevgeny Yevtushenko, often considered a member of the Soviet literary establishment.

Yevtushenko's 1,100-word statement made available here, called Sunday for an end to silence about the crimes of the Stalinist era and bitterly humiliated by the Kremlin for intervening on behalf of banished author Alexander Solzhenitsyn.

His appeal coincided with circulation in Moscow of a final note left by Solzhenitsyn—written Feb. 6, the day of his arrest—in which the author of Gulag Archipelago also called on writers and intellectuals to reject lies and pressures from the authorities and speak the truth.

Yetushenko's outburst surprised many Moscow observers, who had regarded him as a brilliant promoter and propagandist not likely to risk ruining his career by outright opposition to the principles of Soviet cultural policy.

In a letter addressed to the Russian people, Yevtushenko said that after Solzhenitsyn was arrested he sent a "correct" but critical telegram to the Soviet Communist party's central committee.

He was called before the Writers' Union and told his telegram was "contemptible blackmail."

Yevtushenko wrote, then he was asked to make a public statement against Solzhenitsyn, and when he refused he was told he had "an ambiguous political stand." He said a public poetry concert he had to give was cancelled, and "the prohibition of my concert was the beginning of discrediting my name."

Fatally Beaten At Dance On Valentine's

Police said Stanley M. Donald had attended the dance at a church and became involved in an argument as he was leaving. He is survived by marriage, William Hargie, 27, of Toronto has been charged with non-capital murder.

Sunday Paper

CALGARY (CP) Calgary's first Sunday newspaper, called Sunday, began publishing Sunday.

Lawyers Ask Probe Of Police 'Bugging'

EDMONTON (CP) — The Federation of Law Societies of Canada called Sunday for a public inquiry into the electronic bugging by police of judicial and law offices in Quebec.

W. G. C. Howland of Toronto, federation president, said in a news release following a mid-winter session held here during the weekend, that the "bugging" of the offices of "at least two judges, two lawyers and one notary in Quebec by police organizations was condemned by the federation."

The federation is made up of representatives of the 11 governing bodies of the legal profession in Canada.

Reporters Commenting Draw Fire of Ryan

TORONTO (CP) Claude Ryan, publisher of Le Devoir in Montreal, says good journalists rather than press councils are the best protection for the public.

Speaking to the Ontario Weekly Newspaper Association annual dinner Saturday, Mr. Ryan said a person who presents his ideas publicly today does not have the assurance that he will be reported fairly.

Partly, he said, this is a result of error and partly because many younger reporters want to comment rather than report.

"The discipline must come from within the paper.

"Each paper must have its own standards. Press councils are needed only in the absence of such a spirit within newspapers."

He also said that the time had passed when publishers—either daily or weekly—can take part in service club functions.

"We must keep our distance. . . . We have to give the strong impression that we have nothing to do with any established interests. The head of a newspaper must be a solitary figure."

IN MEMORIAM

WILSON — In loving memory of a dear father, Lyman Wilson, who left us years ago today.
He would like to wish for sorrow,
Nor would he wish for tears,
But just a little kindly thought
As the years roll by.
—Always remembered by daughter-in-law Jean, of Cobourg, Ont.

WILSON — In fond and loving memory of a dear father, Lyman Wilson, who passed away Feb. 10, 1962.
Wilson, dearest father mine,
Life is lonely since you died.
—Sadly missed by Wm. Amey and family.

MURRAY — In loving memory of a dear dad, John Patrick who passed away Feb. 11, 1973.
We always remember the way he smiled.
The way he sighed and smiled.
The little things he said and did,
That made him our dad.
For given the task of missing,
The habit is never dim.
Until then, each night, we shine,
We will remember.
—Remembered by daughter Marjorie, husband son-in-law Ernest.

Marcel Sabourin Man of Many Talents

Ottawa. — Not only is Marcel Sabourin known as an outstanding actor on both stage and screen, he has many other talents covering a wide field - a scenarist-writer, playwright, director, television star, lyricist, and even as a professor.

Sabourin, who will take the part of Priveilis in La Fausse Suivante, by Marivaux through February at the national arts centre has played many roles in his career. First of all, he's a film star, and has been in the majority of films made in Quebec during the last few years, all full-length films in which he played the lead.

But he is not content only to act; he also writes, scenarios, for example.

He has written plays, including La Fin Tragique De Sir Squarchicapeau, Les Cuisines (for television); Sparages, in collaboration with Les Jeunes Comedians of Le Theatre du Nouveau Monde; and quite a number of plays for children. Moreover, he likes directing - notably Les Bonnes (Genet) and Le Medecin Malgre Lui, which he directed in Paris.

In theatre, he has played important parts in some outstanding productions, such as Sergeant Kite in Tambours Et Trompettes (Brecht), Pozzo in Les Oranges Sont Vertes (Claude Gauvreau) opposite Michelle Rossignol, who will be appearing with him in La Fausse Suivante. Still with Le Theatre du Nouveau Monde, he played the Nephew in Le Neveu De Rameau (Diderot). He has played for Stratford (Ontario) in Henry V and Henry VI, and in three different productions in Paris.

With such broad experience on stage and screen, it is not surprising to find that he also teaches theatrical history acting, and improvisation, and organizes workshops in many areas, including in Toronto.

But even actors, playwrights and professors need to relax sometime and so as a diversion, Marcel Sabourin has written songs for Charlebois and Louise Forestier, for example. He has in fact composed more than 60, and among his greatest hits are: "Tout ecartille", "Engagement", "Egg generation", "Beige nelge", "Tu v'la", and "Chat d' dans". Marcel Sabourin will play, in the NAC Studio, La Fausse Suivante, with Michelle Rossignol, who has the title role Jean Leclerc, Rita Lafontaine, Gilles Provost and Marc Hebert, directed, by Andre Brassard. Presented by the NAC French-language company February 5-23, public performances of La Fausse Soivante will be given on Thursdays, Fridays, and Saturdays only in each week, the older days being been set aside for school matinees.

Boat Will Be Rocked

"Why Rock The Boat?", William Weintraub's critically-acclaimed comic novel about the adventures and romances of a young newspaperman is set to go before the cameras, with John Howe as director.

A National Film Board of Canada production, "Why Rock The Boat?" will be filmed in and around Montreal beginning Feb. 19. It will star Stuart Gillard, Titu Leek and Ken James.

Others featured in the cast include: Henry Beckman, Patricia Gage, Sean Sullivan, Bud Knapp, Marie-France Beaulieu, Maurice Podbrey, Henry Ramer, Ruben Moreno, Tom Harvey and Barry Baldero.

When Weintraub's book was first published, The New York Times called it "a delightful lampoon", The Toronto Star called it "one of the funniest and most biting satires of a newspaper in recent literature", and Toronto's Globe and Mail said: "Weintraub's humour ranges from extreme subtlety to broad farce".

The story, which is set against the background of Montreal during the middle-ties, was inspired by Weintraub's own experience as a reporter; the book and the film describe the adventures of a young reporter, Harry Barnes, to be played by Stuart Gillard. Harry wants desperately to achieve success with The Daily Wilness, the dullest paper in town. His future, however, is in the hands of Phillip L. Belcher (Henry Beckman), the fourth richest & most vicious managing editor.

Aside from the constant threat of losing his job, Harry's troubles include a frustrating romance and the problem of how to lose his fourth-some virginity.

"Why Rock The Boat?" reunites Titu Leek, a stunning blonde model-turned-actress from Toronto, and award-winning director John Howe, who directed her in "Face Of A Stone Lost", a musical comedy filmed recently at the NFB for use in edifying.

Stuart Gillard, playing Harry, has starred in several television, film and stage productions. His recent film roles include the "Virgin Executor" and "Rowdyman". Ken James, an accomplished Canadian actor, who recently starred in the NFB's "A Star Is Lost", plays Waldron, the staff photographer who guides Harry along the confusing path. Henry Beckman, who has starred on the stage and in television and film on both sides of the border, plays Butler, the dictatorial managing editor of The Witness. Miss Leek plays Julia, the beautiful girl activist who is more interested in fighting for the underdog than in becoming personally involved with the free-rock Harry.

"Why Rock The Boat?" was adapted for the screen by author William Weintraub, who is also the film's producer. James de B. Domville is the executive producer and Maica Gillson is associate producer. Ashley Murray is assistant director; Saves Kalogeras, director of photography; Phyllis Preston, production designer; Jean Savard, business manager; and Phyllis Wingfield, costume designer.

TV Family Split Up

TORONTO (CP) — House of Pride, a new CBC television drama series about a contemporary family whose members live in six Canadian cities, will be shown twice-weekly beginning next January, Thom Benson, director of television entertainment programs, said Tuesday.

He said in a statement that episodes of the 13-week series will be filmed in Halifax, Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg, Edmonton and Vancouver.

Casting for the characters, who are to be involved in many facets of Canadian life from farming to politics, will take place later. The series is to have 24 characters and actors will be chosen mainly from the regions where production takes place.

Mennonite Centennial

Somewhat overshadowed by Winnipeg's 100th birthday this year, the town of Steinbach, Man., also has a centennial. In 1877 the Canadian government set aside eight township in an area 40 miles southeast of Winnipeg for the exclusive use of Mennonite settlers emigrating from Russia. Over the next three years, 6,500 members of the religious sect settled. Their determination to conquer the land is depicted at the museum and pioneer village at Steinbach which includes a specially-constructed version of an 1877 windmill. (CP Photo)

Flying Dutchman Booked

TORONTO — Herman Geiger-Torel, General Director of the Canadian Opera Company has announced that Danish baritone Leif Roar and young German dramatic soprano Ute Vinsing will star in the Canadian Opera premiere of Wagner's The Flying Dutchman during the Company's 20th season, fall at O'Keefe Centre.

Roar, who is one of today's greatest interpreters of the Dutchman, studied in his native Copenhagen before signing his first contract with the Kiel Opera House in Germany. He has since sung in such houses as Munich's Bayerian State Opera, the Bregenz Festival, La Scala in Milan, the Vienna State Opera and the Salzburg Easter Festival; in roles ranging from Nick Shadow in The Rake's Progress to Kurwenal in Tristan und Isolde.

Ms. Vinsing, who made her professional debut in Lubek only five seasons ago, has been acclaimed throughout Europe from Barcelona and Berlin to Nurnberg, Augsburg, Cologne and Dusseldorf. The soprano, who sings Senta in the Canadian Opera debut, already has a repertoire encompassing over 20 roles, from Mimi, Santuzza, Butterfly and Desdemona in the Italian repertoire to such German opera heroines as Brunnhilde and Isolde.

Co-starring as Daland in the Canadian Opera production will be Ivan Wildermann, acclaimed for his brilliant portrayals last season of Hagen in Die Gotterdammerung and Rocco in Fidelio. A member of the Stuttgart State Opera since 1965, Wildermann, in a career which spans over a quarter century, has performed with the world's greatest opera houses, including the Metropolitan and San Francisco Operas and the Teatro Colon in Buenos Aires.

Making his Canadian Opera debut as Erik is the young U.S. tenor Charles Hlodsley, a leading singer with the New York City Opera.

Created Information Program

NEW YORK (AP) — Dan Golenpaul, creator of the radio program Information Please, died Wednesday night after a long illness.

Golenpaul, 72, created the program in 1938 and it ran on radio until 1952. A television version filled, radio being better suited to the wit and conversational sparkle of the show's regulars.

Golenpaul chose Clifton Fadiman to moderate the show. Among the panelists, Franklin P. Adams and Oscar Levant became regulars on the program. He reversed the normal quiz show format by having a knowledgable panel field questions submitted by the general public.

Diabetics May Require Snacks

By G. C. THORSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thorsteson: My niece, my nephew in his 30s has been a diabetic for years. He has suffered eye and kidney troubles of a rather severe nature.

He is much mentally but will not face up to what is a correct diet. He will eat a large dinner (whatever a normal diet would be for anyone else) and then refuse to eat a snack and then snacks through the day. Shuns hardly anything.

His last repeatedly been warned to exercise by walking, but in spite of obvious clinic latory troubles involving his feet, he will not.

I would appreciate a strong article in your column which can be read, that might shake him.—N.N.

After all the diabetics I have treated, I have to admit that there are some who simply reject fact that they have a disease. It is not an intelligent reaction, of course, but some do it. They seem to have some dim, intractable hope that if they deny the truth, the trouble will go away. It won't.

As to his eating and his snacks, I'd have to know more before venturing a firm opinion. Diabetic diet can, in fact, be fairly liberal, and a night-time snack may be quite suitable with certain insulin schedules. Sometimes a mid-afternoon snack may be necessary.

But the snacks usually should be small, and of a high-protein type—not cake or cookies. There also is a limit to the amount of starchy food of diabetic can handle.

So—the questions in my mind are these: Does he recognize the need to limit starches? Is he gaining weight? Does he have periodic blood sugar tests, and what do they show?

Poor control of diabetes accelerates damage to the eyes, kidneys, heart and blood vessels—but when these have occurred it's too late to undo the damage. Such complications can be prevented but can't be reversed after they have occurred.

With eye trouble and poor circulation in the feet, your nephew evidently is already starting to have such damage, and he'll be in more going to do something to stop the advance of such complications it has to be now.

There are the facts. What else can I tell him?

Dear Dr. Thorsteson: Is it true that "crib death" babies were born but it always died of that human milk would protect the baby from crib death, but a friend, a medical student, said it was.—J.

I definitely plan to nurse all my babies but I'd like to know how much chance they will have to escape crib death.—Mrs. J.M.S.

Your friend is correct. The exact cause of crib death is not really known, but method of breast-breast or bottle—is not a factor.

Dear Dr. Thorsteson: I am teacher of 8-year-olds, and contract pregnancy. Should I get German measles vaccine or "take a chance?" — J.D.

Perhaps neither.

If you are not immune to German measles, then I would say you should take all possible pains not to become pregnant right away, because if a German measles epidemic starts, it is most likely to spread among the children, and you would be very likely exposed to it. So if you are not immune, then get the vaccination and be sure not to become pregnant for the following three months.

If you are already immune—and a great many adults are—then you don't need the vaccine.

And if you don't know whether you are, go to your doctor for a test that will show whether you are or aren't.

Note to S.Y.: I know of no method by which gallstones can be removed or dissolved other than surgical removal. Although there is a chemical method that is sometimes

Jim: "We have been talking about bidding long enough. How about getting back to the play of the cards."

Jim: "The problem in a single-suit play is to do the best you can in that suit without much consideration of how the result will affect your contract."

Oswald: "Some players might have stopped below the game game. The play would still be based on the same idea. South wants to lose just two trump tricks."

Jim: "South can lead from dummy at often as he wishes. The correct play is to lead the eight and let it ride to West's ace. Later he leads the seven and lets that ride also. West wins with the ace and eventually South picks up East's queen!"

Oswald: The basis of this play is that South will make his contract if East holds either the queen or jack of hearts. This roughly represents 3 to 1 odds in his favor. The alternate play of rising with the king will only win half the time."

Musicals Staged

MOSCOW (AP)—A Soviet theatre company in Leningrad has staged a number of American musicals, including West Side Story and Wherry's Charlie, the official Soviet news agency Tass reported.

Today you're going to need the nourishment that milk provides.

Why aren't you drinking it?

Like many Canadian women, you've probably lost the milk-drinking habit. If that's so, you've also given up your best all-round supplier of nutrients you need for health, stamina and vitality.

No other single food approaches milk for all-round nutritional value...delivered in a form that is readily available, economical, and easy to use.

What's more, the nutrients it provides are all basic requirements for the health of adults as well as of children.

Six nutrients provided by milk. You never outgrow the need for them.

From the day you are born until the day you die, your body needs these nutrients to keep itself in good running order and to generate the "bounce" and vitality you need to get the most out of life.

Calcium. Your growth has stopped, but your bones and teeth must constantly be rebuilt. Without calcium, this work could not be done.

Riboflavin. Milk is an excellent and practical source of this B Vitamin.

Protein. The protein supplied by milk is of the highest quality—the same type as the protein found in meat.

Vitamin A. Whole milk is an excellent source of this vitamin, but skim is not. So if you use only skim milk be sure to get Vitamin A from another food source—for example, yellow or green vegetables.

Thiamin, another factor you need for health, is also supplied by milk.

Also, in Ontario, VITAMIN D is usually added to milk. Look for the words "Vitamin D Added" on the carton or lid.

Why did you stop drinking milk?

Somewhere around the time you turned 13, no doubt, you too did what most Canadian girls do.

You began to feel grown-up. You experimented with lipstick shades and hair styles. You put away your dolls.

And you stopped drinking milk.

By the time you were grown-up enough not to think milk was "kid-stuff," you'd grown out of the habit of drinking it regularly, and never took it up again.

Should you care? Listen to this: a national nutritional survey, recently completed (and the most thorough ever undertaken) identified a certain very specific group as "the worst-fed people in Canada."

Who were they? Canadian girls and women. You!

You can't feel well unless you eat well.

"Feeling well" does not just mean the absence of aches and pains. It means something much more positive than that.

It means having a zest for life. Being able to get through a demanding day without being drained and exhausted by it.

It means having pep left over, after you've done the things you must, so that you can enjoy the things you want to do.

You don't necessarily feel ill because the foods you eat don't give you adequate nutrition.

But something will be missing, all right: the glorious, fully-alive feeling that comes only with being really well.

So you see, you are what you eat. In a very real sense.

Good nutrition and how to get it.

Right at the outset, let it be said that good nutrition, although a vital part of any good-health regime, should not be expected to work alone.

To feel your best, you need to get sufficient sleep, fresh air and exercise as well as making the right food choices every day!

And here's an easy guide to doing the latter. Keep these four Food Groups in mind when you plan each day's meals.

Meat. Each day, you should eat one serving at least of meat, poultry, fish or eggs. (Did you know that you can use peanut butter in place of meat?)

Fruit & Vegetables. Serve 3 choices from a variety of the colourful fruits and vegetables available (making sure to include one that provides Vitamin C).

Milk. And be sure, at least once a day, to drink a good glassful of milk! Cheese, ice cream or other milk foods may also be used.

The importance of setting a good example.

Perhaps reading this page has made you decide to get back into the habit of drinking milk every day.

If so, you'll be doing two kinds of good, not one. You'll be helping yourself along the road to better health...and the vitality and mental buoyance that goes with it. And you'll be setting a good example for your children, too.

If they see you drinking milk every day, they'll get the idea that milk is a food that nobody ever outgrows.

And they'll be absolutely right.

Nature's most nearly perfect food.

Of all the natural foods, milk is the most complete. None other can match it as a balanced source of most of our dietary needs.

And that goes for male or female, adult or child. As long as you live, you will need the nourishment that milk can provide.

So—especially if you've stopped drinking milk regularly—consider that fact.

Maybe it's time to start again.

Syrian Accord Appears Near

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two Arab foreign ministers say they are bringing good news to President Nixon about prospects for Syria's entry into the Middle East peace talks.

And State Secretary Henry Kissinger is reporting "solid accomplishments" in advance of today's White House session.

The positive note followed talks at the state department Monday between Ahmali Fahmy of Egypt and Omar Sakkaf of Saudi Arabia and Kissinger.

The speculation is that the state department session produced a framework for negotiations on a separation of Syrian and Israeli forces in the Golan Heights. The question is whether Kissinger will readily assume the mediator role he played in arranging a disengagement between Egypt and Israel by shuttling between the two countries.

Since he has a date later this week in Mexico City for a conference of Western Hemisphere ministers, there seems little chance of immediate negotiation. But he may wind up later this month in Geneva or in Jerusalem and Damascus using shuttle diplomacy to bridge the months between the October war foes.

"The major problem now is to get these talks started and I hope we are making progress," Kissinger said.

Asked whether he will travel to the Middle East, the secretary replied: "First we have to get a framework started."

Fahmy, speaking for Sakkaf, who went to his hotel because of intestinal flu, said: "There is great urgency and pressure" and that he will be bringing "good news" to Nixon.

Presumably, this also may involve an early lifting of the Arab oil boycott against the United States.

Syria has refused to participate in peace talks until Israel gives up the territory taken after it was attacked by its Arab neighbor, Israel, on the pretext that Israel violated the precondition of a list of war prisoners in Syrian hands and visits to them by the Red Cross.

Centuries Of Defeat Over: Sadat

CAIRO (CP) — President Anwar Sadat said today the October war ended five centuries of "defeat and underdevelopment which are now gone for good."

Sadat, in full military uniform, told a cheering session of parliament that Egypt pledged to "remain under arms until all Arab territories are liberated from occupation and aggression."

Making his first parliamentary address since the war, Sadat said: "Dawn is breaking over the Arab world . . . a dawn of free Arabs, a dawn of affection and reconstruction.

"After today there will be no place or room for a grudge or anything evil. . . .

"Victory comes only from God Almighty as the Holy Koran said." Sadat spoke at a special parliamentary session to honor Egyptian heroes of the October war.

Sadat's speech came amid indications he is settling his differences with President Moammar Khadafy of Libya. Khadafy was at his side when he spoke to parliament.

Oppose Bread Price Boost

OTTAWA (CP) — The food prices review board says a planned price increase of three or four cents a loaf of bread, announced last week by the baking industry, would be unjustified.

The board said Monday that because of declining baking costs, it "cannot accept as necessary" the increase indicated by the Bakery Council of Canada.

It added, however, that increases in costs of labor and materials other than flour could justify a price rise of two cents at most for a 36-ounce loaf.

The government has been subsidizing the cost of wheat bought by millers since September, helping to keep production costs down while maintaining the high prices going to wheat farmers.

Most of them will return to their homes in the mountain kingdom of Lesotho.

Mitchell and Stans Fail To Delay Trial's Start

NEW YORK (AP) — Former attorney-general John Mitchell and former commerce secretary Maurice Stans made a final, vain effort today to abort or delay their federal criminal trial, the first in the last half-century involving members of a president's cabinet.

Stans' lawyer, John Dioguid, renewed his request to dismiss the charges of conspiracy and obstruction of justice against the two, to move the trial out of New York City or to delay it indefinitely.

He contended that pre-trial publicity has made a fair trial impossible.

The prejudicial massive publicity in this case has continued right up to the present time," Dioguid told U.S. District Judge Lee Gagliardi.

As he said before, Gagliardi advised the defence that the only way to determine whether a fair jury can be selected is to begin the process of examining prospective jurors.

Mitchell, 60, attorney-general during President Nixon's first four-years term, and Stans, 63, Nixon's first secretary of commerce, are charged with accepting a $200,000 under-the-table contribution to Nixon's 1972 re-election campaign from fugitive financier Robert Vesco, 37.

In return, the United States government claimed, they pledged "to exert their influence" in sidetracking a Securities and Exchange Commission investigation of Vesco's multi-million-dollar corporate empire.

Balloonist Trying To Cross Atlantic

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Thomas Gatch's bid to make the first balloon flight across the Atlantic has suffered a slight setback, but he still is cruising along at 35,500 feet above the sea.

After crossing the coastline north of Atlantic City, N.J., Monday night, Gatch reported by radio that one of his 10 sand-filled ballast bottles had ruptured and was draped over a porthole on his pressurized gondola Light Heart.

The 46-year-old bachelor from Alexandria, Va., lifted off from Harrisburg International Airport Monday on a flight he hopes will take him to southern France or northern Spain in approximately 31 hours.

At 9 p.m. EST, Aeronautical Instrument and Radio Co. in New York reported Gatch was about 200 miles southeast of New York City.

Aides said the timetable will change because the ruptured balloon will force Gatch to fly lower than the 39,000 feet originally planned. They said the craft can lose two more ballasts without placing the flyer in danger.

The radio monitoring station in New York reported the Light Heart was travelling about 140 miles an hour in an eastbound jet stream when it crossed the coastline.

The army reserve colonel spent $90,000 and two years planning the flight with the transparent polyester balloon, which measures 36 feet in diameter when fully inflated. The helium expands as the balloon ascends, and the balloons would have been fully inflated at 39,000 feet, aides said.

Solzhenitsyn Worries About Notes for Book

ZURICH (AP) — Alexander Solzhenitsyn says he will be unable to complete his series of historical novels if the Kremlin does not let his files and archives follow him into exile. But he still will not silence his writing.

The exiled Russian writer said October 1916, the second volume in his "historical novel of revolutionary times" that began with August 1914, almost ready for publication.

"The third volume is started, and the rich collection of materials, documents, reports of eyewitnesses, photographs, illustrations and numerous rare books with my marginalia has been compiled," he said in an exclusive interview Monday with The Associated Press.

"I have gathered these archives over since 1936 and have put into them an enormous amount of work. If the Soviet amount of work. If the Soviet authorities confiscate them, even if only partially, it will be spiritual murder."

Solzhenitsyn said he is too old at 55 to collect the materials again, and loss of the archives would mean abandonment of the project.

"But then my remaining years and strength, instead of being devoted to Russian history, will be directed towards the Soviet present for which I will need no archives," he said.

Poor to Get Food Costing Two Million

Hearst Awaits Reaction of Kidnappers

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Randolph Hearst is awaiting reaction from his daughter's kidnappers on his plan to deliver $2 million for food for California's needy as a first step toward gaining Patricia Hearst's freedom.

He also is searching for a "tax-exempt, charitable organization," approved by the California attorney-general, to handle the money—including $500,000 in personal assets—he said would be available today.

"The money will be available, but we have to find a proper conduit," the president and director of the San Francisco Examiner and chairman of the Hearst Corp. told reporters Monday.

"They've asked me for a goodwill gesture. I consider this a goodwill gesture, particularly since there's no guarantee that my daughter will be released.

"I think it is up to them now to believe me and to make a good-faith gesture of their own."

Details on how the money will be spent and the food distributed remain to be worked out, he said. Food industry officials said $2 million would provide enough food to stock 34 supermarkets.

Hearst announced his plan one day before a deadline set by the SLA. He emphasized it was only a first step.

"There is no guarantee Patricia is going to get home on this," he said.

Hearst also said he has asked San Francisco lawyer William Coblentz, a family friend, to see that two SLA members charged with the murder of Oakland Schools Superintendent Marcus Foster last Nov. 6 get a fair trial.

Hearst said the $500,000 he is donating himself represents "a substantial part of my personal assets." He said the remaining $1.5 million will come from the William Randolph Hearst Foundation.

"This is an honest effort on my part to do what I can, and that's all I can do," Hearst said. "I think they'll believe that."

Union Carbide: Strike Threat?

Bowling Alley Proposed As Rink for East Hill

Purchase of the former Brunswick Belleville Bowl property at 618 Dundas Street East has been recommended to city council as the site for the proposed east end arena.

The former bowling alley property now owned by Dr. Y. N. Hartt is the choice of city manager Albert Elliott, who with city recreation director Lorne Williams and architect Paul Hayward, investigated the several possible sites proposed last year.

The city manager's recommendation was referred back to the recreation committee for consideration.

If the bowling alley property is purchased, the existing building would be converted to create the new arena. Total estimated cost of the project, including land acquisition, installation of necessary services, construction of a new Butler-type building and architect's fees would be approximately $475 000.

Set cost to the city after deducting the forgivable portion of the capital winter works grant available and the community centres grants would be $350,000 for which the city would issue debentures.

The cost breakdown would be an estimated $250,000 for property purchase and $200,000 for restructuring the building.

The Hartt property contains 3.4 acres and because of the additional space a more attractive facility could be provided than at the other proposed sites. There would be sufficient acreage to create a park or athletic field and provision of two rinks in the one building would be possible.

The former bowling alley when restructured would contain approximately 1,400 square feet more than would be provided in a new building. The low ceiling would be the same size and the additional space could be put to good use.

Cost of the facility with its additional space for a neighborhood park would be approximately the same as for a new building on another site, it was stated.

Alderman Joe Cox asked whether the architect would be prepared to tell the recreation-arena committee details of renovation costs and the building's adaptability. Alderman Paul Russell wanted to know about the possible second ice surface that had been suggested earlier by the recreation committee.

The city manager said the architect would be prepared to give details of necessary structural changes to the committee.

Ontario Minister Urges Federal Downtown Aid

TORONTO — Ontario Housing Minister Robert Welch has urged the federal government to extend the guidelines of its urban aid programs to revive commercial core development in Belleville and six Ontario cities.

Mr. Welch said in a recent interview the province decided against "going it alone" as much as it does because he expects the federal housing department will act shortly to restore its urban renewal program in a somewhat revised state.

"I feel that central area vitality is just as important to the economic and community life as housing in many cases, and we are willing to negotiate an agreement with the federal government if it feels it can move in this direction", he reported.

Rotarians Plan Guidance Program

Belleville Rotary Club is hoping to introduce a vocational service program — to provide a service for instance to people who want to know more about certain vocations and training programs.

Outlining the scheme to Rotarians on Monday, Don Stirling of the Vocational Service committee, said: "we want people who are in jobs that do not really challenge them to know what kind of other related jobs there are, as well as to provide opportunities for those leaving school to talk about future plans."

Mr. Stirling indicated the plan was not to supersede school guidance programs but rather to supplement them by providing specific expertise where necessary and assisting school counsellors with only limited time at their disposal.

Persons seeking advice would be referred to participating Rotarians through school guidance departments or a designated member of the committee.

He emphasized however that it was not a job-finding service. Such a service would have limitations. It was not intended to do the work of social workers, doctors or psychiatrists.

It was felt the service could also assist school-dropouts who were of concern to the club and to education.

Where appropriate it was intended that the resource people available would include women.

Mr. Stirling said the response to the scheme from clergymen, educators, industry, and from Loyalist College had been excellent. Some industries, he added were already providing such a service — Dr. Jack Marshall in the dental field, and Agricultural representative Doug Tupper, who sends personnel to the schools for those interested in that area of activity.

He said the plan had had a lot of encouragement and hoped it would get under way "very shortly."

PUC Chairman Protests Reorganization of Hydro

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — The Ontario Municipal Electric Association has protested the provincial government with a law suit over takeover of Ontario Hydro.

This was revealed here Monday.

Following years of task force studies, the province intends forming a Crown corporation of Ontario Hydro, administering it through a 12-man board.

The OMEA, in a letter to Ontario Public Utilities commissioner criticizes the province for allowing only one elected representative from the province to sit on the board and one member of Ontario Hydro — its general manager Douglas Gordon.

Charles Hilton, chairman of Trenton's PUC and member of the OMEA said, the "move on the part of the province takes the business out of the hands of the elected people who are responsible to the people."

Hottest item of contention in the single-page letter is annexation of standing electrical system assets, funded and constructed by municipalities over the past 60 years.

The OMEA says local electrical system capital tops $2000 million and that member municipalities who paid for the system should have the benefits of a shareholder scheme.

Trenton PUC assets are valued at $2 million.

The OMEA will recommend in a meeting with Premier Davis that these municipalities which hold shares be responsible for the election of the board and vote proportionate to the amount of the system they own.

Short of this, the OMEA asks that each municipality be financially re-imbursed for its capital outlay in the formation of the new system and that interest payments be denied until final payment is made.

The brief, and the issue at large will be discussed at the March 3-6 meeting of the OMEA and Association of Municipal Electrical Utilities (management staff) in Toronto.

"I'm incensed the system and the money is being taken from the taxpayer," said Mr. Hilton.

Picton Plant Lineup of New Products

New Plant Will Employ 75

DEBRA S. HOOK
Staff Correspondent

PICTON — Wickes Canada Ltd. Monday officially opened a new plant with a 75-job-potential at the Loch Sloy Industrial Park in Picton.

The $150,000 plant manufactures the company's extensive line of motor homes, truck campers, travel trailers and fifth wheelers for for Eastern Canada's recreation markets.

Reason its location here is attributed the community's position between the large markets of Southern Ontario and Quebec, and its proximity to railroad depots and major highways.

When the plant is in full operation it will employ 75 people, 70 being local residents. Aside from employing people from this district, the plant intends purchasing supplies locally for interior decorating and home-finishing.

Ken Fisher, plant manager, lives in Bloomfield. Mr. Fisher was quality control supervisor with Erie Technological Products of Canada in Trenton and production supervisor at Proctor - Lewyt in Picton.

Operations at the plant start within the next week. Friday night the public is invited to the plant to see finished products.

More Direct Calls In Quinte North

Fewer long-distance calls will be needed soon linking communities in the northern townships of Hastings County.

Improved local telephone service for the Bancroft-Coe Hill-Gilmour area has been announced by Bell Canada Belleville district manager George Thompson.

The changes take effect in April.

For telephone users in Bancroft, long-distance charges will be eliminated on calls to Coe Hill and Gilmour. Local calling with Maynooth and Cardiff will remain unchanged.

Coe Hill and Gilmour customers will both be able to call Bancroft and each other without long-distance charges.

Mr. Thompson said the new program came about as a result of a survey taken in early April, year. The majority of Coe Hill and Gilmour customers had agreed to a slight increase in rates to obtain free-calling to Bancroft and with each other.

Monthly telephone rates are based on the number of telephones the subscriber can call without paying long distance charges. The rate for distance between exchanges involved.

Gilmour subscribers will now pay $4.55 a month for an individual residence service, $3.55 for two-party service and $3.35 for multi-party service.

Coe Hill customers will pay $4.30 a month for individual residence service, $3.35 for a two-party line and $3.25 for rural service.

Bancroft rates will not be affected.

Along with establishment of the new services, some 50 subscribers from the north-eastern part of the Gilmour exchange will be transferred to the Coe Hill exchange.

Enabling bylaws were passed for the $2.5 million highrise shopping centre development announced for the waterfront and for the consolidation senior citizens apartment building and geared-to-income subdivision on Crestwell Drive.

Year-Round Recreation Site Is Proposed For Mt. Pelion Base

TRENTON — A wintersummer recreational site at the base of Mount Pelion may be in the offing for Trenton residents following discussion at Monday night's council committee-of-the-whole session.

Trenton's board of parks management contacted council last night explaining plans for a baseball diamond and a ski facility.

Councillor John Bonn, a member of both recreation and industrial committees said he was wearing two hats and the situation would have to be carefully considered.

"We have to balance the need for industrial land with the lot's natural potential as a park development," he said. "We have to look at the one against the other."

To complicate council's decision on the land are negotiations with Lower Trent Region Conservation Authority and possible Canadian National Railway plans, councillors noted.

On one hand it is possible the conservation authority will choose the same site for the re-location of Allore Lumber, moving in compliance with a bylaw which has green belt plans for Allore Trent riverfront property.

There is also the possibility CN will move its tracks from

Car in Ditch

TWEED — An early-morning accident Tuesday on Highway 37 about a half-mile north of here caused a Belleville man to swerve into a ditch.

Paul Garfield Johnston, 38, of 10 Walmsley Place, was unhurt when his vehicle left the road, taking out two guardrails, say police.

Householders Protest Apartment Project

TRENTON — Princess Street residents are protesting to town council construction of a six-plex building in their neighborhood — something council thinks it apparently cannot legally halt.

Reports by the acting commissioner of works and comment by Mayor Bob Patrick, indicated Monday night the land is zoned to accommodate building Local sewer lines are capable of handling the load.

A petition signed by more than 20 residents claimed the sewers weren't up to the added strain and that the development would add 36 more homes in the area.

"We thought we can do except note the protest," said Mayor Patrick.

"If the developer comes in for a building permit, we have to issue it," said works commissioner Arie Hoornweg.

The town's new official plan and its accompanying bylaw would not allow the development, he said, of 1956 bylaws are still in effect, the development may proceed.

Council Wants Land Swap In Writing Before Decision

TRENTON — Council Monday night asked for suggestions in writing before it will consider any land swap with Trenton automobile body repairman Arthur Le-Claire.

Council in recent several months expressed a desire to relocate Mr. LeClaire's operation to another portion of town away from the Byron-Heber Street residential section.

Deer Hit By Car

MADOC — For the second time in a week, a deer has been killed in a collision with a car in Hungerford County.

Carl Osborne, 29, of Eldorado, was driving his car on Highway 62 in the Millbridge area, about 15 miles north of Madoc, when a deer ran into the path of his car, say police.

The mishap occurred about 6.30 February 18 and a total of $700, damages resulted to the front end of the Osborne car. Two weeks ago dogs chased a deer onto Highway 37 near Tweed, causing a two-car crash.

General idea was for council to compensate Mr. LeClaire by absorbing relocation costs giving two acres of land and constructing a cement block building.

Mr. LeClaire last night told council, "I'd take a 35 by 35 foot building and two acres of land for the exchange."

He presently owns a 28 -- by -- 30 foot building on a 90 -- by -- 54 foot lot.

With his promise, Mayor Bob Patrick said "council's viewpoint has changed considerably since earlier discussions.

Mr. LeClair was instructed to have his assets appraised and send his proposals in writing.

Historical Society Meets

NAPANEE — Lennox and Addington Historical Society will hold its next meeting Feb. 23, at 8 p.m. in the town hall council chambers here.

Four students, who participated in an Opportunities For Youth project on transportation in Lennox and Addington, will discuss the results at the meeting.

Townships Get Ready For Liquor Plebiscite

By RUBY McCOY
Staff Correspondent

MARMORA — Residents of Marmora Lake townships go to the polls Wednesday to vote on a liquor plebiscite that will decide whether the township will retain its 60-year-old dry state, or go wet.

The townships have been dry since prohibition in 1916.

Request for the vote was made by Russ Jarvis, owner of the Reim Club on Highway 7, west of here. He has been joined by businessmen Tom Hedley and William Doyle, farmers, in forming a votepro committee.

The three have been waging a vigorous campaign and have placed advertisements in the local weekly paper. They say a change is needed for the growth of the township, promotion of tourism, better restaurant facilities and the added employment that would result from change.

Many local businessmen are said to be in favor of the change because they feel many Marmora people are driving to Belleville and Peterborough to shop and eat at places where liquor and entertainment are available.

The three questions on different ballots are: Are you in favor of the sale of beer and wine only under a dining room licence for consumption on licenced premises with Monday to Saturday sale? Are in favor of the sale of liquor under a dining room licence for consumption on licenced premises with Monday to Saturday sale of liquor under a lounge licence for consumption on licenced premises?

Voters have until 8 p.m. to cast their ballot.

New Town Cab Fares

TRENTON — Town council has approved a 25 per cent increase in taxi fares — the first increase to be allowed in two years.

At present taxis charge 50 cents for the first quarter mile and 10 cents for successive quarters.

In the new levy passed in committee-of-the-whole Monday night, council authorized 75 cents for the first fifth of a mile and ten cents thereafter.

Rates will take effect immediately.

Study Marmora Fire Protection

TRENTON — Review is expected into Murray Township's financial contributions to Trenton in connection with fire department assistance.

Public discussion was held at Monday night's committee-of-the-whole session of council where the contributions were queried.

Fire Chief Cecil Ellis' report said the 53 calls to the township for assistance increased from 31 the year before.

The financial arrangement will come under study, following last night's meeting.

Cunningham: Opposition To One Tier

CARRYING PLACE — George Cunningham, former Ameliasburgh township reeve in favor of regional amalgamator, says he and other local residents may organize a protest against one-tier local government for Prince Edward County.

Mr. Cunningham says a major present complaint is that he can't discover township government thinking on the possibility.

He claims he "can't get a straight answer" from councillors he's questioned.

Ameliasburgh pays 23 per cent of county administration costs and the township would be better represented through its own municipal government than an over-all county unit, he said.

Mr. Cunningham said he and "others" in the township were now thinking of forming groups to oppose amalgamating Ameliasburgh into a one-tier county system to the loss of its own local government.

Mr. Cunningham was three years deputy-reeve of the township and reeve from 1967-69. He has been a Liberal party candidate in two federal elections in Prince Edward-Hastings.

That Time Again

It's that time again, time to file that income-tax return, that is if you can cope with its mind-boggling ramifications.

And once again the Revenue Department is dashing to the rescue. Remember last year it was the "Play It Again Sam" pitch. Now, with tax reform principles included, it is different, and the Revenue people are jumping into the breach with what it calls April Aid."

Cute, isn't it, but then the tenor of these "help" ads all along has been ingratiating in character — even apologetic as in the sample question-and-answers where Mr. Average Canadian is represented as asking this kind of thing: "I'm sorry but my total is more than $8,320. What now?" Or this, at the end: "I'm sorry. I'm still confused."

In this event one is supposed to read the guide (item 25), look carefully at the calculation examples, re-read the ad, and apparently, if all else fails, call or write the district taxation office.

"Together," says Revenue Canada, as it is now called, "we can get it done."

As ever we have our doubts and agree with Queen's Park columnist Don O'Hearn (The Intelligencer, Saturday) that tax consultants are going to be busy this year.

O'Hea.n has a suggestion which he says apparently has not occurred to anyone. Actually we have made the point in this space before and, in O'Hearn's words, it is as follows:

"This would be for the income tax officials to do the actual calculation work."

In other words, supply the tax office with all the relevant information, and let the experts for the rest. That is the rest.

Why put people through this annual agony when countless numbers (think of the immigrants for instance, and those not yet fully conversant with the language) are totally inadequate for the task in hand — a task, incidentally, which becomes more complex each passing year. Otherwise, why "April Aid?"

If it is beyond the manpower of the Revenue department, then what about the computers?

If renewing auto tax, by eliminating the need for new plates, can be simplified, here is one other, and even greater nightmare, that should be taken off the shoulders of the hapless taxpayer, and handed over to the computers.

No Generation Gap

Some weeks ago The Intelligencer told the story of the Grade 7 students of Queen Elizabeth public school who adopted residents of Montgomery Lodge-Nursing Home.

The residents became the youngsters' foster grandparents, with happy results for young and old as they spanned the generation gap and showed how the so-called "generation gap" need not stand in the way of a stimulating get-together.

The Intelligencer sent the story to other newspapers via The Canadian Press news agency and recently it appeared in The Montreal Gazette for one, an indication of big city interest in this happy initiative in Belleville. The idea for the program originated with the Grade 7 teacher, Mrs. Connie Williams, and it has been described by Lillian Hill, activity director at Montgomery Lodge as "a roaring success."

It Eases Worry

Most people are workers. Indeed, it is only natural to worry to some extent at least. And according to world traveller Howard Pollard, "worry beads" could lighten the burden. The Michigan-born lecturer with the John Wayne accent told his Kiwanis travel and adventure audience last week that psychologists are recommending them to patients. Pollard's film showed some Greek devotees of the worry beads, including one elderly gentleman trying to decide whether to give up smoking!

Rationale Behind Mindszenty's Ouster

Pope Paul Wants Links with Authoritarian Governments

By JOHN D. HARRION
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

There is very much more than meets the eye behind the retirement of Hungarian Cardinal Josef Mindszenty by Pope Paul VI. It has little to do with the high emotion surrounding the cardinal's famous career mainly in someone's custody.

The Roman Catholic Church under the present pope is constantly in search of new relationships with the many authoritarian governments which the Rome must work. In right wing countries like Brazil, Spain and Portugal, the rank-and-file priesthood uneasy with old fashioned anti-Communist regimes have been joined by their bishops in open opposition to them.

In the Communist-ruled nations of eastern Europe all of them with large Catholic populations, such great roots attacks against the system are very difficult. Witness Mindszenty's almost imprisonment and forced restriction inside the U.S. Legation in Budapest for a total duration of about 15 years of personal restriction.

Therefore Pope Paul's move appears clear in removing the 81-year-old aging Cardinal from his seat (which he is entitled to do by rules he himself set to retire Cardinals at 80). But he has done it to bring about a new relationship between Hungary's Communist regime and the church there.

Since the church in these countries has no experience new relations it is apt to the Vatican to do so. And Pope Paul both as Vatican Secretariat and as pontiff, has always shown a propensity to make peace with leftwing and Communist parties, ideologically opposed to the church.

The howls against this appointment hasty retirement of the famous cardinal have already gone up. These also require a very careful examination of the cardinal's own record — one which quickly shows that he is not and never was a "liberal." In fact he remains a tough anti-Communist church leader of the kind which once dominated church policy toward communism.

Go far back to Mindszenty's role as a Hungarian bishop in the right-wing neo-fascist 1930s regime of Admiral Nicholas Horthy, one which became an ally of Nazi Germany during World War Two, and one find that Mindszenty was one of a very few bishops themselves fascist-minded to support the pro-war Hungary.

The other two were Hungary's so-called regent, Admiral Nicholas Horthy, the World-War One commander-in-chief of the long defeated Austro Hungarian navy and the fiercely fascist premier Gombos who made an effort to his favoring extent for corporatism is lisably under Mussolini and Hitler's Nazism.

The Roman Catholic Church in Hungary of the 1930s openly and covertly condoned state persecution of the large groups of Hungarian Moravians that country's leading Protestant denomination before 1945.

It's not hard to understand why so many Hungarian intellectuals, teachers and others of a liberal persuasion and members of the Moravian communities initially supported the incoming Communist regime in 1945 as relief from the decades of Hungarian militarism and fascism between 1920 and 1945.

The Cardinal played his part in persecuting Moravians and in keeping Protestants, as well as any Communist bold enough to flout the church's place. This often meant collaboration with Gombos in putting them in prison.

To Pope Paul the tough-minded Cardinal has been the embodiment of a different time when the church was the official standard-bearer of global anti-communism, a posture he feels the church today can no longer afford. This is why the Cardinal is retiring.

Checkered History of The Thousand Island Parkway

Brockville Recorder and Times

A short news item last week disclosed the information that the provincial government was planning to spend some money on improvements to the Thousand Island Parkway, which runs between Long Beach and Gananoque. According to the St. Lawrence Parks Commission, the government agency responsible for the Parkway, $15,000 has been set aside for an engineering study this year. When the study is completed it is planned to rebuild the road and shoulders.

This is encouraging news. The Parkway is a definite asset, not only to the users of the road but to the province. It is a real tourist attraction, although its potential hasn't as yet been fully exploited either by the natives or the government. But progress, slow as it is, is being made.

Since it courses through a scenic wonderland, one of the essentials should be some control over what is allowed to be constructed. While preliminary steps are in progress in relation to planning and zoning laws will take years to complete. A set of building standards, by way of bylaws, could be enacted earlier to prevent any downgrading of the road's prospect.

At present countless driveways seem to be growing in the area from Long Beach to Rockport. If this is to be regarded an effort should be made, we feel, to limit the number through use of the unpaved section of the highway as a service road. Department of highways or the St. Lawrence Parks Commission, it is time they concerned about a practice that now appears to be getting out of hand. That is the building of an elevated driveway across the unfinished section of the road. Several of these "humps" have already been permitted.

The history of the Parkway is not exactly a happy one. It was planned as a four-lane highway between Brockville and Gananoque, one of the first projects in the new concept of Highway 2 back in the "hungry thirties." Only the eastern side of the road was completed although millions of dollars have also been spent on the northern section. It was graded, abandoned and ultimately ready for paving when it was decided not to complete it. At the time it was said that political pressure for driveways changed the entire character of the road, which was a limited access road. The purpose of it declined, and tied up as it was in political red tape, the road was never completely finished.

But a good base for a road has continued to exist for most of the 36 miles between Long Beach and Gananoque. The section between Brockville and Long Beach was completed as a four-lane road. But it is the unfinished section of the road that presents a great deal of the Parkway's attraction. Not only does it form a safe place to park, picnic and enjoy many of the scenic joys along the route, but provides fine parking at such places as Jones Creek and Landon's Bay for fishermen on the line and anglers in search of trout. It also is a bicycle and pedestrian path and a bridle path through most of the route. And it is one of the most unique snowmobile runs in the country — despite — all the driveways. While the "humps" add to the thrill of snowmobiling at times, they add to the hazard.

The study that is to be done this year, we would hope will be a step along the road. The potential of the unfinished section will not be overlooked if it is to be protected and further developed.

How the Corporation Justifies Its Profits

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

All companies, no matter what business they are in, have one product in common. It's called information.

Each year, they assemble it into one big package. It's called the annual report.

The peak of the annual-report season is almost here. A flood of reports of 1975 results is bolting up toward its late-March or high point.

Those reports, in most cases, will probably show big increases in 1975 sales and profits over the previous year.

And some of them, at least, will concentrate heavily on persuading you that those increases are fair, just and socially desirable.

You can expect business to make frequent reference to "adequate" a return on shareholders' equity (or on net worth, or invested capital, or assets, etc.).

However that return may be, no corporation will ever concede that it is excessive. It will always be able to point to another business that earns a higher rate of return.

Let's try to break the buzzwords code. What do these yardsticks, so glibly used, really mean?

"Return" is the amount of net profit (after taxes) that a corporation earns, expressed as a percentage of its net worth or some other fixed amount.

Net worth, or shareholders' equity—which mean the same thing—are the total of three amounts of money:

—The money paid into the company's treasury in exchange for all the stock it has ever issued.

—Earnings retained in the company (that is, profits that have not been passed on as dividends to shareholders).

Example: Golf oil Canada Ltd. earned $101.7 million in 1973, a return of 10.1 per cent on its invested capital of just over $1 billion. This return had been in the range of five to seven cents per dollar of capital from 1968 to 1972, after having been as high as 11.9 per cent in 1963.

Some companies—and some financial analysts—prefer to measure performance by return on assets. This demonstrates how efficiently the company uses its property, equipment and financial holdings.

Rates of return in different industries are rarely comparable, since each has a different requirement for capital and for labor, and each has a different selling pattern.

The cosmetics firm that sends a sales representative to your door, for example, would probably earn 15 times as much per dollar invested as would a steel mill.

Comparative figures prepared by Imperial Oil Ltd. on 172 earnings of a number of major Canadian companies demonstrate these variables. What its own earnings represented a return of 10 per cent on capital employed. Consumers' Gas showed a 4.5 per cent return and General Motors of Canada showed 11.2 per cent.

But when profit was related to revenues, the figures showed 3.5 per cent for Gulf vs 11.4 per cent for the gas utility (and 7.3 per cent for imperial).

On the basis of the figures already published in Canada, and the much greater number of results that have been released in the United States, 1975 was clearly the year of the great leap forward for the oil companies.

Whether this was merely a belated catching-up, or (as some allege) a corporate ripoff, depends largely upon which figures you use and your historical time-span.

As for this year's results, it appears that they will depend largely upon Parliament and the provinces.

Soviet authorities came up with what they probably saw as a clever way out of a predicament by deporting Alexander Solzhenitsyn, but it's an ancient device and it's use will reinforce an impression abroad that the Kremlin hasn't changed much over the years.

The Nobel laureate, in a way, has wound up a victor over the Kremlin. What it did to him is though inconvenient personage and then sentence him to the very punishment he so effectively exposed in his latest book could have had effects abroad.

Since Solzhenitsyn was determined not to co-operate with them, they couldn't simply use the "voluntary" trip-abroad ploy. And so the regime dipped back into history.

The last forcible deportation was in the 1930s when Stalin expelled his political foe, the celebrated Leo Davidovich Trotsky. But the czars earlier had used forced deportation to get rid of political undesirables.

Solzhenitsyn suspected the regime wanted to get him go abroad and then lift his passport, a tactic used many times in recent years against dissidents who now reside in the United States and Europe. He ever forbidden to return to their native land.

But if Solzhenitsyn wouldn't co-operate, he'd have to be forced out, whatever the cost, and cost there will be.

The decision to banish Solzhenitsyn permanently to the West looked at first incarcerating him in a labor camp, and with his family join him, might seem an expedient way to be rid of him. But upon reflection, Most likely it was reached in the interest of the detente and the Kremlin image abroad.

Solzhenitsyn can continue his criticism from outside Soviets borders, but the West already is familiar with such criticism, and the Kremlin can thus shield Soviet and Communist bloc people from contamination.

bound to shadow Soviet policy for some time to come and have an impact on the current exercise in peaceful coexistence.

But the Kremlin's situation was unbalanced. While it cherished detente for practical economic reasons, it couldn't abide the challenge it had challenged the authority of the leaders and the party. Something had to be done.

Premier Barrett's Budget

Ottawa Journal

Gone are the big advertisements in the eastern newspapers urging everyone to write for a copy of British Columbia's latest "dynamic" budget. But almost everything else is the same when Finance Minister David Barrett unveils his version of the financial extravaganza that B.C.'s budget has come during the years when W. A. C. Bennett was premier and minister of finance.

The year's effort sets a new high not only in bombast but in increased government expenditures — an incredible 28 per cent jump to more than a billion. Mr. Barrett's attempt to label it a "Robin Hood" budget fails to cover up the fact that it's the government that is rich and getting richer.

British Columbians have a five per cent sales tax, pay no premiums for hospital insurance, no tax on amusements or restaurant meals, and get all highly on motor vehicle registration charges and several other items that are taxed in Ontario. Mr. Barrett's fellow citizens have proven time and ever to suspect that the secret of the province's rampant public spending and balanced budgeting) is over-taxation, plain and simple. There was a time when New Democrats in B.C. complained about this same thing. Now the finance minister is the shoe on the other foot and it fits too well.

Belleville residents on the whole are comparatively law-abiding citizens. This is indicated by the annual report of the Belleville Police Dept. issued today by Police Chief Walter Proctor.

Total estimated expenditures for county and city combined for 1944 is $95.00 according to the report submitted to county council by the Roads and Bridges Committee. The report was submitted by the committee chairman, Reeve Fred J. Wilson and recommended an expenditure of $70,000 on suburban road system this year. It is passed by the Dept. of Highways. The estimates will require a tax rate of slightly under 2.5 mills.

European Unity in Balance

By CY FOX

BRUSSELS (CP) — Uncertainty about Britain's June general election, labor troubles in West Germany, and a country traditionally at odds with itself—usually also described as "the English disease,"—are causing worry in this country and among its neighbors about the general future of the European economy, a pillar for the prosperity of Western Europe.

The strikes also have tended to undermine the political position of Chancellor Willy Brandt, an outspoken champion of the former West European unity.

A cause of the West German strikes is the government advance of inflation that has brought economic dislocation and widespread fear in the heart of Western Europe.

Even British Common Market officials in Brussels for a conference with their colleagues from the country members have sounded almost as hollow as calls for joint action by workers in the money crisis.

Compared to the general concern is the fresh call by Britain's Labor party, mostly vanquished critic of Britain's common market entry terms. Leader Wilson says he's determined to reach satisfactory changes fall.

The Silent Epidemic

If a contagious epidemic ran rampant throughout Canada, killing more than 77,000 people — a state of disaster would be declared.

An epidemic is taking place in Canada. Heart and blood vessel disease kills more than 77,000 men and women annually. Every hour of every day, 9 Canadians die of heart disease.

Progress is Being Made

Since 1955 the Canadian Heart Foundations have approved $30,513,691 for research with the following results:

The over-all death rate from cardeovascular disease of adults under 65 years of age has been reduced 24%.

Pacemakers, which control irregular heart rhythm.

The replacement of damaged heart valves.

Coronary Care Units in hospitals which can reduce death rate among those admitted with heart attacks by 30% or more.

Surgery to correct one of the defects resulting in "blue babies".

Hypothermia, a technique for lowering body temperature to assist surgical procedures.

Door-to-Door Campaign

Is being conducted during the month of February. When a representative calls — remember it might be you or a loved one who is saved by your contribution.

The Canadian Heart Foundation

The Canadian Heart Foundation is the sole voluntary health agency in Canada devoted entirely to the study, control and prevention of heart and blood vessel disease. It is a federation of ten provincial foundations and divisions and its membership comprises thousands of dedicated citizens across Canada.

The program activities of the Foundations fall in the broad categories of research, professional and public education.

Research

The Heart Foundations throughout Canada have played a major role in stimulating public support of Heart Research. In 1955-56, the sum of $92,000 was awarded to support research. In the year ended June 30, 1973, the total research awards made by the Foundations have channelled $30,513,691 into research to fight Canada's leading cause of death and disability.

Heart Foundation research support takes two forms — grants-in-aid such things as equipment expendables, like glassware and chemicals and for technical assistance. No part of any grant is used as remuneration for the principal investigators who are experienced persons on the staff of a University or in practice. Fellowships support gifted young scientists who are just beginning a career in heart disease.

The objective of research is the discovery of new knowledge — knowledge to improve the diagnosis and treatment of heart disease and, even more importantly, for future generations, knowledge to make the prevention of heart and blood vessel disease a reality.

Professional Education

One of the Foundation's major responsibilities is to bring new knowledge discovered by research — usually of a technical nature — to physicians, nurses and other paramedical professional personnel so that patients everywhere may benefit. This is done through a year-round program involving annual scientific meetings, symposia, teaching sessions, in-hospital training programs, films and so on.

An excellent example of the Foundation's role is seen in the assistance rendered in many provinces in developing and standardizing coronary care nursing programs to help meet the tremendous demands for nurses qualified to staff the ever-growing number of hospital coronary care units. In addition, some provinces are conducting pilot projects in other fields such as cardiac work-evaluation units and exercise-testing as a service to doctors with heart patients.

Public Education

Another major responsibility of the Foundation is that of communicating knowledge discovered by research to the Canadian public and stimulating the use of that knowledge to change living habits as appropriate, in order to prevent, or reduce the chances of acquiring heart disease. This knowledge is usually of a non-technical nature and is exemplified by the recent identification of several factors which influence the likelihood of acquiring heart disease. Public education programs are designed to reach every sector of the community and increasing demands is being placed on this activity. Reduction of premature death and disability is the benefit which encourages greater efforts to improve public education programs.

Business and Professional Women Hold Annual International Night

The Belleville Business and Professional Women held their annual International Night at the Sun Valley Motor Hotel Monday night.

The occasion was made colorful by the many members and guests who wore costumes from foreign countries.

After the buffet dinner, judges decided the three best costumes; Colombe Bath, in a Swedish outfit received first prize, Dolly Reed dressed in a Dutch costume was second, and Aneeta Brown in a Moroccan djellabah t was third.

An installation ceremony was held to receive Gloria McNeil a returning member, and Donna Whelan, a new member. Installing officers were Dorothy Karkhock, membership chairman, and Marion McPaul, president. They took this opportunity to review the aims and objectives of the international federation, which unites over 300,000 women around the world.

Following this, Jeanne Stephenson led the 40 women present in a special candle-lighting ceremony that has become a focal point every International Night. Blue and white candles, representing those countries in which federation or associate clubs are promoting equality for working women, were lit to symbolize the way in which the organization must light the way to progress and peace. The ceremony closed with a prayer.

Rev. John Utley, assistant pastor at Christ Anglican Church, was introduced as guest speaker by Rosemary Fultyn.

He showed slides of his trip to Greece, Lebanon, Israel and Egypt. Rev. Utley stressed the cultural philosophic, religious and scientific heritage that these countries have given the western world.

Rev. Utley emphasized the international theme of the evening by pointing out that our civilization "stands on the shoulders of many others".

After the slide presentation, Rev. Utley was given the book "Belleville, The Friendly City", as a token of the members' appreciation.

Colombe Bath chaired the business meeting during which correspondence was read from one of seven Palestinian girls supported in a school near Jerusalem by funds from the international federation.

Preparations were made for meetings to follow, and for the election of officers in May.

The evening closed with the Mary Stewart collect.

In the Future, Fewer, Better Marriages

By SHARON AIRHART

Take any four marriages. One dissolves in divorce; one couple separates. Another couple remains together in an unsatisfactory relationship. The fourth couple has a happy stable marriage.

Right now, the divorce rate for that sample group is one in four.

In the future, the divorce rate might well be three in four as divorce becomes more accessible and social stigmas disappear.

But it is obvious that the number of failed marriages is not really on the increase; alarming divorce statistics reflect a trend that is more apparent than real.

In this last of a series of interviews, Belleville General Hospital social worker Norman Slater discusses the future of marriage.

"Many traditional barriers to dissolving a marriage are themselves dissolving," Mr. Slater says.

"Serial marriage is now condoned and the divorce rate will continue to go up," he says, but adds that the potential for a happy marriage is actually increasing.

Changes in our culture, which are beginning to free people from restrictive roles are also allowing people to find more fulfillment through marriage.

These same changes which afford some people more satisfaction conversely can cause more dissatisfaction.

"There's more potential now for a deeper relationship in marriage, but knowing the potential tends to make us more critical if it is not being achieved."

Mr. Slater said that mass culture through television and magazines is creating an expectancy in people beyond their own potential.

"A young girl sees herself married to a handsome, strong, charismatic man she can be proud of. It's not probable she'll marry someone like that. But when pressures to marry begin building up, she'll see in a man what she wants to see.

Mr. Slater adds it's "great to have an ideal but dangerous to impose that ideal. It becomes a problem when you think you've found your ideal mate."

It's also a problem when you know your spouse isn't your ideal but you believe he's going to be.

There are marriages, Mr. Slater says, made of two persons who function as competent, happy adults individually but who "almost fall apart" when they are together.

"It's obvious the relationship is destroying them and unless they can change the quality of their relationship, they're probably better off without each other."

Thus, a divorce, where in the past there may have been only an unhappy marriage.

"In many marriages there's no emotional component; there's physical love, yes, but no friendship, affection, respect. A sharing of feelings is missing," Mr. Slater says.

"Yet these are the things everyone is looking for."

Not finding them, some persons now move from marriage to marriage.

"On one level, marriage was easier 100 years ago — there was no choice, no way out. There were well defined roles to which you conformed."

Without this rigidity, with the possibility of divorce, people are no longer blindly accepting an unsatisfying marriage.

But, he points out, if the marriage is good and stable, it will likely be a better one than people have had the opportunity to experience in the past.

"The same cultural and social changes that promote divorce will also promote more solid marriages for other people."

Transmission Line Study for Prince Edward County

Ontario Hydro is conducting a study to determine an environmentally and socially acceptable means of transmitting the increased amounts of power needed to maintain adequate and reliable service in Prince Edward County. One or more transmission lines will be required depending on the voltage selected (44,115 or 230 kilovolts).

Questionnaires were made available throughout the study area to help in identifying broad alternative corridors within which rights-of-way could be established. Also, meetings have been held with local municipal authorities, environmental and agricultural organizations.

The meetings listed below have been arranged to further encourage public participation in the study, to discuss the alternatives, and to obtain information concerning any specific locations which the transmission lines should avoid.

Your attendance at one of the meetings will be a welcome contribution to the open planning process through which the most satisfactory solution can be found.

Ann Landers

Unpaid Babysitter Dominated by Mom

Dear Ann Landers: I am 23. My little brother is 12. Ever since his dad was killed, he has been an instant, non-paid babysitter. All through high school I had to miss things that were really important to me because I had to stay home with my little brother.

My mother never missed a thing. She's active in the college and working part-time. I had to sit on a moment's notice. Once I offered to pay a sitter so I could go to a Homecoming dance. Mom said, "No. We never hired a sitter for you and you aren't going to hire one for him." (My grandmother was Mom's unpaid sitter in those days.)

I've been married two years and I'm still stuck. Can you think a boy in the seventh grade should be able to stay by himself an evening? I told my mother that if she could leave me with a baby when I was 11, a kid who is nearly 13 should be able to stay by himself. Her response: "You're a girl. That's different."

What do you say?—Had It

Dear Had: Your mother started early to dominate you. Unfortunately you never grew up emotionally to the point where you could shake loose and be independent. You should have bailed out of that situation years ago. How about today?

Ann Landers: Notice I am an alleged lady. "Dear." You have a lot of nerve devoting an entire column to men lovers, men and recipes and morons who want to know if "Scotsmen wear any thing." Some of your fans think you realize a lot of people need help with serious problems? For example: I am desperate for advice and it's been at least two weeks since I wrote to you. So far, my letter has not appeared in the paper.

It's this couple. He's a boozehound friend of my husband. They keep inviting themselves to our home for weekends. They have never invited us to theirs, nor have they ever written a thank-you note, sent a gift or brought anything. The wife is a lazy hog. She expects me to wait on her and I am sick of it. My husband knows they are a pain in the neck and has agreed to do whatever I say. But I just haven't been able to get the nerve to tell them why I don't want them to visit us anymore. Can you help me?—Screaming, Pa.

Dear Screa: (Notice I'm calling you dear.) Sorry. I can't do a thing for you. You'll have to do it yourself. This advice is so old I'll have to shave it to repeat it. Here it is: It takes two people to create such a situation—an insensitive slob, and a weak-kneed sap. If you recognize yourself as one of the two, it's about time.

Dear Ann Landers: Why doesn't someone write about the personality changes that occur in women when they go through the menopause?

I am short-tempered, suspicious, insecure, and I get depressed. I was never like this before, Ann. I'm sure it has a lot to do with the change of life. Don't tell me to take hormones because I am already taking them. They're relieving me of my hot flashes, but they don't help at all with the blah feeling and my lack of interest in life. Any advice?—In The Dumps

Dear Friend: The doctor who is giving you the hormones should be able to recommend some reading material. Your library will be another excellent source. I also suggest counseling. A woman who is short-tempered, insecure and depressed could use some professional help whether she's menopausal or not.

Sudden Infant Death Syndrome: Anna Affected and Still Lives

And if someone were not around to tickle her foot or touch her face to remind her, she would quickly and quietly die.

Anna suffers from sudden infant death syndrome (SIDS), commonly known as crib death, an almost always fatal condition that kills some 10,000 infants in the United States annually.

SIDS is usually fatal because its prime symptom, apnea or non-breathing, occurs during sleep. Diagnosis usually is by autopsy.

Anna may be the only living child with SIDS. She is seven months old and thriving and her pediatrician, Dr. Jerome Elyton, says each day of her life increases the chances she'll make it. He says if she can get through her first year she may be home free.

Anna is probably alive today because she caught a cold when she was three weeks old. Dr. Elyton said that induced the apnea while she was awake.

Her second piece of luck was that her mother, Sandi Rhida, is head nurse of Sacred Heart Hospital's intensive care unit and was able to recognize the symptom and get immediate help.

"I was holding her in my arms and when she stopped breathing, there was no mistaking it," said Mrs. Rhida.

Anna was admitted to Sacred Heart and five times during her first week she stopped breathing long enough to set off the alarm of an electronic heart monitor taped to her chest.

"The child has periodic episodes when the pulse will slow down and she'll stop breathing," said Dr. Dayton. "It results from faulty regulation in the respiratory section of the brain. There is no definite cause for this. The exact reasons are unknown."

"She's very gradually improving," he said. "At first the periods of apnea would occur any time. Now they come only when she has a cold."

Anna is home now. She lives much of her life with the heart monitor attached to her chest. Mrs. Rhida works only part-time and her husband Donald has altered his work hours so that one of them is always with Anna and always awake to listen for the buzzer that signals Anna is not breathing.

Usually, only a touch is needed to start her breathing again.

"I know what to do if touching Anna doesn't work," says Mrs. Rhida. "But time is so important. She should be all right if we get her breathing within three minutes by artificial respiration and then on a respirator. But I don't go much further than that. I kind of block it out of my mind.

"We live each day at a time. Right now we're only buying time and hoping she'll grow out of it."

She's Not the Only Virgin

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I am a 26-year-old virgin, and my boy friend wants me to have sexual relations with him. We love each other very much. My mother says I should wait until I marry, but my sister, who is an unwed mother, says that making love the first time is just beautiful.

When my boy friend and I go out we find it very hard to go beyond the necking stage. I just freeze and he says, "You're going to be a virgin the rest of your life!"

To Do Or Not To Do

Dear Uncertain Virgin: I'm with your mother, for a lot of reasons that aren't just prudery. If he loves you enough to want this commitment, doesn't he love you enough for marriage?

I hope you'll go to the library or a book store and ask for a copy of "Why Wait Till Marriage?" by Evelyn Millis Duvall. It will give you both sides of the story, and a chance to think about them.

Dear Doris: After reading the article in your column, "I've give up Social Drinking," I'm sending along a clipping which I hope will be of interest to anyone having an alcoholic problem.

A Recovered Alcoholic.

Dear Recovered: Thank you. It is reproduced here:

Booze has snapped more wedding rings, sold more homes, bankrupt more people, blighted more children, hung more, crepe, defiled more innocent, twisted more limbs, smashed more vehicles, wrecked more manhood, dishonored more womanhood, filled more jails, broken more hearts, caused more suicides, armed more fools, drained more blood, addled more brains, blasted more lives, dug more graves, made more insanity, and created more living Hell for more good people than any other single scourge that ever took root within the human race.

Former Canadian Musician Will Be Costa Rican First Lady

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (CP) — Marjorie Elliot Oduber, an attractive Canadian brunette of 42 who gave a career in music to marry a Costa Rican student of philosophy, will be the First Lady of this Central American country May 8.

"I will be busy working in the countryside, helping my husband," Mrs. Oduber said in an interview shortly after Daniel Oduber, 51, won the Feb. 3 presidential election by a large majority.

For 13 years Mrs. Oduber worked with Costa Ricans in the rural areas, trying to improve coffee co-operatives and living conditions of the peasant farmers.

"Now I will have a better chance to help them," she said in the flawless Spanish she learned during the 13 years she has lived in Costa Rica with her husband.

In addition to her work in the coffee plantations, Mrs. Oduber also has shown deep interest in the welfare of Costa Rican children.

Soon after he is inaugurated as president on May 8, Oduber hopes to establish a national child welfare institute. Mrs. Oduber will help organize the institute and may head the direct it.

Mrs. Oduber, born in Ottawa, is the daughter of the late Colin Fraser Elliot, for many years a deputy federal finance minister. When he retired he was named ambassador to Chile, where he served a four-year term before becoming high commissioner to Australia. Mrs. Elliot still resides in Ottawa.

Mrs. Oduber studied music in Canada and at one point in her career was an associate professor at the Costa Rican Conservatory.

She brushed aside her musical ambitions after meeting Oduber at McGill University in Montreal in 1948. Oduber was a student in philosophy after graduating as a lawyer in San Jose. They were married in Paris in 1952 where Oduber studied at the Sorbonne.

They have a 10-year-old son, Adrian.

'Pregnancy Weight Gain Can't Be Arbitrary'

TORONTO (CP) — It is nonsense to say arbitrarily how much weight a woman should gain when she is pregnant, a researcher says. A woman who has doubts about her doctor's opinion on the weight she should do as she pleases, using moderation as her guide.

Dr. Donald Hill, doing research into fetal growth at the Hospital for Sick Children in Toronto, was one of several speakers at a seminar on nutrition Tuesday sponsored by provincial voluntary agencies involved in services to children.

"We don't know what controls birth weight in newborns," he said.

"There is tremendous biologic variability. We can't single out nutrition as the most important thing."

He said full-term infants that weigh less than 5½ pounds when they are born often show effects of under-nutrition, but the relation to maternal nutrition is open to question.

He said experiments are being done with animals to try to find out exactly how a fetus is nourished.

He said he is not convinced a connection can be made between birth weight and infant mortality, and he told his audience not to be too quick to accept new theories.

Dr. Dick Hamilton, also of the Hospital for Sick Children, set off an argument with nutritionists in the audience when he said milk is not the universal wonder food it is sometimes said to be.

"There are good things about milk. It is an inexpensive source of high quality protein, but the cow also produces carbohydrate and fat."

He said little severe under-nutrition exists among Canada's children.

Fashions for Late Risers

NEW YORK (AP) — James Galanos has presented a spring collection almost devoid of daytime dresses because the late-afternoon and evening dresses seem to best suit his customers' lifestyle.

The collection had many good points. An elbow-length sleeve was superb for revealing a flabby upper arm. The few daytime coats were simple and single-breasted. Most of the skirts were bias cut, skimming and had an elegant flow. Almost every ensemble was worn with a hat.

His solid beige, black or white dresses were among the best looks of any year, and one lime-green dress captured the best points of the Gatsby look for 1974.

Standard Insurance Is Sought

TORONTO (CP) — The Consumers Association of Canada (CAC) wants the government to protect consumers from misleading pitches by life insurance firms.

In a brief submitted to John Clement, minister of consumer and corporate affairs and based on research done for CAC by Durham College economics teacher John Woodrow, the association says that life insurance firms have set up so many different kinds of combined insurance and savings plans that the average consumer cannot compare them.

The CAC suggests that insurance policies be made standard and a few basic types common to all firms, so that buyers can compare the premiums and benefits of each firm.

It recommends that life insurance salesmen should not be employees of one insurance firm, but should be able to sell whatever type of insurance as individual needs.

Firm Hired Agent To Infiltrate Union

TORONTO (CP) — The general manager of Artistic Woodwork Co. Ltd. said Monday his firm hired a private investigator to infiltrate the union which went on strike against the company last year.

Sarel van Zyl made the statement after R. Kent Rowley, president of the union, charged that the firm had used an agent provocateur to spy on union activities and provoke picket line incidents.

Mr. Rowley said Ronald Masut, 24, was actually an employee of Wackenhut of Canada Ltd. while on the picket line during the four-month strike at the north Toronto plant.

Mr. van Zyl said that before the strike there had been sabotage to company property and threats made against workers and added that "this is something that the company couldn't accept and we felt we needed someone to give us the information. . . ."

He said the firm hired Mr. Masut through Aaning Services Ltd., the Canadian division of Wackenhut, a private investigation and security guard firm.

In an interview, however, Mr. Masut denied that he ever worked in a most provocative manner."

Mr. Rowley, president of the Canadian Textile and Chemical Union, said the union became suspicious of Mr. Masut's conduct on the picket line because "it appeared to us that he was acting in a most provocative manner."

The union leader said Mr. Masut "was trying to encourage the other strikers in attacks against the police."

Mr. Masut was convicted on Jan. 29 of mischief and fined $300 for his activities during the strike. Six other charges—including four of common assault and two of mischief—were withdrawn in court last Thursday because the arresting officer left the police force.

Plan Charges

REGINA (CP) — John Messer, provincial agriculture minister, said Monday the Canadian Cattlemen's Association is fully justified in advising its members to stop buying feedlot cattle because of continuing increases in feed-grain costs.

Mr. Messer said in a statement there has been increasing chaos and uncertainty in the domestic feed grains market since the domestic pricing structure was removed from the control of the Canadian wheat board last fall and replaced by a formula based on so-called offboard prices.

Gas Piping Mistake Likely January Error

E. Blake Heathcote of Toronto told the inquest into 23 deaths at the hospital last year that his investigation of the piping system indicated that the cross-over could not have happened at any other time.

Mr. Heathcote was retained by the coroner's office following disclosure that one of the hospital patients died while receiving nitrous oxide instead of oxygen.

Bridge Street Residents Get Support of Mayor

Residents of Bridge Street West, fighting against the city's road widening plans for their area, have gained additional support for their cause.

And it appears that the final decision on the project could be delayed at least until some more questions are answered.

Following the taking of new traffic counts on Bridge Street which showed higher than projected volumes for the survey, council by a narrow vote two weeks ago rescinded its decision that the project should go ahead as planned.

Accordingly, a request was forwarded to the Ontario Municipal Board asking for a new date for an OMB hearing.

But last week Bridge Street residents renewed their campaign against the road reconstruction as they attended the public meeting at Bleecker Auditorium to discuss the city's official plan.

Mayor Robin Jeffrey Montague admitted that at the Bleecker Auditorium meeting questions were asked that she could not answer.

As a result, she brought in a notice of motion to council asking that the street widening project be postponed until the time of development west of the city was determined and asking that truck traffic on the street be prohibited east from Wellington Street.

Mayor Jeffrey said she would give reasons for her notice of motion when it came up for discussion at the next council meeting.

The mayor's motion was introduced following presentation of a brief from Bridge Street ratepayers again protesting the street widening.

Spokesman for the delegation was J. M. Tobin.

Last year an Ontario Municipal Board hearing was held on the project with decision being deferred until new traffic counts could be taken.

MORE

In asking council to postpone the project, Mr. Tobin listed 10 reasons why he did not think street widening was necessary at this time.

Possible alternatives to widening would be to ban parking on both sides of the street except for short stopping at a neighborhood grocery; wait until College, Sidney Station and Dundas Streets are finished so that a true traffic picture could be presented to the OMB; Moira Street West where there would be little disruption of property and which was said to be a natural east-west route midway between Highways 2 and 401.

Mr. Tobin maintained that despite higher traffic counts, there was no particular problem on the street. People travelling the street were not complaining of tie-ups.

The spokesman admitted there may be traffic hold-ups in 20 years time but asked where the proposals were for the land use beyond the drive-in theatre.

He said the official plan simply showed residential use for the area.

Mr. Tobin admitted that growth was inevitable but to widen a road which at present goes nowhere because of some possible future development in his words "was looking too far ahead."

He agreed the street was overdue for re- but suggested this could be done without cutting trees and widening which would only create a speedway.

Neither was it considered fair that abutting landowners would be levied $46,900 in local improvements for the cost of the street widening while none of the industries up the street would pay anything directly because they abut on other streets.

Adding weights to the West Bridge Street residents' delegation were East Hill citizen group heads Dr. David Lister and Mrs. Vera Heimbach, both of whom said they supported the West Hill cause.

Conflict Claimed

City council - members many of whom are members of the local Chamber of Commerce — are guilty of conflict of interest when they vote city grants to the chamber.

That is the suggestion of Belleville's Clarence Young, who Monday continued his attack on local "free-loading" organizations seeking city grants.

In his brief to council Mr. Young said the chamber in its annual request for funds suggests that the organization through its work benefits the average citizen, and is an advocate of free enterprise.

But once away from the handout table there is little effort shown to improve the lot of the average citizen. Neither, Mr. Young said, was there anything free or enterprising about the hundreds of tax money.

Mr. Young said city grants voted to the C of C by council members were a "blatant conflict of interest" on the part of council members and that such grants were being made illegally.

Snowmobile Stripped

The Belleville detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police have recovered a snowmobile that was reported stolen from the Foxboro area Saturday night.

The 1974 Skidoo TNT 400, owned by David Boyd, of 370 Main Street, Foxboro, was recovered in a garage in the Wallbridge Road, three miles east of the house from which it was stolen.

Police report that the snowmobile, which was valued at approximately $1,200, was stripped of its motor and parts.

Seniors' Tax Aid Offered

Any community groups wishing to help senior citizens file their income tax returns this year have the guidance of the Belleville district taxation office.

To claim $100 under this year's Ontario Tax Credit System — which is processed with federal income tax — pensioners must file a tax return.

So far, the Belleville taxation office has found the bulk of inquiries this year centres on the tax credit system. And the popularity of queries is not from senior citizens, says an official.

Community groups may be interested in helping simplify the process for people people confused about the filing formula.

If so, taxation officials are willing to give such volunteer organizations a briefing at the Belleville office, says information officer John Lennox.

The instruction program would involve groups only — not individuals, he says.

Already, such a project has been launched in Peterborough. Last week, information officers from Belleville conducted a seminar organized by the Salvation Army. It drew 25 volunteers.

Centennial Suggestions Submitted

Two projects to help Canada and the city of Belleville celebrate their birthdays were suggested to city council on Monday.

Mrs. Bessie Slettebo, 58 Highland Ave., in a letter to Mayor Robin Jeffrey, has suggested that a women's retirement home with living and dining facilities all on the one floor would be an ideal project for the city's centennial year.

"Belleville is a city of widows" wrote Mrs. Slettebo, now a resident of the Women's Christian Association home on Highland Ave. "And there will be more of them."

She admits she is comfortably situated in the WCA building but has 19 steps to climb while the flight of steps to the third floor is narrow and hard on old people with weak hearts.

Mrs. Slettebo's suggestion will be forwarded to the city's centennial committee.

Ald. Alderman Dr. John Stock has a suggestion,to help brighten up the city for Canada Week celebrations and at the same time enable residents to show a little national patriotism.

The alderman suggests that the veterans' council or some other organization take on a flag selling project.

Canadians, he said, have forgotten how to be proud.

Engineering Advice

Dr. J. H. Brown, right, a professor of engineering at Queen's University, last night addressed 50 students who were guests of engineers from Hastings and Prince Edward counties at a banquet at Loyalist. With him are Peter Cassidy, an engineer from Northern Electric and Bevprley McGee, a Moira Secondary student who intends to enter applied science at Queen's in the fall.

Student's Own Interest Should Determine Job

High school students making the crucial choice of a career should focus on their own interests and forget about projections on opportunities that might materialize in the future.

"Don't count on patterns for the future," advised Dr. J. H. Brown, professor of metallurgical engineering at Queen's University. "Few Canadian companies project their manpower requirements beyond projects now under way. Work as an individual. No time is better spent than that spent looking at your own long-term personal interests."

Dr. Brown was guest speaker at a dinner given by the Belleville branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada at Loyalist College for 50 grade 13 students considering engineering as a career. Hastings and Prince Edward county engineers have sponsored the student day, a project that matched 50 students with 50 practising engineers. The engineers invited the students to spend a few hours on the job with them, to learn exactly what an engineer does.

Dr. Brown offered several criteria to students seeking engineering as a career. With tongue in cheek he said a potential engineer is someone with a love of math, physics and chemistry and a "total distaste for English."

Career selection is difficult, he said. "We cannot yet measure human values."

An engineer should be inclined to professional work with inanimate objects and with technical considerations.

But, he warned, engineering is not a specific business. It includes a wide range of problems without absolute answers.

Engineers can work with men, materials and ideas.

The profession offers a "unique flexibility."

Four students offered their experiences on the job. They were Beverly McGee from Moira, Ken Darby from DCI, Blair Wardman from Bayside and Glen Sine from Quinte.

Land Bought For New Plant

Construction work on the new Procter and Gamble plant, to be built in the northeast industrial park in Belleville and nearby Thurlow township will start in the spring of this year.

In an official announcement released by the company yesterday, it was revealed that Procter and Gamble has purchased approximately 150 acres of undeveloped land in the northeast industrial park.

The announcement said that expectations are that construction of a new plant for the Procter and Gamble line of packaged consumer products will begin there in the spring of 1974.

It goes on to say that when the plant is completed and in full operation, it will employ about 250 persons.

Procter and Gamble's principal consumer products facility is located in Hamilton, Ontario and its cake mix and shortening plant is in Pointe Claire, Quebec.

UCS, Pensioners Ask City's Aid

The Belleville United Community Services and the local branch of Pensioners Concerned appeared before city council Monday asking for financial assistance from city coffers.

Spokesmen for the UCS asked for a $12,000 city grant stating that while the organization might continue without the grant, its level of service to the community would be considerably reduced.

A case was also made for the hiring of a paid professional as director whose functions of fund raising and social planning were vitally important.

Such person would not necessarily need to have a degree but must have a background in social service agencies.

Glynne Jones president of the local bunch of Pensioners Concerned, in his brief to council asked that people 65 and over be given relief from payment of educational taxes.

He said these people had been paying education taxes for 40 to 50 years; they had paid for their own children's education and were now being asked to help pay for educating their grandchildren at a time when their incomes were sharply reduced.

The pensioners' request was referred to City Manager Albert Elliott, who two weeks ago had been asked for a report on recommendation on possible city assistance for senior citizens.

The UCS request was also referred to the city manager for budget recommendation.

Meet Tomorrow

The annual meeting and election of directors for the city's Industrial Commission will take place tomorrow.

It will be held in the Park Room of the Four Seasons Hotel.

Potential Bombs In Car's Trunk

Police are looking for a Quinte-area resident who may just have a potential bomb in the trunk of his car.

Around 9 a.m. yesterday morning two acetylene tank cylinders fell off the back of a Lakeside Oxygen truck on Highway 37, near the Third Concession, Thurlow.

A little later in the morning police received a report that two men had been seen loading the cylinders into the trunk of a late model Pontiac or Chrysler.

Police warn that the cylinders could be a potential bomb, if the valves had been damaged by the fall.

Acetylene is a highly explosive gas and if the cylinder valves had been cracked in the fall the gas could leak out, the police said.

The two cylinders are red in color; stand approximately four feet high and carry a stamp with the letters LCC and a serial number on their neck.

Anyone who may have some information as to the whereabouts of the cylinders is asked to notify the OPP by calling 962-6455.

OTTAWA — Two Belleville firms have been awarded federal-government contracts totalling $103,760.

The largest contract valued at $93 760, went to AOCO Ltd., for opticians' supplies. A $10,000 contract given to Warren Whitney Rental Equipment Ltd. covers rental of trailer units for Canadian Forces Base Trenton during a one-year period ending Jan. 31, 1975.

The contracts were announced Monday in the bulletin of business opportunities published weekly by the department of supply and services.

The two were among 25 unclassified contracts, each worth $10,000 or more, awarded to Canadian companies during the week ended Feb. [illegible] says.

Total value of these contracts placed on behalf of various federal departments and agencies was $27,258,143.

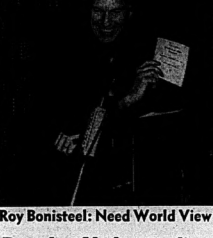
Broader Understanding Key to Brotherhood

Concern for the human condition must be global in outlook — even when seeking solutions to local situations, Belleville Clergy and church laymen were told Monday night.

In a world shrunken by instant communications, heightened awareness of the universal nature of social problems is necessary, said Roy Bonisteel.

The Quinte native who is host of the CBC's Man Alive television series, was keynote speaker to the 12th annual Brotherwood Week banquet at Eastminster United Church.

Involvement with human problems must encompass the broader area of world concern to improve understanding of "where we are in our corner of life," he said.



Too often, said Mr. Bonisteel, public leaders and spokesmen don't want to face the issues of our contemporary world with "any kind of realism."

But what is — to "keep telling it like it is" — necessary if society is to look beyond immediate concerns to the "larger problem and seek a larger solution."

The media provide a means of preparation for the layman - through open-line shows, letters to newspapers, he said.

Some 130 members of Catholic Jewish and Protestant congregations from seven east Belleville churches attended the event. The latter year's Brotherwood Week program will be organized by St. Joseph's church.

Janitors Cost More

Today's trend toward inflation is never ending.

This was realized at city council Monday when the contract for janitorial and related services at city hall and three other municipal buildings was up for decision.

Three tenders for the job were received, ranging from a high of $3,528 a month down to $2,351. The lowest tender, from Hunt Brothers Ltd., was accepted.

Council was told that the cost of janitorial services for the same four buildings was $1,640, the increase for this year's contract being about 30 per cent.

Included in the increase will be a slightly higher level of service for some departments.

Music Festival Entries Down

Entries for Belleville Rotary Club's 6th annual music festival are down about 48 this year to 302, with 1,700 participants, but there is no lack of enthusiasm in the club as the event approaches.

Music Festival committee chairman Bill Campbell released details of the program at Monday's meeting of Rotary.

Mrs. Gladys Whitehead of the Hamilton school of music is adjudicator for the voice, choral and strings classes at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church. Belleville Collegiate next door is the venue for piano and accordion classes which will be adjudicated by British concert pianist Christopher Elton, while Centennial secondary school will have the instrumental and band performers who will be adjudicated by Lt.-Col (ret.) Hunt, a former assistant director of the Air Transport Command band, who is now in charge of the music program at the CNE.

The festival opens February 26 and continues on the following two days. Workshops for students and teachers are also planned and the Festival of Stars will be at Centennial on March 9 at 8 p.m. The latter program will be videotaped for later showing on community television.

Scouts' Big Week

This is the week the city's Scouts can call their own. And topping off this week's celebrations of Scout Week will be a birthday party at the Quinte Mall Friday night in honor of the founder of modern scouting, Lord Baden-Powell. The public is cordially invited. Displays, demonstrations and even a piece of birthday cake form part of the festivities. During the week, there will be banquets and regular Scout meetings. Last week, certain Scout and Cub troops as well as the Beavers from OSD taped a show for Cablevue at Loyalist College. During the taping, Scouts from the Second Belleville, above, worked under their leader, Cosmo DeClerq, in building a wooden Indian "kitchen". Also all this week at 6:30 p.m. on CJBQ, listeners will be able to hear campfire songs sung by two packs, Belleville 11th and 18th A. This carries on until Friday.

1,000 Points in 745 Games

MONTREAL (CP) — When all-star centre Phil Esposito of Boston Bruins recently became the 10th player in National Hockey League history to record 1,000 points it took him 146 fewer games to reach that level than any of his team mates.

Esposito, the league's leader in goals scored and total points so far this season, picked up his 1003th point of the current campaign last week against Gaetan Gilles of Atlanta Flames and reached the 1,000-point mark of his career at Vancouver last Friday in a 4-2 victory over the Canucks.

The previous fewest number of games needed to collect 1,000 points was 889 by Bobby Hull when the left winger was with Chicago Black Hawks.

Here are the number of games it took each of the other eight players to record their 1,000th point in NHL regular-season games:

Jean Beliveau, Montreal Canadiens, 911; Stan Mikita, Chicago, 922; Gordie Howe, Detroit Red Wings, 930; Frank Mahovlich Toronto Maple Leafs, Detroit, Montreal, 1,000; Norm Ullman, Detroit, Toronto, 1,111; John Bucyk, Detroit, Boston, 1,144; Henri Richard, Montreal, 1,194; and Alex Delvecchio, Detroit, 1,315.

Esposito closed last week with an assist Saturday at Los Angeles against the Kings, boosting his point total for the season to 103 and a 16-point edge over runner-up and teammate defenceman Bobby Orr.

It marked the fourth consecutive season Esposito has gone over the 100-point mark and the fifth time in six seasons. He missed the 100-point level by one point in 1969-70.

With 23 games left to play in the 78-game schedule, Esposito could conceivably finish with 146 points at his current pace, which would be six short of his record 152 points in 1970-71.

But the rangy Boston centre won't get a chance to improve his stance tonight as only three games are scheduled. The Canadiens visit New York Islanders, Vancouver is at Los Angeles, and Atlanta Flames visit Buffalo Sabres.

While Esposito has maintained a record pace for points in recent weeks, his goal-scoring has dropped off.

In his first 29 games this season he scored 35 goals. He has scored 12 in his last 36 games, but still leads the league with 47 and with three more will reach the 50-goal mark for the fourth straight season. Esposito holds the seasonal record of 76 goals, set in 1970-71.

Gordie Howe Crowds Carleton

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. (CP) — Gordie Howe scored only five goals in his first 18 World Hockey Association games. Now he's up to five a week.

His five goals last week pulled the 45-year-old Houston Aeros winger to within one point of WHA scoring leader Wayne Carleton of Toronto Toros who just managed to stay ahead by adding three assists during the week.

Carleton now leads with 79 points in 56 games and 50 assists in 61 games. Howe has 78 points on 28 goals and 52 assists in 57 games.

Howe ranked 29th in the scoring parade back on Nov. 20 when he had five goals and 14 assists out of 18 games.

Junkin's Solid Effort Turns Back Cougars

CHERRY HILL, N.J. (AP) — Joe Junkin once was told that a goalie who stops nine out of every 10 shots is "playing pretty darn good." By that standard, the New Jersey Knights' goaltender was close to fantastic when he stopped all but three of the 46 shots Chicago Cougars fired at him.

That gave the Knights a 4-3 victory in the only World Hockey Association game played Monday night. The National Hockey League was idle.

The Knights' third win in a row vaulted them over the Cougars and out of last place in the WHA East, five points back of fourth-place Cleveland Crusaders.

"This has been a troublesome year for us," said Junkin, referring to the beginning of the season when the team, known as the New York Golden Blades, moved to New Jersey because of financial problems.

"We started out fighting for our survival. Now we're fighting for the playoffs. I think we can make it."

Bob Brown got New Jersey's first goal on a 55-foot shot, and Brian Moreen made it 2-0 after Gene Peacock got the puck out from behind the Chicago net. Peacock, who made it 3-0 before the period ended, also scored the tie-breaker midway through the third period.

For Chicago, Joe Hardy scored in the second period. In the third, Jim Bennett scored on it 3-2 and Bob Liddington tied the game at 7:33. Peacock then fired a backhander past Chicago goalie Cam Newton at 12:30.

Pat Stapleton, Chicago's playing coach, said he wasn't completely disheartened at being last in the division.

"We aren't out of it," he said. "We've got 23 games remaining, 16 at home. I think we can put together a good streak once we get back home."

In games tonight, Toronto is at Vancouver and Cleveland, two points behind Edmonton, Quebec in the East division, meets the Nordiques at Quebec City.

CORNWALLIS, N.S. (CP) — A Cold Lake, Alta., rink skipped by Otto Kreppa retained its Canadian Forces curling championship during the weekend after posting an 8-1 record. CFB Greenwood and CFB Borden finished in a tie for second with six wins and three losses each.

WHA Trustees Approve Agreement

CHICAGO (CP) — The World Hockey Association board of trustees Monday approved a settlement agreement with the National Hockey League aimed at ending a $30-million court fight between the leagues.

Dennis Murphy, president of the WHA, announced approval of the agreement. Approval of a similar agreement was announced Tuesday by NHL president Clarence Campbell after an NHL board of governors meeting here.

Steve Drummy, general counsel for the WHA, said lengthy negotiations between the two leagues had finally resulted in a definite working agreement which will be submitted to federal Judge A. Leon Higginbotham today in Philadelphia for his approval.

One of the vital areas in the W H I A ' s deliberations, concerning the use of NHL buildings by WHA teams, was overcome when owner John F. Bassett of Toronto Toros agreed not to make an issue of the non-availability of Maple Leaf Gardens to his club.

Murphy did not reveal terms of the agreement approved by the trustees. The NHL said Friday the agreement it approved would be placed before Judge Higginbotham today.

The first settlement proposal put forward by the WHA would have had the NHL pay $15 million in legal fees incurred by the new league.

In earlier meetings here and in Philadelphia the NHL board of governors had not given the unanimous consent required for the settlement, although WHA trustees had already agreed to terms.

Campbell said there had been "some modifications" in the agreement Friday but would not elaborate.

The WHA had also proposed a series of exhibition games between the two leagues and agreed to end its player raids on the NHL after Aug. 1.

The earlier agreement incorporated a new option clause in the standard player's contract which gives a player the right to test the market to another team only after he has played an option year beyond the terms of his contract.

Russians Aim to Get Tough

OTTAWA (CP) — The coach of a touring Soviet Union midget hockey team said Monday that Russian coaching methods have remained basically unchanged since the death of his country's national team coach Canada in 1970.

"But we are attempting to improve our checking and develop a tougher form of hockey," coach Nikolay Golmakov said through an interpreter.

"Generally we do not admit to the business of rough hockey," he told a news conference. "We believe in tough hockey, not rough hockey."

Golmakov, 30, a former player, said the series did help the Soviets concentrate on checking but did nothing to alter our standard practice techniques.

The coach, here for a news conference before a game between an Ottawa midget team and his Soviet Central Army club, said he hoped to win all six games on the tour.

His team opened the series Friday with an 8-4 win over a Verdun, Que., team, then trounced a Longueuil, Que., squad 21-1 Sunday night.

Today, the Soviets play Sherbrooke, Que., midgets, then a Trois-Rivieres team prior to a game against Oshawa, Ont., and back to Ottawa.

The Verdun team travels to the Soviet Union for a similar six-game series next month.

Golmanov said the Russian youngsters live at home but spend six hours a week in practice, then spend another three or four hours at games through the September-April season.

Players are brought into the system at six and are eventually screened for spring play.

The coach said hockey is regarded as "a tool for educating young people," and is considered a form of recreation rather than "an occupation or a business."

A Veteran Observer Looks at the Cats

In Montreal they're getting ready for baseball. Tickets for the Expos' home opener go on sale Thursday.

In Atlanta, the chairman of the board of the Braves has announced that Hank Aaron will be used only as a pinch-hitter in the team's opening games at Cincinnati. Aaron is one clout away from the all-time home run record of 714 set by Babe Ruth.

But here in Belleville, the fans have other things on their minds. It's Metro Junior B Hockey League playoff time again. And the Bobcats open at home, Wednesday, with Peterborough Lions supplying the opposition.

Talk hockey in the surrounding area ... make the subject turn up Bobcats ... and chances are a Belleville fan will find the hockey club's exploits have created abundant interest.

But some of the fans in the outlying areas will find it hard to comprehend that a community the size of Belleville can produce a club which more than holds its own with the squads from the "big city".

One elderly gentleman who has been watching hockey for better than 50 years, puts it down to spirit.

"They (the Bobcats) just have too much spirit and hustle for those other guys," he says.

"I've never seen a bunch of young fellows get so worked up about one of their scores a goal.

"It's great, you know. And the team has picked some real imports, either," observes the veteran citizen.

One begins to wonder if there is as much pride in the accomplishments of the team, at home.

The club's record speaks for itself and it reflects the effort put forth by men like coach Moe Hunter, manager Russ Soule, trainers Doug Murray and Bob Ricketts, Jack McBride - publicity, Bob Duncan - transportation, and yes, the stick boy, Larry Sennett.

Then, of course, there's the club's general manager Snipe Matthews who deals with junior hockey through some lean years.

He was rewarded for his patience last season when the club finished fifth in a 10-team league and went to the group final before bowing out in seven games.

This time around, Bobcats are in the thick of the battle for first place until the late going, finally settling for a very respectable third slot. This time, there were 12 teams in the grouping.

A Booster Club is lending its assistance to the cause and the fans have provided plenty of support.

Proud of the Bobcats? Sure we are.

Success in the playoffs? They've got the stuff to do it.

SLICES — Expos have signed Steve Rogers, the 24-year-old right-hander who made such an impressive showing after being called up to the club from Peninsula Stings of the International League last season.

As a refresher, Rogers finished with a 10-5 won-lost record, fashioned a sparkling earned run average of 1.34 over the 13 games he worked. Included in his win record were three shutouts. And he struck out a fourth with Mike Marshall.

The Western Canada Hockey League will host this year's Memorial Cup Series at the Stampede Corral in Calgary, May 3-12.

Sponsored by CCM, the playoff will match up the champions from the Major Junior A-Leagues in Ontario Quebec and the West.

If you've got some time to spare, your assistance will be welcomed by the Belleville Lacrosse Association.

Thursday evening, at Quinte Secondary School, the association's annual general meeting is scheduled at 8 o'clock.

McTavish Gets A Stiff Battle

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP) — Dr. Will McTavish of Winnipeg isn't finding his Canadian senior men's curling title easy to defend.

McTavish guided his Manitoba team to wins in third-and fourth-round play Monday for a 3-1 record, second and fourth place in the standings behind Saskatchewan, British Columbia and Prince Edward Island.

"Since we won the title last year, every game, especially in competition, has become a chance for someone to beat the champ," he said.

"This year, the other teams know we're the defending champs and play that much harder to beat us."

In other matches, Northern Ontario clobbered New-foundland 14-2, Saskatchewan beat New Brunswick 9-6, Saskatchewan defeated Northern Ontario 8-6, Nova Scotia beat Newfoundland 12-10, P.E.I. had the bye.

Ontario, Saskatchewan both have 4-0 records for a first-place tie in W.F.L. P.E.I. is third at 3-0 and Manitoba 2-1.

Next skips for Saskatchewan and BC. will be the teams to beat.

George Beaudry's foursome from Trail, B.C., won its four games with most of them going right to the end.

In the 8-6 win over the Ontario rink from Belleville (skipped by Bill Riley), B.C. scored four points in the seventh end to pull ahead finally to stay.

Dr. Wen MacDonald, whose Charlottetown rink took five points in the ninth end to defeat Alberta, said:

"All the teams are good and the winner will probably have an 8-2 record. Saskatchewan and B.C. will be the teams to beat."

Newfoundland's 14-3 defeat by Northern Ontario Monday night disappointed many spectators.

Newfoundland lost 12-10 to Nova Scotia Monday afternoon.

In round five starting at 1 p.m. EST today, B.C. meets Newfoundland, Alberta faces New Brunswick, Manitoba goes against Northern Ontario, Nova Scotia plays Quebec and Ontario meets Saskatchewan. Alberta has the bye.

Potvin—Broken Ankle Bone

Kelly—Led the Charge

First to Leave—Flyer Pays

MONTREAL (CP) — Forward Bob Kelly of Philadelphia Flyers was suspended Monday for one game by Clarence Campbell, National Hockey League president, following a bench-clearing incident Sunday between the Flyers and Montreal Canadiens at Montreal.

Campbell said Kelly was the first player to leave the players' bench to enter a scuffle and his action precipitated a general melee in which all players in both teams left their benches to enter the altercation.

"This is the second time this season that Kelly has led his team-mates over the boards into an altercation, and as a result he is suspended from Philadelphia's next scheduled game Wednesday night at Detroit," Campbell said.

Kelly, who leaves his bench again for the same reason this season, his suspension will be increased by one game each time he does so."

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — An injury suffered by defenseman Dennis Potvin last Thursday has been diagnosed as a broken ankle bone, New York Islanders reported Monday.

Potvin was hurt in a National Hockey League game against St. Louis. He finished that game and played Saturday against Chicago before he learned that the navicular bone in his ankle was cracked.

The Islanders said that despite the injury Potvin would be ready for Tuesday's home game against Montreal Canadiens at Nassau Coliseum.

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Canadiens will be without their leading scorer when they visit Uniondale, N.Y., tonight to face New York Islanders in a National Hockey League contest.

A spokesman for the Canadiens said Monday that speedy right winger Yvan Cournoyer, top scorer on the club with 31 goals and 27 assists, suffered a strained right knee in Sunday's 2-2 tie here against Philadelphia Flyers and was unable to make the trip.

The spokesman said that centre Jacques Lemaire, out with a bruised shoulder, is scheduled to travel with the club, but remained a doubtful starter against the Islanders.

Veteran defenceman Jacques Laperriere, out of the lineup since he suffered a knee injury in Detroit Jan. 20 against the Red Wings, has begun a new series of treatments for the injury and is expected to resume skating later this week.

Laperriere recently had a cast removed from his injured knee and was required to step on crutches until it was determined if surgery for the stretched ligament problem was necessary.

Gray Looking For Big Payday

TORONTO (CP) — Clyde Gray was happy to hold on to his Commonwealth welterweight boxing title Monday night, but he'd rather pay bricks for the small amount of money involved.

"If I can get some big pay days, I'll be there, but I'm not going to fight for peanuts any more," the Toronto fighter said after entering $10,000 for his defence against Jamaican Bunny Grant.

Grant, who said he had suffered pulled or bruised stomach muscles, failed to answer the bell for the ninth round and Gray was awarded the fight on a technical knockout.

Grant came here with a record of never having been knocked off his feet in 44 previous fights, but Gray put him on the canvas in the sixth round.

"It was pretty tough boxing and it seems wasn't worth the money I'm gonna get out of it," said Gray who was guaranteed $10,000 against 25 per cent of the gate.

A crowd of about 5,000 showed up for the 26-year-old Canadian champion's first Commonwealth title defence.

"I was hoping for a lot bigger crowd tonight," said Gray who had said last week he planned to retire if he didn't get some big purses which he believes can only be won by taking the world title from Jose Napoles of Mexico.

Gray lost a decision to Napoles last year in his first world title bid but is hoping for another chance at the crown.

"I'm not going to fight for peanuts any more. I'd rather lay bricks."

Gray earns about $250 a week as a bricklayer when he's not training for fights. Last year, when he won the Commonwealth title from Eddie Slay of Ghana and went against Napoles, was his best in boxing earnings with about $40,000.

By the fifth round, Grant was dropping his guard and Gray scored with his repeated combinations to the head. Then in the sixth, Gray straightened Grant up with a couple left hooks and put him to the canvas with a combination.

Grant took the mandatory eight count from referee Barney Ledsperig before Gray backed him into a corner where the two stood toe-to-toe slugging it out for the remainder of the round.

Grant, who was guaranteed $5,000 against 10 per cent of the gate, weighed in at 140¾ pounds, while Gray was right at the 147 limit.

In the eight-round preliminary, Gary Broughton of Brantford, Ont., 155, knocked out Roy McMillan of Toronto, 160, at 2:33 of the fourth round in their welterweight contest.

Other bouts on the decision went to Terry Summerhays, Brantford, 148, Jr., his eight-round welterweight tilt against Ray Rose, Montreal, 147¼.

CHICAGO (AP) — The World Football League hasn't played a game, but already two of its franchises have been shifted.

Davidson said the WFL hopes to announce details of a television contract today. The league will play its games Wednesday nights with one game each Thursday which will be televised.

He said the league will play a 20-week schedule starting July 10, with a four-team playoff and a Nov. 29 championship game.

TORONTO (CP) — The annual four-day meeting of the Canadian Football League opens today with almost every item of business influenced by the potential effect of competition from the new World Football League.

Items of business include possible expansion into London, Ont., a bid for the Grey Cup game to be played on the Prairies for the first time, and a Canadian college draft in which Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Eastern Football Conference have four of the first 11 picks.

Also to be discussed is a proposed change in rosters to 17 Canadians and 15 imports, including the designated import.

There will be no official news releases on discussions at the opening session beginning at 9:30 a.m. Gordon Walker, CFL publicity director, said Monday that any decisions made by the general managers of the nine CFL teams will first have to be referred to the league's executive committee, which does not meet until Thursday.

The Tiats lost in the Eastern Conference in 1973 after winning the Grey Cup in 1972. automatically across from the 11th picks in the college draft, and obtained the first and 10th selections as a result of deals with Winnipeg Blue Bombers last in the Western Football Conference last year.

"We got Winnipeg's first choice on the trade for defensive end Peter Robbins and second selection when we dealt Mark Koenes to Ottawa," said Ralph Sazio, Hamilton general manager.

BRONCS-SKINS TRADE

DENVER (AP) — Denver Broncos have traded two future draft choices to Washington Redskins for the rights to Jon Keyworth and Mike Bass. Redskins drafted Keyworth in the sixth round of the National Football League draft last month. The draft choices traded were not disclosed.

Buffalo, a former National Hockey League referee, said the rule change will also "stop the inconsistency attached to judgment involved in the call."

On an intentional offside call, the puck is taken to the attacking team's defensive zone and faced off.

An intentional offside can be called when an attacking player takes the puck across the opposing team's blueline even though he knows his teammates will be offside.

"There's so much inconsistency in the call we're better off without it," said Buffey. "If a game is tied or close, say 3-3 with a few minutes left, referees don't call the intentional offside because the other team might score. That'd be a suicidal call."

WHA Makes Rule Change

TORONTO (CP) — The World Hockey Association has eliminated the intentional offside rule in an effort to speed up the game, referee-in-chief Vern Buffey said Monday.

Wipes Out Welfare

Noel Starblanket, 35-year-old chief of 120 Crees on the Starblanket Reserve near Regina, has exploited federal and provincial grants to virtually wipe out welfare on the reserve and give his people independence. Chief Starblanket says money is the key to achieving Indian independence — "money talks and I'm going to make it talk for me." (CP Photo)

Youngest Indian Chief Wins by White Rules

REGINA (CP) — Noel Starblanket, said to be Canada's youngest Indian chief, has learned to play by the white man's rules—and he's winning.

The 26-year-old chief of 120 Crees on the Starblanket Reserve had in just two years made a name for himself by exploiting the loopholes in grants of federal and provincial governments to provide jobs, independence and pride.

When he became chief two years ago, 80 per cent of the people on the reserve were on welfare. Now there are only four welfare recipients.

He could move with equal ease through an informal reception at the home of corporate boardrooms of Bay Street.

He is as conscious of public image, money and political power as any corporation executive.

Although he knows the value of symbols—like the purple-and-gold leather jackets members of his band wear—he says money is the key to achieving Indian independence and winning respect from the white man.

"Money talks and I'm going to make it talk for me because that's the only language he understands.

"To get that money, he examines government programs as carefully as any businessman looking for a grant to expand his business.

Chief Starblanket recalls that his great-grandfather signed a treaty which "said that the Great White Mother (Queen Victoria) will teach her red children the wit and cunning of the white man."

"I've learned that wit and cunning," he says with a grin.

Instead of living on the reserve, 70 miles to the northeast, he has a Regina house and works on a government-financed project researching Indian treaty rights while his brothers handle day-to-day reserve business.

That arrangement draws some criticism from older Indians, he says, but it enables him to lobby more effectively for grants—and to have decent housing. There still is a shortage of good houses on the reserve and neither he nor his band manager has a house there.

By coupling grants from different government programs, he was able to get virtually every person on the reserve a job renovating reserve houses.

Now, with more government grants, he is preparing to give the reserve economic independence in the form of a general store, a cow-calf operation and grain farming.

The farming and cow-calf operations will take $300,000 worth of work, equipment, materials and professional advice, he estimates.

But after deducting the expected grants and free consultation, he says the band may only have to raise $200,000 in loans. "There's grants all over the bloody place," he says—everything from a provincial program for pasture development to the federal Local Initiatives Program.

With economic development, he says, the reserve will no longer need subsidies and the taxpayers' money will be saved.

Chief Starblanket has already achieved virtual independence from the much-criticized federal department of Indian affairs, which other Indian spokesmen have accused of being patronizing and in effect trying to keep Indians dependent on Ottawa.

Asked whether the department has hampered his efforts, he said "they used to but they don't any more because I have enough political clout to go to someone higher up if I get any static from some petty bureaucrat."

And he says that the success story of the Starblanket reserve will be repeated on many other reserves.

No longer will Indians live in the past and be content with the image of the "noble red man," he says.

"There are up-and-coming, ambitious, energetic young chiefs now and they want part of the action."

Mime Theatre Announces Plans

The Canadian Mime Theatre has announced theatre's plans for the 1974 season at The Royal George Theatre, Niagara-on-the-Lake.

Opening its sixth season on June 11 will be Moe Nagy's full length mime play, The Lamplighter, directed by Myra Benson. The children's show, The Circus, directed by Harro Maskow opens June 12 and Mime at Nine, a collection of new skits and sketches, directed by Adrian Pecknold, opens June 25.

In 1971, the Canadian Mime Theatre gave the Canadian premiere of The Lamplighter at the Studio Theatre, National Arts Centre in Ottawa, and played to standing-room-only for three weeks. The production was repeated that fall at Toronto's Central Library Theatre - again to sold out houses. A full length mime play, The Lamplighter combines drama, comedy, pathos and fantasy in a play for all ages.

First performed by the Company in 1970, The Circus is a romantic, poetic piece of theatre, geared to appeal to the fantasy world of a child, and to anyone who has ever enjoyed a circus. All the elegance are there: the colorful circus tent, the roaring lion, the beautiful bareback lady rider, the cruel lion tamer, and everybody's friend - - Gillou - - the little man.

A series of new skits and sketches devised by the Canadian Mime Theatre Company, Mime at Nine offers a silent look at life - - the comedy and the drama we all face each day.

The Company, in addition to Adrian Pecknold, Harro Maskow and Myra Benson, includes Robin Patterson, Jan McKay and Paulette Hallich.

CBC Programming, Policies Under Attack at Hearing

OTTAWA (CP) — CBC programming and policies are expected to come under sharp attack today, the second day of Canadian Radio-Television Commission (CRTC) hearings on a corporation application for a five-year renewal of all its broadcasting licences.

Laurent Picard, president of the Crown corporation, spent most of Monday explaining past operations and outlining future plans for the commissioners. Raymond David of the French-language service and Marce Munro of the English service also explained their operations.

Today the first of 28 Intervenors were to present their objections to corporation performance and to suggest how they think the job could be done better.

In opening the hearings Monday, CRTC chairman Pierre Juneau said none of the 300 briefs on CBC operations asked that the application be rejected. He said the CBC was considered the cornerstone of Canadian broadcasting.

Mr. Picard told the commission one of the most important changes connected with corporation policy would be for the government to change its approach to CBC financing.

He said the government had agreed to change to a system of grants, rather than repayable loans as now, and that any money left at the end of the fiscal year could be held over for the next year, rather than be returned to the federal treasury.

What he next sought was a system of long-term—he suggested five years—financing so the corporation could look that far into the future when making its plans.

Mr. Picard also said the corporation plans to increase its Canadian content to 75 per cent during the nine months when it was most watched. He said the CBC now carries 69 per cent Canadian content, but acknowledged this was not necessarily during prime time.

While admitting some failures in experimental programming - he mentioned the Jalna series and the situation-comedy Delilah - Mr. Picard said the level of Canadian talent was not strong.

He and Lister Sinclair, executive vice-president, suggested Canadian talent would need strengthening if it were to compete with programming now broadcast in prime time in the States. It was not economic to produce Canadian shows that would stay and watch domestic productions.

In this contest, the corporation presentations suggested that the comparable strength of French-language programming was because it was not in competition with foreign productions as was English-language programming.

Mr. Munro said that where the French-language network was strong in dramatic production, the English side was strong in documentary production.

On broadcasting to the far north, Mr. Picard said a new formula would be ready in about three months to replace what he called the patchwork holding action now in use.

Outdoor School on TV

The toughest outdoor school in North America is the subject of "The New Boys", to be seen in the NFB series "Perat" on the CBC-TV network on Feb. 27 at 10 p.m.

At Selkirk, near Winnipeg, Man., the St. John's Cathedral Boys' School is proud of its reputation for turning boys into men. Founded fifteen years ago, the school enrolls students from all over North America and initiates them with a challenge that many they have ever faced," says headmaster Frank Wiens.

Director John N. Senkiw took his NFB film crew out to accompany the new boys on their initiation, which means paddling boats some 350 miles over rugged waters and portages in less than two weeks. The boys range in age from 13 to 15, and they paddle and portage for twelve hours of each day, stopping only to eat and sleep.

The camera records the gruelling trip in detail as the boys traverse beautiful and rugged country, slogging waistdeep through swamps, crashing ashore at Lake Winnipeg, and being driven to the edge of exhaustion.

The New Boys is about a school which is unique by today's standards because of its tough outdoor program, but cannot accommodate all the students who would like to attend.

Want to Buy Film

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actress Connie Stevens has offered to buy an American broadcasting Corp. Movie of the Week, The Sex Symbol, following the network's decision not to air it as scheduled March 8.

An ABC spokesman said Monday that the movie, depicting an actress who is driven to drugs and drink, is being withdrawn because it needs more work.

Other reports, however, indicated that ABC's decision may have been influenced by political overtones raised by scenes in the film recounting a romance between the actress and a U.S. senator.

Miss Stevens said: "I thought it (the movie) was great and waited a long time for this. It's the finest thing I have ever done."

Interviewed by phone, Miss Stevens, currently appearing in Lake Tahoe, Nev., said she has heard the film will not be shown for at least a year.

"If it's a year, I'd like to buy it myself," she said.

Asked whether the scenes involving a U.S. senator were a factor in the decision to withdraw the film, an ABC spokesman said: "I don't know. All I know is that we want to do additional work on the film. We intend to schedule it in the future."

Widow Gets The Bulk

LOS ANGELES (Reuter) — The widow of Hollywood pioneer Samuel Goldwyn has inherited the bulk of his estate believed to be about $20 million, Goldwyn died Jan. 31 at the age of 91.

His widow, Frances Howard Goldwyn, had managed his estate as a court-appointed conservator since 1969 because Goldwyn was too ill to manage his own affairs.

Probate documents filed Wednesday valued his assets "in excess of $1 million," but when Mrs. Goldwyn was named conservator it was set at $19.7 million.

Goldwyn asked that his wife continue to operate the Hollywood studio that carries his name. But he also gave her permission to dispose of it if she wished.

He set up a $1-million trust for his son, Samuel Jr., a producer, and a $250,000 trust for his daughter, Mrs. Ruth Capps, as well as leaving bequests to his six grandchildren.

Shaw Festival Here in Spring

NIAGARA-ON-THE-LAKE — The Shaw Festival comes to Belleville this spring.

The well presented Shaw's The Devil's Disciple in the Quinte city May 9 and in Kingston May 10-11.

The Eastern Ontario performances will be presented on the way back to the festival theatre after a tour of the Maritimes, sponsored by the Canada Council.

The Devil's Disciple is set in New Hampshire during the American War of Independence. The Shavian melodrama has a brave, but unfortunate outcast riding everything for a man; a country he can never admire and a woman he can never love.

Noted Canadian actors Alan Scarfe, Nafanas Welsh and Tony Van Bridge have signed to play leading roles in the play announced Festival Artistic Director Paxton Whitehead.

The touring production will originate in Halifax April 4. It will be presented in the Maritimes with the co-operation of the Neptune Theatre. Neptune will present the Festival production — as part of its regular season — for a two-and-a-half-week engagement. The set, designed by Herbert Devlo will be constructed by the Halifax theatre.

Maybe you aren't getting enough information because he is hoping that less frantic manipulation than surgery will be sufficient for you. That's true in most cases.
Either hiatus hernia or hiatal hernia is correct—it's a larger-than-ideal gap through which the esophagus passes to reach the stomach.
Surgery is a major undertaking, and requires the hands of a surgeon who thoroughly understands it if you are to have the best results. But I wouldn't call it a dangerous operation.
Dear Dr. Thosteson: Four years ago my husband had cirrhosis of the liver—he drank for about 20 years. He is now dead. After the cirrhosis he hadn't had a drink of anything until three weeks ago. He was ashamed to tell me until today.
He also is ashamed to tell his doctor, and that is why I am writing to you. After drinking 1½ pints of whisky in three weeks could he have readmaged his liver enough to kill him, or hurt him? I am so worried. He has sworn off drinking again for good.—Mrs. C.D.G.
Any alcohol is harmful to damaged liver, and when a cirrhosis patient goes back to drinking, my heart goes down to my boots.
But this case is different, not only because your husband was ashamed of slipping, but because he finally did confess.
My estimate would be that his

Your partner continues to three notrump. What do you do now?

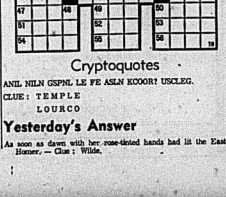
Answer Tomorrow

By Oswald and James Jacoby



The single finesse is a play against one missing card, such as the king or queen. A double finesse is a finesse taken twice against two missing cards.

The deep-sea finesse is a finesse against more than two.

South looks over dummy and counts eight top tricks. He can make a ninth in diamonds if the suit breaks 3-2. He let's West hold the first trick. West continues the suit. East shows out and there is no chance for a second trick in diamonds. Now South needs two heart tricks and he is faced with a single suit play.

An end play might develop, but good declarding can say that. Thus South will have to go after hearts himself. A simple finesse is a 50 per cent chance. (Actually less on account of the diamond distribution, but still close.)

The deep-sea finesse of the nine gives the declarer an extra chance. If it loses to the 10 or beer, the jack declarer can still fall back on the simple finesse. This time it turns out that West holds both the jack and 10 so the nine forces the king and South has his ninth trick.

Hiatal Hernia Surgery Delicate

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please tell me about hiatus hernia. I don't know if that's the right spelling but you know what I mean. Is an operation for this dangerous? I don't get much information from my doctor—C.C.C.

pint-and-a-half spree can't have hurt him enough for you to worry about, since he's now off liquor again. And it's also my guess that this time he'll stay off.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What is a uterine fibroid tumor? How is it treated? Should it be taken or left alone? It treated, how?—Mrs. R.

It's a type of tumor (the fibroid refers to the type of tissue) which quite often develops in the uterus—sometimes one, sometimes several, occasionally a considerable number. Cause is not known.

Since they are as a rule not malignant, the usual practice is to leave them alone, except for regular checkups to make sure that they are not bothersome. If they grow to such size as to be in the way, or otherwise a nuisance, the treatment is to remove them surgically, depending on the patient's age (whether still childbearing age) usually the entire uterus is removed rather than trying to remove a single fibroid.

Such fibroids quite often regress spontaneously after menopause, in which case nothing needs to be done.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Will food cooked in a microwave oven hurt a person if used for long periods of time? I recently purchased one, and neighbors say it might be harmful.—Mrs. J.B.

No harm has been reported from eating food so cooked—and I cannot see how it could be harmful. There has been in the past some concern about the rays harming people by striking them from leakages in the ovens, but it is my understanding this has by now been taken care of.

Chartered Banks Wary Of Role for Provinces

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's chartered banks have told the government they have serious reservations about provincial government involvement in the ownership of banks.

"The principle of such a move is questionable, and may in fact produce harm rather than benefit," the Canadian Bankers Association (CBA) said in a brief released today.

The association said federal proposals to allow 25-per-cent provincial government ownership of new banks and up to 10 per cent of existing banks should be considered only as part of the larger question of revisions to the Bank Act, under which the chartered banks operate.

The banks said the proposals would be harmful "not only for the Canadian monetary and banking system, but for the public at large."

The federal proposals were advanced at the Western Economic Opportunities Conference in Calgary in July and stemmed primarily from demands of the western provinces, which claimed the banks centred mainly in Toronto and Montreal did not pay enough attention to regional requirements.

The tough tone of the CBA brief and other statements by bank spokesmen indicate the chartered banks plan to fight the proposals when the case comes before Parliament.

"Should it be careful in its inspection and well-researched analysis, rather than immediate acceptance, that would prevail," the CBA brief said.

It said the main obstacles in setting up new banks is neither the initial financing nor legal barriers", but the "complex and skill-intensive processes involved" and the competition from other financial institutions involved in the banking business.

"We believe the provision of capital by provincial governments . . . could raise doubts about the future independence and success of the fledgling bank. Does the record of provincial government participation in year-banks or industrial development corporations support their proposed entry into chartered banking?"

It said the principle of allowing provincial governments to own shares and exercise their voting rights "is, questionable, and may in fact produce harm rather than benefit."

The association listed these as some of its objections:

—Ownership by part of a bank's voting shares held by a provincial government would complicate effective control by a political body.

—Part ownership and effective control of banks by provinces would make implementation of federal monetary and credit policies less effective.

—Conflict-of-interest developments would be compounded as being privy to government intentions and those of the bank at the same time.

"Free competition would disappear because it would be naive not to expect pressure on businesses supplying provincial governments to become customers of new provincially-controlled banks.

—Confidentiality between banker and client would be endangered since provincial governments have access to customers' affairs for official and unofficial purposes.

The brief's call for "solid facts, careful atrospection and well-researched analysis" apparently reflects the bankers' view that their case has not so far been given a fair hearing.

The brief notes the federal proposals were apparently based in part on the claim that provincially government ownership of banks would "promote competition within the banking industry and improve the quality of banking services."

But the federal government paper for the Calgary conference did "not establish a case for these proposals nor did the position of the western premiers represent any compelling reasoned case in support of provincial government ownership in chartered banks."

"In fact, their main arguments were based on incorrect information and faulty assumptions concerning the operation of the chartered banking system."

Turner Turned Thorpe Into Liberal Leader

LONDON (CP) — Liberal Leader Jeremy Thorpe, faced a severe challenge in the Feb. 28 British election, says he might never have entered politics had it not been for a university friendship with John Turner, now the Canadian finance minister.

Thorpe, 44, who fears his tiny party might be squeezed even further in a pincer movement by Labor and the Tories, once said in an interview he met Turner when they both were students at Oxford in 1950 and had been drawn into Liberal circles at the university as a result.

Elected to Parliament in 1959 as MP for North Devon, Thorpe took over the party on the retirement of Jo Grimond in 1967 when the Liberals had only 13 MPs in the 630-seat Commons.

But his hopes were dashed in the 1970 general election when the party's total of 6 MPs was cut to 2.

Lewis Suggests Arbitration Draft by Teachers, Trustees

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP) — Stephen Lewis, Ontario New Democratic Party leader, has called on the provincial government to let the teachers and school trustees draft their own arbitration legislation.

Speaking to a teachers' meeting here Monday, Lewis said Monday the provincial government should suspend its legislation imposing compulsory arbitration until May 31 to allow both groups time to draft their own bill.

He said agreement on compulsory arbitration already was possible, although it would not be possible for both groups to agree on working conditions.

The NDP leader suggested that a board composed of an equal number of teachers and trustees be picked with the power to reach agreement on as many issues as possible before a deadline. After the deadline, he said, the government could decide.

"This suggestion allows the teachers the right to oppose what the government imposes and allows them to argue on some matters," he said.

Mr. Lewis singled out proposed government legislation—numbered Bill 275 in the last legislature—for special criticism.

That bill, if approved, would refer items not settled by individual boards to arbitration.

However, Mr. Lewis noted that any stubborn board might simply pass tough matters on to arbitrators for a decision.

Wilson Transformed Into Fighting Leader

LONDON (CP) — As British election campaigi moves into its final phase, Labor Leader Harold Wilson seems to have discovered the issues he believes will decide the outcome.

The Opposition leader still trails Prime Minister Edward Heath in all opinion polls, but the gap has suddenly narrowed. After a lacklustre performance at the opening of the campaign, Wilson now gives the impression that he has found new life.

The change began during the weekend when a series of statis-

Candidate Is Running In 3 Ridings

LONDON (CP) — A campaigning surge by Liberals and other minority parties has pushed the number of candidates in the Feb. 28 election to a record 2,128.

True to the traditions of British eccentricity, one independent candidate is contesting three constituencies—campaigning for the abolition of pedestrian crossings and their replacement with traffic lights.

The candidate, LL-Cmdr. William Boden, R.N., stands an excellent chance of losing his deposit in each of the Wimbledon, Streatham and City of London ridings he's contesting, which would cost him a total of £450 ($1,000).

tics, damaging to the government, provided him with a chance to expand the issue far beyond the areas on which the Tories had hoped to concentrate. How effectively he can erode the Tories' strength with his new attack is anyone's guess.

But he seems to have ensured, at least, that the questions of rising prices and the development of North Sea oil will be central to the campaign until the votes are cast on Thursday, Feb. 28.

The change in Wilson's personal conduct of the campaign is remarkable. Following a week in which he allowed an aide to direct his daily news conferences and his answers tended to be vague and evasive, Wilson now commands centre stage. He sprinkles his concise, forceful replies with wit and a fighting kind of humor.

Wilson's most effective attack has been what seems to be on the issue of prices, which figures show are rose by three price (6.75 cents) in the pound ($2.25) during January alone. The latest statistics showed that the cost of living last year rose by 12 per cent over 1972 and some foods, such as chicken, had risen by as much as 70 per cent since the Conservatives took office in 1970.

Heath, appearing to be on the defensive Monday for one of the first times in the campaign, blamed rising world prices of food and other raw materials notably oil, for two-thirds of the domestic price increases.

Doubling Pay Phone Charges Is Debated

OTTAWA (CP) — Bell Canada's request to double the cost of a local pay phone call came under scrutiny Monday at a Canadian transport commission hearing on a Bell rate application.

Questions about the coin phones took up a major portion of the day as the commission began hearing testimony on its rate changes proposed by Bell to affect most of the company's 1.3 million subscribers in Ontario, Quebec and the Northwest Territories.

Commissioner Ross Goodwin, a lawyer for the province of Quebec, did not refer Bell's opening witness on rates, P. E. Skelton, an assistant vice-president specializing in that area.

Mr. Skelton provided considerable detail on the coin phone operation and he was asked if it was profitable.

"We do not have any information to my knowledge as to whether the public telephone system is in the black," he said.

Lamarsh Hits At Reporters

The former member of the Pearson cabinet has been working in radio, television and newsprint since she opted out of politics.

She said a love-hate affair exists between reporters and politicians which was curious, she said. Money may have as much in common.

"It seems the gentlemen of the press take a high moral tone for everybody but themselves," she said.

One seldom reads of the drunken carrying on of reporters," she said.

While reporters report the private lives of politicians there are seldom stories on reporters' escapades, she said.

Wilson Transformed Into Fighting Leader

LONDON (CP) — As British election campaigi moves into its final phase, Labor Leader Harold Wilson seems to have discovered the issues he believes will decide the outcome.

The Opposition leader still trails Prime Minister Edward Heath in all opinion polls, but the gap has suddenly narrowed. After a lacklustre performance at the opening of the campaign, Wilson now gives the impression that he has found new life.

The change began during the weekend when a series of statis-

Candidate Is Running In 3 Ridings

LONDON (CP) — A campaigning surge by Liberals and other minority parties has pushed the number of candidates in the Feb. 28 election to a record 2,128.

True to the traditions of British eccentricity, one independent candidate is contesting three constituencies—campaigning for the abolition of pedestrian crossings and their replacement with traffic lights.

The candidate, LL-Cmdr. William Boden, R.N., stands an excellent chance of losing his deposit in each of the Wimbledon, Streatham and City of London ridings he's contesting, which would cost him a total of £450 ($1,000).

tics, damaging to the government, provided him with a chance to expand the issue far beyond the areas on which the Tories had hoped to concentrate. How effectively he can erode the Tories' strength with his new attack is anyone's guess.

But he seems to have ensured, at least, that the questions of rising prices and the development of North Sea oil will be central to the campaign until the votes are cast on Thursday, Feb. 28.

The change in Wilson's personal conduct of the campaign is remarkable. Following a week in which he allowed an aide to direct his daily news conferences and his answers tended to be vague and evasive, Wilson now commands centre stage. He sprinkles his concise, forceful replies with wit and a fighting kind of humor.

Wilson's most effective attack has been what seems to be on the issue of prices, which figures show are rose by three price (6.75 cents) in the pound ($2.25) during January alone. Heath, appearing to be on the defensive Monday for one of the first times in the campaign, blamed rising world prices of food and other raw materials notably oil, for two-thirds of the domestic price increases.

Funds Embezzled, Building Probe Told

HAMILTON (CP) — Charges of embezzling union funds, faulty accounting procedures, missing documents and a staged robbery to conceal evidence were made as the Ontario royal commission into irregularities in the construction industry opened its hearings here Monday.

Hazel Nash, employed as a bookkeeper by Local 18, United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, said she calculated that $2,500 in inflation fees paid to the local was never deposited in the bank.

Leonard Lawrence, a Hamilton chartered accountant engaged by the union to perform the first audit on its books since 1964, said "loose" accounting procedures and missing records led him to believe funds were embezzled "but I couldn't prove it without a doubt."

Mr. Lawrence testified that Romeo Charbonneau, one of three strike fund trustees, had a record of strike fund receipts and disbursements but he refused to turn it over to him claiming it was his personal property and not that of the union.

The accountant also said Mr. Charbonneau told him that he and "an accomplice" had been accused of stealing $3,000 in union funds and that a robbery had been staged July 22, 1970, to cover up evidence.

Mrs. Nash later told the inquiry that she had been accused of being his accomplice and of having an affair with Mr. Charbonneau.

She also said the robbery was "a farce" and that many small cheques from the safe that was stolen were recovered in numerical sequence. Cheques in larger amounts were not recovered.

Mr. Lawrence said Mrs. Nash refused to assist him in his investigation of the union's financial affairs and she accused him of being "in too thick with the executive" which she described as "a whole gang of vultures."

Embargo Imposed

Toronto's Mail Flow Restricted

LOYALIST COL... FEB 20 197...

TORONTO (CP) — Postal workers today continued to cause up a huge backlog of mail in the central post office here but it might be several days before an embargo on some mail is lifted.

The piling up at the main post office, which normally handles about 40 per cent of all Canada's mail, includes 26 tractor trailers and 24 box cars of letters and parcels waiting to be unloaded.

A post office spokesman blamed a union slowdown for the chaos, but a union spokesman denied it.

"There is no slowdown," said Arnold Gould, national director of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers.

Union officials blamed management, inadequate equipment and increasing volumes of mail for the backlog.

Ed Rosworth, post office spokesman, said there is a slowdown on the part of young radicals in the union.

The radicals include at least a few who, according to pamphlets distributed in the post office, may be members of an organization called the RMG, the Revolutionary Marxist Group.

The union local itself appeared divided as president Robert Kimura resigned after the executive repudiated his support of the walkout.

The mail began to pile up last week after union members walked out to protest the firing the previous month of a union steward.

By far the largest part of the mail on hand is fourth-class parcel post items, including parcels mailed in Toronto or sent here from other points.

Mr. Rosworth said the embargo largely affects "householder" bulk mail in the third-class category, huge stocks of which—inbound and outbound—are still on hand.

"It's the large bulk mailers who make up 50 per cent of all mail handled in Canada who are affected," he said. "They have been notified and many are mailing from points outside Toronto."

But Mr. Gould said that could only be a stop-gap measure.

He said only the hiring of more full-time men could really help.

Impersonate Kidnappers

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Nile Dwayne Hearst, 21 and his wife, Shirley Anne, 21, of Columbia, Mo., have been booked for investigation of impersonating Patricia Hearst's kidnappers to try to collect $100,000 in ransom. Police said the couple telephoned the Hearst home in Hillsborough in northern California and left instructions for $100,000 to be left at a downtown Los Angeles bus station. They were arrested when they showed up at the station.

End Public Hearings

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Watergate committee has voted to end public hearings unless it uncovers extraordinary new evidence. Chairman Sam Ervin (Dem. N.C.) said the move reflects the committee's awareness that the focus of Watergate has shifted to the courts and to the impeachment inquiry in the House of Representatives.

World Famine Feared

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — A United States Senate agriculture subcommittee heard warnings Tuesday that a fertilizer shortage in the U.S. is raising the spectre of world famine, hysteria in the international wheat market and sharp increases in U.S. food prices.

"We have the possibility of famine in dimensions we have never known" in some parts of the world, Senator Hubert Humphrey (Dem., Minn.) told a hearing.

Senator George McGovern (Dem., S.D.), head of the subcommittee, agreed, saying that the shortage of fertilizer and related products poses the danger of food shortages and higher prices that is "nothing short of a national emergency."

The fertilizer shortage is linked to the energy problem. A number of chemical fertilizers such as anhydrous ammonia, nitrogen and phosphates are by-products of oil and natural gas.

McGovern expressed concern about what he described as inequitable distribution of fertilizers among dealers selling to farmers, and reports of price-gouging in some areas.

Senator Humphrey said the subcommittee ought to find out whether the natural gas allocation for fertilizer production can now be increased so that nitrogen output could be stepped up.

Prices for fertilizer, he said, are nearly double last year's level.

Kissinger to Go to Mideast With Oil as Possible Prize

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — State Secretary Henry Kissinger returns to the Middle East next week hoping to help negotiate another Arab-Israeli agreement that might end the Arab oil embargo against the United States.

President Nixon announced Kissinger's second Middle East peace mission Tuesday after three days of talks here between U.S. officials and the foreign ministers of Saudi Arabia and Egypt.

Kissinger's destinations this time are Damascus and Jerusalem. His aim is further disengagement of Israeli and Syrian troops on the Golan Heights through an agreement similar to the one concluded last month between Israel and Egypt on troop withdrawals along the Suez canal.

Although the Nixon administration appears optimistic that its mediation efforts will lead to an early lifting of the embargo on oil exports to the United States, diplomatic observers believe the visiting Arab ministers made plain that they expect considerable progress before they end their boycott.

They noted that although Saudi Arabian minister Omar Sakkaf told White House reporters he was hopeful "something will happen soon to the benefit of the United States," he subsequently seemed to play down the idea of a firm Arab commitment on ending the embargo.

"We have said nothing (about lifting it)," he said at a news conference after his meetings with Nixon and Kissinger.

Diplomatic sources said there was little doubt the subject was discussed and that the Nixon administration received a clear indication that the boycott will be eased in exchange for its mediation efforts.

However, some observers believe Kissinger will probably have to persuade the Israelis to accept, or at least move closer towards some of the Syrian demands before Arab oil producers agree to end a cutback imposed following the Middle East war last October.

"There's Kissinger again."

Russia Holds Canadian Man

MOSCOW (AP) — Canadian-born Eugene (Jim) Lenko has been told by Soviet authorities that his application to return to Canada has been "indefinitely deferred."

Lenko, 35, was born in Ste. Sophie, Que., son of Ukrainian parents. The parents returned to the Soviet Union in 1956 bringing Eugene and his sister Nadia, still a baby, but armed with promises from the Soviets that the children could return home when they wanted.

Lenko and his sister Nadia drew attention to their plight last summer by staging a hunger strike in the Canadian embassy in Moscow. Through government intervention, the sister now Nadia Demidenko, her husband and children were allowed to return to Canada.

Woman, 87, Slain At Peterborough

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — An 87-year-old woman was found in her farmhouse Tuesday stabbed to death with what police believe was a pair of scissors.

Police said they have no indication of a motive in the slaying of Nora Wheeler who lived alone in the house just southeast of here.

A teen-age male is being sought and police said a tracking dog has been brought in.

Police would not give any more details about the slaying.

Police reinforcements were called in from Newcastle and Cobourg.

An autopsy has been scheduled for today.

British Liberals May Control Next House

LONDON (Reuter) — With only eight days to go before the Feb. 28 vote, opinion surveys are showing 17-per-cent support among voters for the Liberals.

This would give them 50 seats in the new Parliament and the possibility of holding the balance between the two major Conservative and Labor parties. The Liberals had 11 seats in the last Parliament.

Farmers Fear Paved Ontario

SASKATOON (CP) — All of Canada's prime farmland will be under concrete within 30 years if urban sprawl and satellites development continue to gobble up prime land at present rates, the Canadian Federation of Agriculture was told Tuesday.

The statement was made in the report of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture at the annual meeting of the national farm organization.

The Ontario federation, in its report, contends that if the market value of a farmer's land is reduced by a land-use decision, it should be paid by all society. "then society must compensate that farmer for his loss."

Most Provinces Oppose Single Welfare Plan

EDMONTON (CP) — Welfare ministers from across Canada differed Tuesday over whether numerous assistance programs should be consolidated.

British Columbia and Saskatchewan were believed to be the only provinces pressing for an "omnibus approach" which would see numerous welfare and social insurance programs incorporated under one scheme.

Norman Jolliffe, human resources minister of British Columbia, called for a "more practical," integrated approach to social security. He accused delegates of "just thinking" with a system already proven inadequate.

Health Minister Neil Crawford of Alberta, on the other hand, said he considers such an omnibus approach unworkable.

"I don't think a single solution exists."

He said programs must be flexible and deal with individual needs. A variety of plans appeared to be the best way to accomplish this.

Mr. Crawford, host for the conference, said agreement in principle was reached on equality between men and women under the Canada Pension Plan.

The existing system, which sometimes provides greater benefits for men than for women in such matters as death benefits, would be changed to make sure that women are not shortchanged.

Details of the tentative agreement were not released.

Hearst Food Distribution To Begin Soon

HILLSBOROUGH, Calif. (AP) — Newspaper magnate Randolph Hearst says he hopes the $4-million food-distribution program prompted by demands from his daughter's kidnappers can get rolling Friday and bring about her freedom.

"I don't know what to expect," Hearst told reporters Tuesday at his home. "I only hope at this point.

State Secretary Ludlow Kramer of Washington was named to administer the Hearst program.

Mitchell and Stans Expect More Indictments

On Trial

Former Attorney General John N. Mitchell gets out of his car upon arrival at New York Federal Court, Foley Square, Tuesday. Mitchell, along with former Commerce Secretary and head of the Nixon re-election committee, Maurice Stans, went on trial for influence peddling. (AP Photo)

NEW YORK (AP) — Lawyers for John Mitchell and Maurice Stans say they expect the swearing-in of a jury for the conspiracy trial of the two former cabinet members to lead to new Watergate indictments, naming one or both of the defendants.

The lawyers indicated prior to the trial's opening Tuesday that Federal Judge Lee Gagliardi's decision to sequester the jury will clear the way for new criminal action in Washington once the jury is sworn in and sent into isolation.

Mitchell, 60, former attorney-general, and Stans, 65, former commerce secretary, were indicted in the aftermath of a secret $200,000 contribution to President Nixon's re-election campaign. It later was returned. At the time, they were campaign director and chief fund raiser, respectively.

The government charged that the money was paid April 10, 1972, by financier Robert Vesco, 37, in return for intervention on his behalf by Mitchell and Stans in a Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) investigation of his corporate affairs. Vesco eventually was charged in an SEC civil suit with looting his financial empire of $224 million in stockholders' money.

Vesco was indicted with Mitchell and Stans on charges of conspiring to defraud the SEC and obstruction of federal justice. He alternately has taken refuge in Costa Riva de the Bahamas, and all efforts to bring him back for trial have failed.

Arguing prior to the trial's opening Tuesday, a lawyer for Stans, John Dlugoid, said of special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski:

Dlugoid said Jaworski' indicated he is waiting until a jury for the Vesco case is seated, as a signal to the defence that Stans or Mitchell or both may be among the targets.

A jury in isolation when outside Gagliardi's courtroom would be unlikely to learn of further government action against the defendants. Thus, the government could proceed with a new prosecution without prejudicing the case here.

County Workers' Pay Up

PICTON — Prince Edward County council has approved a nine per cent cost-of-living increase across-the-board for its employees and a 20 cents per hour raise for some lower-paid hourly rated workers.

North Marysburgh deputy-reeve Avis Heeft disagreed Tuesday with the cost-of-living increase. She said that in effect, it served only to widen the gap. The reeve said some employees would receive $600 more, while other would get a $1,500. increase.

She suggested a graduated percentage instead of the nine per cent increase proposed.

Reeve Robert Boyce, Wellington, said increase was suggested because some department heads and senior employees in Prince Edward are compensated below-average in comparison with other counties.

He said proposed increases might prevent valued loss of valued employees.

She said she already had advised the committee this year with no results.

Family Flees Fire

TRENTON — No cause has yet been reported for a fire which swept the upper part of a Bay Street residence Tuesday.

The blaze was spotted by an unnamed five-year-old boy.

Councillors Donate Pay To Arena

PICTON — Prince Edward County councillors each will donate one day's honorarium to the Wellington arena fund.

Picton Rotary Club has voted the proceeds from its annual Oyster Stag to the fund — approximately $1200.

Reeve Robert Boyce, Wellington, emphasized that although the arena at present is a private company the money donated here is for reconstruction is being held in a community fund. The assets will be turned over to the community and a directors meeting will be held later this month to finalize this action.

Coyote Tracked by David Naven

Ministry Seeking Wolf Kill Data

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

DESERONTO — Any Quinte rural residents shooting coyotes — like 18-year-old David Naven for instance — are being asked to inform local Ministry of Natural Resources officers.

Since wolf bounties were abolished last year in Ontario, it's a valuable clue to the population of predators prowling the district.

In fact, since the bounty was removed, provincial wildlife officials are having a tough time keeping track of wolf kills, an official at the ministry's Napanee office said Tuesday. The office is conservation administration centre of the Quinte district's southern townships.

Without the bounty, he said, there's no incentive for hunters or trappers to record incidental kills — like that of David Naven.

The young farm laborer was snowmobiling the back pastures of his employer, dairy farmer Harold Moon, two miles east of Marysville on Highway 502 north of here, Monday when the coyote dashed across his path.

He returned to the farmstead, loaded a hunting rifle and tracked the animal.

He hit the coyote as it bolted about 300 yards ahead of his moving snowmobile with his second shot.

David said he didn't bother reporting it to wildlife authorities, although a neighbor woman phoned the ministry office to inquire about a possible bounty.

"Before the bounty went out we had a 100 per cent record of wolf kills," said the ministry official. "Now we have no authority to make statements suggesting government policy. The discussion lasted about three hours. It ranged over the entire municipal structure of Prince Edward.

Views of the government representatives reportedly varied little from opinions expressed in the county government brief released by council some time ago.

Wellington reeve Robert Boyce referred to a recent Intelligencer news item detailing one man's opposition to county government. He observed that the man who stated that he would oppose the introduction of a one-tier system could not have much information since members of council still have limited knowledge of it.

Reeve Boyce said that the public the response will be greater than public interest in the county plan has been to date.

to depend on people volunteering the information.

"If someone shoots a wolf and lets us know we'd be grateful for the details."

David Naven says the coyote he shot may have been one he's spotted in the past week — the first he's seen in nearly three years on the farm.

Mrs. John Crawford, wife of a neighboring sheep farmer, says they have lost sheep frequently in the past eight years but wild-running dogs have always been blamed as the predators.

The ministry official says there is no way of knowing if the wolf population may have recently increased. There are no statistics from the past year on wolf kills.

To gather background data, a man now has been assigned the task of consolidating all bounty statistics in township records in recent years throughout the ministry's Napanee district. Municipalities made the actual bounty payments.

Quinte hunters and farmers who stage group wolf hunts also are being issued with information sheets for return to the ministry. Hopefully, this will help officials retrieve more data than has been forthcoming since the bounty was abolished, in favor of a livestock compensation act.

The legislation, which awarded provincial compensation for livestock losses caused by wolves, placed assessment onus on conservation officers. It has also left farmers disgruntled.

"The province is very well aware that the act is not satisfactory — particularly to farmers," said the official. "It's looking into the possibilities of changing it to provide a better service."

Name County Home for H.J.

PICTON — Prince Edward's new county home for the aged under construction, will be known as The H.J. McFarland Memorial Home in tribute to Picton's late mayor.

County councillors met at a special committee session Monday night and voted unanimously the tribute of the late county tycoon philanthropist. Each Christmas the latter mayor purchased individual gifts for the residents of the county home.

George Ross, administrator of the home said, "I know the residents of the home will be happy with the new name. It is a very appropriate name."

Reeve Robert Boyce referred to the new county home as "one of the biggest projects in the county" and added that the late mayor McFarland's name will be carried on in a beneficial community endeavor.

Originally, county council had planned to choose a name for the new building by seeking public participation, perhaps through a contest.

Deputy Named

PICTON — A Wellington man, James Cleminson, has been appointed deputy-clerk and deputy-treasurer of Prince Edward County.

At Monday's opening council session Warden Keith MacDonald said county clerk Thomas Walker is expected to undergo major surgery soon.

Policy Paper Coming on County System

By MARGARET HAYLOCK

PICTON A policy paper on reorganization of local government in Prince Edward County is expected in mid-March and is intended for public discussion.

County councillors were told Tuesday night that provincial government representatives Gardiner Church and Brian Slemko met with the county's government committee in late January to familiarize themselves with details of municipal administration.

The meeting was not a decision-making session nor were proposals made for consideration by the committee or county council.

Both ministry representatives stressed that they had

Trenton Regional Role Talked with Neighbors

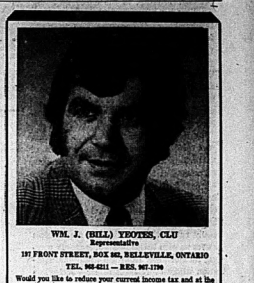
By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Trenton's future in Hastings County regional government was discussed behind closed doors last night.

Described as a round-table discussion between Trenton and surrounding municipalities, it was designed to outline the benefits available to this community in an eastern region. The meeting was a sequel to a similar discussion the fact fall with local governments across the county line in Northumberland.

Over the years Trenton has been instituted a separated municipality. However, like Belleville, it is integrated into Hastings County social and health services.

While the province's regional government plans draw closer to Trenton's western limits, municipalities in that sector are competing with areas to the east for Trenton's inclusion in region centered around Northumberland and Hastings Counties.



As in the case of the meeting with Northumberland spokesmen, councillors and aldermen from Belleville, Trenton Hastings and townships of Thurlow and Sidney were to discuss the benefits Trenton may derive by moving into an eastern region.

Belleville-centered region is concerned over the Trenton question in the light of provincial government task force studies being undertaken at present in Northumberland County.

As a result of meeting last ed Trenton be included in the studies.

In accordance with government guidelines on the makeup of regions, Trenton is capable of bolstering each area to province population standards.

Some three weeks ago — when the meeting was first discussed — it was agreed tentatively that newsmen would attend the meeting.

A Working Society?

Manpower Minister Robert Andras, while acknowledging the validity of much criticism of the Unemployment Insurance Commission, is echoing that much-publicized and startling statement of Prime Minister Trudeau, to the effect that work maybe is something that is no longer as fashionable as it once was, and that if a fellow chooses to loaf around, preferably with UIC financial support, well and good.

Mr. Andras is not saying this should be the norm, but he is saying that people today do not have the same obligation toward work as of old and that to cheat the government, or the rest of the working public, of their coffers, is somehow all right.

Ottawa correspondent Richard Jackson goes into this in greater detail in a column that will be appearing shortly, and in which he points out that the findings of Hastings MP Jack Ellis, on the subject of UIC ripoffs, have been making their mark on the Government. He notes that Mr. Andras is moving to close some of the loopholes and generally run a tighter ship, but nevertheless leaves us with this concept of a society moving farther away from the traditional situation where everyone is either working, or in training for a job or profession, or actively seeking employment.

Of course it is more recognized today that jobs for all are just not available. Hence the establishment of a variety of government make-work programs such as Opportunities for Youth and Local Initiatives. These have given rise to many ingenious schemes, some valuable and others useless, but all symptomatic of the fact that many people do without work, and that a sizeable number are not too concerned over this fact and have no reason to be when a beneficent government and ripped-off public are more than a match for any wolf at the door.

While there may be something to be said for taking life a little easier now and again — the evils of overwork and a rat-race environment require no emphasis — a life of complete idleness is not the answer either. A man can get by these days, for reasons already advanced, without having to earn a living, but for any self-respecting individual work remains the most commonly accepted raison d'etre in our society today.

Personal Initiative

A couple of good examples of the premise that most people prefer work to idleness, or even to a prolonged vacation, have come to light in recent days.

One, from neighboring Prince Edward County, was the news of the purchase of a vacation cottage complex by a Ugandan-Asian — one of those expelled from his African homeland by President Amin. Here is an example of the personal initiative that has meant so much to this country, and which is founded on the willingness to work of both native Canadians and immigrants from many lands.

The other is the story of two Ottawa teachers, Ctto Schrieber, 33, and Lillian Daly, 35, who inspired turned-off English students to produce their own newspaper. For their efforts they share a Canadian teaching award worth $1,400.

The teachers combined their graphic arts and English disciplines in a journalism course for 20 students uninterested in the regular English program. The result is a 12-page publication which is distributed in other high schools. In view of them it is being used for remedial reading with "remarkable" results. About 50 students have signed up for next term.

This is an example of what can be achieved when a parent's imagination is fired, and when he is afforded the opportunity to exercise initiative. When these are combined in a work situation one of the prime purposes of a healthy society is fulfilled.

World Not Yet at an End—Senator O'Leary

Mod Generation Students Rap with Diet and Company

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — One of the side benefits of working in the Parliamentary Press Gallery is access to official luxe-guiding through the West and Centre Blocks that occasionally becomes part of the job.

It is not so much the magnificence of the buildings with their many little-known-or-seen sights tucked away in odd corners that delights.

It is the people, a special few of whom have become parliamentary institutions in their own right.

Always stimulating, they go out of their way to put on a special performance when you steer guests into their offices to view those "must-see" living legends.

Like the other day when three Journalism students all bethelors of arts, from Carleton University, dropped in to see the political sights.

In they troop, three pairs of bluejeans, three shaggy mane-hairs, a rich red beard, a medium-long blond hair styling. And something that comes so close to a crew cut as anything this side of the RCMP.

"Guess we should have cleaned up the act," grins one of them, flashing a disarming Victorian blue uniformness of the Commons guards, and the business suits.

To sharpen the contrast between their casual informality and the elegance that can be Parliament Hill, you arrange a special viewing for them of Room 209 in the West Block where hang those six enormous and magnificent crystal chandeliers salvaged from Glasgow's long-demolished old City Hall.

Then you bump your students into 75-year old political pro from the West Coast, Arthur Laing, a 25-year veteran of the Hill, a member of the Pearson and Trudeau cabinets, and more recently Liberal leader, and now a senator.

Senator Laing has the glooms. Crazy oil prices in the Middle East, provoking equally crazy price increases, in retaliation; and in the West, are sure to send the world into a self-destruct inflationary economic tail-spin.

Senator Laing is reminded of his great one-liner: "If the taxpayers knew what was going on there would be a hanging on the Hill."

He nods in solemn acceptance of the doom-to-come.

Up then to John Diefenbaker's office, and the Old Warrior, always overjoyed to see students — "they keep me young" — is in top form and puts on a great show. Sir John A. Macdonald stories, tales of Churchill, years of the campaign trails over half a century, and best of all "Dieferjokes."

Mod generation students are entranced as the 78-year-old former Prime Minister struts his storied stuff.

"Nothing's new and original," he tells them. "There are only three basic stories, and everything else is only a variation of them. Only the names and faces change."

Not even Churchill's "blood, sweat and tears" was mint, but borrowed by Britain's wartime Prime Minister from the Italian hero Garibaldi.

Yes, he murmurs, Vancouver MP Grace MacInnis isn't running again "because she feels she's slowing up and can't do the work that it would take any six other MP's to do.

"But I'll never quit," says Stanley. "I'm like Dief, we won't quit. We'll wait until God or the voters decree it."

The voters, both can count on, says one of the students, but with God you never know for sure, do you?

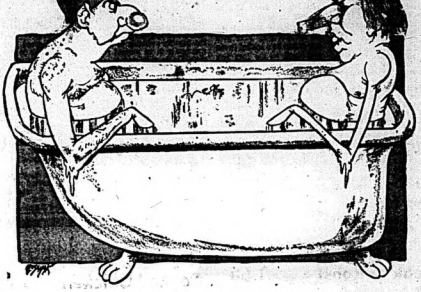
That is so, agrees Stanley, as his secretary carries in his lunch, an oatmeal cookie and a glass of milk.

Stan has a new sell, but made-to-measure as it obviously is, it hangs on him like a rack — he is that thin.

And worried, for the suspicion is that he subsists on a soda cracker a day.

Next call, over to the Senate side to see that dean of journalists, Mr. Grattan O'Leary, for a half century and more an Ottawa Journal man, and a Parliament-watcher for at least 60 years.

Now, 86, he pops up only his desk like a frisky 60-year-old, and talks newspaper shop.



He hears the students have seen Senator Laing and says that's fine, the world is coming to an end the day after tomorrow.

No, grins one of the students, "tomorrow."

But it won't, Grattan O'Leary assures them, for it's been coming to an end ever since he started, and the end isn't yet.

They are Dief! What an amazing man, he tells them, never finishes a sentence, but makes the greatest speech going, wowing every audience.

"Have fun," he counsels them as they leave, "remember the most important thing in life is joy-through-work."

Housing Mart: Shortages and Price Increases

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Don't look for much change this year in the housing market. In most parts of Canada, prospects are for continued shortages and further big price increases.

The scarcity value of land will probably keep on driving prices up until municipalities act more vigorously to encourage the provision of sewers and other services, and to eliminate bureaucratic red tape.

And, at a time of inexorably rising inflation, an ever-growing proportion of Canadians continue to buy residential property as a hedge.

The Canadian Real Estate Association reports that the average value of a transaction processed through multiple listing services last year rose 22 per cent to $20,338 from $26,566.

By region, the increases ranged from an average of 4 per cent in Quebec to 26 per cent in Ontario. Average value of transactions was also highest in Ontario, at $24,884.

By cities, increases ranged from a low of five per cent in Montreal to a high of 22 per cent in Vancouver. Highest average value of any city was Metropolitan Toronto's $44,164.

Along with the sharp rise in property values has gone a substantial increase in mortgage rates. As with land, loans are in short supply.

And just as house buyers shop around in search of the best possible value in property, so should they shop around for the most available terms on a mortgage — a commitment that might well extend to the end of this century and into the next.

Figures compiled by the Ontario government, on lending rates across the province in four-quarter-year 1971, indicate the range of interest rates on conventional mortgages. More up-to-date figures are not yet available, but would no doubt be higher.).

The Ontario data showed an average of 9.17 per cent on loans made in the private sector. These are usually mortgages arranged by lawyers on behalf of their clients, and represent about a third of all conventional mortgage loans.

Chartered banks were making mortgage loans at an average interest rate of 9.20 per cent, insurance firms at 9.57 per cent, trust and trust companies at 9.71 per cent, credit unions and cooperatives at 10.16 per cent, and other financial corporations at 11.91 per cent.

One pronounced effect of the big demand for urban property has been a marked upswing in the value of country property — and not just from a recreational interest.

Increasing numbers of city people, grown fed up of city housing, are willing to commute from the country to jobs in the city, according to Maurice W. Park, president of the Toronto Real Estate Board.

"But," he adds, "they are aware that industry is slowly decentralizing and small centres are attracting more and more employment opportunities."

Mr. Park also cites the school systems of non-urban areas as one of the attractions. Schools are good and teachers are eager to get them rather than in city schools, he says.

It all adds up to a familiar story: if you own residential property, its value seems sure to continue rising faster than the rate of inflation.

But if you are planning to buy property for the first time, bargains are becoming scarcer than ever.

The Intelligencer

Never having previously described myself as a "women's liber" I am now madly frothing at the mouth.

Your concluded article on equal employment opportunity on the basis of sex views of view was at least as discriminatory as that held by the child-hating, pet-hating landlord whose fairness you question. The "silly statutes" which you refer to are laws so basic to equal rights in our society that their existence I can hardly believe is anything but taken for granted. To ridicule them at this point is to stand in the way of truly progressive equal rights legislation.

Cuba Drains Soviet Economy

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

The Soviet Union, that other superpower, seems to be much about its costly relations with countries in its orbit as does the United States. But in America such concerns, like the high cost of foreign aid, are paraded in Congress and the press as public issues.

One can only speculate therefore that the economy of Communist party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev's Cuba had to be with more than published reports of increasing Cuba-Soviet trade. Cuba is the economic and military drain on the Soviet system, as Vietnam was on American.

Since the summer of 1960, that's 14 years ago and Castro's nationalization of the U.S. oil refineries, Cuba has relied entirely on monthly imports of Soviet fuel to literally keep the Castro revolution alive.

The reason given was to attempt some kind of rapprochement between the United States and Cuba, surely a near-hopeless purpose in view of the given President Nixon's almost paranoic dislike for Castro and Cuba.

Yet again the real reasons behind such a visit could be at unknown and yet as important as those for the Peking visit to meeting.

Could it be that Russia wants United States to start helping out Cuba economically to some sort of deal related to the

A Matter of Some Urgency

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau Chief
TORONTO — The federal government has yet to take some extraordinary action if we are to see the proposed Canada Rail line built within a reasonable time.

There have been two developments: First, farmers, led by Premier Bill Davis, are putting blocks in the way of a Sarnia-Montreal line.

Second, a substantial lobby, including three Ontario cabinet ministers, Allan Grossman (Leeds and White) has been pressing for a northern Ontario line.

There are obstructions in the way of either route.

The farmers could cause a lot of trouble and delay with the southern line.

The Sarnia-Toronto section might not cause too much trouble. There is an existing line between the two cities and the plan of the provincial Ports Line Co. is to use this route, through which it has already obtained easements.

But Toronto-Montreal is heard near terminus and the farmers along this section can raise a lot of legal hob and delay.

A 'Good Throne Speech' Is Predicted

By STEWART MacLEOD ..

OTTAWA (CP) — The government will not be able to get off to a fast legislative start when the new Queen of Parliament begins Feb. 27.

At best only seven days will be available for debating legislation up to the end of March. The remaining 22 sitting days will be taken up, largely by the opposition parties, in general debate.

Eight days will be devoted to the throne speech debate and another seven to debating supplementary spending estimates and interim supply motions, which must be approved before the end of March. Also during this period there is provision for two non-confidence motions. Those likely will take up two more days.

There seems little danger of the government falling on these motions because New Democratic Leader David Lewis has said he wants to see what Finance Minister Turner will have in his budget speech.

Mr. Turner has said his budget will not be presented until April or May.

Mr. Lewis and his 30 NDP supporters hold the effective balance of power between the 109 Liberals and 107 Progressive Conservatives and he says his party will push for export and price controls on a number of key products. These include lumber, base minerals, meat and foods. NDP sources say there is unlikely to be any threat to the government until it knows how Mr. Turner intends to deal with these demands.

The cabinet is said to be striving for a throne speech that will hold public attention while opposition MPs criticize the government in the wide-ranging Commons debate.

"It will be a good throne speech," says one cabinet source. "The legislation will be well worth waiting for even if we do bog down in general debate for a while."

The Conservatives are almost certain to move a non-confidence motion against the government, based on the throne speech, but party sources agree there is little likelihood of the government being defeated.

Feb. 29, 1972

Canadian Prime Minister John Diefenbaker announced 15 years ago today—in 1959—cancellation of the program for building the Avro Arrow CF-105 supersonic jet interceptor and the Iroquois engine. Nearly 14,000 employees were laid off at the Avro plant in Malton, Ont., as a result, famous detente established last year between Canada's premier and Mr. Brezhnev?

If there is any validity in this, it would be a long-time coming since the United States has sustained a trade war against Cuba for about a decade or more.

And it is this blockade which has given Castro his major propaganda weapon for stirring up Cubans to work harder, suffer hardships more willingly in the famous island 90 miles from Florida, and to make it totally isolated from the United States, to bring about any real ease in that blockade not only means a major selling job for Premier Castro, but also a tough a one on Premier Castro.

Any acceptance by him of the end of the blockade means also the end of his major talking point and a strong weakening in the cement of control he has over the Cuban. More and more of them, fed up with the evil of the long years of Castroism and the relative economic inefficiency, would want more exits from Cuba.

Even more injurious for Fidel would be the return of the pervasive American economic and cultural influences which helped to make Cuba before 1958 seem so much like an island appendage of the United States.

The most far-out proposal where in the future could offer Americans in the context of ideological allies becoming too expensive is a joint arrangement on keeping Castro's Cuba economically above water.

Admittedly for the reasons given above, this would be a very long way indeed down the road since there is no sign whatsoever that Washington wants to open any discussions directly with Castro.

But again with both China and the Middle East, we had heard that same pitch for years; no openings for any real rapprochement, only threats in the case of Washington and Peking, and war in the case of the Middle Eastern nations.

But since the Americans and the Russians are committed to detente, maybe the parallels will work some day with Cuba.

The Northern Route

The northern route, though much of it would be over Crown land, also has its hang-ups.

The principal one is that the main feeder line from the west is on U.S. territory, Detroit to Sarnia, Michigan Central.

Second, a substantial lobby, including three Ontario cabinet ministers (Leeds and White) has been pressing for a northern Ontario line.

There are obstructions in the way of either route.

The farmers could cause a lot of trouble and delay with the southern line.

The Sarnia-Toronto section might not cause too much trouble. There is an existing line between the two cities and the plan of the provincial Ports Line Co. is to use this route, through which it has already obtained easements.

CP News Roundup

Canadian Employees Unscathed

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Peter Mason, president of B. F. Goodrich Canada Ltd., said Tuesday there has been no indication of illness among workers in the company's two Canadian plants who are working with a chemical linked with five deaths at a Louisville, Ky. plant.

However, he said in a statement that extra medical tests will begin soon for the more than 300 workers at plants in Niagara Falls, Ont., and Shawinigan, Que. where vinyl chloride is used.

The compound is believed to have caused five deaths from liver cancer among workers in the B. F. Goodrich Louisville plant.

A sixth victim of the disease, angiosarcoma, was discovered there Monday. The worker, who is still alive, was not identified.

Opposes Tolls

SASKATOON (CP) — George Franklin, chairman of the Great Lakes Waterways Association, Tuesday said tolls on the St. Lawrence Seaway should be abolished to ease the energy shortage in Eastern Canada and speed western products to market.

Delay Ruling

GUELPH, Ont. (CP) — The Canadian transport commission has indicated there will not be an early decision on the status of Canadian National Railways passenger service between Toronto and Guelph.

A hearing into the service closed Tuesday with commissioner H. H. Jones saying it would be awhile before the commission made a decision.

Unity Urged

MONTREAL (CP) — The tendency of French-speaking Quebecers to ignore the French-Canadians in other parts of the country may spell cultural suicide, Communications Minister Gerard Pelletier said Tuesday.

"To forgot the existence of Acadians, Franco-Ontarians and of other groups in the West, is to dismiss as negligible the cultural fate of close to a million of our brothers," he said in a speech to the Montreal Chamber of Commerce a text of which was released in advance.

Made Radical

TORONTO (CP) — More and more militants are being created out of moderate teachers because of a "serious malaise" in education, Toronto elementary school teachers were told Tuesday.

Geoff Wilkinson, president of the 105,000-member Ontario Teachers' Federation, told a professional development day meeting teachers are not being consulted on many decisions which affect their profession and the education system.

Took Bribes

NEW YORK (AP) — The Times says two city police officers have told a grand jury half the 70 officers in an elite anti-narcotics unit accepted bribes from drug dealers between 1968 and 1971.

The Times says the two officers have been co-operating with special state prosecutor Maurice Nadjari's investigation of the squad prompted by the discovery in 1972 that millions of dollars in confiscated drugs were taken from the police property clerk's office.

Cheap Phones for Poor Considered Impractical

OTTAWA (CP)—A Bell Canada rate expert was questioned Tuesday on possible ways of providing cheaper telephone service for low income customers but answers indicate the company does not believe proposals would be practical.

In testimony at a Canadian transport commission hearing on a Bell rate application, P. J. Skelton, an assistant vice-president, referred to a provision of the Railway Act which says that the same service should be available at the same rate to all subscribers.

Most of the questions came from a lawyer for the province of Quebec, Ross Goodwin, who was arguing against Bell's request to boost the cost of local pay telephone calls to 20 cents from 10.

He suggested Bell continue the 10-cent charge at pay phones in such places as rooming houses and hospitals while increasing the toll to 15 cents for pay phones at such locations as hotels, airports and restaurants.

Mr. Goodwin also suggested Bell set up a rate schedule to install a block telephone with no installation charge, while retaining installation charges for color telephones.

He also asked whether Bell would consider dropping the fee if the customer accepts equipment already in place, which would allow the connection to be made at the central exchange.

Mr. Skelton said this would involve a shift in cost to other customers. He said actual costs exceed the fee and "we don't relate service charges directly to costs."

DARCY McKEOUGH

Consolidated Utilities Urged

TORONTO (CP) — A report to Energy Minister Darcy McKeough says some residents may face "significant increases in rates" without improvements in service if Ontario's 353 municipal electric companies are not consolidated into fewer regional utilities.

The report, from a committee headed by William Hogg, president of Great Lakes Power Co. Ltd. of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., said some customers may pay lower rates, but others may pay 30 per cent more.

Shots Fired

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — Regional police said Tuesday they have charged Bradford Erion, 18, of Sudbury with attempted murder as a result of rifle shots fired Monday in the Valley East home of Gaye Michenki, 17.

Valley East is a town just north of Sudbury.

Police said three were several shots fired from a rifle, but no one was struck by a bullet.

Cancel Show

TORONTO (CP) — The CBC cancelled Tuesday night a scheduled broadcast of a program on environmental lead pollution after an Ontario Supreme Court judge issued a further injunction against it.

Tuesday's injunction was issued by Mr. Justice D. J. Cromarty on the same terms as the original one.

Mr. Justice Cromarty ordered that the new ban remain in effect until the question of leave to appeal has been settled.

Quit Seminary

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A procession of about 300 seminary students and fired professors marched off the Concordia Seminary campus Tuesday in a symbolic journey into theological exile.

The procession climaxed nearly a month of turmoil at the school, the main seminary of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod.

Oppose Change

ST. THOMAS, Ont. (CP) — The Elgin Law Association said Monday it opposes an Ontario Law Reform Commission recommendation to reduce the number of Supreme Court trial centres in Ontario from 46 to 15.

Harold Stafford, association president, said the proposal to move trials from St. Thomas to London is "serious as far as Elgin is concerned."

Reject Offer

TORONTO (CP) — The Professional Association of Interns and Residents of Ontario has voted to reject the latest offer from the province's hospitals.

Dr. Andrew Padmos, president of the association, would say Monday what this offer was, but indicated 90 per cent of the interns voting had rejected it.

Andra Philpot, Marmora lawyer, discussed "Wills" in Sacred Heart Parish Hall, last Monday, after the Catholic Women's League meeting.

Members of several churches attended.

Since many people postpone making a will because they are reluctant to decide how to divide their possessions Mr. Philpot stressed the importance of making a will, however simple, to avoid family misunderstandings and unnecessary succession duty expenses.

After making suggestions for sensible distribution of an estate, he outlined the formalities of drawing up a will. A question and answer period closed up many doubtful points on this important subject.

A graduate of Osgoode Hall and of the London School of Economics, Mr. Philpot worked in the Attorney-General's Department in Toronto before coming to Marmora to practice. He was introduced by Mrs. Tom Hanley and thanked for his presentation by Mrs. Breen O'Connor.

A motion was passed unanimously that the CWL send a resolution to the Village Council and to the Ministry of Transportation and Communications that serious consideration be given to the installation of traffic lights at the intersection of Highways 7 and 14 in Marmora.

Lillian O'Connor asked for participation in the coming Share Lent Program for the Canadian Catholic Organization for Development and Peace.

Successful Living

Smoldering Cigarettes

By DORIS CLARK

The factory-made cigarette is a deliberately designed slow-burning fuse. The original cigarette depended on constant sucking to keep it lit. A pure tobacco cigarette, with no additives, could roll behind a chair cushion without smoldering long enough to burn the house down.

Is the whim of the smoker, who has been conditioned to dislike constant re-lighting, more important than the lives and property loses caused by smoldering cigarettes? Pipe smokers regard re-lighting as part of the smoking ritual.

Cigarette-caused fire damage is a universal problem. Hotel managers know the cost of constant room redecorating, and burned bedding, scarred rugs, and woodwork and much else. Sometimes chairs break into flames hours after a cigarette is dropped.

Ann Landers

Ann Still Insists Women Are Boring

Dear Ann Landers: Your answer to the woman who hated going to couples parties because the men go off to one side of the room and the women huddle together on the other side, was lousy.

According to you, most women are dummies who can't talk about anything but recipes, laundry bleaches and their kids. Such trivia bores the men (you said), so they drift away from the girls to discuss more substantive topics, such as world affairs, politics, and the economic state of the universe.

Last night my husband and I attended a party and the crowd was as you described, divided according to sex. The women were discussing national politics and the oil crisis. It was a spirited exchange because there were several well-informed gals there who held opposite points of view.

I meandered to the other side of the room to listen to what the men were into. There were three conversations going. One guy was telling a dirty joke, another fellow was talking about guns. The third bore was running down his boss. I stood it for about 10 minutes, then went back to the women. It was a welcome relief. This letter will, of course, wind up in the waste-basket because it upsets your oft-repeated theory that men are smart and women are stupid.—Distaff Dora

Dear D. D.: Please don't put words in my mouth. Stupidity knows no gender. There are brilliant women and stupid men everywhere you look—and I know plenty of both. I happen to prefer coeducational conversational evenings, but eight times out of 10, if the group is divided according to sex, I'd rather be with the men. Generally speaking, their topics are more substantive.

Dear Ann Landers: Am I addle-brained, immature, or just normal? As a teenager I would fall madly in love and tell myself, "This is it." Six months ster, I'd be sick of the sight of my Romeo and break it off.

At age 34 I married "the man of my dreams." Within a year, he irritated me beyond endurance. What used to be out-of-this-world sex turned into an ordeal. I tried my darndest to make the marriage work for the sake of our two small children, but after six years I told him I couldn't stand the phoniness of our relationship and we were divorced.

Immediately I fell madly in love with an insatiable but handsome charmer. We were married the first legal moment. Now, two years later, I see all his faults which should have been apparent before. We are in the process of being divorced.

I need to know if this is the way most marriages are. Do people get sick of each other and stay together for appearance's sake, or for convenience? I have always held a full-time job and the people I work with praise my patience and personality. They think I'm great. What do you think, Ann?—Looking Inward In The Bay Area

Dear Looking: I think a woman who is a two-time loser at the age of 32 had better do a lot more "looking inward" before she considers another marriage.

You need some self-exploration with a professional to learn why you become bored with men after you capture them. This pattern which has persisted since you were a teenager indicates that emotionally you are still back in high school.

A special certificate of appreciation was given to Wendy Smith for the extra effort she had made in the pediatrich department.

Convenor for the tea was Mrs. J.H. Morey.

Candystriper Wendy Smith is presented with a Certificate of appreciation for her volunteer work by Chairman of the In-Hospital Volunteers, Jean Wilder. Teenage girls wishing to volunteer for service during the summer months should contact Mrs. Wilson now, at 962-0792.

CFUW Presents Reports

In a recent ceremony in Ottawa, documents covering the 50 year history of the Canadian Federation of University Women were presented to the Public Archives of Canada.

The presentation was made by Ruth M. Bell, national president of the CFUW, to Dr. Wilfred I. Smith, Dominion Archivist, on February 13 in the Public Archives Building.

The CFUW papers has approximately 11,000 members. It has been instrumental in promoting the rights of women, and awards scholarships to women for advanced or continuing education.

The documents included files on outstanding Canadian women, briefs dealing with women's rights, CFUW publications and annual reports.

They will be added to those of the National Council of Women, the YWCA, the Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women, and those of such prominent women as Agnes Macphail,MP, broadcaster Kate Aitken, and author Catherine Parr Traill.

The Impossible Dream: $5 a Week Food Budget

A Loyalist College student recently asked us to design some menus suitable for the student or elderly person who must live on a very limited food budget.

When we talked about just how much people on those segments of society have to spend, the figure on $5 a week sounded reasonable.

In fact, it's not.

In fact, we found it impossible to write a menu for one person which cost just $5 per week.

The best we could do, after several tries was to construct a meal plan which runs nearly $7.00 per week.

It's interesting to note, by the way, that we weren't trying for sensational taste or variety. We were simply attempting to put together a meal plan that would fulfill the minimum requirements of the Canada Food Guide.

In the end we managed the following menu but remained totally unsatisfied with it because it's boring and repetitive. However it does fulfill the following requirements — besides basic nutrition - we set for ourselves: it doesn't require a lot of cooking or equipment, lunches are suitable for carrying and it assumes only that flour and sugar are in the house.

For the sake of convenience, we constructed a two-week menu that will cost approximately $14.00 However, with food prices going up at the current rate, it may cost more already.

Dealing with a $5 a week food budget in theory may not inspire as much inventiveness as having to actually buy all your food for that price. We've decided, then, to ask our readers for some help. If you're living alone - or even if you're not - and can make up a week's menu for $5, write us. We'll pick the most nutritious menu and publish it along with other suggestions. (It should abide by Canada's food guide.)

If your $5 menu is the best and most nutritious, we'll even give you the $5.

Shopping list: eight ounces cheese slices, one dozen medium eggs, two loaves whole wheat bread, three cans tomato soup, two cans vegetable soup, small tin tuna, celery, three pounds carrots, two pounds onions, one head cabbage, five pounds potatoes, 16 oz. jar salad dressing, large box bran flakes, three quarts milk, one pound ground beef, one package frozen codfish cakes, one-half lb. chicken livers, one pound pork sausage, 25 cents worth of bacon ends, 6 oz. lentils, three pound apples, one 48 oz. can orange drink with Vitamin C, one lb. margarine.

One of the basic tenets of budget shopping is not to buy what you don't need: don't take a pound and a quarter of ground beef-ask for just a pound. Ask the meat man to wrap up a half pound of chicken livers and to give you just 25 cents worth of bacon ends. He'll do it. If there are five pound bags of potatoes, ask the produce manager to divide a 10 pound bag.

The menu, sadly, includes the same boring breakfast day after day: bran flakes with milk, toast, and 3 ounces of vitaminized orange drink.

For each day, lunch and dinner are listed in that order.

First week, Monday: tuna salad sandwich, celery sticks, apple; two-egg cheese omelette, bruised onions, home fried potatoes.

Tuesday: tuna salad sandwich, carrot sticks; broiled sausages, sauteed apple rings, boiled cabbage and potatoes.

Wednesday: tuna salad sandwich, apple; lentil supper soup.

Thursday: egg salad sandwich, apple, celery and carrot sticks; sauteed chicken livers with onions, boiled carrots, mashed potatoes.

Friday: cheese sandwich, apple; lentil supper soup.

Second week, Monday: cheese sandwich, apple, celery sticks; meat loaf, baked potato, boiled carrots and onions.

Tuesday: egg salad sandwich, apple; hot open faced meat loaf sandwich; mashed potatoes, braised celery.

Wednesday: meat loaf sandwich, carrot sticks; fish cakes; apple and celery salad, home fried potatoes.

Thursday: meatloaf sandwich, apple; boiled vegetable dinner.

Friday: egg salad sandwich, carrot and celery sticks; grilled sausages, baked apple, mashed potatoes.

Saturday: tomato soup, toast, coleslaw; egg supper, scalloped potatoes, boiled carrots.

Lentil Soup

bacon ends (25c worth)
red or green lentils (8 oz.)
2 onions chopped
2 carrots grated
(chopped celery is optional) pepper
thyme (optional)

In a heavy saucepan, pour 6 to 8 cups of cold water. Boil the bacon ends for an hours or more, and remove. While the stock cools, trim the fat from the meat and discard. Chop the bacon into small bits. Skim the extra fat from the top of the cooled stock.

Add the lentils to the stock, and simmer for 10 minutes. Add the onions, carrots and the bacon pieces and season. Simmer for half an hour or more. without the lid until the soup thickens, and add more water if it gets too thick.

Sausage Supper

In an oven-proof dish with a cover, layer sliced potatoes, onion, carrots and thin cabbage wedges. Pour a can of tomato soup over all and top with sausages. Cover and bake one hour at 375 degrees.

Boiled Vegetable Dinner

In a large saucepan combine cold salted water, potatoes, cabbage, carrots, onion and celery all cut in large pieces. Simmer 40 minutes. Use just enough water to barely cover, adding more as necessary.

Apple and Celery Salad

Combine apples and celery cut in large dice with two tablespoons salad dressing

Egg a la Supper

Grease a small pie plate. Pour in a little milk to cover the bottom. Break two eggs onto the milk. Grate cheese (or cut-up cheese slices) on top of the eggs. Dot with butter, and season with salt and pepper. Bake in the oven for half an hour at 325 deg.

Egg in the Hole

Another quick egg trick is: Pluck the centre out of a piece of bread with your fingers. Plunk the bread down into a hot greased fry pan. Break an egg into the hole. Fry on one side, then the other. Season with salt, pepper and anything else you like.

Prevent Taste Change

Don't use an aluminum mixing bowl for beating egg whites. Apart from a taste change, the aluminum sometimes causes

Not at Work

OTTAWA (CP) — In 1971, virtually the same percentage of employed women and men were not at work due to bad weather, illness, industrial dispute, vacation or other reasons apart from unemployment.

Women Become Jaycees

When you think of a Jaycee, you're likely to picture a young businessman.

Since May, when individual Jaycee units voted on whether to admit women, there have been female Jaycees in Belleville.

Having done volunteer work for the Jaycees, she was familiar with the group and its projects.

"When they decided to admit women, I joined."

While she was never a "Jayette", the old women's auxiliary to the Jaycees, the other two female members of the club were.

"The women weren't members," Diane Brady says, "But when it came to manpower for projects they may as well have been.

"Now they can vote."

Women members don't have to be wives of members, although Marion Wardell and Ann LaLonde are both married to Jaycees.

Ms. Brady says that while traditional women's groups serve the interests of many women, other are finding new opportunities in clubs not related to home or church.

"I'm proud to be a female Jaycee," she says.

Many male Jaycees are pleased to have women in the club, including past president Ted Wardell, a Loyalist drafting instructor.

"It's great," he says, simply, adding that "women seem more progressive and involved. They get things done.

Not all members were that keen, however.

"We found we couldn't come to a decision face-to-face," Mr. Wardell admits, "and we finally had to vote by mail."

Whelan Endorses Marketing Boards

SASKATOON (CP) — Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan supported Tuesday the Canadian Federation of Agriculture's (CFA) policy that marketing boards can improve the bargaining power of farmers and tailor supplies to meet food demands.

He voiced the support as the CFA opened its three-day annual convention and after Ottawa was criticized for providing funds for consumer's associations.

Gordon Hill, Ontario Federation of Agriculture (OFA) president, said he is concerned that government funds are being made available to the Consumers Association of Canada, which has branded marketing boards as villains responsible for high food prices.

"I'm not opposed to well-organized consumer groups, but . . . I, as a farmer and taxpayer, don't like giving them the bullets to shoot me down."

Mr. Whelan replied that farmers also are consumers, and "I wish that other parts of society were watched as closely as agriculture." He added that among all sectors of the economy, agriculture has been the most efficient and productive.

While he did not specifically refer to the recent criticism of the national egg marketing board by the federal food-prices review board, Mr. Whelan said some marketing boards still have "some housecleaning to do."

Charles Munro, CFA president, said in his annual report that the CFA will oppose any attacks on the legitimacy of marketing boards.

He said a growing impression by the public that producer marketing boards are responsible for higher food prices is nonsense.

These boards are an essential and legitimate tool for farmers, who wish to use them to achieve stability, security and equity in production and marketing, Mr. Munro said.

Doctors Disciplined

TORONTO (CP) — Several doctors have been disciplined in the last few months for various offences, including incompetence, drug addiction, over-charging and one for having improper relations with a woman patient, the Ontario College of Physicians and Surgeons said Tuesday.

Dr. George V. Berner of Toronto was convicted of professional misconduct after he was charged with purchasing 2,400 benzedrine tablets over a five-month period for office use although he "appeared to be an individual with no apparent medical practice."

Dr. Berner is appealing the conviction to the Ontario Supreme Court.

An unnamed doctor was convicted of drug addiction, but permitted to continue general practice in a salaried institution under supervision. However, he was denied the right to prescribe narcotics or controlled drugs.

Nobody Controls Medical Gas Systems

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — Except for the National Fire Prevention Association, there is "no formal control or no authority" that manages construction of medical gas systems in Canada, a coroner's jury inquiring into the deaths of 22 patients at Sudbury General Hospital was told Tuesday.

Thomas Finlay, one of a team of professional engineers who studied the medical gas system at the hospital last fall, testified that although the Ontario fire marshall's office monitors gas systems, it "provides fire protection only."

He said that contractors could easily afford qualified technical supervisors when they had a hospital contract such as the one at the new hospital wing here, where a fatal switch in oxygen and nitrous oxide lines has been blamed for the death of at least one person.

The one death so far investigated in detail has been found due to this substitution. The other 22 persons were prescribed oxygen in rooms of the wing later found to have their gas lines crossed.

"There is no real reason why an oxygen purity test was not included in thespecifications," Mr. Finlay said.

His criticism also included doubts about the ability of the Ontario Hospital Services Commission (OHSC) to review adequately specifications submitted by hospitals.

Engineering consultant E. Blake Heathcote of Toronto, who testified earlier in the day, proposed immediate mandatory precautions-including the passage of federal or provincial legislation-aimed at preventing mixups in hospital medical gases.

Mr. Heathcote's chief recommendation, if embodied in legislation, would change the status of the National Building Code and the Canadian Standards Association Code (CSA) from general guidelines to legal prohibitions.

He recommended that federal and provincial authorities responsible for public safety be in charge of enforcing the standards contained in the two codes.

At present, the National Building Code has the force of law only if it is accepted by the municipality, and the CSA code is strictly a guideline.

Mr. Heathcote also recommended that:

—All major changes from design drawing should be recorded daily on "as-built" drawings at the construction site.

The inquest has received evidence that, because of an error in the design drawings, one group of workmen installing a section of the gas system deviated from the original.

Apparently no "as-built" record—which would have shown variation—was available to succeeding crews with the result that an adjoining section of line had pipes running between oxygen and nitrous oxide lines. Later tests failed to show the misconnection.

Bankers Get Good Hearing But Fail to Move Turner

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian Bankers Association officials said Tuesday "We got a good hearing" from Finance Minister John Turner, but they didn't change his mind about a federal proposal to let provincial governments get into the banking business.

"We were very well received and he said he thought we made some good points on our side of the issue," CBA President J. S. Boyle told reporters at a briefing following the talk with Turner.

Asked if Mr. Turner indicated he might consider modifying the proposal to permit provincial government ownership of 25 per cent of the banks and 10 per cent of existing banks, Mr. Boyle said, "He made no comment."

Other sources said Mr. Turner gave the bankers' delegation a flat "No" to any delay in his commitment to let provincial governments, particularly in the West, help encourage the formation of new banks through partial provincial ownership.

Mr. Turner committed the Trudeau government, at the Western Economic Opportunities Conference in Calgary last fall, to submitting the proposal at the session of Parliament opening next Tuesday.

The provincial ownership legislation is aimed at meeting complaints from western provinces that they are unable to get enough money from banking centres in Toronto and Montreal for development of projects in the West.

Mr. Boyle and other banking officials disputed this, arguing that more money flows West from the East than vice versa. He also argued that the proposal to encourage more new regional banks was unnecessary because existing chartered banks have regional centres that make decisions on regional investments.

He said another objection of the Bankers Association is that permitting provincial ownership in banks will provide still one more area of contention between federal and provincial governments, which have been quarrelling over such issues as investment in general and oil prices in particular.

In the brief to Mr. Turner, the Banking Association asked the federal government to at least delay the proposal and consider it along with over-all revision of the nation's banking system scheduled in 1976 and 1977.

Brunelle's Decision Based on U.S. Findings

TORONTO (CP) — Rene Brunelle, Ontario's minister of community and social services, has cancelled plans for an experimental guaranteed-income program despite warnings not to rely on United States statistics on the matter.

Mr. Brunelle said one reason for cancellation of the program, which would have provided a guaranteed income for 750 welfare families in Ontario, is that a wealth of information is already available on such programs as a result of a series of trials done in the United States.

But a report prepared by members of his ministry warned against relying on the results of U.S. experiments.

"It is not realistic and valid simply to take the data generated in the United States and apply it to Ontario," the report said. "The social, economic and political conditions in Ontario are quite different from those which exist in the U.S."

The Ontario experiment was to have started in July and would have guaranteed a basic income above the welfare level for three years to the families involved. The program would have allowed the working poor to leave their jobs if they wished.

Mr. Brunelle said the experiment—which would cost anywhere between $6 million and $10 million—wouldn't be complete until 1978 and would have taken too long.

Raw Sugar Price Up Two Cents

TORONTO (CP) — The price of raw sugar delivered to refineries jumped two cents a pound Tuesday to an all-time high of nearly 21 cents a pound, sugar refinery spokesmen said.

This might mean a retail price of 20 to 40 cents a pound "in a matter of a week, if it holds," an executive for one supermarket chain said.

Refinery spokesmen said the increases in raw wholesale prices will be passed on almost immediately in the prices being charged to distributors for refined sugar, already prorated in the last few weeks.

The previous all-time high for raw sugar before this year was 24 cents a pound in July, 1920. This was topped last Jan. 23 when the price rose to 23 cents. It hit 29 Monday.

One Third of Gravely Ill Speeded to Death by Drugs

OTTAWA (CP) — About one in three gravely-ill people still die in hospitals sooner than expected because they react adversely to drugs administered to make them better, Dr. James Campbell of Ottawa said Tuesday.

Medical complications and suffering could be prevented with tremendous savings in hospital costs, if monitoring facilities for detecting adverse reactions to drugs were introduced in more hospitals, Dr. Campbell, University of Ottawa professor of medicine, said in an interview.

Pharmacology specialists aided by computers are needed in hospitals because doctors cannot be expected to recall the 1,300 or so recognized adverse interactions while coping with all the other demands of their profession, he said.

Drug therapy is beneficial and essential because it prevents some people from dying of such things as heart conditions and cancer, said Dr. Campbell, who also is a pathologist at Ottawa General Hospital.

However, more than one-half of deaths brought on by adverse reactions were predictable and preventable with better monitoring facilities in hospitals. But only a handful of Canadian hospitals had such facilities.

Although the special facilities and staff are expensive, millions of dollars would be saved in the long run because complications brought on by adverse reactions would be lowered, he said.

From research Dr. Campbell prepared with other Ottawa doctors, he estimates a laboratory group to control drug complications in a 600-bed hospital would cost $2 million a year.

No Errors In 23 Years

HAMILTON (CP)—In his 23 years with the city, Harry Hicks, 66, says he never made a mistake. He was the city's explosives expert and there was no margin for error in his job.

Mr. Hicks, who retired in January, was building inspector specializing in explosives and the enforcer of the city's bylaw governing the storage, transportation and use of dynamite, fire-crackers and chemicals.

In his spare time he organized the city's fireworks displays and last summer he blasted himself into the realm of culture by providing the cannon accompaniment for a performance of Tchaikovsky's 1812 Overture in a local park.

He also invented a contraption to make cannon noises for indoor renditions of the overture and has had the cannon built to his specifications.

Mexico Ends Isolation Of Baja California

MEXICO CITY (Reuter) — Mexico has finally ended the isolation of Baja California, opening up a region of rugged mountains and lonely deserts which has changed little since Spanish explorer Hernando Cortes sailed there in 1533.

A long thin finger jutting southward from the state of California across the border, the peninsula now is linked from end to end by a 1,035-mile highway.

The result will be to make its magnificent scenery, rich hunting and fishing and inviting climate accessible to tourists.

After the 16th-century Spanish explorers came others—missionaries, then United States troops during a war with Mexico in 1847 and six years later, mercenaries led by American adventurer William Walker.

But most of the peninsula remained a rugged frontier area with unspoiled beaches, isolated fishing camps and old Spanish missions.

Now it faces a new invasion—by tourists.

Despite the attractions of the rest of Baja California, a lack of roads and hotels meant that only the most adventurous of travellers ventured them.

From 150 miles south of the U.S. border to La Paz in the south, there was only a dirt road which was often no more than a rock and sand track. Jeeps or small trucks, travelling in caravans of at least two vehicles, were needed for the trip.

So most tourists ventured no farther than Tijuana and Ensenada in the north or travelled by plane or boat to La Paz or Cape San Lucas.

Baja California is divided geographically and politically. The northern part is a state and the lower part a territory in the Mexican Federation.

The overwhelming majority of the peninsula's approximately one million people live in the state and a majority of the state's population in the three cities near the U.S. border, Mexicali, the capital; Tijuana and Ensenada.

In the thinly populated territory to the south, most people live in La Paz, the capital.

Hotels, restaurants and beach resorts are under construction along the highway. Mexico's major hotel chain, the Nacional Hoteliera, is building a string of four, each with 60 to 120 rooms.

Gov. Milton Castellanos of the state of Baja California estimates that between 500,000 and one million tourists will visit the peninsula in 1974.

The federal government is installing electrical, telephones and other utilities in rural areas. Plans for five new airports have been announced, including a major one at Cape San Lucas.

Long stretches of sandy beaches await the tourists.

Buzzing Airport Their Job

TORONTO (CP) — Some days Christopher Oliver and Blain Topper spend seven hours circling Toronto International Airport in a twin-engine plane, diving at the runway and zooming off again.

They are inspectors with the federal department of transport doing initial flight checks of a new $1-million landing system being installed at Canada's busiest airport.

The system, expected to be in use by March, will cut down flight delays in marginal weather conditions and should enable commercial jets to land in all but the worst fog.

Air Canada estimated that if the system had been working during the 1972 Christmas holiday season the airport would have been closed only 20 minutes instead of four days.

The system, known as category II, has been five years in the making and is located at the end of a 9,500-foot runway.

Its facilities include an improved instrument landing system, new approach and runway lights and equipment for automatic measurement of runway visibility.

The new runway lights will enable pilots to descend as low as 100 feet before deciding whether to cancel the landing and fly to another airport. They will also need 1,200 feet of forward visibility.

The existing decision height is 200 feet with a forward visual range of 2,600 feet.

Most modern aircraft are equipped with electronic gear to lock into the new system. However, in some cases, additional pilot training will be required.

Blind landings in zero-zero conditions are possible in some modern jets like the Jumbos, but are not normally allowed for commercial flights.

Collection Agencies Have to Mend Ways

EDMONTON (CP) — A collection agency that wants to stay in business in Alberta no longer telephones debtors at 4 a.m. or pays calls on their neighbors and relatives.

Limitations on such tactics were outlined in an interview by Mike Hagley, newly-appointed administrator of the Collection Agencies Act, and former administrator Ron Smitten. The administrator supervises the activities of the agencies and issues their annual licences.

Many people still put up with more than they have to from collection agencies, Mr. Smitten said, but the administrator now gets three or four complaints a day during busy periods.

Mr. Hagley said the act was passed not only to protect a debtor from undue harassment but also to ensure that the creditor who turns accounts over to an agency gets what is coming to him.

There are more than 50 collection agencies in the province, Mr. Smitten said. The number has remained steady for the last three years or so as many would-be agencies never get started when they learned they needed a $5,000 bond to ensure proper performance.

AMOUNT RISES

The bond goes up to $10,000 if the agency collects more than $100,000 a year. Mr. Smitten said three or four agencies in the province collect in excess of $1 million a year.

Mr. Hagley has the power to determine the bond. He approves form letters the agencies send out and investigates complaints.

The act forbids agencies to seek more money than the actual debt, conduct enquiries through anyone else but the debtor, ask for more than verification of employment at a person's place of work or go beyond the bounds of personal contact, telephone calls, letters or legal proceedings.

The question of harassment is debatable but Mr. Smitten said it includes more than a couple of calls a week and the collector making needless nuisance of himself.

Complaints, which are almost always at least partially justified, usually involve abusive or threatening language, Mr. Smitten said.

He also hears from people extending credit who complain that an agency's tactics have resulted in loss of a client.

With the change in times comes a change in the nature of the work, as collectors in Calgary said in a recent series of interviews.

Most of the work is done by letters and telephone calls and the success rate varies with circumstances and timing. If the agency doesn't collect, the creditor pays no fee.

Often a flippant "So sue me" response results. In the agency doing just that and the debtor finds himself paying legal costs on top of the debt he owes, said Doug Mundie, manager of Canadian Bonded Credit.

"We're not out to harass them, we're out to help them," said Mr. Mundie, who suggests such methods as a consolidation loan from a bank as a means out of debt.

"Eighty-five per cent (of debtors) are people like you and me," said J. A. Scott, manager of Allied Collection Agencies.

"They've got themselves in a bind. They just can't make ends meet and they end up here. That doesn't mean the cash problems can't be straightened out."

Railways Face Busy Future

Energy Crisis Could Result In Rational Transport System

MONTREAL (CP) — Whether the energy crisis amounts to just higher prices or real shortages of fuel, officials of Canada's railways agree that the energy situation could lead to a more rational system of transport in Canada and a greater role for the railways.

With mounting fuel costs plaguing road and air transport, governments and others have begun to take another look at the advantages of the rails for transporting people and goods.

Railways could come back into vogue they say, but railway officials retort that railways never went out of vogue.

While the trucking industry and the more glamorous aircargo industry have been growing, railways have been chugging along, pulling their share of the nation's freight.

Despite a national rail strike in the summer, 1973 was a good year for the railways. Car loadings were up by 6.3 per cent to four million from 3.8 million and tonnage of freight loaded in Canada was up by 12.5 per cent to 238 million tons from 212 million tons.

Whether a greater role for the railways lies ahead depends to a large degree on government policies on freight rates and subsidies for passenger services, but the railways have their eyes on the effects of the energy squeeze.

"Pressures from truckers for more piggyback services began in December when they couldn't negotiate fuel contracts for 1974," said Hap Jenner, general manager of piggback services for CP Rail.

"Somebody's going to lay a lot of traffic on our doorstep," said Keith Hunt, vice-president for operations and maintenance for Canadian National Railways.

"Our real challenge is to be prepared to handle it."

But the railways, which use 400 million gallons of fuel a year for their diesel-electric locomotives, are also feeling the pinch.

CP Rail's fuel bill rose by 50 per cent in 1973 and CN expects to pay $97 million for its fuel this year compared with $43 million in 1973.

But, said Mr. Hunt, railways consume only 1.7 per cent of all the energy consumed in the country and the statistics show they use it frugally.

To move one ton of freight one mile, a train requires 750 British Thermal Units (BTU) of energy, a truck uses 2,400 BTUs and an airplane a whopping 63,000 BTUs.

As for moving people, trains come a close second to highway buses in the number of passenger miles travelled per gallon of fuel while a four-passenger car and an airliner place poorly in third and fourth spots.

In addition to efficient use of energy, railways have another advantage, said Mr. Hunt.

They take up less land than superhighways.

"Increasing rail trackage rather than building more highways is a good idea. If we're going to start getting interested in ecology, we're there."

What the railways can do to increase freight carriage and what they can do to promote passenger traffic are two different things.

One CP Rail official noted that more than 80 per cent of all passenger traffic in Canada is by motor car, another six per cent is by air and the remainder is by rail.

The implication is that it would take a severe energy shortage and thereafter investment in equipment to get car drivers back on the rails.

Freight is a different matter. . .

About 94 per cent of CN's traffic is freight and the railways have been trying to improve their share of that market for years.

"The last five years we have been on the way back after the railway business bottomed out in 1967," said Mr. Hunt.

The railways already dominate bulk transport of natural resources and Mr. Hunt said this sector will grow in a resource-hungry world.

Where they can really expand is in the transport of merchandise and non-bulk material where the trucking industry operates, and especially in long-distance hauling.

Officials of both railways say they are looking for expanded piggyback services, the introduction of flexible intermodal systems using containers and piggyback services and simplified train schedules to meet shippers needs and to provide more efficient transport with less handling.

"We don't need any push because that's where we're developing the market," said S. T. Cooke, general manager of intermodal development for CN.

"Our timing is lucky but we're not doing anything at the moment we hadn't planned to do."

With more emphasis on cities use of energy, the transport industry could be rationalized with rail transport specializing in the long-haul routes and highway carriers operating on the shorter runs.

Both railways are investing in more piggyback flat cars to meet expected growth of up to 50 per cent in piggyback traffic this year and they are considering further additions to their fleets to handle traffic shunted to the railways as a result of the energy situation.

Although they say higher prices, not shortages, will mark the energy supply situation this year, emergency measures could be implemented to handle more traffic.

As an example, they point to the Montreal-Toronto corridor where 5,000 trucks move along the highways daily.

It's running piggyback trains during the day as well as at night, they could double their capacity.

To smooth rail operations and improve efficiency, CN is planning to double-track some single sections this year and to build diversions around rail bottlenecks.

It also plans to increase its freight car fleet by six per cent through new car purchases and rebuilding of old cars.

"If the rates were higher, we could do this kind of thing every year," said Mr. Hunt, adding that rail transport in Canada, which provides the railways with a return of about 1½ cents a ton mile, is about the best transport bargain in the world.

There has been no increase in general freight rates since 1972 and general freight rates are frozen under an agreement between the governments and the railways until next year.

Passenger transport presents a different problem.

"The trend is back to passenger trains and it is very noticeable," said Mr. Hunt.

"People are starting to realize the value of their time and the quality of their lives and are beginning to frown on drives of 300 or 400 miles.

But passenger trains are not profitable and the railways do not think they should carry the deficit of developing new rail services.

"People obviously want to go back to the trains," said Mr. Hunt, "Someone has to say; what should the nation be doing?"

The trend to rail travel is there and the energy crisis will accelerate it, he said, adding that in the short term CN could introduce more of the Tempo type of trains in use in southern Ontario on the LRC—for light, rapid, comfortable—train being developed by MLW-Worthington of Montreal.

"On the short term, we're ready," he said.

For the longer term, high-speed inter-city transport will require designated tracks and new roadbeds.

CN officials have stated that a move into this kind of rail transport should be a result of a national decision and should be paid for by the nation.

"We think we know what kinds of changes are needed," Mr. Hunt said. "The nation should have the money."

Republic Represented By Spaniards in Exile

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Neglected and almost forgotten, a tiny group of Spaniards tries to keep alive the memory of pre-Franco Republican Spain.

But Manuel Martinez Feduchy, diplomatic representative of the Republican government-in-exile, sees little change in store for Spain, despite what his peaceful group does or recent protest actions by a militant anti-Franco group, the Basque separatists.

The militants have been accused by the Franco government of assassinating Prime Minister Luis Carrero Blanco Dec. 20. The assassination is viewed as a measure of resistance to the gverrment of Generalissimo Francisco Franco, who toppled the Republican regime in the civil war of 1936-39.

"We consider that our government was democratically elected and that the Franco government is illegal," Martinez told a visitor in his booklined study in the Republican embassy.

"When there is an election and no matter what kind of government gets elected—conservative, Socialist, Communist, whatever—well, we will hand everything over. But I don't think we'll ever see a free election in Spain."

In the meantime, Martinez, as minister in charge of the embassy and its staff of four, gets along as best he can with financial help from the Mexican government.

"There are a number of bank accounts and other assets of the Republican government that were frozen in Mexico as a result of the war," Martinez explained. "So the Mexicans give us regular monthly money from the interest that has been earned. It's kind of personal. I tell them how much we need and they give it to us."

The embassy is in what was an elegant mansion surrounded by trees and gardens in a fashionable hotel and shopping district of Mexico City. But the building needs a paint job and the gloomy interior offices are furnished with cracked leather chairs and old wooden desks.

Only Mexico and Yugoslavia have formal diplomatic relations with the Republicans. Their president, Fernando Valera, maintains headquarters in Paris.

The ambassador is the only recognized representatives of the Spanish government in Mexico. The minister and his staff attend to the needs of an estimated 18,000-30,000 Spanish nationals living in the country.

Most of their work consists of certifying Spanish baptism and marriage certificates and other legal documents issued by the Franco regime.

"It sounds illogical, but we certify them anyway because we don't want to involve innocent third parties in our political dispute," Martinez said.

There is an unofficial representative of the Franco government in Mexico City who issues passports and other documents needed for Spanish nationals travelling to Spain. But he has no diplomatic standing.

The Mexican government has repeatedly stated it has no plans to recognize the Franco government.

At 72, Martinez has silvery hair and is in good health He and his wife live in the embassy building.

As for the future of his diplomatic mission, he said:

"It's a rather delicate situation. As the aviators say, when you lose one engine it's better to keep going."

Population Predicted

HALIFAX (CP) — Researchers at Dalhousie University here say the population of Nova Scotia will stand at 830,800 by June 1, 1981. Based on projections worked out by the Dalhousie Institute of Public Affairs, the largest increase should be in Halifax County, around the Halifax-Dartmouth metropolitan area, where more than 71,000 people should be added to the population.

Alemite Strike Okayed

Production workers at Stewart-Warner Corp. of Canada, now negotiating a new contract with the company, Tuesday night voted overwhelmingly for strike action in the event of a talks deadline.

David MacDonald, president, Local 1538 United Auto Workers, said the vote favored strike action if necessary by next Tuesday's deadline. The local, is agent for about 140 production and maintenance workers at the plant which, among other products, produces motor vehicle brake hoses.

The company was the centre of one of Belleville's longest strikes four years ago when the local went on a 13 week walkout.

Mr. MacDonald said the present work contract does not expire until the end of mid - month. MacDonald said union already have met twice and two more meetings are planned, he said.

The union is seeking a $1 across-the-board hourly hike.

Mr. MacDonald claimed the company counter offer was three per cent a year.

A company official had no comment.

Two Die

Police here are investigating the sudden death of two Belleville men who died after being rushed to hospital late Monday morning.

Arthur Alvin Brant, 33, and Milton Lloyd Hicks, 40, both of 141 University Ave., were rushed to Hospital with-in an hour and a half of each other Monday after they complained of being chest pained and vomiting. Police say that one of the men claimed he had lost his eyesight.

Hicks was transferred to Kingston General Hospital, where he died just after midnight. Brant died at 1:30 at the Belleville General Hospital.

Post mortems are being held into each of the deaths.

The two men, who were related to have been brothers-in-law.

Homeowners' Aid Plans Described

A report on last week's trilateral conference on the Neighborhood Improvement and Residential Rehabilitation Assistance programs was given to Belleville city council Monday by Alderman Jack Conn.

At the conference, Ian Watson, of the Ministry of State for Urban Affairs, substituting for Hon. Ron Basford, said that the NIP and RRAP programs are but two of 19 new programs formulated last year. He said that of the 200,000 residential units expected to be started in Canada this year, one out of seven would be earmarked for low income families.

Mr. Watson said the objective of NIP program was to assist in improvement of housing and living accomodation in specific neighborhoods.

The residential rehabilitation assistance program works in conjunction with the NIP program. Its aims being to assist homeowners earning $11,900 or less to bring their houses up to a minimum standard. There is a maximum of $5,000 available to each homeowner of which $2,500 is a forgivable loan at the $6,000 earnings level.

Hon. Robert Welch Minister of Housing for Ontario explained his department's newly introduced Ontario Home Renewal Program under which an application only would mean a single grant to municipalities on a per-capita basis.

Ald. Cox said Belleville would be eligible for a grant of approximately $105,000.

The municipally-administered program would be to give financial support to homeowners for structural repairs, sanitary improvements and for exterior improvements in low and moderate income areas.

Talking Bear . . . .

Miriam Bishop, president of the Central Volunteer Bureau, and Ruth Burrows, the Bureau's executive director, received a surprisingly pleasant gift from the Mohawk - Loyalist Council of the Telephone Pioneers of America yesterday at the Bureau's third annual meeting. The Telephone Pioneers, an organization drawing members from both Bell Canada and Northern Electric, presented the Bureau's pre-school enrichment program with a talking teddy bear. The bear, Long John, is equipped with a special intercom system that enables teachers to work with children by talking through the bear. Here Mrs. Bishop and Mrs. Burrows try the animal out. It's almost as much fun for adults as it is for children.

Trustees Defeat Move To Cut Teachers' Days

Separate school trustees Tuesday night defeated a move to limit teachers' professional development days to five a year.

The teachers now have 10 professional development days scattered through the school calendar leaving 185 teaching days in the classroom.

Bert Garrett of Trenton and Ray Shannon of Belleville introduced the motion to limit professional development days to five a year.

"I'm not in favor of them at all; they shouldn't be necessary for teachers," said Mr. Garrett. "Let them get professional development the way the rest of us do — on our own time."

Michael Collins of Belleville added that children are given too much homework — it might better be working in school an extra 10 days a year.

"We're not considering the kids," he said. "We're considering only what the teachers want."

Rev. Louis Casartelli of Maynooth defended PD days, saying he had attended three which were of great benefit to teachers.

"I would question those days when teachers remain at their schools with no planned activities," he added. "They are used just to catch up on secretarial work especially in those schools that have no secretaries."

John Granville noted that in-service training is one of the most rapidly developing professions in industry.

A joint meeting of the public and separate school boards here will be held Feb. 26 to plan professional development days for next year. Because the two boards combine bus routes, their respective PD days are worked out in conjunction with each another.

Volunteer Board Named

The Belleville Central Volunteer Bureau approved a new list of members for its board of directors at its third annual meeting a the Four Seasons Hotel Tuesday.

Miss Bishop, president, reviewed their deeds and discussed their dreams of future volunteer programs in the Belleville area.

Highlights of the meeting included the tendering of retiring reports by the bureau's chairwoman, Mrs. Miriam Bishop, and the bureau's executive director, Mrs. Ruth Burrows.

A financial statement outlining the bureau's revenues and expenses for the year ending Dec. 31, 1973 was also presented to the members at the annual meeting.

The reports and the financial statement revealed a healthy growth and development in programs in Belleville. Last year the Volunteer Bureau increased it's revenues by nearly 100 per cent and expanded it's staff and expenses by a similar amount.

The small increase in revenues came from a $1,000 grant from the City of Belleville, which enabled the bureau to supplement the expansion in the fields of health, welfare, cultural development and education.

The Volunteer Bureau had revenues totalling $4,583 in 1973 and spent a total of $4,106 during the past year.

Some of the major programs sponsored and coordinated by the bureau last year included: a day nursery for handicapped children, a series of pre-school enrichment programs for four-year-olds, a reading aid program for adults who need to learn basic reading skills and a special "meals on wheels" lunch service for the elderly.

The Volunteer Bureau also co-ordinated the Christmas Sharing Program, provided English classes for new Canadian mothers, provided special visiting and transportation services for the elderly and operated a furniture sharing program for the needy.

Plans and dreams for next year—that were discussed at the meeting included the development of a special Recognition Week program for the various volunteer services and general plans for during the year, a Volunteer Developmental Centre in the Belleville area.

The Recognition Week program, to be held sometime this spring, will be designed to acknowledge the contributions made by each of the volunteer agencies in the area and to acquaint both volunteers and the public with the services rendered by various groups.

Following a panel discussion that revolved around the topic of volunteer services for children, the bureau's members discussed the benefits of having a single centre that would group together a variety of cultural, educational and health services for children.

Betty Eadley, the director of Kelly Childhood Education at Loyalist College and the panel moderator, said that a Children's Developmental Centre would ensure the continuation of the various volunteer services already being offered by the bureau and would provide the basis for an expansion of services that might include special speech therapy classes, and a variety of other health and rehabilitation programs.

Single Criminal Case on Docket

There are eight criminal and civil cases on the trial list for the spring sasizes at Belleville of the Supreme Court of Ontario.

The docket, released yesterday by the Hastings County Court Registrar's office, lists the cases that will be heard before Mr. Justice Grant commencing at noon, Monday Feb. 25.

The Trenton woman was charged with non-capital murder following the July 15 stabbing death of Cpl. James Robinson, 24, also of 129 Front St., Trenton.

Robinson, who was stationed at CFB Trenton, died after he had been stabbed in the lower abdomen with a knife.

Other cases listed on the Supreme Court docket include: five civil jury cases arising from claims under the Motor Vehicle Act, one non-jury civil case arising from a claim under the Motor Vehicle Act, and one divorce case.

Armed Robbery Attempt Foiled

Two Dixie Lee employees foiled an armed robber who attempted to force them to give him the money from the till of the Coleman Street restaurant last night.

Police Chief Douglas Crobie reports that a youth, armed with a hand gun, tried to hold up the Dixie Lee Restaurant around 9:27 p.m. yesterday.

Police say that Mrs. Lois Hurst, an employee at the restaurant, was working in the kitchen with Mark Walmsley last night when they heard someone enter the store and walk to the front counter.

On leaving the kitchen, Mrs. Hurst saw a youth, who has been described as being between the ages of 15 and 17 approximately five feet six inches tall, with light brown hair, a pale complexion and a big narrow face.

The youth pulled a gun from his jacket pocket and told Mrs. Hurst "This is a stick up. Give it to me."

When Mrs. Hurst approached the cash register, the youth reached over the counter towards the machine. Mrs. Hurst grabbed his left arm and pushed him towards the door.

At that point, Mark Walmsley entered the front portion of the store from the kitchen and the robber fled.

He was last seen running north along Coleman Street.

Chief Crosbie said that the description of the youth, given by matched that of the youth who robbed the Stopette Variety Store on West College Street, Jan. 30.

Five Hurt in Crash

Two cars went out of control on Dundas Street East around 11:30 p.m. yesterday and crashed into two poles. Five people were rushed to Belleville General Hospital as a result of the accident.

Hotels Hold Beer Price Line

By JIM SMELLE
Staff Reporter

City beer drinkers are the latest to get hit with the high cost of living.

Last week, Ontario breweries raised the price on bottled beer and on kegs of draft beer. The LCBO granted the increase to allow the breweries to cope with the rising cost of raw materials.

A case of 24 was upped 40 cents to $5.40 with a $1.20 deposit for bottle return. A 13-pack cost $3.50 and one with a new price of $2.50. A six-bottle pack costs $1.75, up 10 cents. A gallon keg of draft beer costs hotels $1.75 more, $30 from one to two.

So, you decide that rather than pay more for the suds at the Brewers Retail, you're going to drink out instead of at home. Right?

Well, you just may be farther ahead financially this way. A survey of city hotels and beverage rooms has refused their beer prices — yet. Only the Leggin Inn upped the price of a bottle of beer to its members from 45 cents to 50 cents. Draft beer continues to be 30 cents a glass.

"We don't see any reason for raising their prices at all," said Wesley Hagerman of the Quinte Hotel; says he doesn't foresee higher prices at his hotel.

Draft beer there sells for 30 cents for a small 10 oz. and Ernie's Corral and a mug of beer sells for 45 cents which is increased to 70 cents after 8:30 when the entertainment starts.

Bottled beer there is 75 cents without entertainment and 80 cents with it at the Green Door. At the Rialto the price of a bottle of beer is 75 cents.

At the Crystal Hotel, manager George Haggis is adopting a wait-and-see attitude. A small glass of draft is 30 cents there while a large one is 50 cents. Bottled beer is 75 cents in the lounge and 55 cents elsewhere.

At the Queen's Hotel, manager Ben Yanover says he doesn't know at the moment if his hotel will increase beer prices.

At the moment, in the men's section, draft beer is 30 cents a glass and bottled beer is 55 cents. In the lounge, you can buy a pitcher of beer for $1.50 or $1.60 depending on size and bottled beer is 60 cents.

Sun Valley is also adopting a wait-and-see attitude, says manageress Yvonne Grunta. Bottled beer there is 75 cents without entertainment and 85 cents with entertainment.

At the Doctor's Hotel on Station Street, manager Barney Paxton, doesn't predict any rise in beer prices — not in draft anyway, he says.

"We just raised the price of a glass of draft to 30 cents in the last year. We don't think we should have to raise it again," he said. A bottle of beer there sells for 55 cents.

Ray Shannon manager at the City Hotel doesn't see higher beer prices at his hotel either. "They're high enough as it is," he said. Like most other hotels, a glass of draft there sells for 30 cents while a pint of beer is 55 cents.

At ANAF on Front Street, the 55 cent price of beer will have to be decided by the Dominion Executive. The price of a bottle of beer to the members and guest was increased a nickel from 40 cents to 45 cents a few months ago.

Draft beer there continues to be a quarter a glass. It is not expected that any increase will take effect there.

The Canadian Hotel is waiting to see what the others do before it decides to raise its beer prices, according to the manager there. Like other places, a glass of draft there sells for 30 and a pint of beer sells for 55 cents.

Simon Iorwerth, a manager for the Belvedere Hotel where the price of a pint of beer is 55 cents, said he feels certain that the pint will go up while it decides to raise the minimum wage is going to $2.

He doesn't see his price of draft beer going up. At the present time a glass of draft is 30c and a pint is 55c. In others are 60c and the entertainment starts at 9 p.m. Bottled beer is 75c a bottle. With entertainment, a mug increases in price to 65c and a bottle of beer goes up to 75c.

The only hotel in the city that refused to comment to The Intelligencer on future beer prices was the Four Seasons Hotel. A spokesman said each information could not be given out.

Point Anne Job Two-year Project

His latest assignment he began organizing Tuesday in dismantle, then raze, the abandoned Canada Cement Lafarge Point Anne plant.

Point Anne isn't the biggest industrial chore Ed Harvey's tackled in "30-something years" of dismantling, disassembling and wrecking across the continent. (He's the project manager for Standard Machine and Equipment Ltd., Penn., which holds the Point Anne contract).

Winter now blows bleak streaks of snow down the deserted spaces of what for decades was the district's big, name industry. Rendered obsolete, it was finally phased out last year by new owners for Mr. Harvey — who hails from Alabama—just another abandoned plant.

But the now forlorn site of what once was a bustling company community, will make a local economic contribution even in its terminal stage.

Mr. Harvey expects the project to take about two years. At the peak it will employ maybe 30-35 men.

"They will all be hired locally — and presumably the people who've worked there will have preference because they are familiar with the plant," he says.

The attitude draws pleased reaction from a spokesman for the Canada Manpower-organized adjustment committee set up to find workers job alternatives.

The committee started with 104 on its lists. The total now is down around 30, he said.

The major work start will depend on the weather, says Mr. Harvey.

Inventory must be taken of what equipment can be salvaged from Point Anne's plant, conveyors and other heavy industrial equipment. Once dismantled, it will be shipped out to buyers. Mr. Harvey says he doesn't know where any of the equipment is destined for. Some of it may have been sold, but he couldn't elaborate. Details are with Standard Machine's president, Frank Darlow, expected to visit the site from time to time, he says.

House-hunting Big Job, So Far

Ed Harvey counts Alabama as home.

But his job takes him around the continent.

Right now, he's having trouble setting up home in Belleville.

Mr. Harvey is project manager for a United States industrial dismantler — contracted to raze the former Canada Cement Lafarge Point Anne plant.

The job will take about two years. Mr. Harvey's been in Belleville a week — spending much of the time apartment hunting for himself and his wife, before getting on with the big dismantling job.

So far, he's been disappointed.

With more than two years' jobbing in various communities, he says the Belleville area's housing situation is one of the toughest he's encountered.

What he's seeking is a two-bedroom, furnished apartment in the city's east sector. The sooner he gets settled the quicker he can concentrate fully on activities of his Point Anne posting — expected to employ up to 35 men, says Mr. Harvey.

Speaking Finalists Selected

A young Belleville elementary school student and high school students from Bayside and Trenton will be Hastings county representatives in the zone finals of the Oral Communications Festival to be held Feb. 22 in Napanee.

County winner in the prepared speech class for elementary students was Alison Jeffrey of Queen Elizabeth School, daughter of Belleville Mayor Robin Jeffrey, who won out over seven other finalists at the S. H. Connor Public School in Tweed last Friday. Topic of the winner's speech was The Haggis.

Derrick Gross of Bayside Secondary School, with a talk on Explorations, won the prepared speech class for high school students, while the impromptu class for secondary schools was taken by Robin Barker of Trenton High School.

Friday's zone finals for elementary will be held at the Westdale Park Public School in Napanee while Secondary School winners in the zone finals will compete at the same school on Saturday.

Zone finalists in Napanee will go on to the provincial finals to be held at the King Edward-Sheraton Hotel in Toronto on March 16.

The Oral Communications Festival is sponsored jointly by Ontario Hydro and the Ontario Public Schools Association with the purpose of improving the art of public speaking.

5-3 Defeat of Habs A First for Islanders

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

When New York Islanders and St. Louis Blues met to end a winless famine, they don't guess around.

The Islanders upset Montreal 5-3 Tuesday night for their first regular-season triumph over the Canadiens since joining the National Hockey League in 1972. The Canadiens entered the game in Uniondale, N.Y., with eight wins and a tie against the Islanders.

The win also enabled the Islanders to break a five-game winless streak, four defeats and a tie.

The Blues, meanwhile, snapped an eight-game winless streak—seven defeats and a tie—with a 7-4 victory over Atlanta Flames to give coach Lou Angotti his first triumph since taking over the position last Saturday. He lost his first start 4-0 to Minnesota North Stars.

In another game, Vancouver Canucks edged Los Angeles Kings 4-3 for their 18th win of the season.

The Canadiens, who outscored the Islanders 49-17 in their previous meetings, remain in second place in the East Division with 73 points, 13 behind leading Boston Bruins and five ahead of New York Rangers. Toronto is fourth with 63 points followed by Buffalo with 56. Detroit 46, the Islanders 44 and the Canucks 41.

The Blues took over sole possession of third place in the West with 54 points, two more than the Flames and four ahead of the Kings.

Islanders 5 Canadiens 3 . .

The Islanders—who now have 15 wins, three more than they had last year—had a 2-0 after the first period and 3-1 at the end of the second.

Ed Westfall paced the winners with two goals, his 15th and 16th of the season, while rookie Bob Nystrom contributed a goal—his 17th—and two assists.

The Islanders outshot the Canadiens 31-25.

Michel Larocque started the game in goal for Montreal but was replaced by Wayne Thomas at the start of the second because coach Scotty Bowman had Larocque was tired.

Wayne Merrick scored two goals—his 14th and 15th—and added two assists to spark the Blues.

Bill Collins, recently obtained in a trade with Detroit Red Wings, also scored twice for the Blues. Garry Unger, Ace Bailey and Pierre Plante got the others as St. Louis goals as the Blues outshot the Flames 41-23.

Eric Vail, with Sudbury Wolves of the Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A series in 1972-73, scored his first NHL goal late in the second period.

Canucks 4 Kings 3

"We were flat tonight and we ran into a hot goaltender," said coach Bob Pulford of the Kings. "Recently, we've lost three games which we should have won; but we'll get them back."

The hot goaltender was Gary Smith who made a career in the game with brilliant saves. He stopped 27 shots, including 15 in the first period.

Hockey Leagues Bury the Hatchet

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The World Hockey Association's $50 million suit against the established National Hockey League has been settled out of court, but opposition to part of the settlement has been voiced by the NHL Players' Association.

"It would be wholly misleading to describe the settlement of this legal dispute as a merger," NPA president Clarence Campbell said Tuesday after both leagues signed the agreement in Philadelphia Judge Leon Higginbotham.

"This such agreement (merger) is contemplated."

Under the long awaited agreement, the WHA will be reimbursed by the NHL for legal expenses of $1.75 million before next Aug. 1, plus interest at the prime rate prevailing last Jan. 15 through the date of payment.

The consent decree said that on or before next Jan. 31, committees of owners from both leagues would negotiate in good faith for scheduling of other exhibitions or inter-league games, including an all-star game.

That provision drew fire Tuesday night from Alan Eagleson executive director of the players' association.

Eagleson said in Toronto the players' association still is opposed to exhibition games—now or under the agreement.

The players' association said before the agreement was announced that it was unsatisfactory because it apparently was the first step toward a merger, and Eagleson said "the position of the players' association is unchanged."

"They will not participate in any exhibition games between the leagues until we receive written assurance there will be no merger."

Eagleson added that the NHL's plan to pay $150,000 into the players' pension fund would not change their minds on the issue. "It's not the money, it's the principle that matters."

In still another gain by the non-existent WHA, the NHL agreed not to oppose use of its arenas by the WHA teams.

One of the important concessions was agreement by the WHA Toronto Toros not to make an issue of the unavailability of Maple Leaf Gardens, home of Toronto Maple Leafs of the NHL.

The NHL board of governors had balked several times in signing the agreement but, Campbell said, some modifications satisfied the opposition. He did not elaborate.

In Los Angeles, Dennis Murphy, president of the WHA, said the agreement is a major step to the co-existence of the leagues.

Parizeau's Third Goal Upsets Gerry Cheevers

By GLENN COLE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Gerry Cheevers, ace goaltender for Cleveland Crusaders, does not like giving up a goal at any time but he was particularly upset Tuesday night in a World Hockey Association game at Quebec City.

Cheevers was beaten by Michael Parizeau for the third time of the evening at 5:01 of the sudden-death overtime period and Quebec Nordiques went on to win 6-5.

In the only other game, Toronto Toros rallied to defeat the Blazers 5-4 in Vancouver.

Nordiques 6 Crusaders 5

After the third Parizeau goal, Cheevers threw his stick which landed in front of the linesman who tagged him with a game misconduct.

Defenceman Francois Lecombe started the play on the winning goal, bringing the puck over the line and feeding it to Real Cloutier near the net.

Gilmour shot from in close but was stopped and, after a brief flurry in front of the net, Parizeau flipped a high backhander into the top left-hand corner.

"The play was at least three or four feet offside," Cheevers said of Lacombe's manoeuvre.

The win was Quebec's 18th straight at home ice and moved them four points ahead of second-place Cleveland in the battle for third spot in the WHA's East Division.

Andre Gaudette fired his 16th and 17th goals for the Nordiques and defenceman Dale Hoganson added the other.

Toros 5 Blazers 4

Bert Wolfe's second goal of the game at 3:16 of the sudden-death overtime period gave Toronto its win over Vancouver and enabled the Toros to move into a first-place tie with New England Whalers in the East Division. Both teams have 66 points, three ahead of Quebec, but the Toros have played 62 games compared with 58 for New England.

The Blazers held a 4-0 lead early in the third period on goals by Serge Beaudoin and John McKenzie in the second and John Miguccelli and Denny Lawson early in the final period.

The Toros then rallied to tie the score with five goals in five minutes and three seconds with Selby's first of the game at 16:13 forcing the overtime.

Pat Hickey, Tom Simpson and Wayne Carleton got the other Toronto goals.

WHA Cracks Down

LOS ANGELES (CP) — Dour Dennis Murphy announced that the fine and suspension given as a result of an altercation in Minnesota Feb. 13 when Barrie struck linesman Dick Haché.

"After a thorough and complete hearing of the incident, I was determined that Barrie was guilty of manhandling an official," said Murphy. "This type of conduct will not and cannot be tolerated."

The hearing committee consisted of Jim Browitt, WHA executive director, Jordon Kaiser, president of Chicago Cougars, and John Ducques of Quebec Nordiques.

"It is hoped this action will clearly demonstrate that the league will not permit a disregard for the authority of referees and linesmen," added Murphy. "There is no place in the WHA for this kind of behavior."

Murphy noted that in games through Sunday, Feb. 17, Barrie had accumulated a league-leading 200 minutes in penalties. Thirty of those minutes were clocked in the altercation of Feb. 13 when he received a double major, misconduct and game misconduct.

The suspension, effective immediately, means Barrie will not dress for Edmonton's next five games, starting Wednesday in Edmonton when the Oilers meet Winnipeg Jets.

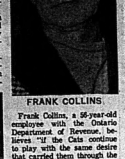
How Are Cats' Chances? Fans Supply Answers

By MIKE BRADSHAW
Sports Staff
The Belleville Bobcats head into the first round of Metro Junior B playoffs tonight, but they will be playing without the services of high scoring centre Brian Cousins.

Cousins will be missing from the lineup for at least a week with a shoulder injury picked up Friday night in the Markham game.

Brian is out, but defenceman Dave Taylor is back. Taylor had been suspended pending a decision by the Metro Junior B concerning his mix-up with a linesman in the Markham game. Dave was fined and the Bobcat club picked up the tab rather than go into the playoffs short-staffed on defence.

Defenceman Vern Amey will be on hand for games this week.



Speaking of the opening series, the Cats play the same team in the first round as they did last year. This year, however, the tables are somewhat reversed.

Belleville finished fifth in the standings last year and were the underdogs when they met second place Peterborough.

This year, Belleville is favored to win the opening series since they finished in third, while Peterborough ma-

Frank Collins, a 56-year-old employee with the Ontario Department of Revenue, believes "if the Cats continue to play with the same desire that carried them through the season they'll have no trouble at all with the Lions. It'll be Belleville in four straight.

Bill Coates, 46, says, "If they play as well as they can it shouldn't go any more than five games. It might go six, but Belleville will still take it."

The fan support is there. The confidence in the team is there. The rest is up to the Cats at 8.30 tonight in the Memorial Arena.

John Irvine, a 29-year-old employee of Bell Shirts, says, "For all intents and purposes Peterborough should have beaten out Belleville last year, you can't really tell what's going to happen in the playoffs. Personally I'm going to go with the Bobcats to take the series in six games."

A grade 13 student at Centennial Secondary School, Carol Mellor: "The Bobcats don't always play well. They've been sporadic throughout the season — running hot and cold — but I think Belleville will win in seven games."

Quinte Club Rink Wins

Senior Leaders Meet Today

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP) — British Columbia has a bye and then meets Saskatchewan today in a game that could decide the Canadian senior men's curling championship.

C. crushed Alberta 11-3 in sixth-round play Tuesday night while Saskatchewan lost 8-5 to Prince Edward Island.

The win left B.C. with a 6-0 won-lost record while Saskatchewan is second at 5-1. P.E.I. is third with 4-1.

In the seventh-round today Saskatchewan plays Alberta, Manitoba meets Ontario, Quebec faces New Brunswick, Northern Ontario goes against Nova Scotia and P.E.I. tackles Newfoundland.

B.C. plays Saskatchewan in one of the eighth-round games this afternoon A B.C. win would almost assure it of the championship.

George Beaudry, skip of the B.C. entry from Trail, said the bye comes at the right time for his club.

"... We'll be set for a great game against Saskatchewan," he said "The rest makes it better for us."

The B.C. team had some close calls in its early games "but the boys seem to have relaxed and are hitting the broom with the right weight now," Beaudry said after his win over Alberta.

In other sixth-round games, New Brunswick surprised defending champion Manitoba 10-4, Ontario whipped Newfoundland 12-4 and Quebec edged Northern Ontario 9-7 in an extra end.

In the fifth-round Tuesday, B.C. handed P.E.I. its first loss, 8-5; Saskatchewan came from behind for an 11-9 victory over Ontario, New Brunswick beat Newfoundland 8-5, Manitoba nipped Northern Ontario 7-5 and Quebec defeated Nova Scotia 8-5.

P.E.I. skip Dr. Wes Macdonald, pleased with his win over Saskatchewan but irked by his earlier loss to B.C., said "some body still has to beat that B.C. bunch."

Macdonald's performance against Saskatchewan was a marked contrast from his B.C. game. All the Island curlers were shooting well and, aided by bad breaks for Saskatchewan, they had the game well in hand.

Jim Hill said of the poor play by his Debbie, Sask., rink: "It's one of those things that happen and we'll have to forget it and bear down tomorrow because we have two big games."

Bill Ross said the win for his St. Andrews, N.B., foursome over Manitoba "was one of our better games."

"But then Manitoba didn't have one of their better games by a long shot."

The Atlantic provinces teams, except for P.E.I., have not fared well in the championship and were not expected to.

But B.C.'s Beaudry said "we have been having more trouble with Eastern teams than ever before and New Brunswick gave us a real battle."

"We were shook up a little in the first games at how well they're playing. They've improved and if they keep it up they'll be the teams to beat in the future."

Hec Gervais Only Skip With Chance for Repeat

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

When the 1974 Canadian men's curling championship draws to a close, a familiar name should be at or near the top of the 11-rink, round-robin standings.

In fact, Gervais of St. Albert, Alta., who won the Canadian title on his first try in 1961, will be the only skip competing March 4-9 at London, Ont., who has won before.

The other times Gervais represented Alberta, he made his 280-pound presence felt right up to the last game. In 1962, he went to a playoff against Regina's Ernie Richardson, losing 14-7. In 1970, he finished with an 8-2 record behind Winnipeg's Don Duguid at 9-1.

Gervais, 40, is accompanied by third Ron Anton who was with him in the 1961 and 1962 finals. The other members—second Warren Hansen and lead Darryl Sutton—are newcomers although Hansen played as a substitute sweeper for British Columbia's injured Jim Armstrong in last year's final at Edmonton.

Bobby Dillon of Charlottetown heads the list of veterans. Dillon represented Prince Edward Island rinks on five other occasions—1973, 1969, 1968, 1965 and 1964.

With Dillon this trip are third John Fortier, second Jerry Miska and lead Merrill Wiggington.

Nova Scotia is represented by Barry Shearer of Halifax who went to the national final two years ago in St. John's, Nfld. His rink finished with a 1-9 record.

Shearer has Ken Langille at third, the same as in 1972, while second Tom Fetterly and lead Robert Little are newcomers.

Bernie Sparkes, who skipped his own B.C. rink to a 5-5 record in 1972, is back as third on Armstrong's Richmond rink.

Sparkes also played second for Ron Northcott's Calgary rink which won the Canadian and world titles in 1966, 1968 and 1969.

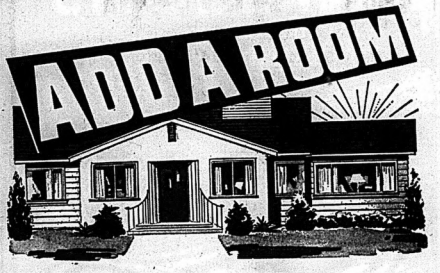
The fact that Savage and third Bob Thompson, second Ed Werenich and lead Ron Green have been together so long, plus the home province fans, should help them improve their record of 6-4 last year.

Savage, 26, was the youngest Ontario skip ever in the national final when he went to Winnipeg in 1970. That time he finished at 6-4.

Savage will be looking to break a couple of jinxes. One is that no left-handed skip has ever won the Canadian title and the other is that only one Toronto rink—Al Phillips Jr., in 1967—has ever won it.

In contrast to the Savage rink is Jim Ursel's foursome from Montreal which has got together this season to win the Quebec championship.



Ursel, who played on Norm Houck's Manitoba entry at the national final in 1962, moved to Montreal recently from Winnipeg, as did third Bill Ross and second Alf Berting. Montrealer Fred Tipp is at lead.

Other rinks heading for London may lack experience but some overcame experienced skips to advance.

Moro Trade Enlivens Proceedings

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Argonauts and Hamilton Tiger-Cats enlivened the Canadian Football League's annual college draft Tuesday.

Shortly before the draft, the Argos traded receiver Tony Moro to the TiCats for Hamilton's first and second choices to select Randy Halsall, a tackle from Wake Forest Univ. in the first two rounds.

The Ticats were entitled to second choice in each round of the draft because they finished last in the Eastern Football Conference in 1973. They exercised their option on the first round pick and selected Halsall.

Argos also selected Larry Simpson, an end from Wilfrid Laurier University in Waterloo, Ont., in the first round.

The Tiger-Cats got Ken Clark, a punter-kicker-wide receiver from St. Mary's University in Halifax, in the first round and Tom Dufault, a defensive halfback from the University of Wisconsin, in the second.

Ralph Sazio, general manager of the Ticats, said there was no particular reason for obtaining Moro, 26, a tight end-slotback. "Getting Tony Moro is a real plus . . . I think he's a tough football player."

With a wealth of strength already available at tight end in Bob Richardson, Tony Gabriel, George Milosevic and Gord Christian, Sazio said he didn't know where he would use Moro.

Moro was a fullback at the University of Dayton before joining the Argos in 1970. He caught 20 passes for 362 yards and one touchdown with the Argos last year after refusing to report to Edmonton Eskimos following a trade.

TONY MORO

WINS ONT. TITLE ...

HAMILTON, Ont. (CP) — Joyce Black will take her Ostrews Curling Club rink to the women's Canadian curling finals to be held at Halifax March 17-22. She earned a berth in the finals with a 10-8 win Tuesday over Mary Seeley's Wiarton Rink to win the Ontario senior women's curling championships at the Burlington Golf and Country Club, Unionville, Ottawa and Thunder Bay tied for second.

MEMO FROM HELEN GAGEN

FREE NEW CALORIE BOOKLET

Miracle Food Mart is concerned about the prevalence of weight problems among Canadians that was shown in the recent Nutrition Canada survey. So we have prepared a handy new booklet to help you check your calorie intake and adjust to your actual energy needs.

Conveniently sized to slip into your purse or kitchen drawer, the booklet includes lists of everything from soups, snacks and main course foods to deserts. There is even a section on alcoholic beverages, and handy lists of high and low calorie foods.

By checking your food intake against the booklet each day, you can see where or how you are going over your daily calorie needs, or if your food intake is inadequate for your energy expenditure.

Copies of the booklet are available at your Miracle Food Mart Information desk. For details on foods not included, drop me a line, Helen Gagen, Consumer Adviser, Miracle Food Mart, 75 Rexdale Boulevard, Rexdale, Ontario, M9W 1P2.

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League
Eastern Ontario Club

QUESTION: Is it possible to drive a car in the U.S. with the current gas shortage? What is the present situation?

ANSWER: The Canadian Automobile Association reports that, while gasoline is available in a majority of the States as of February 15th, most routes commonly travelled by Canadians en route to popular vacation areas are experiencing severe gasoline shortages.

Gas is available in the resort areas of Maine and Vermont, but otherwise the New England States should be avoided. U.S. 1, U.S. 9 and Interstates 87, 91 and 95 have very limited supplies.

The situation in Pennsylvania has improved, but travel there can still prove inconvenient. Pittsburgh should be avoided.

The State of Maryland and the city of Washington, D.C. have been very hard hit and should be avoided.

The Carolinas, Virginia and West Virginia are still passable during the day, but they could be chancey. The situation there is apt to be deteriorating and thus travel is inadvisable.

Georgia and northern Florida as far as Daytona are good, as also are Tennessee, Kentucky, Ohio and Michigan. Canadians are, therefore, advised to take Interstate 75 from Detroit to reach Florida.

The supply of gas is quite good in northern Florida, but long lines at service stations are being experienced in West Palm Beach, Fort Lauderdale, Miami and Key West. On the west coast of Florida the supply is very poor, particularly in the St. Petersburg area.

On the Pacific coast, conditions are poor in the state of Washington, Oregon should be completely avoided, so western Canadians are advised to travel through Montana, Idaho and Nevada to reach California. In California, gas is available along the interstate highways, but a tight situation exists in the coastal cities.

The mid-eastern, central and mid-western sections of the country are experiencing no really critical shortage, but motorists should not consider travelling at night or on weekends through these regions.

No state is entirely free from the gasoline problem. All motorists should anticipate some inconvenience and allow for greater travel time.

The Canadian Automobile Association advises all Canadians to plan their routes with great care, especially when going to the coastal regions. Plan not, to travel at night or over weekends; avoid, as much as possible, the large urban areas and basically just use lots of common sense.

As the end of the month approaches, all indications are that the gasoline situation will deteriorate. However, there is hope that there may be a break in these conditions in March when allocations will have been more properly fixed.

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Phillip H. Lowthian, a Portland lawyer, was stopped by police and cited for violation of a little known city ordinance forbidding the wearing of masks or disguises. Officers said he was wearing a mask bearing the likeness of President Nixon. Lowthian said he would fight the citation in court.

Hanging Your New Door

Measure your door for width and height. Now cut it to fit the door frame. Plane the edges. Position the door in the opening. Insert wedges to give the door the appropriate clearances. (Bottom: 1/4", unless the door opens over a rug, then it should be 1/2". Top & Side clearance: 1/8") Position the hinges about 6 to 7 inches from the top of the frame and about 10 or 11 inches from the bottom. Mark the position of the hinges on both the door and the door frame at the same time. Remove the door from the frame and cut the mortises for the hinges with a wood chisel. Install the hinges, making sure that the hinge leaf is flush with the edge of the door. And there's your new door. You did it all with a little help from Beaver.

Newfies and Quebecois Have Much in Common

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Newfoundlanders and French-speaking Quebecers may be Canada's last individualists with more in common than either realizes.

Two Newfoundland educationists, whose work keeps them in close touch with the French-Canadian world, see more similarities than differences.

"Newfoundlanders and Quebecers are individualists," said Clifford Andrews of the Newfoundland education department, who administers the distribution of grants and bursaries for higher studies in French.

Mr. Andrews said in an interview that no other Canadians are so strongly aware of their roots.

"It's like the old saying, in Canada there's Newfoundlanders and Quebecers and the rest are non-Americans."

The experience of our exchange students who go to Trois-Rivieres for six weeks in the summer certainly bears out the resemblance," said Prof. E. R. Clark, head of the romance languages department at Memorial University of Newfoundland, in another interview.

"There's always something in common when Newfoundlanders and Quebecers meet," Prof. Clark said.

"Both have a strong orientation towards home."

The Newfoundland fisherman and the Quebec farmer provided the economic base for both places but the two were isolated even after Confederation—the French by language and the Newfoundlanders by geography.

Mr. Andrews and Prof. Clark said folksongs of French-Canada and Newfoundland reflect the same type of feelings, especially humor and melancholy.

"Our humor was a compensating factor for a hard life," Mr. Andrews said. "We hold onto humor in bad times."

It was the same in Quebec. Both peoples learned to entertain themselves in isolation.

Mr. Andrews said French and English settlers came to Quebec and Newfoundland to find a way of making a living—they were not escaping political oppression as was the case with many other settlers in Canada.

Mr. Andrews said the renewed interest in folksongs in Quebec and Newfoundland is partly political and partly a continuation of deep-rooted pride in home and roots.

"The songs have the same subject matter—they reflect the day-to-day lives of the people.

"The balladeer still is the most popular person in the community."

The reluctance of many Newfoundlanders to join Confederation in 1949 and Quebec separatism also are similar, Mr. Andrews said.

"Both of us wanted something to hold on to."

The language barrier has kept Newfoundlanders and Quebecers from understanding how much alike they are, Prof. Clark said.

"French teaching must be made more appealing (in Newfoundland)," he said.

"This may be happening now. Newfoundland high-schools use text books based on Quebec rather than France."

Mr. Andrews noted that French as a subject is gradually getting deeper into the roots of Newfoundland education. It is taught in most schools and has reached kindergarten level in some.

A boost to awareness of the French language came late in 1973 when the Association Francophone de Saint-Jean (Francophone Association of St. John's) was formed.

The association likely will become affiliated with L'Association Canadienne d'Education de Langue Francaise, a national body formed in 1947 to promote French language and culture throughout Canada.

FRENCH ESTABLISHED

Quebec City was first established as a French community by Samuel de Champlain in 1608.

He's No Oil Magnate

Charles Fairbank inspects worn-out pipe from one of his 134 active oil wells at Oil Springs, Ont., 25 miles southeast of Sarnia. His wells produce about 1,200 barrels a month, but Mr. Fairbank says unless the wellhead price for crude increases, the oil fields in the area will remain a marginal operation. (CP Photo)

Isolated Islands Subject of Dispute

TOKYO (AP) — Along the west Asian rim of the Pacific Ocean, scores of big and small islands, their ownership in dispute, contain the seeds of possible future international trouble.

Like the Parsecels, the focus of a brief mininar between China and South Vietnam last month, many of the islands are uninhabited and visited only by fishermen and marie birds.

But oil—the prospect of finding it rather than its actual presence—has whetted the interest of claimant nations confronted with rising prices and a shrinking supply from the Persian Gulf states.

Except for the flareup over the Parsecels, there has been little sabre-rattling in recent years over the disputed islands. Nor, in the present mood of easing tensions, is any expected in the nearest future.

But shifts in leadership end national priorities could change all that.

Oil is not the only consideration in the trouble-spot nature on the islands. Some countries insist the islands are theirs and they want them.

This is the case of the four islands north of Hokkaido seized by the Soviet Union in the Second War, which Japan says it owns them and refuses to sign a peace treaty with the Russians until they are returned.

There never has been any question of a military confrontation over them. But over the years, as Russia seized Japanese fishing boats and fishermen in their vicinity, tensions and tempers have sharpened.

The biggest of the disputed islands is Taiwan, seat of the Nationalist Republic of China with a population of 15 million, a booming economy and a formidable military establishment of its own.

The Nationalists, the Communist People's Republic, and the United States agree it is part of China. The problem is that the Nationalists and Communists each insist they represent all China, a dilemma not likely to be resolved soon.

The position of the offshore islands occupied by the Nationalists—some of them only 1,100 yards from the East China Coast—is more obscure. Two of them, Quemoy and Matsu, bristle with men and fortifications. In 1958 they were the centre of a massive military bombardment believed preliminary to invasion by the Communists.

Still in Nationalist hands, they are the objects of periodic token gunfire from Communist shore batteries, probably reciprocated.

In the current mood of international detente, a Communist attempt to overrun Taiwan or the offshore islands by force seems remote. The emphasis from Peking today is on some kind of rapprochement.

The third big island, or more accurately part of an island, in dispute is Sebeh, the northern tip of the island of Borneo. Held by Malaysia, it is claimed, somewhat halfheartedly these days, by the Philippines. The basis: The will of a former sultan. Despite occasional alarums and excursions, Manila shows little stomach for pressing its claim.

Until 1972, when it was returned, the vast island of Okinawa caused relations between the United States and Japan. The military lynch pin of U.S. power in the Pacific, it was run by an American military governor for most of the 27 years since the Second World War.

The Senkaku islands, at the western tip of the Okinawa chain, shot into the news in 1970 after the Nationalist Chinese granted oil exploration rights to an American company.

A collection of eight bleak rocks about 150 miles north-Taiwan, they are claimed by Taiwan, China and Japan. The Japanese are adamant in insisting on their ownership, noting that they were undisputed part of the Okinawa chain during American administration and that all that chain reverted to them.

Though China says it owns all the resources of the shallow seas adjacent to China including, in its view, Taiwan, there seems little chance that Peking will upset its new diplomatic relationship with Japan over them.

The Exorcist Is Tops In Oscar Nominations

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Top honors in the 46th annual Motion Picture Academy Award Nominations Tuesday went to The Exorcist, the scary tale of a 12-year-old girl's possession by a demon, and The Sting, about a massive confidence game by two men.

The two films received 10 nominations each. Both were nominated best picture of 1973, along with American Graffiti, Cries and Whispers and A Touch of Class.

Last Tango in Paris, hailed by some critics as a milestone film, was not nominated for best picture. But Marlon Brando, who last year won and refused an Oscar for The Godfather, was nominated for best actor for his performance in Last Tango.

Also named were Jack Lemmon, Save the Tiger; Jack Nicholson, The Last Detail; Al Pacino, Serpico, and Robert Redford, The Sting.

Nominated for best performance by an actress: Ellen Burstyn, The Exorcist; Glenda Jackson, A Touch of Class; Marsha Mason, Cinderella Liberty; Barbra Streisand, The Way We Were, and Joanne Woodward, Summer Wishes, Winter Dreams.

The nominations for best supporting actor went to Vincent Gardenia, Bang the Drums Slowly; Jack Gilford, Save the Tiger, John Houseman, The Paper Chase; Jason Miller, The Exorcist and Randy Quaid, The Last Detail.

Nominated for best supporting actress were Linda Blair, The Exorcist; Candy Clark, American Graffiti; Madeline Kahn and Tatum O'Neal, Paper Moon and Sylvia Sidney, Summer Wishes, Winter Dreams.

Third-place honors for most nominations went to The Way We Were, a nostalgic look at the radical left set campus and in Hollywood's generation ago. It won six nominations. Five went to American Graffiti, Cries and Whispers and A Touch of Class.

Nominations Questioned

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Campaigning began today for the 46th Motion Picture Academy Awards after nominations that raised a number of questions.

Among today:

Why did the much-acclaimed Last Tango in Paris and Serpico receive only two nominations, the same number as the critically despised Jonathan Livingston Seagull?

Why did Jason Miller, who plays the central role in The Exorcist, get nominated as supporting rather than a leading actor?

These were some of the unanswered issues raised Tuesday following the nominations. It appeared that the Academy's 4,300 voters were thinking in terms of hits. The Exorcist and The Sting scored top honors with nominations in each.

The voters seemed to shy away from overly rewarding life sex-ridden Last Tango in Paris. They also seemed hazy about the distinction between stars and supporting players.

Some nominations also indicated an inward view of the picture makers, whose members are elected on the basis of their contributions to the industry and the film art. The academy consists of the actors and others engaged in film-making, including stars. Of the 17 films that received more than two nominations, all but two were American-made. The exceptions were Ingmar Bergman's Cries and Whispers and Bertolucci's Last Tango in Paris.

Sonny Files For Divorce From Cher

LOS ANGELES (Reuter) — Sonny Bono, 39, male partner of the husband and wife television team of Sonny and Cher, announced Tuesday he has filed for divorce on the grounds of irreconcilable differences.

The pair were married in October, 1964, and have one daughter, Chastity, 4.

CBS took them on as a summer replacement show in 1971 and was so pleased by their high ratings they began a regular variety series which now is in its third year.

French-English Ties Should Be Stronger

OTTAWA (CP) — The CBC should broadcast a national news program in both official languages, suitable for simultaneous distribution on both the CBC French and English networks, the Canadian Radio-Television Commission was told Tuesday.

Pierre Berton, Toronto broadcaster and author, said he CBC should produce more programs suitable for both networks to help bridge the gap between the French and English Canada.

He said special consideration should be given to the national news, which now is really only the news from the Toronto-Ottawa axis, "with a few minidocumentaries thrown in to appease the regions."

The commission is hearing submissions on a CBC application for renewal of its broadcasting licences, which expires March 31.

Mr. Berton said the CBC now is a force for separation rather than unity because there is no cross-fertilization between its two networks. Programs could be produced in both languages for simultaneous distribution as was done at Expo 67 in Montreal, he said.

There has been no attempt at such programming since The Ploufle Family, broadcast on both networks in the 1950s.

CRTC chairman Pierre Juneau said such efforts have been made by the National Film Board, but often they led to one language group benefiting the production, while the other group only translated.

He asked Mr. Berton which network, French or English CBC, would handle the production of a bilingual news program.

Mr. Berton suggested a small group, made up of people from both networks, could be formed to explore the possibilities and produce the program, and he added there is enough talent in Canada to support such a venture.

Mr. Berton said the CBC has a mandate for national unity and is not living up to it.

"Hockey Night in Canada is one of our important national events, because almost everybody watches it," he said.

Shoes Held Up

LONDON (CP) — The Royal Ballet has been hit by Britain's emergency three-day week, with deliveries of pointed dance shoes about 60-per-cent below normal. One supplier has been refused government permission to be reclassified as a vital industry and operate five days a week. "But we cannot go on like this indefinitely," lamented a ballet spokesman.

Heart Pacemaker Not Bothersome

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I've consulte ago, due to a heart slowdown," my husband, 59, had a pacemaker inserted.

We know the basics of a pacemaker because the manufacturer sends booklet explaining how they work. But it doesn't explain how it's put in, nor what to expect in the future if it should fail to function properly.

My husband's doctor says, "So on doing everything you've always done; this pacemaker is one of the best and should be okay for two to three years."

But my husband can't relax at night for fear he may roll over on that side and do some harm. — B.B.

Pacemakers are implacent in such a way that no activity by you or your husband will affect the connecting wires, so his doctor must just what he said: go on doing what you've always done.

Questions such as his have been worked out with care over the years, and it should give some assurance to your husband to know that, according to the most recent figures I have seen, some 100,000 patients are now using pacemakers.

After some time—the "two or three years" his doctor mentioned—new batteries probably will need to be installed. But that is a relatively simple procedure, and is done routinely with this valuable device.

Doubtless your booklet (and the doctor) explains when and how the batteries need replacing.

Your husband should ask his doctor often enough so that any alteration in heart rate or rhythm will be detected.

Meantime he is making himself needlessly miserable by his anxieties.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: It is wise for me to fly? I have a hole in my ear. What precautions do you advise?—Mrs. R.D.

A hole in the ear—that is, a perforated ear drum.

If the ear is dry, no particular precautions are needed.

But if there is drainage or discharge, perhaps the hole that inspite infection in the ear, then such a hole must be your doctor's advice before flying—and do not be surprised if he forbids it until the infection has been subdued.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have a friend who is a perfect gentleman. I've known him three years. We have dated and now it's at a point where he and I are in love but I am in my late 'teens and scared of getting pregnant. He told me he had a vasectomy four years ago and that I can't get pregnant. How sure is it?—N.B.

It's very sure—provided he has had a thorough test that showed no sperm in his semen. If he did not have subsequent tests, then he should do so.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Our niece, three, for some time has had a bump on her left temple. She has had a cystoscope examination and everything checks out fine. I would like to know if this is serious and whether she will always have it?—L.M.

That usually is a sign of infection somewhere in the tract—kidneys, bladder, etc. It may be something she has thrown off in time, since the cystoscopy shows no further evidence of trouble.

However, a small infection can grow into a large one, and the child should be kept under close periodic medical observation until the situation clears up, or doesn't, in which case she would require more specific treatment.

Any expert would bring six notrump home with today's cards. He would go after the clubs by leading the 10 from dummy.

An East player might solve his problem by covering, but an expert East would duck quickly. It wouldn't matter if East any good. Expert South would let the 10 ride.

He would do this because it's the best play. He plans to take a second finesse later if the 10 loses to the king or queen.

Let's see why this is the best play. There is no way to avoid the loss of two club tricks. West holds K-Q-4; K-Q-2 or K-Q-4-2. This play of two finesses will also lose to K-Q doubleton, but it wins any time East started with either one or both of the honors.

The next best play is to lay down the ace. This will win against K-Q doubleton in the West hand any other 4-2 break or any 3-1 break with divided honors.

The worst play is to let the 10 ride with the plan of playing the ace next. This wins against all 3-2 breaks and against any combination including both kings—queen in the East hand, but it loses to all 3-1 breaks with divided honors.

Incidentally the respective chances of success of the three lines of play are 76 per cent for two finesses; 68 per cent for banging down the ace and only 62 per cent for one finesse followed by the play of the ace.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — San Francisco boozers are getting themselves to death at a rate almost five times the national average, the city Department of Public Health said. The death rate in the city from cirrhosis, connected in research studies to long-term excessive consumption of alcohol, is 72.4 per 100,000, compared to the national average of 15.7 per thousand, a spokesman said.

Nixon Shows Strains Of Enormous Pressure

WASHINGTON (AP) — He once said that the memory of his parents' ability "not to break down" under great strain "has certainly held me together at times when I have been under pressure."

"And," he added, "it always will."

In his book, recalling the day he was sped upon in Caracas in 1958, he noted:

"Standing there in those few seconds was, from the standpoint of temper control, one of my most difficult experiences. . . . Yet while we may show this veneer on the outside, inside the turmoil becomes almost unbearable."

How long, both loyalists and dethroners now wonder, will Nixon's bow durable the single thin word, "almost?" They ask this about Richard Nixon, a man who has made control of his emotions an article of faith and a way of life.

Of course, I am concerned," said his own doctor, Walter Tkach, after saying that his patient shows no medical signs of tension, "because he is taking a heavy toll," said a member of the circle while saying his chief shows few marks of the strain.

"It," of course, is Watergate, where the spit is worse than in Congress. Although the pressures are personal, they are never more and more are questioned, the core of a man's character is prodded and probed under a national microscope, and the stakes are of the highest.

The overwhelming "Nixon Majority" of one triumphant autumn lies buried in numbers. Although Democrats under the dirty snow of a second winter. "The Year of Europe" is replaced by the unending "Year of Watergate." Even foreign crisis is suspect. And the fuel crisis complicates the relief of gas lines. Reached less than 200 yards away, in a handsome Federalist building, Spiro Agnew works on his papers, in solitary disgrace.

I am not a crook," the President of the United States exclaimed at one of those weeping seems to turn away the pointing finger. His friends tell us he returns before the world in the hope of getting out on the first, and three others start smoking. Nixon's shoulders are not a long gap.

His ally of the tongue by this most private of presidents, no droop of the shoulders or no mentary fatigue or pallor goes unnoticed in what must it seem to him a world of Nixon psyche watchers. When he takes questions on television, can he escape the feeling there are millions out there waiting for the first crack? Could he miss, even to his own dogged nerve, the interview with his friend, Billy Graham, who sharply questioned his judgment? Or the one with Barry Goldwater, who said people around the country are asking, yet again, "would you buy a used car from Dick Nixon?" Or the whisper of impeachment's grown to a sustained clamor?

In war, they say, every man has his breaking point, and Richard Nixon has tended to regard much of life as war. He has said, of his sense of battle: "I, perhaps, carry it more than others because that's my way."

Watergate, clearly, is the climactic battle of his life, the fiercest, longest, most pervasive. But the strange pain he wears around his emotions, while denied and bent, has apparently cracked only twice during the long siege.

The first was the worst, and occurred before the fuller dimensions of Watergate had surfaced and encircled him. It now develops that three days before, according to an aide, he got the first word that Spiro Agnew was in trouble. Then, on April 30, he walked to the Oval Office to announce, on television, the departure of his two closest assistants, H. R. Haldeman and John Ehrlichman.

On the way, he asked a speech writer to walk with him and then, spouting some reporters, added bitterly, "unless you think it'll hurt you." After the TV speech, Haldeman says the president went berserk.

The next morning he saw a young FBI agent already stationed outside of Haldeman's office. Infuriated, the president scrawled an angry and literally shoved him out of the corridor. The incident was later described by a man who saw it and another who read a long memo from the shaken young FBI man.

In the New Orleans, there was the famous presidential pain and Ziegler's press secretary, Ziegler sought to explain it as a "gesture of affection," a phrase which soon turned inoperative. Then after Ziegler left a press conference available: "I blew my stack." Ziegler, reminded later at a news conference, without explanation.

There have been lesser signs of the wear and tear of Watergate.

On the night of Dec. 31 an aide found the president alone with the debt ceiling bill, which Congress finally passed 1972, he wrote:

"It may be necessary to take the machine out of gear once in a while, but it is spoiled if you turn the engine off and let the motor get completely cold."

In an interview with this writer early last year, he enclosed him, the president said:

"The whole thing, you can do is this job is to relax, to let go. . . . I never allow myself to get emotional. . . . I have the reputation for being cool under pressure in the room. I have trained myself to be . . .

"I'll probably do better in the next four years, having gone through a few crises . . . I probably am more objective . . . I don't mean this to be self-serving—than most leaders . . . You must be ready for the great events. Up but not down."

His distrust of people on massive extends to people on his own political staff, and a man who had worked for him for five years, on the highest level, added:

"He tends to attribute selfish political purposes to people too readily. He is too quick to see a conspiratorial motive."

Another former high official came away from his bitterest years in the White House with this impression:

"He is very shy, very in-

Hippies Seeking Mushrooms

MEXICO CITY (Reuter) — "No Hippies" signs are sprouting in the hotels of Oaxaca as long-haired and bearded pilgrims searching for new "kicks." They say the mushroom, long used by Indians which grows wild in the green mountains around the provincial city in southern Mexico, has been drawing hippies from the United States for many years.

"The hippies think that the magic mushrooms are as plentiful as hay over here," says Jose Severo of Oaxaca state. Fernando Gomez Sandoval.

The hotels' refusal to admit hippies has not discouraged the Total unemployment declined 140,000 to 8,646,000 in January while the total unemployed climbed 125,000 to 637,000. (CP Newsmap)

Khrushchev Demanded Truth About Terror

MOSCOW (AP) — Under Josef Stalin's terror, "thousands of completely innocent people perished and each person is a whole story."

The author of that phrase is not Alexander Solzhenitsyn, the dissident writer now under massive attack for his latest book exposing the Stalin era.

The author, in fact, was Nikita S. Khrushchev.

When he was at the pinnacle of his authority as chief of government and head of the Communist party, Khrushchev declared he wanted the truth of the terror told to the party and people."

That proposal, made in a speech to the 22nd pary congress in 1961, was close to a new party nerve. And now Solzhenitsyn, in The Gulag Archipelago, actually has touched that nerve, provoking violent official reaction. He has raised a basic question: Has the Soviet regime ever governed with the consent of the people

Four years before the 1961 speech Khrushchev had bested his chief Politburo enemies, Vyacheslav Molotov, Georgi Malenkov and Lazar Kaganovich, in a power struggle. He wasted those men and other close Stalin lieutenants publicly as personally responsible for operating the Stalin terror machine.

"We are obliged to do everything possible to establish the truth now," Khrushchev had told the party. "The greater the length time that separates us from these events, the more difficult it will become to re-establish the truth."

For all his power, Khrushchev was unable to win support for disclosing the truth. The congress debated him for much the same reasons that the Kremlin now reacts so angrily to the new Solzhenitsyn work. They were concerned not aleut the impact of terror on the whole people but only about what it did to the party.

Soviet authorities now seem worried not only about the Kremlin's reputation abroad, but that Solzhenitsyn book will percolate back across guarded frontiers and prompt among ordinary people discussion of a subject party chief Leonid Brezhnev and his colleagues on the Politburo would prefer to keep tightly shut.

As in Khrushchev's day, senior members of the party apparatus, selected and promoted under Stalin, probably are in any open investigation of the regime's uses of illegal terror a danger that the roots of the system's legitimacy can be questioned.

At the 1961 congress, speaker after speaker lamented the consequences of Stalinist mass repression on members of the power structure. Nikolai Podgorny, now head of the state, said at that congress that Stalin and his agents bore "personal responsibility for many mass repressions against the party, the Soviet state and the economic, military and Young Communist League cadres." Others now in high positions echoed Podgorny then.

But their sense of outrage seemed confined to the toll taken among the party and its leadership.

Summing up what must have been a common sentiment, Leonid Yefremov, then a Gorky regional secretary, said: "Our anger and repression against many party and state officia ... created a feeling of uncertainty in the party organization and hampered solution of very important problems in economic construction and cultural development."

By limiting debate to the impact of terror on the party, the leaders made it seem the whole thing was an "internal" party matter and avoided the really touchy question of the consequence among the people as a whole.

Solzhenitsyn now attempts to demonstrate the extent to which innocent people—not party men—suffered under Stalin's terror, whose victims are numbered in the many millions.

Solzhenitsyn's book about the horrors of the forced labor camp system and the misuse of Soviet law covers the period from 1918 to 1956, the year when Khrushchev made the first "de-Stalinization" speech. That period overlaps the Stalin era on both ends and the author affirms that the labor camp structure that formed the maw of the terror remains in place.

Services Consulting

The Northumberland Area Task Force, set up under the Ontario Government Design for Development Program, invites regional planning consultant services to assist the Task Force in making recommendations to the Government of Ontario regarding appropriate development strategies for the area, within the framework of the Central Ontario Region, (Toronto Centred Region) Concept.

These development strategies will relate to the amount, rate and direction of urban and economic growth in The Northumberland Area, taking into consideration environmental and ecological constraints.

Initially, please forward a brief outline detailing background and experience. A short list of consultants will then be selected and each of these will be requested to make a comprehensive proposal.

Closing date for replies is to be received by Friday, March 1, 1974.

THE SILENT DISEASE — HYPERTENSION — Lawrence Galton

Hypertension, or high blood pressure, is modern man's most common ailment. Lawrence Galton, nationally known as a medical reporter, exposes in this book the myths and ignorance that have grown up around this disease and explains in layman's language its real cause, how to know you have it, and what to do about it.

WITHOUT RESERVE — Sheila Burnford

Sheila Burnford, author of the "Incredible Journey", has for many years travelled to the lake-strewn forests west of Hudson Bay, to live with and make friends with the Cree and Ojibwa Indians of these northern reserves. The life of these Indian people has little material comfort, but is rich in legend and tradition, a culture most visitors would find difficult to penetrate. Mrs. Burnford closes her story with a plea for understanding of these vulnerable people, whose ancient values have meaning for us all.

SERPICO — Peter Maas

Frank Serpico had wanted to be a cop since he was a boy, a good cop, but from the moment he embarked on his first assignment as a rookie policeman, he realized his fellow police officers did not share his idea of what a good cop should be. He found bribery and corruption all around him, and a system which encouraged it. This is the story of one man's fight to wipe out graft in the New York Police Department.

AS WE ARE NOW — May Sarton

The problems which surround old age affect us all to one form or another, and this short novel by May Sarton tells of an elderly woman trying to keep her independence of mind and body in a remote country nursing home. The situation is tragic, but challenges our compassion and imagination where the question of the elderly is concerned.

GUIDING YOUR CHILD TO A MORE CREATIVE LIFE — Freydelle Maynard

Every child is unique, Dr. Maynard repeats this again and again throughout this book, but wonders why after a few years they seem to lose their natural independence, curiosity, and spontaneity. As an educator, mother and consultant in child development, she proposes ways in which parents can keep alive and active, a child's creative spirit. Suggestions as to choosing toys, books, records, as well as several annotated book lists are included in this informative book.

UNGLAZED CHINA — J. Tuzo Wilson

The eminent Canadian geophysicist, J. Tuzo Wilson, has visited The Peoples Republic of China on two occasions in 1958 and again in 1971. His diary of the 1971 trip, 'Unglazed China', tells of the striking changes which have taken place in China in fourteen years. Countless details are recorded which gives the armchair traveller a tangible sense of China today.

Post Office Hires Help

TORONTO (CP) — Part of a mail embargo imposed earlier this week at Toronto's central post office may be lifted today following consultation with the Canadian Union of Postal Workers, a post office spokesman said Wednesday.

"We have consulted with the union and have agreed, to hire emergency short-term staff on a round-the-clock basis to move the mail, said Ed Haworth, post office public relations officer, as the main station went through a second day of accepting only first-class mail and daily and weekly newspapers.

"We hope to be able to lift part of the embargo Thursday and possibly the rest of the embargo by the weekend," he said in an interview.

The backlog began with a 15-hour illegal walkout nine days ago. Now more than 50,000 bags of mail have accumulated and are overflowing into other Metropolitan Toronto postal stations. Normally 45 per cent of all Canadian mail goes through the main terminal here.

Within 24 hours, with the help of the embargo on magazines, parcels and other low priority mail, extra employees reduced by almost half the 25 tractor trailers and 34 boxcars of mail that were waiting to be unloaded, the spokesman said.

Postal officials lay part of the blame for the backlog on "overreacting" by large volume mailers to the original walkout. They say these companies panicked and jammed the terminal with mailings as much as three weeks ahead of schedule.

Union officials deny that any slowdown is in effect and say the problem in part dates back to last November when management allowed 200 positions to go unfilled except for some part-time hirings.

A union steward said he is sure there were management reports that say the central Toronto facilities are unable to handle the load.

However, Mr. Haworth, who agreed that some of the equipment was out of date, said it does not explain the sudden inability of the system to handle the mail.

Rumble in the Rear

Peterborough Lions' goalie Rob Duncan glances over his shoulder to keep an eye out for the puck. Duncan got an eyeful of the action behind the net as Bobcat Rob Foster (8) and Peterborough defenceman Jake Ayotte pull each other to the ice in their attempts to get to the puck. While Ayotte was keeping Foster occupied his team mate, between them and the net, scrambled past the pair and cleared the puck out of harms way. Belleville won 4-2, giving the Bobcats a 1-0 lead in the best of seven quarter final series of the Mero Junior B playoffs. For story, see page 15.

Five-year Program to Provide Replacements for Old Prisons

OTTAWA (CP) — Solicitor-General Warren Allmand Wednesday announced a five-year building program designed to relieve overcrowding in Canada's penitentiary service.

No cost figures were announced for the flexible program but the construction of six medium security institutions starting in the next fiscal year is expected to be in excess of $20 million.

The program calls for the eventual replacement of the elderly high-walled and outmoded maximum security penitentiaries at Dorchester, N.B., St. Vincent de Paul, Que., Kingston, Ont., and New Westminster, B.C. but Mr. Allmand's announcement gave no indication when in the five years work will start on this.

After that, the government will review the situation to see if it varies if factors, ranging from greater federal-provincial cooperation to a possible decrease in the prison population, would lead to continued building necessary.

The fact there would be such a program had been well known for some time, but it had been expected the higher priority would be given to replacing the elderly and overcrowded British Columbia penitentiary.

The first-stage, some of which has already been announced, calls for new medium security institutions at:

—Mission, B.C., and elsewhere on the British Columbia lower mainland.

—In the Edmonton and Winnipeg areas. These are in addition to the recent acquisition by the federal government of the Bowden Institute from the Alberta government. It will be made into a medium security penitentiary.

—A new Ontario medium security institution at a site in the heavily-populated area between Toronto and London yet to be selected. Already announced is renovation of parts of the old Kingston penitentiary.

The first-stage also calls for a start on a new psychiatric institution at the University of Saskatchewan—a similar one will be built in Halifax later—and a community correctional centre in Quebec City.

Work already has started in Quebec on renovations to the old St. Vincent de Paul, which must used on a temporary basis to relieve overcrowding.

The feature of all new institutions will be their small size in comparison with old-style prisons. Population will be between 120 and 180 prisoners.

This is in line with current thinking, allowing for greater freedom within while security is concentrated on the perimeter. This creates an atmosphere believed to be conducive to rehabilitation.

Kidnappers Ask $4 Million

HILLSBOROUGH, Calif. (AP) — Abductors of newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst have sent a new communication to the family of the kidnapped girl, a family spokesman said today. Contents of the message were not immediately revealed.

Radio station KCBS in San Francisco said the message, a tape recording, was believed to contain a new demand of $4 million in cash.

The message was reported to have come from the Symbionese Liberation Army (SLA).

There was no indication the two kidnappings were related.

Atlanta Editor Radicals' Captive

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Reg Murphy, editor of the Atlanta Constitution, has been abducted by a group calling itself the "Revolutionary Army," the newspaper said today.

Murphy, 40, has been missing since Wednesday night when he left his home with a man who said he wanted to talk to him about a news story, his wife said.

"There have been no demands, but there were indications that a follow-up telephone call was expected.

William Fields, executive editor of Atlanta Newspapers, which publishes The Constitution and Atlanta Journal, said the newspaper received a telephone call Wednesday night.

He said similar calls were made to Atlanta television station WAGA and to Mrs. Murphy.

The FBI in Atlanta and Washington declined comment.

Fields issued a brief statement which said:

"Reg Murphy presumably has been kidnapped. Jim Minter, managing editor of The Constitution, received a telephone call at 9:15 p.m. (EST) from someone saying Murphy had been kidnapped by the 'Revolutionary Army.'

"The caller said the Constitution would hear further by other means. Channel 5 TV (WAGA) received a similar call at about 9:20 p.m. Shortly thereafter, Murphy's wife received a call from someone who said, 'If you want to know about your husband, call Jim Minter.'

Mrs. Murphy said the person who called her did not identify himself in any way.

"I am not sure what to do," she said. "I have no other information. I am waiting now for some kind of contact."

FBI agents searched Murphy's office for clues again today after having made a search Wednesday night, sources at the paper said.

It was the second major kidnapping this month. Patricia Hearst, 20, daughter of newspaper executive Randolph Hearst, was abducted from her Berkeley, Calif., home Feb. 4 by a group calling itself the Symbionese Liberation Army (SLA).

Solzhenitsyn's Wife Promised Quick Exit

MOSCOW (AP) — Alexander Solzhenitsyn's wife says she and her family have been promised quick approval of their application for exit visas to join the exiled writer in Western Europe.

Natalya Solzhenitsyn said Soviet authorities also told her that "in principle" her husband's books and papers can be taken to the West.

Solzhenitsyn said in an interview earlier this week that unless he can get the research materials he assembled for the "historical novel of revolutionary times" he began with August 1914, he would have to abandon the multi-volume project. He said in that case he would write about the Soviet present.

Mrs. Solzhenitsyn said she conferred Wednesday with Col. Gen. Vasily Fedorov, chief of the Moscow passport office, and other officials there. They gave her the visa applications to fill out, but she said she has not started work on them yet.

All Hospitals Urged To Alter Gas Systems

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — A medical expert investigating one of 23 deaths in a new wing of Sudbury General Hospital suggested in the coroner's jury today how anesthetic procedures should be improved.

Dr. David Pelton, hired by the coroner's office, said all medical gas systems in Canadian hospitals should be modified to meet 1973 Canadian Standards Association provisions.

Dr. Pelton, head anesthetist at Toronto's Hospital for Sick Children, also recommended use of an oxygen analyser in anesthetic circuits, automatic cut-off devices for anesthetia machines and continuous monitoring of patients during anesthesia.

Hospitals should also hire well-trained respiratory technologists, provide in-service emergency treatment training programs and maintain adequate oxygen supplies in rooms containing explosive wall outlets, he said.

Dr. Pelton was the fifth and final witness into the death last September of Catherine Dominic, 6. The jury will begin to hear evidence into the deaths of the other 22 next week.

In explaining his recommendations, Dr. Pelton said a major problem exists in Canadian hospitals because new standards are never applied retroactively.

"Most medical gas systems do not have the protective alarm systems now available. I feel something should be done to existing hospitals where the most modern protective devices are not in use today."

He said some hospitals use oxygen analysers on anesthetic machines, but "the question most of us don't have it is strictly economics—they are quite costly."

Hospitals should be using the devices and a respiratory technologist should be hired to maintain anesthetic equipment.

Latin American Ministers Meet Kissinger

MEXICO CITY (AP) — State Secretary Henry Kissinger began three days of meetings with 24 Latin American and Caribbean foreign ministers today amid signs some of them will press for Washington to ease its boycott of Cuba.

The foreign ministers have prepared an eight-point agenda of the region's problems with the United States, Kissinger also wants to discuss the energy crisis and give a broad U.S. view of the current international situation.

After Buying Cheap Sugar for Two Years Canada Must Now Pay Soaring World Price

MONTREAL (CP) — The price of raw sugar imported into Canada has more than doubled in less than a year because of a lack of international price controls, W. C. Brown, president of the Canadian Sugar Institute, said Wednesday.

A 100-pound bag of raw sugar cost $13 last summer. By Jan. 1 the price rose to $20 and this week it soared to $31.25, said Mr. Brown, whose organization represents Canadian sugar refiners.

A spokesman for Steinberg's Ltd., grocery chains said retail prices in Montreal also increased during that period. A 10-pound bag of sugar cost $1.49 last August, she said, $2.45 in mid-January and was selling Wednesday at $2.99.

She said Canadian consumers can expect further price changes as the international market oscillates because Canada imports 85 per cent daily sugar requirements. Western Canada produces the remaining 15 per cent from sugar beet crops.

Mr. Brown said prices remained stable for most of 1972 and 1973 because of the existence of a 59-member international sugar organization including Canada.

Canada was fortunate in those two years because it bought sugar "at a lower level than the world price," he said. "Now there is no formula for tying down prices as the agreement expired at the end of 1973 and was not renewed."

Canada, he said, now must buy sugar on a world free market fluctuating on a supply and demand basis. This pricing structure is susceptible to "floods in Australia and crop failures in Cuba."

Production levels lower than expected in Cuba and Russia had created international shortages causing prices to skyrocket.

Canada buys most of its sugar from Australia and South Africa. Previously the West Indies supplied much of our sugar but production has diminished there, he added.

Sweet Shipment

It looks like salt, it could be snow, but it's really 40,000 tons of raw cane sugar from Swaziland at Redpath Sugar Refinery in Toronto. Redpath will not receive another shipment of raw cane until April when the first ships arrive. Price of sugar to the refineries jumped from $.29 to $0.31 a pound Tuesday while the consumer has endured a rise from 15 cents a pound last August to 30 cents today. (CP Photo)

Chief Warns Trenton

More Firemen Needed

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

TRENTON Trenton may be jeopardizing its fire protection through economies involving staff.

In a report to council, Chief Cecil Ellis, claimed, "The fire department is the only service in Trenton that is forced to send a man out on a piece of equipment (a truck) alone."

All other municipal departments allow for at least two men to a vehicle, said the chief, pointing specifically to public works and the police department.

"When a call is received and only one truck responds, this truck is operated by only one man," the chief said.

"On two separate occasions this year a man had to be sent back to the station to put out a general alarm" (calling for outside help), the chief wrote.

During Monday's committee-of-the-whole session the report which called for increases in numbers of men on each shift, was discussed briefly.

To heighten the work load on the Trenton department, "this municipality provides fire protection in Murray township for $12,000 a year."

"They're getting it cheap for what we're giving them," said the chief.

In light of the shortage of staff, "I'm asking for more men. I don't want to be left holding the bag when fires occur simultaneously in the township and in town."

Year by year the chief says the number of fires is increasing. Murray township calls nearly doubled last year. "We need more men in order to fight fires," Chief Ellis said.

The chief said both areas were growing, and pointed to the rate of subdivision growth and the arrival of Trenton's first highrise.

Council made little comment on the three-men-a-shift recommendation from the chief. But some councillors called for re-evaluation of Murray Township's contribution to the $250,000 annual fire department budget.

"We've got the equipment - if we can only get the men," said the chief.

Worker Fined

Convention For Picton?

PICTON — Prince Edward County council's economic development committee has recommended support for any efforts by the town of Picton to obtain the 1975 Ontario Municipal Association convention.

William Duggan director of economic development said that late Picton mayor H.J. McFarland originally had the suggestion of the OMA convention in Prince Edward. He added that it is usually held in May and should be a beneficial activity here.

CGE Strikers Get Last Pay Cheques

TRENTON — Trenton's 250 Canadian General Electric workers pick up their last pay cheque today as a province-wide strike continues.

Workers will have to pay family budgets now as regular salary cheques are replaced next week with $20-$30 strike pay cheques.

Gerry Young president of Local 509, Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers Union, said the strikers' economic situation will be tight but workers have had months to prepare for it.

"We wanted a good offer or a strike ... and we were prepared for either," said the local union chief.

More than 6,400 workers across the province are in the same position as the strike today begins its second week.

"We don't know how long the strike will last ... it's in the company's hands now ... whenever they want to sit down and talk about it again," says Mr. Young.

Jobs apparently are scarce around town, forcing the vast majority of workers to rely on strike pay and the incomes of husbands and wives.

"Not many of our people have found part-time jobs," said Mr. Young. "They're scarce."

He said morale was high on the picket line and that the lack of jobs "isn't hurting right now."

During the strike action which, union spokesmen say has completely shut down the Trenton CGE operation, picketers have been quiet. Police report no disturbances.

No shipment trucks have gained access to the West Street plant.

There has been no word from CGE when negotiations will be resumed.

Asked if the union expected company reprimands for the wildcat action several hours before the strike vote was counted, president Young said it was a "damned good question" that he couldn't answer.

He said the walkout, though earlier than the official strike action was after the membership's 16-day waiting period following the union's refusal of the company's final offer.

Land Is Precious Possession On Mohawks' Shrunken Reserve

TYENDINAGA — The Quinte Mohawk council Tuesday night decided against any possible land easement to Ontario Hydro, now seeking power corridor from Ed-Ward County across the Bay of Quinte.

Reason for the refusal is that land now is a precious possession for this reserve. Its actual size today only a shrunken replica of the original holding given — then virtually impoverished — in early administrations.

The reserve route for power lines is only one of a cluster of alternatives on which Hydro has been questioned. Public opinion crowed the Bay of Quinte shoreline.

Chief William Brant told council if Hydro study team already had been told this week by reserve spokesmen the Mohawks do not favor any more land easements on a reserve already constricted in size.

But just how small it's shrivelled since its founding even surprised the chief last night when council heard from Mel Hill, its official researcher and archivist.

Tyendinaga reserve today is only 19,000 acres — all that's left of the original 92,700 acres granted in 1793 by British colonial administrators.

The rest has gone in surrenders — most of it land taken back at a nominal sum by government to create and settle Tyendinaga township for white pioneers.

Population pressure trends already are evident on the reserve that has about 1,200 Mohawks. Many lots have been repeatedly broken down into smaller parcels as natives remain to raise families and others return. The population is on the upswing.

But the reserve, now so greatly reduced, can't expand in size, says Chief Brant.

"I think when people see our situation they'll understand our concern about the land and such things as further easements," he explained.

Mr. Hill told council the first surrender came little more than 25 years after the reserve was first set aside. In 1820 a huge 52-square-mile tract was sliced from the reserve in return for an annual rental of 450 pounds sterling — about $1,800 at today's values. The Mohawks still receive the yearly payment.

Ironically, meantime, the area has become a hunting ground for big-city urbanites seeking rural living in Tyendinaga township and paying high prices.

The next surrender — in the 1830s — was 17,000 acres involved no money for the Mohawks; the last was in 1856.

"I think when you see all the land that's been surrendered, it makes the little we've left pretty precious," observed Mr. Hill.

Big Budget Pondered

TRENTON — Town council Wednesday brought out the scissors, seeking ways of cutting back a proposed capital budget that exceeds $1 million.

Eyebrows were raised in the community two weeks ago when the proposed budget was announced along with a theoretical 11-mill increase if it accepted as it stands.

At that time it was evident cuts would be needed somewhere when one councillor called, "when do we start slashing?"

Town treasurer Brian Fagan, said councillors have been able to evaluate the budget proposals and expected only a scissor session would be needed.

Marmora-Lake Plebiscite Ends 60 Years of No Liquor

Marmora — Voters of Marmora - Lake township have voted heavily in favor of ending the 60-year drought which has ruled out sale of liquor in the municipality.

Wednesday, in a 60 per cent turnout of voters, township residents in a liquor plebiscite voted 85 per cent in favor of allowing the sale of liquor beer and wine on licensed premises.

Mabel Gawley municipal clerks treasurer, said official results of the vote would be ready by early afternoon Thursday.

There were three questions on yesterday's plebiscite: (1) Sale of beer and wine only, under a dining room license with food available; (2) Sale of liquor under a dining lounge license with food available; (3) Sale of liquor under a lounge license on licensed premises.

The request for the vote was made by Russ Jarvis of the Relm Club on Highway 7 west of the village.

The twinned townships have been dry since 1914 when prohibition was voted in.

Wednesday's vote was the second liquor plebiscite to be held in centre Hastings recently.

Several months ago votes of Elzivir and Grimsthorpe voted in favor of the sale of liquor.

Seek Arms For Police

TYENDINAGA — The Quinte Mohawk council Wednesday night formally resolved that its police force should have the right to carry sidearms.

The two-man force, college-trained and equipped with new cruiser and police station, recently was told it could not be permitted arms by provincial police authorities because its staff was regarded as bylaw enforcement officers.

Council, earlier annoyed by the ruling last night passed a resolution that chief its constables have effectively performed police duties well beyond the status of bylaw enforcers. The carrying of sidearms was deemed "necessary in the performance of their duties."

Council also resolved the officers be appointed as supernumerary special constables by the RCMP.

Men at Work

TYENDINAGA — There are no employable people on welfare on this reserve, the Quinte Mohawk council was told Wednesday night.

The main reason: Various works projects organized by reserve administrator Elliot Brant that have helped provide jobs for those who might have to rely on welfare.

A welfare report informed council only six or seven people — including heads of families who cannot work were dependent on welfare payments on this reserve of 1,200.

Who's to Blame

The Trudeau government is one of the most free-spending administrations in Canadian history, yet Prime Minister Trudeau has the gall to say inflation is mainly beyond the control of government . . . and further, that it is caused by people "who want to take more out of society than they put into it."

It is true there are a lot of people like that (15 years or so ago the then Governor of the Bank of Canada, James Coyne, put it this way: "Canadians are living grandly beyond their means"), but who is crying hait. Not Mr. Trudeau, who seems to be simply thumbing in the sponge and blaming it all on the public, as well as on Opposition clamor for more expenditures. And certainly not the likes of Mrs. Beryl Plumptre of the Food Prices Review Board who is earning $40,000 a year to tell us what most of us already know.

We recall the time a few years ago when the Government did make appropriate noises that it would have to take drastic steps to curb spending. — Its own and the public's. Mitchell Sharp was Minister of Finance and brought in an interim budget or two with such curbs in mind and with warnings, in which Mr. Trudeau joined, that if the inflationary process could not thereby be cooled then still more stringent measures would be necessary.

Nothing of course was done and the spending continues, there have been the food shortages and the high energy crisis, and money is becoming increasingly valueless.

The Government, meanwhile, fiddles while the Canadian dollar, and other currencies caught in the world spiral, burn.

Misplaced Aid

Canada is so busy making the scene with money (taxpayers' money) in countries of Africa where guerrilla liberation movements, themselves (backed to the hilt by Moscow and Peking) operate, that we are in danger of forgetting there are reasons enough for putting the money to good use at home.

As Ottawa gazes with jaded and hypocritical eyes across continents to South Africa and apartheid (which let it be remembered means not so much discrimination as separate and parallel development of the different races) we might ask how much money has been dispensed lately on behalf of Canada's Indian population?

How many stop to think moreover that the Indian population here also lives in a state of moreorless voluntary apartheid: on the reserve, isolated from the rest of the population, with little in the way of resources, and having only the most superficial contacts with other Canadians.

Granted, many of the Indians want it that way but for the most part they represent the older generation. This suits Ottawa very well of course, but the hypocrisy of it, the negativeness of it as it affects the youger generation of Indians, is the real climate that supposedly is encouraging Canadian unity, was illustrated by a recent Citizenship ceremony in Toronto.

Prime Minister Trudeau was there and the ceremony saw a considerable number of Italians being welcomed as citizens. An admirable development, and it seems it resulted from the Government persuasion among a people who tend to hold onto the citizenship of their birth.

But does Ottawa evince the same kind of interest in the Indians? How much is being done in the sphere of housing and recreation for instance?

We are not saying the Indians cannot look after themselves, or even that the bureaucrats should be spreading themselves through the reserves spoonfeeding a people whose sense of identity and pride in any event would preclude such a patronizing attitude. However, we are wondering if there is not a great deal that could be done, not only for Indians, but for younger generations of people in extremity — too late now, but youngsters like the 16-year-old girl who recently hanged herself in Toronto's grim Don Jail while awaiting sentence for theft — and generally improving the Canadian social, not to mention economic, scene. And this before we let our legislators allow dollars to go winging their way to far-off lands where democracy is virtually dead and subversive elements are skilfully tearing at the fabric of established order, and blood brothers that they are of people in our own midst who want to do the same here.

French Foreign Policy Remains Strongly Individualistic

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

French foreign policy if infuriating to most of her Western allies is also consistent, more than you can for the foreign policy of some other countries which criticize the French, including ourselves.

The Anglo-Saxon world and some of France's unsavory associates in the European Common Market anticipated that French intransigence would die with the late Gen. de Gaulle.

This was wishful thinking not only because Frenchmen at large appeared pleased with a posture which often placed France first in European affairs, even if in substance this was not true.

French "go-it-alone" policies reach back some time now. The independent nuclear defence policy, the so-called "force de frappe" was a creature of early Gaullism of the late 1950s and still costs France a fortune which could be better used to change that nation's horrendous housing and bad social services.

The overtones of Britain allegedly coming into the European Common Market under French rules, which millions of Englishmen still believe to be the case, have been raised again by Labor Opposition Leader Harold Wilson.

He has promised to undo the Heath package for British entry into Europe, effective Jan 1, 1973, because the rules were French-dictated.

France in the oil crisis primarily through her current spokesman, Foreign Minister Jobbert, pursues the identical individualism in international meetings which she did under the late de Gaulle.

The spectacle of a French foreign minister whose spoken English is lyrically perfect, addressing the Washington Conference of Oil Consuming Nations through an interpreter, was a bit much. So was the French individualism down at that conference.

But then France had already engaged in the kind of heavy bilateral deals with the Arabs, with Iran for oil, deals for industrial equipment for oil, which the Washington conference somehow wanted to forestall.

To say nothing of perfidious Albion which had done the same thing on the heels of the French in offering hundreds of heavy British tanks, super supersophisticated jet aircraft to Arab states in return for their oil.

The French would say everyone is in the self-preservation game, oil being merely the latest manifestation of it and France herself being the longest practitioner of it among the world's larger industrial powers.

This French Independence has also extended to economic and financial policies, floating the franc without warning, clinging to old-fashioned gold-backed currency decisions when the rest of the world through the International Monetary Fund is trying to make a substitute scheme work in place of the defunct and badly-used gold standard.

And finally France remains, as she has since 1960, with one foot in NATO, the other out. This was the first of the many post-war European international arrangements to bring Europe out of the 1939-1945 cold and into a fresh postwar community of interest.

NATO was the military shield against Russia in the cold war time. Other developments since then, the end of the cold war and nuclear energy commissions, the Common Market itself have been joint European economic endeavors.

France ever intransigent, has bucked nearly all of them.

Author's Ouster Violates UN Conventions

By GEORGE KITCHEN
UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The Soviet Union appears to have violated some fundamental United Nations conventions, not to mention its own laws, by expelling author Alexander Solzhenitsyn but no one is likely to try to make an issue of the affair.

There is some feeling that the Nobel Prize winner is lucky to have his head or, at the least, not to find himself languishing in a Siberian prison. This lends support to the Soviet view that Solzhenitsyn will be a nine-day wonder and will gradually blend into the literary landscape as another exiled Russian intellectual.

The Soviet action, which also deprived the writer of his citizenship, appears to have violated two provisions of the UN declaration on human rights — Article 9 which states that "no one shall be subjected to arbitrary . . . exile" and Article 15 which provides that "no one shall be arbitrarily deprived of his nationality."

No mention of the Solzhenitsyn affair has been made in the current public hearings of the UN's Commission on Human Rights, which is charged with trying to safeguard those fundamental liberties. The soviet Union is a member of that commission.

However, some members of the commission are known to take the view that little can be gained by embarrassing particular states by putting the international spotlight on them and running the risk of driving them away from the commission discussions.

These members feel that it it better to maintain gentle pressure by encouraging such states to report on what they are doing for human rights and to involve them in discussions in the hope that in the long term such influence can be brought to bear on them.

Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim, asked to comment on the affair, described it as a "personal" tragedy.

UN officials declined comment on the ground that the case falls within the scope of Article 2 of the UN charter. That article bars UN intervention "in matters which are essentially within the domestic jurisdiction of any state."

It would not be difficult for the Soviets to argue that the Solzhenitsyn case was a domestic problem because they take that stand they would appear to be on shaky ground since their own law has no provision for such expulsions.

The Soviet criminal code of 1922 provided for the expulsion of "enemies of the people." It was under that provision that Leon Trotsky was thrunk across the border into Turkey in the 1920s after he clashed with Stalin.

But this provision was withdrawn from the revised Soviet criminal code of 1960 and students of Russian law say there is no provision today for expulsion of dissenters.

Parliamentary Secretaries' Protest

Ottawa Journal

The timing couldn't have been better for federal government secretaries protesting on Parliament Hill Thursday. Not the timing of the demonstration for Valentine's Day, cleverer as it was, but the coincidence of a speech in Toronto the same day by Sylvia Gelber, director of the women's bureau of the labor department. She put it this way:

"Although women workers still only represent one-third of the labor force they do not occupy one-third of the jobs. Jobs are mostly proportionate to their numbers either in terms of occupational distribution or in terms of compensation. The obvious underemployment of these workers cannot be calculated on the basis of statistical data, but it must be clear that this represents a substantial waste of human resources."

The secretaries' complaints centered on "rug-ranking" — in which a secretary is paid by the rank of her superior rather than by the work she performs. But the list of recommended improvements in the treatment of the "ST" category of civil servants goes far beyond that, touching on the basic issue of advancement into higher job categories. The government can certainly do more to enable ambitious secretaries to apply their often wide range of skills to jobs listed under other categories. Old attitudes won't change overnight, but structural impediments to such advancement can be eliminated now.

As Sylvia Gelber said: "Business and government cannot afford to preach efficiency in manpower planning and to talk of the efficient use of manpower resources, while continuing to tolerate practices which fly in the face of these principles in the use of one-third of the labor force is cancerned."

P.C. Leader's Electoral Bid

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Poor Robert Stanfield. He is running up, more miles than most of his predecessors trying to convince a disinterested public that his Tory party has a cure for what ails Canada.

The latest polls indicate the public are not buying his medicine. That's not hard to understand, at least in Ontario.

Every day we read of one Tory politician or another getting involved in a conflict of interest. The latest outrage is the National Heritage business at Kingston. Imagine the chicanery that could go on across Canada on a national scale if the Tory crew got elected.

Recall the activities of the Diefenbaker years — the biggest majority in Canada's history and within five years, over 400,000 unemployed and practically no inflationary pressures.

The shortage of fuel is a minor crisis — the election of a Tory government would be a major catastrophe with all the trimmings — to the soup kitchens.

Newspapers in Classroom

From The Kitchener-Waterloo Record

A Kansas grandmother recently showed 115 elementary school teachers a variety of ways of using newspapers to make their classes more enjoyable and their students asmarter.

"If a textbook is more than a week old today, it is obsolete," Hope Shackleford said, explaining to the teachers why newspapers are such a valuable teaching aid.

The teachers were attending a seminar at the Waterloo Motor Inn as part of the Newspaper in the Classroom program co-sponsored by The Record.

Mrs. Shackleford, a junior high school English teacher from Wichita, Kan., is regarded as the foremost authority on the use of newspapers as educational materials.

The seminar was the second she has conducted in the Waterloo Region in the past several years and the 200th she has given in the U.S. and Canada since she started lecturing 12 years ago.

"School must teach today what no one knew yesterday but what must be known tomorrow for mankind's survival," she said.

Newspapers contain not only a great deal of information but information that can be used to enrich learning skills like language, mathematics and art and enable students to become discerning and knowledgeable citizens, she said.

Moreover, the discarded newspapers provide the base for a wide variety of arts and crafts, and these days can even provide money for class projects by being recycled.

Mrs. Shackleford said that through the regular use of newspapers students who are poor readers improve and current events assume a much stronger and important role in "real life"—and a student's world.

Reserved Parking System

Ontario Trade and Expert

TORONTO — A reserved space parking system that answers the problem of illegally parked vehicles in already allocated spaces has been developed by an Ontario firm.

Quasex Investments Ltd., of Toronto, is marketing what it calls Reservapark, a system consisting of specially designed meters which indicate clearly by means of a red warning sign whether a vehicle is parked illegally or not.

Each cylindrical meter is fitted with an individual lock, the matching key being given to the owner of the allocated vehicle. When the vehicle is parked, the reserved sign is removed by a turn of the key and upon departure, the sign is activated.

Gerald F. Brooks, president of the firm, notes that illegally parked cars can be spotted at a glance, thus avoiding time consuming checking procedures by parking authority staff.

The system is readily adaptable to almost unlimited situations and locations. It can be used at apartment buildings, in-hotels, office complexes, airports, hospitals, schools, camp grounds, hotels, motels and overnight street parking.

The company recently exhibited its parking devices at the annual convention of municipal Parking Congress in St. Louis and led to interest on this new concept at a parking association convention in Los Angeles in October.

Trial installations have been placed and the city of Hamilton has expressed an interest in the system. Discussions have also been held with an English firm from London about the meter's possible sale in that market.

Wolf Country Legend

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

In a recent edition of the Kingston Whig-Standard there appeared a letter to the editor under the heading "Wolves" by Mr. Ken Lee, of Ardoch.

In discussing the wolf situation in Frontenac county, the writer refers to a fatal attack happening about 40 years ago at Mr. Lee's. Lee's station east of Belleville.

The writer goes on to say a number of wolves made their escape from the circus train that derailed there. In an excess number of wolves in our county. No one in this community — aside from the author of the article — seems to have any recollection of a circus train mishap.

Could you conveniently check your records and search for the period for this alleged train wreck for I have serious doubts that such a wreck ever occurred. During my day I have often attended the Exhibition and if he can't recall having ever noticed personal wolves for the very good reason they do not make for easy training.

Potholes Damaging

Editor,

The most common symphony in our city today rings out with those very destructive overtones — something like Kerr-Plunk-Kerr-Plunk- I'll shake you into junk.

The Kerr-Plunk curse has been brought down on us by our City Fathers to destroy our faithful four wheeled companions and jar us into a submissive state — who has the energy to argue or complain after a few blocks of the Kerr-Plunk treatment.

I seem to recall something about a 10,000 dollar goods bonding payment plan. It goes something like this — Trust our good reputation in such a way that it will develop 20 potholes instead of the original one — that is plan and progress.

That brings to mind an old saying — "Familiarity with potholes breeds a disillusioned electorate.

Building Probe Told Of Threats

HAMILTON (CP) — A Hamilton contractor and his family were threatened by a carpenters union official who also sought financial favors from a trust company, the Ontario royal commission of inquiry into irregularities in the construction industry was told Wednesday.

Patrick Daly, owner of P. J. Daly Plastering Contracting Ltd., testified that Charles Guagliano, financial secretary of local 18, United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, told him: "If you want war, we'll give you war."

He said that at the time, his company had a collective agreement with a lathers' local and he was being pressured by the carpenters to sign with them. He signed in 1973.

Because he refused air first, he and his family received threats, he said, adding that there were threats of picket lines on job sites where bit company worked and that he was under pressure from the lathers' union.

"Me and my family went through hell for a year because of Local 18." He testified that Mr. Guagliano and Tom Fenwick, union business agent, came to his home in 1971 and told him to sign with the carpenters or there would be trouble.

He was also told that "it's too bad your family will have to suffer the consequences."

He said that Mr. Guagliano told him after those events that "this is how people end up in the bay . . . Hamilton Bay."

"I'm more concerned about what's going to happen now," he told County Court Judge Harry Waisberg, the inquiry commissioner.

Stanfield Outlines Party's Oil Policies

EDMONTON (CP) — Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield came to Canada's oil capital Wednesday to talk about the federal government's failure to contain inflation but spent much of his time talking about energy.

Mr. Stanfield reaffirmed his position favoring gradual price increases for western oil coupled with changes in national policy to encourage industrial development in the West.

He said domestic oil prices should remain just below world market level. In return for maintaining low prices to domestic consumers, the West should be given policies that would diversify the economy of the West and "enable these provinces to achieve some of their long-standing ambitions."

He said Ottawa and the provincial governments can reach an agreement for a new price "if the federal government wants to reach an agreement."

BLIND RIVER, Ont. (CP) — Two Ontario pilots, missing since Monday when their light plane crashed on Minaisaagi Island walked eight miles across ice to safety here Wednesday.

Inquest Hears Engineer

Gas Installers Said Unqualified

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — A mechanical engineer testified Wednesday that the people who installed the final gas system in the new wing of Sudbury General Hospital "had no idea how you should put a medical gas system together."

Thomas Friday told an inquest into one of 23 of the hospital deaths under investigation that he disagreed with earlier testimony by some of the plumbers who installed the system—that there is nothing different between medical gas systems and such systems as sewage and water.

"The only thing they knew," Mr. Friday said, "is that they had to use decreased piping and high-heat solder."

"The joints were not cleaned, which is standard practice and very important, and the hanging of the system was not in accordance with specifications or standard practice."

Mr. Friday described tests done on the system as haphazard and added that the people assisted in the tests, employes of Comstock Inter- what a cross-examination should be.

Personal Exemptions: whom you can claim, when you can claim, how you can claim, and let's do it together now.

This page is entitled "Claim for Personal Exemptions" and that's what we're filling out. Now turn to your Guide and read items 32, 33 and 34.

Everyone gets the Basic Personal Exemption of $1,600.
No matter who you are, what you earned, how old you are, or what your marital status is, you get the $1,600 (unless you arrived in Canada or left the country during 1973. Item 37 of your Guide covers these cases).

Some of us get the Age Exemption.
If you were born in 1908 or earlier, you claim an additional $1,000. In other words, if you were or turned 65 during 1973, you may claim the Age Exemption regardless of your income. (Guide Item 33).

Married Exemption: who claims who?
If your wife or husband had a net income of more than $1,700 during 1973, you cannot claim them. If, however, they had an income of less than $1,700, or no income at all, you can claim them.

And this is how you do it:

a) If the net income of your spouse was not more than $300, you claim the full $1,400.

b) If the income of your spouse was over $300, but less than $1,700, you do just as it says and deduct net income from $1,700 to get the amount of your claim.

What you do now is enter either $1,400 or the amount from (b) above, on Line 65. (Guide Item 34).

What if I got married during 1973?
If you were married for any part of the year (even a day) you can claim for the full year if your spouse meets the income requirements above. (Guide Item 34).

I understand that, but what's an "Equivalent to Married Exemption" and who gets it?
The first thing to do is read Item 35 of your Guide. As it explains, if you were single, divorced, separated or a widow(er), and supported a relative in 1973, you may be eligible. If that's the case, what you do next is find Schedule 6 (it came with your return) and read it carefully.

Now. Basically, what all that information means is this: if you were not married in 1973 (or were separated or widowed) and you were supporting a relative who was living with you and did not earn more than $1,700 during the year, you may claim the relative as an Equivalent to Married Exemption.

Just answer the questions on Schedule 6 and follow through. The calculation is exactly the same as for Married Exemption. (Example: Let's say you are a widow who fully supported your 12-year-old son during 1973. In that case, you may claim him as a "Married Equivalent" for $1,400—instead of the standard $300 for children under 16.) Once you have it calculated on Schedule 6, you enter it on Page 4, Line 66 of your return.

Open your Guide to Item 36. Everything you need to know, including calculation example, is explained there. Follow it as you fill in the section of your return on Page 4 entitled "Exemption for Wholly Dependent Children". It's as easy as that.

Just go slowly and make sure that you do provide all details specified for each exemption claimed. Your return cannot be processed until all information is included.

What about "Other Exemptions"?
That's clearly explained (with examples) in your Guide, Item 38.

On your return, you enter them on Page 4, Lines 67 and 68.

Then what?

What about the Schedule 7?
If you have filled in all of part of Schedule 6, attach it to your return.

I still have a question. What do I do?
Follow April Aid. First read your Guide. If it's still not clear, phone or visit your own District Taxation Office.

Anything else?
Just one thing. Please check and re-check your calculations. Even the smallest error in arithmetic will delay the processing of your return.

That's it.

Together, we can get it done.

Lewis Will Continue Policy Of Cash-on-delivery Support

OTTAWA (CP) — Apparently undismayed by rumors that some of his young bloods want to pull the parliamentary rug from under the minority Liberal government, New Democrat Leader David Lewis says his intends to continue his policy of parliamentary cash-on-delivery.

This means that if the Trudeau administration wants to stay in power it will have to produce legislation that satisfies the demands of the NDP, which holds the effective balance of power.

This was the ball-mark of the session that began Jan. 4, 1972 and ended last Jan. 11. Payment last year for more socially-oriented legislation, including higher pensions and family allowances, was NDP support at crucial times, such as during the nine Conservative non-confidence motions.

The New Democrats put their 31 seats squarely behind the 109 Liberal members on most occasions, handily defeating the Conservatives, whose 107 seats were reduced by two deaths.

So, what Robert Stanfield's Conservatives consider "an unholy alliance" might be a continuing frustration for them when the Commons resumes Wednesday.

"We set out, with the two-pronged policy of making Parliament work and that it would be a C.O.D. policy—we'd deliver our votes," says Mr. Lewis.

. . . We haven't changed. But how long that will last depends on some pretty basic things which we shall watch."

What about the reports of dissent among the younger NDP members, including John Harney (Toronto Scarborough West) and John Rodriguez (Nickel Belt)?

"I've heard that said by the media," replies by Mr. Lewis. "God alone knows where the devil they manufacture it. . . .

"It's just not true! There isn't any doubt that there is more questioning in the party in the last few months about 'how long and where are we going,' which I would expect."

He says there is solid support from his followers, combined with "a perfectly legitimate and good reaction" that Mr. Lewis should tread carefully in his dealings with Prime Minister Trudeau.

He was asked if there is a fear that perhaps, philosophically, the party had weakened in its Commons tactics.

"I don't think that's it. I think it's a discomfort, which I share without qualifying it, about supporting a government with which you have some fundamental disagreements.

"No one with any sense of commitment to the general objectives of our party in the long term—the objective of fighting the corporations and the corporate powers in society, of making some fundamental changes in the relationship of society—can support them in the long run."

But Mr. Lewis says that basic dissatisfaction has become less obvious than it was two months ago. Even so, he says that given the right opportunity, he will be among the first to get his hands on the carpet under the Liberals.

Government Would Increase Seats in Commons

OTTAWA (CP) — The government announced a complex proposal Wednesday to increase the size of the 264-seat House of Commons to 278 immediately and to 304 by 2001.

The plan, which drew mixed initial reaction, was outlined by Privy Council President Allan MacEachen at a meeting of tlii Commons privileges and elections committee.

Mr. MacEachen said the proposal would prevent any province from losing seats, a common complaint under existing redistribution rules. None would have fewer MPs in the future than they have now.

He said the plan also retains, as much as possible, the principle of representation by population and would keep the growth of seats "within reasonable bound." The number of people in each constituency would also be kept within acceptable limits.

The minister told committee members initially that the plan would increase the size of the Commons to 277 members on the basis of 1971 census figures and to 352 MPs by 2001.

But these totals were changed to 278 and 304 after an error was discovered in calculations and confusion arose over other figures.

The plan is based on Statistics Canada projections which indicate the population of the country, now 21.5 million, will grow to more than 30 million by the turn of the century.

Redistribution of Commons seats normally takes place after each decennial census. But complaints from MPs whose provinces would lose seats prompted Parliament last year to postpone any changes until the end of 1974.

Existing redistribution rules allow only a marginal increase in the number of seats. The total would be 279 by 2001 if no changes were made.

Some MPs said the existing method discriminates against heavily-populated urban centres by concentrating too many voters in each riding, and against rural areas by allowing constituencies to grow too large in area.

Statement On Policy Expected

OTTAWA (CP) — Hard policy statements rather than philosophical niceties might form the core of next Wednesday's throne speech, opening a new session of Parliament.

Indications are that the first throne speech read by Gov.-Gen. Jules Leger will concentrate on a wide range of measures designed mainly to deal with immediate problems such as energy, agriculture and, possibly railway freight rates.

Some policies likely will be aimed at bolstering the Liberals' most vulnerable spots as Prime Minister Trudeau leads his party into its second session as a minority government.

Farm income security and freight rate proposals, both attractive in western regions where the Liberals are weak, are expected to feature prominently in the throne speech, along with new statements on energy.

Inflation, recently the favorite Conservative vehicle for attacking the government, no doubt will be included in the speech, but it has been learned the main government anti-inflation thrust will be saved for Finance Minister John Turner's budget, expected late in the spring.

Indications during the parliamentary recess were that the Liberals was working on a throne speech designed to hold public attention during the opposition criticism that will follow it.

One cabinet source said the legislation "will be well worth waiting for, even if we do bog down in general debate for a while."

Christian Minority In Aleppo Influential

ALEPPO, Syria (Reuter) — In the bustle and clamor of the Soq, Aleppo's vast and ancient covered bazaar, the black conical top of an Armenian priest's stovepipe hat bobs up and down among a group of Arabs haggling over a bag of pistachio nuts.

Out of a gateway in one of the lower districts emerges an ovilo-batted, white-bearded Jacobite archbishop, accompanied by a priest and preceded by an attendant armed with long black staff and silver chain.

Aleppo, Syria's second largest city, has a large and influential Christian minority which makes up about 30 per cent of the population of half a million.

To serve this community, there are no less than eight bishops of various denominations—Melkites, Maronites, Chaldeans, Armenian and Syrian Catholics, Greek Orthodox, Armenian Gregorian Orthodox and Syrian Jacobites.

Many of their churches have been in the old section of the city for centuries. But now, with the rapid expansion of the city, many families have moved away from the church areas.

In the new Midan district to the northwest, in one square alone there are three large churches either recently completed or in the last stages of construction.

At the Melkite Church of St. George, now nearing completion, Bev. Ignace Dick shows visitors the beautiful 18th-century iconostasis taken from a demolished church and now installed in the crypt where services are already being held.

The dragon-slaying St. George is a favorite saint in these parts and his new church, Father Ignace points out, will be used not just as a parish church but one of pilgrimage for all Christians.

Even though the Chaldeans are building their great new cathedral across the square and the Armenian Catholics have moved into their around the corner, St. George's is expected to draw congregations from them and communities all over the country for an ecumenical gathering every April 23, his feast day.

As with private housing, the principal material used is the warm honey-colored local stone. The city authorities have ensured that the new Aleppo will not be disfigured by facsimile concrete boxes and, with the exception of churches and mosques, have limited heights to four storeys.

The Melkites, Greek-rite Catholics, have half a dozen churches to serve their 15,000 adherents. Each has its priest, (St. George's will have three), who are presided over by Bishop Neophyte Edelby.

Archbishop Gregor Bahran, the octogenarian leader of 1,- 200 families of Jacobites, welcomes last year's resumed teaching of the ancient Aramaic language to the 900 children in their two schools and the inclusion this year of religious instruction.

"We used to have 14 schools in the north, near the Turkish border, for the 6,000 Jacobite families there but they were all closed down," he said. "Now, we are hoping to be able to reopen at least one of them this year."

Generally called Syrians since they were in the country long before the Arab conquests, they claim to be descendants of the very first Christians in Antioch and spread into what is presently Turkey. Today, many of the community are immigrants from that country.

Thus, at the metropolitan church, parts of the liturgy and the sermons are said in Arabic.

Political pressures have taught the Christian minorities the difficult art of survival.

Six years ago, when the government insisted on appointing state functionaries to run the 400-odd private schools belonging to the minorities, the Armenian Catholics preferred to close theirs and took the matter to the courts.

They won and this year the community schools will be reopening with religious instruction and their own languages being taught within the general syllabus in Arabic.

At the church of Mar Jirjis (St. George again) on the other hand, Turkish and 'Arabic are used as its congregation is almost exclusively from Urfa, the ancient Edessa, further to the west and arrived in Syria more recently.

It comes as something of a shock at first to hear the beautiful liturgy of St. John Chrysostom, composed in fifth-century Constantinople, being sung in Arabic and to hear Bishop Ilyas Yusuf preaching in the same language instead of in Greek.

On great festivals, the liturgy is celebrated in the original. Bishop Ilyas himself is fluent in that language having

Tax Tips

Moving Expenses Defined

Q. The expression, moving expenses, probably means many things to different people. Can you be specific regarding the types of moving expenses which can be deducted from income for income tax purposes?

A. Yes, moving expenses would generally include the cost of travelling from a former to a new residence, including meals and lodging while en route, transportation and storage costs for household effects, and the cost of up to 15 days temporary board and lodging near the former or new residence.

Q. What about the cost of cancelling a lease, advertising and legal costs, or real estate commissions. Are costs of this nature regarded as moving expenses?

A. Yes. Each of the items you mentioned is included in moving expenses. We should probably mention that expenses for any work done to improve the property before sale, or mortgage penalty when the mortgage is paid off before maturity, or any loss incurred on a sale are not included in moving expenses.

Q. I have received a scholarship from a university which requires me to move to another city. I understand that the amount of the scholarship over $500 must be reported as income. Can I deduct my moving expenses to the university?

A. Yes. The amount of the scholarship over $500 must be declared as income and you may deduct moving expenses to the extent of such income declared in your return. Moving expenses include travel costs, meals and lodging while en route, transportation and storage costs of your household effects, temporary quarters, etc., for yourself and your family. Enquire at your District Taxation Office for a brochure on "Moving Expenses."

Q. I am a full-time university student and have obtained temporary employment some 200 miles away. I am required to pay my own travel expenses to get to this temporary job. Can I deduct this expense from the income I earn during the summer?

A. Yes. If you have been in full-time attendance at a university or other post-secondary education institution in Canada, and you move to take a job, including summer employment, you may claim moving expense deductions. This applies only to moving expenses to get to the employment and not to those for your return to the university.

Q. I am a resident in Canada and receive a retirement pension from the United States company I worked for and also U.S. Social Security. If this is subject to the Canadian income tax, is the calculated before any deductions were taken off in the United States or on the amount that I receive here?

A. First of all, the gross amount of the pension from the United States company and also your U.S. Social Security are accounted for taxation purposes in Canada. When calculating the amount of your income you should convert both these amounts into the Canadian dollar equivalent. If you pay income tax in the United States you will be entitled to a foreign tax credit on your Canadian income tax return.

Q. My husband received strike pay from his union office in the United States although we live in Canada and the strike was here. Does he have to report this strike pay?

A. If your husband performs no services (other than picketing) in order to draw strike pay, he need not report it. However, if he is required to perform specific services (such as acting as a special chauffeur) in order to draw strike pay, it is considered to be a payment for services, and therefore, taxable income to him.

Q. Since filing my income tax returns, I have been transferred to another province. I am expecting a refund. What do I do about notifying the income tax department about my change of address? Do I write to the Taxation Data Centre or do I write to my old or my present District Taxation Office?

A. You should write to your former District Taxation Office, giving your full name, new address and any other identification, such as your account number, social insurance number and your previous address, and advise that you are expecting a refund. (You should also notify your post office of your change of address.)

"We Listen Better . . . And Act"

Classes In A Quiet Craft

In each of the three rooms at Loyalist College where groups of women sat with heads bent over their work, there was barely a sound.

Although rug-hooking is a craft that allows conversation, there was little chit-chat Saturday while 60 women concentrated on learning new designs and techniques.

The day's classes were given by three instructors of the Ontario Hook and Craft Guild. Fannie Sinclair from Tweedsmuir, Kay Rossall from Niagara Falls and Phyllis Walton from London instructed rug-hookers from three eastern Ontario regions.

Members from as far away as Markham, Prescott, Kemptville and Peterborough joined women from Picton, Bloomfield, Wellington and Belleville.

Two classes were given in "rose-mailing", a type of design which has evolved from 16th century Scandanavian folk art. Rosemailing rug-hooking is unique because of the subtle pastel shading used in the petals and leaves of the floral patterns. The finished flower looks as if it were painted.

Each woman was given strips of dyed fabric, and a circle of burlap on which the rose design had been stencilled. By the end of the afternoon, some of the more experienced rug-hookers had their projects near completion.

In another class a technique of cold-water dying was taught, in which dyes are spooned onto pieces of fabric and allowed to bleed into each other. Then this fabric is cut into strips to be used in hooking the rug for wall-hanging or cushion cover or any of the other furnishings this craft can produce). The result is an unusual merging of colors on the finished product, in this case a sunset scene.

The Ontario Hook and Craft Guild which sponsors this kind of day-long seminar around the province, has almost 1,000 members. Locally there are several branches among them Belleville, Wellington and Quinte's Isle Hooking Guilds, all very active and productive.

Evening classes in rug-hooking are held at Loyalist College throughout the year as well.

Books By And About Women

THE DIVIDED WOMAN
By Sidney Katz

What does it feel like to suddenly have no recollection of your past?

Such was the experience of Jane Loring, a bright, attractive twenty-two year old girl. A model student at the School of Pharmacy, University of Toronto, up to the evening of November 4, 1966 she had appeared to have a normal, happy life. Suddenly she did not know her own name.

Terrified, she turned to Dr. Lionel Solursh, a psychiatrist at Toronto's Western Hospital. Despite Solursh's skill and dedication, Jane's progress was slow. She seemed to lapse into one form of escape after another.

Part of Jane Loring's mind wanted to commit suicide, for without realizing it, she was harbouring within herself two other personalities, Mee and Teddy, who kept emerging to take control of her thoughts and actions.

In "The Divided Woman," journalist Sidney Katz, in consultation with Dr. Solursh and Jane, records the facts of her startling and rare condition. (There have been only 100 known cases in the past two hundred years.)

The author gives an account of Jane's year-long treatment with transcripts of taped interviews recorded while one of her three personalities was under hypnosis.

There are reproductions of drawings and poetry taken from Jane's hospital files. This psychic drama, graphically told step by step, reaches a satisfying conclusion with Jane's return to health.

This book is available in the Corby Library in Belleville.

Quinte Woman

Georgia Fralick, Broker

Being a woman in what has essentially been a male-dominated business has never been a problem for Georgia Fralick.

A registered representative, or licensed stock broker, Mrs. Fralick was one of six female stockbrokers in Ontario when she earned her license in 1953.

For three years before she was tested by the Ontario Securities Commission, Mrs. Fralick worked in a Belleville broker's office. In order to function as office manager, she had to be licensed.

While she still does not accept her own clients, Mrs. Fralick does "just about everything else" in her office. She takes stock market buy and sell orders and gives information to clients.

She says it's an exciting business, especially when the market is booming and "there's standing room only" in front of the ticker as quotations flash by.

When the market isn't good, she says she stands at the door and hands out crying towels to the customers come in.

Mrs. Fralick personally no longer buys stocks having had her "fling" in the early days of her career. She hasn't much sympathy for investors who lose money, she says, because they "should be able to lose just as easily as they make money. They shouldn't be speculating with the rent money."

The great-granddaughter of George Benjamin, who founded The Intelligencer, Mrs. Fralick hasn't had many bad moments in the stock brokers business. Occasionally, however, things get a little strained when the power goes and the company's teletype machines stop functioning.

"Then you're on the phone to Toronto constantly" getting quotations.

Mrs. Fralick believes there's not much difference between male and female investors.

"When you're making money it doesn't matter if you're a man or woman," she says.

For her, the movement of women into the business world is hardly worth comment.

"It's been a man's world I've been in; it's nothing new."

'Women Must Get Serious About Power'

TORONTO (CP) — If things are going to change, women are going to have to get serious about getting power, says Laura Sabia.

Women must get into politics.

"We have to get women in places of decision making."

Mrs. Sabia has become gadfly extraordinary on behalf of the women of Canada, whether they like it or not. Her latest base for attack as chairman of Ontario's status of women council, appointed in the fall.

Mrs. Sabia has a long list of involvements with volunteer groups on St. Catharines Ingher background. She has been a school trustee, an alderman, a defeated candidate for mayor and for member of Parliament. She ran a lively bid-line show for several years.

She rocketed onto the national scene in 1965, gathering up women's groups in the go-go whirl of talk and bustle that has become her trade mark.

USED AS BASIS

She was president of the Canadian Federation of University Women then and used that as a base to draw women's groups together for a push that resulted in the establishment of the royal commission on the status of women.

"I accepted the university women's presidency because I thought that's a way I can get to women.

"I had no sooner taken it on than I realized they weren't going to support me. But at least I had the office. Women have a windy power if they're going to get anywhere.

"In my own federation, a few applauded, but some didn't. I was unladylike. People wrote to say they were going to turn in their membership cards.

"But we got the job done The national women's groups got the commission because they all pulled together. Governments love it when you stay separate."

This need for women to get to where it matters is a constant theme in her conversation nowadays and in her work with her 17-member council.

"I've done all the voluntary work you could think of, the

"I've done all the voluntary local school.

"Voluntary work is often an exercise in futility. I've been on 15 deputations to government of one kind and another and I can't point my fingers at very much that has changed.

"I'd done all this while raising our four children. So I thought, well, I'm not going to do any more.

She was elected to the separate school board and quit because after a few years she developed a conviction that there should not be two school systems.

She served seven years a as alderman.

"I always led the polls. But when I ran for mayor, women said, 'don't you mind being mayor in a man's job? Or my husband says, '. . . .'

"I was defeated."

She ran as a Conservative in the 1968 federal election.

"Then I decided that, at my age, I had done politics."

Mrs. Sabia is 57.

Since the day of her appointment to the chairmanship of the status council, Mrs. Sabia has said she will quit if it is ineffective.

"I've been appointed for two years. If it's effective, and I'm asked, I'll stay on.

"I'm in the fortunate position of not having to give a damn. I don't have to work.

"If we can move governments and the private sector, we'll be successful. We now have one woman deputy minister. There now are three women on the economic council out of 36. That is improvement, but we need 10.

"I feel so much proud for W. E. McLaughlin of the Royal Bank who tell me it is time to find people to develop a woman before she can be hired to be a board of directors.

"Women have to be in places of power.

"People tell me women don't want it. But my young women do want it. Women are not having babies at the rate they did. We're not spending our lives preoccupied on the product of our wombs.

"We're going to have to treat women as people.

"That's what I find out at my own church. I get angry because there's this all male group making decisions about women. I don't understand women who put up with this sort of thing.

"I found marriage confining for a time. I can say it now because my children are grown. They're all university graduates and turned out well.

"My husband and I still live together and enjoy living together. That doesn't mean he agrees with everything I say or do, but by a long shot.

"Most women are afraid to say they quit with their husbands. The average woman has the capability of being a lot smarter than she is. Women lead lives of quiet desperation and the majority of women won't say that.

"It's a fortunate woman that doesn't have to worry. The laws have been written by men. For men.

"We're changing that, but so slowly."

Getting Women Involved

Mrs. Laura Sabia says women have to move into politics -- places of decision-making -- if the role of woman in society is to change. Women are going to have to get serious about getting power, she says, of Ontario's Status of Mrs. Sabia is now chairman of Women Council. (CP Photo)

More Women Than Ever Working-For Much Less Money Than Men

TORONTO (CP) — New information indicates there is a greater percentage of women in the work force than has been estimated, Sylva Gelber said to day.

But she said there are also indications that any differences between men and women, job segregation and lack of opportunity for women are getting

Miss Gelber, director of the Women's Bureau in the federal department of labor, was speaking to The Conference Board in Canada, a non-profit business research organization.

Miss Gelber said data from the 1971 census indicate 39.9 per cent of all working age women were in the labor force. Statistics Canada had been showing a current rate of less than 37 per cent.

She said for occupations on which average wage figures are available, women continue to be paid at a lower rate than men, and in half those occupations the gap widened between 1969 and 1972.

She said in managerial occupations, where women make up three-tenths of the total, the average earnings of men exceed those of women by 107.4 per cent.

In clerical occupations, in which women make up almost three-quarters of the total, the annual earnings of men exceed those of women by 56.7 per cent.

In the service industries, which are absorbing much of the increasing female labor force, women make up three-fifths of the total and men's average earnings are more than twice those of women.

Miss Gelber said women are clustered in low-paid occupations. One-third of all working women in clerical, secretarial, service and recreational jobs, one-fifth in professional and technical jobs. Miss Gelber said the percentages and numbers are rising, indicating a trend to increasing segregation of women.

She said only 4.2 per cent of the female labor force is in managerial and executive occupations.

She added that two-fifths of all students receiving bachelors and first professional degrees are women, and one-quarter of students earning masters degrees are women.

She said there are still laws that have the effect of discriminating against working women, such as those affecting fringe benefits and protective legislation.

"Business and governments cannot afford to preach efficiency in manpower planning and to talk of the efficient use of manpower resources while continuing to indulge practices which fly in the face of these principles insofar as a sizeable of the total labor force is concerned."

Ann Landers

Macaroni Spine Needs Courage

Dear Ann Landers: You've printed several letters from doctor's wives who resented women patients who made passes at their husbands. You have also printed letters from women who admired they tried to seduce their physicians. Then, of course, there have been letters from doctors who insist that some women patients are so aggressive that they will not examine them unless a nurse is present.

Nothing along these lines has ever appeared about lawyers. Well, here's a first:

I am a woman and a lawyer. A few years ago I went to see a colleague about a divorce. I was anxious and upset because my husband was rich and powerful; but I simply had to get away from him. The lawyer I selected to represent me intimated that things would go much more quickly and smoothly if I went to bed with him. Like a fool, I did, right in his office, on the leather couch.

In all the years I have been examined by doctors, not one has ever made a pass. If I had a young, good-looking daughter, I would not hesitate to send her to a doctor's office alone, but I a lawyer's office--never.--The Honest Truth

Dear Honest: Lawyers are not immune to poor judgment, bad character and clay feet. These are human weaknesses, not the special properties of any single profession.

As a lady lawyer, you should be smart enough to know that some members of your profession do play around with clients. What surprises me is that you are surprised.

Dear Ann Landers: Regarding the woman who lost her fat friends when she lost weight and began to look better than they did. Here's the other side of the story.

I had a friend with some very fine qualities. (I'll call her Thea.) We both loved to eat. After a few years of "feasting" we began to put on weight. Thea joined a weight-loss group and began to shed pounds. The thinner she got, the more egotistical she became. To make a long story short, she is now a total bore and I can't stand her.

She looks great but the fat she has lost around her waist and hips went straight to her head.--Anonymous, Please

Dear A. P.: Your letter proves there are always two sides to every story. Sometimes three.

Dear Ann: When my husband and I moved to this city I had difficulty finding employment. A college degree is no longer considered an asset. Through a cousin, I was offered an office job. I am not qualified for office work and the pay is terrible. I found another position in the field of my major at college and I want to take it, but I haven't told my cousin and I'm afraid to.

The problem: I've never been able to face people with news that might displease them. I cop out and write a note. This gutlessness had made me ashamed of myself. How can I overcome it.--Week Vocal Cords

Dear W.V.: It's not your vocal cords that need strengthening, it's your backbone. Replace the macaroni in your spine with a steel rod. Force yourself to do the thing you fear. Once you do it, you'll find it easier the second time, and the third. Get going and good luck.

'Few Female Engineers Thanks to Chauvinism'

Engineering seems to have "a leaning that keeps women from coming into it," thinks Queen's professor Monday night at Loyalist College.

There is plenty of male chauvinism in engineering, said Dr. J. H. Brown, speaking to members of the Engineering Institute of Canada meeting at Queen's.

"One of the greatest gaps is the lack of women," he said.

Among the 50 students with interests in a career in engineering was one woman, Beverley McGee of Moira Secondary School, who intends to enter chemical engineering at Queen's next fall.

Dr. Brown said Queen's now has about 2,000 females in a student body of 1,300 engineering students.

It amounts to about a 4 per cent female content. Dr. Brown would like to see about 20 per cent of females among engineering students.

Successful Living

Write That Letter

By DORIS CLARK

"I'm no letter writer." How often have we heard this excuse when a friend, living at a distance, has slipped up about keeping in touch!

Then there are those who will say, "I'm no telepener", or, "I'm no joiner!"

There are times when I feel like saying back, "Well, I'm no letter writer either, but I do try to be a friend-keeper whether that involves writing something down, picking up a telephone, or taking an interest in some community group which needs something I have to offer."

You don't get out of keeping friendships or carrying your share of the world's work by putting a scornful label on means of communication. Not in my book, anyway.

Confidential to Stuck: From here it looks as if you are doing all the right things -- and he just isn't getting the message! There is really nothing more you can do to get his attention, except keep hoping that some day he will suddenly discover that you are alive.

CP News Roundup

Northern Books Stay Closed

OTTAWA (CP) — An attempt by Quebec to have the courts open up the books of Northern Electric Co. Ltd., a Bell Canada manufacturing subsidiary, as part of a Bell rate application was lost Wednesday.

The Federal Court of Canada denied a Quebec petition for leave to appeal a ruling of the Canadian transport commission that a detailed study of the company should be part of the application seeking a range of rate increases.

Lawyers for the province have argued that details of Northern's operations and links between the parent and its 90-per-cent owned subsidiary are needed by them to assess the Bell application.

The transport commission, in denying the Quebec request, said it already had the power to get information which the commission considered important for its purposes.

Denial of leave to appeal came after the Quebec arguments. The court did not wait to hear Bell's rebuttal, saying in a brief decision that it was of the opinion there were no grounds for appeal.

Settled

TORONTO (CP) — A malpractice suit brought by a 23-year-old Toronto secretary against Parry Sound General Hospital and Dr. Yousef Aziz has been settled out of court, L. H. Mandel, the woman's lawyer, said Wednesday.

Blanche Elizabeth Robinson was suing Dr. Aziz and the hospital for $150,000 and costs, alleging that surgery she underwent in 1969 for an injury to her right knee left the calf of the leg considerably smaller than the left, and that she now limps, cannot move her right foot and cannot wear high heels.

Ship Missing

HALIFAX (CP) — A single-helicopter continued the search Wednesday for a 67-foot pleasure craft with four men aboard missing on a trip from Nova Scotia to St. John's, Nfld.

Back at School

ST. LOUIS (AP) — About 400 Lutheran seminary students ended a month-long boycott of classes Wednesday and returned to their studies, but at schools of other faiths.

Ontario Stand On Pipeline Delayed Week

TORONTO (CP) — An Ontario government decision on whether to support Ottawa's proposal for a Sarnia-Montreal oil pipeline route has been delayed for at least another week.

A. B. R. Lawrence, provincial resources secretary, said he has requested the views of all the ministries before Wednesday's regular cabinet meeting.

Premier William Davis asked him to prepare a policy position that the cabinet will consider next Wednesday.

Marsh Awaits New Heart

PALO ALTO, Calif. (AP) — Canadian broadcaster Bruce Marsh is waiting for a different kind of "cue" these days, a phone call to tell him his new heart is ready.

Stanford Medical Centre cardiologists have told the 48-year-old CBC veteran he may have only a few weeks of life left unless his own heart, ravaged by three attacks, is replaced.

Marsh's hopes for a new life are pinned to the Stanford heart transplant team headed by Dr. Norman Shumway. His doctors have performed 66 transplants since January, 1968. Twenty-two patients survive.

Scrap Short

TORONTO (CP) — A shortage of scrap steel may force output cutbacks and even the closing of some small-and medium-sized steel mills in Canada, representatives of Canadian steel producers say.

"A number of mills are in jeopardy of closing down," said Gordon Flett, purchasing manager for the Burlington Steel division of Slater Steel Industries Ltd., Hamilton.

No Injunction Sought Against Arnprior Dam

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Federation of Agriculture (OFA) said Wednesday it has decided against seeking an injunction to bar construction of a power dam near Arnprior, 30 miles west of Ottawa.

Instead, an OFA spokesman said, it will attempt to overturn in the courts any expropriation of farmland that would be flooded by the Ontario Hydro project.

The spokesman said that if an injunction to stop work on the site was finally turned down by the courts after a long delay, the federation and the farmers might be held responsible for the cost of the delay.

That might amount to several million dollars, he said.

Ontario Hydro contractors already have moved equipment on to the Madawaska River site.

With the farmers fighting the expropriation, Hydro would have to justify the taking of the land at what is commonly called a hearing of public necessity and convenience, the spokesman said.

The OFA will contend in court that such a hearing is meaningless if the dam already is built and that by building the dam before having the land, the utility would be invalidating the expropriation law.

And in that case, the spokesman said, the expropriation would be invalid.

Canadians Must Pay More Today If They Want Enough Beef Later

CHATHAM, Ont. (CP) — Canadians must accept the reality that higher grain prices mean higher beef prices, or face meat shortages and still higher prices in the years ahead, George Morris of Merlin, Ont., president of the Canadian Cattlemen's Association, said Wednesday.

He said 1973 was a tough year for cattle producers, caught in the squeeze, and, "you ain't seen nothing yet."

Mr. Morris said in a service club address the cost of finished cattle has doubled in the last two years, and that beef prices must double to make the industry attractive enough to keep farmers in it.

He said farmers and packers are getting the blame for higher prices but government should share the criticism. He said nine-per-cent inflation plus other factors more than doubled "on prices last year."

Mr. Morris said any attempt by government to put a lid on meat prices would be like "out-lawing the law of gravity."

Dies in Fire

Ontario Considers Lottery

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario is studying the possibility of a provincial lottery, but it is far from being a priority project Provincial Treasurer Darcy McKeough said Wednesday.

Mr. Cooper is executive assistant to John Clement, minister of consumer and commercial relations.

He was commenting on a report submitted to Mr. Clement last December by the government's lotteries branch. It suggested Ontario set up a lottery, mainly because privately run lotteries spend too large a portion of the money they raise on administration.

Mr. Cooper said the lotteries branch report is being studied, but many factors have to be considered before a policy can be drawn.

Since the Criminal Code was amended in 1969 to allow lotteries, a number of sponsoring organizations have found it increasingly difficult to make them pay.

The disillusionment of private sponsors and the success of Quebec's provincially run lotteries has put pressure on Ontario to try its luck with lotteries.

The report, by Ernest Fisher, director of the ministry's lotteries branch, says the province initially might net at least $1 million a month.

Mr. Clement said introduction of a provincial lottery needs much thought, and, in any case, would not be likely before the end of the Olympics scheduled for 1976.

The report says that private province-wide lotteries spend about half their take on administration, one-quarter for prizes and the rest for various causes.

However, it says the thousands of smaller lotteries that support local and area undertakings operate efficiently with volunteer help.

About $150 million was spent in Ontario last year to win $42 million in prizes in 62,000 different events.

The 18 province-wide lotteries took in $8.5 million and spent $6.8 per cent of gross revenues.

Fewer Rumors Around

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Rumor Control Center of the Baltimore Community Relations Commission says fewer rumors are floating around the city these days. As a result, the all-night answering service will be replaced next month by an automatic recording device a commission duty officer will clear the machine periodically, and follow up on the serious ones.

All Zanzibar's Teen-agers Must Go to Boarding School

ZANZIBAR (Reuter) — All young people on Zanzibar between the ages of 18 and 20 will have to go to boarding school to learn discipline, the island's leader has announced.

Abeid Jumbe said the three years at boarding school, being introduced this year, will also include military training.

Zanzibar in January marked the 10th anniversary of the revolution which swept away the centuries-old Arab minority regime of the sultans and brought the Afro-Shirazi party to power. In April, 1964, Zanzibar and Tanganyika were united to form what was later called Tanzania, but Zanzibar has remained largely autonomous.

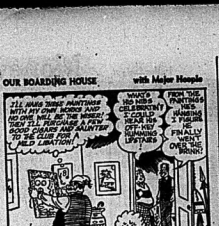
Jumbe explained the educational policy for youth by saying that people in his age group seemed to have lost the inclination to study, and he thought this was because "perhaps they are too free."

The boarding schools would have the same academic curricula as before for this age group, but would also contain a disciplinary section "to smarten them up," Jumbe said.

Jumbe also announced that teaching of the Koran was to be compulsory at all school levels, adding that a New Swahili translation was being prepared. About 99 per cent of Zanzibar's population are Moslems, he said.

A former schoolmaster himself, Jumbe said that it was also intended to use the island's color television system intensively for educational purposes.

Already television sets have been distributed to all branches of the ruling Afro-Shirazi party.



"To use the television is not a luxury but a service to the people," Jumbe stressed.

Jumbe has been in power since his predecessor Sheikh Abeid Karume was assassinated in April, 1972.

He said that the first fruits of welfare campaigns in Zanzibar are already visible in the larger physical stature of children being born today—and he cited his own 11 children as an example.

Television and radio are being used to educate people about improving their diet, and also how to make the best use of their housing, he said.

Banff Warden Leading Poet

By IAIN MacLEOD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

"I wrote my first poem in Grade 1." said Sid Marty. "I would have written sooner, but I had to learn the alphabet first."

Today, at 29, Marty is described as one of Canada's most promising young poets.

Marty leads the seemingly ideal existence for a poet, working as a warden in Banff National Park, a way of life that inspired much of the poetry in his collection, titled Headwaters.

Most days he gets ideas out on the trail, makes notes and writes them into journal back at the cabin. In Headwaters, he reveals a vivid talent for recapturing the many faces and moods of his wild environment.

He leads the reader from the solitude and peacefulness of summer evenings, through reflections of imposing mountains to chilling chance encounters with bears on the trail.

In the poem Three Bears, Marty writes of one frightening meeting with a 600-pound grizzly:

"He sounds me, stops at twenty paces . . . to consider his next move.

"Speak to this bear . . . for he may know you . . . said a voice . . . in my frozen head.

"So I spoke softly . . . in his fierce blaze . . . a deep and secret language of love and claws . . .

"Dropping on all fours, he grunted . . . and moving aside . . . ascended the hill"

Marty describes the horrifying experience of fighting forest fires and the perils facing the men who try to control them.

"Fanned by wind the trees candled . . . like blocks of paraffin . . . Heat sucked water into steam and scalded the nonlemen, drove them . . . crying and cursing like pygmies before it"

Many of the poems centre on the animals in the life of a park warden, especially his solo moans of transport, the horse. Others are more personal. But over-all, the collection is one man's view of nature.

Marty was born in England but moved to Medicine Hat, Alta., at an early age. He graduated from university in Montreal in 1967 cultrailing a graduate studies course at University of Calgary after a year to concentrate on poetry and working as a park warden.

His poems have been anthologized in several publications in recent years and selected poems have been published in literary magazines in Canada.

Money-grubbers Plague Eastern European Lands

VIENNA (Reuter) — Eastern European authorities still are struggling to exorcise the "devil of acquisitiveness" which continues to haunt the Eastern Bloc 29 countries after more than a quarter of a century of Communist control.

Socialist planners are fighting to contain the stubborn wish for bigger and better material possessions.

Punishments for embezzlers and "money-grubbers" have been stiffened in an attempt to deter greed and moneyworship.

In the Soviet Union, it was reported early in the new year that the director and accountant of a fruit-juice factory were executed for leaving the fruit out of the juice. They kept up the fraud for two years, pocketing the fruit budget.

The Bulgarian Supreme Court last year jailed the head of the merchant navy for 20 years for fraud.

Hungary has begun a vigorous press campaign against economic fiddling and the desire for luxury possessions, which, according to the press, "can produce a drug-like effect, which not only dazzles, but actually divests a person of his original character."

The revival of the acquisitive spectre in Hungary is partly due to the introduction of a liberal economic reform program six years ago. This loosened the rigidly-controlled economic structure and gave a tentative nod to competition as a business incentive.

Although the reforms recognized the profit motive and allowed prices to fluctuate with supply and demand, the planners emphatically denied any return to capitalism.

But as trade restrictions eased, more and more consumer goods appeared seductively in shop windows. Some Hungarians fell in the temptation of buying articles they did not need and could not afford.

Some people, it now is acknowledge, judge others by the status symbols they owned.

"Members of this stratum are the passive consumers who measure things not on the basis of their utility, but on the fact of ownership," says the Hungarian Communist party daily Nepszabadsag.

In another article, Nepszabadsag attacked "shabby snobbery rubber," who "still can be found even today in our country."

Property speculators are prime examples.

So was the man who heard he could get a state grant if his house suffered from damp. He sprinkled water on the walls, was registered as a flood victim and given a grant equivalent to $6,000, which he promptly invested in a new house.

Attitudes a Big Factor In Skilled Trades Lack

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

There's a critical shortage of skilled tradesmen in Canadian industry. And a new generation of school graduates doesn't appear to be manning a widening breach.

But solving the threat may be as involved as its root causes, Belleville and District Employment Committee found Wednesday.

Among reason advanced for the situation at a meeting with high school and college trades and guidance officials, were:

• Parental snobbery. Many Canadians have a bent for influencing offspring toward occupations long associated with social prestige — the law, medicine.

• Industrial apathy. Industry takes a lack-lustre stance in providing skilled apprenticeship principles.

• Social affluence. Young people disenchanted with the lower wages and basic tasks of apprenticeship, drop out of skilled trades that have a promising future. A role a society provides job alternatives with higher pay over the short run. Money-making opportunities in night-time jobs also is a growing stumbling block.

Lack of proper emphasis in guidance programs, poor and poor liaison between the educational system, industry and government.

Job-placement and training programs also were added to the list of debated causes.

Whatever the reasons and solutions, the shortage of skilled tradesmen — meticulous machinists and tool-dye makers — is one that even the Quinte district has escaped, the committee was told.

Area industry is "quickly running out of skilled people" and plants are drafting each other out of jobs, warned Roger Zalkowitz, committee member and Union Carbide of Canada plant manager.

Immigrant European craftsmen are produced under a different educational system — have been helping ease the pressure. But the situation is such it centred the committee's concern on how local schools were streaming students through a system that twists vocational and academic courses.

But M. K. Kerr, Quinte Secondary School technical director, said educational authorities have been concerned about the problem for some time, and the work society might "run into a brick alley."

Schools, he admitted, have an obligation to overcome the dropout problem, but financial resources are a factor.

"We have the financial problems and we can't satisfy the needs of all students," he said.

A basic problem, he said, is that Canadians don't have the same social regard for the skilled tradesman as Europeans.

"I think we have a program that can adjust — as long as it will receive recognition," he said.

"I think a lot of the problem lies in the home — the attitude of parents about their children going into skilled trades is not particularly positive," he claimed.

Many Canadians see skilled trades as the final alternative only if their children "cannot do anything else."

School authorities also have a stigma attached to them as accept high school trades graduates.

Industry seems only to want the skilled craftsman and is not prepared to accept the effort of further training of graduates, "rigging its attitude to apprentice-ships."

Much of the problem seems centred on the attitudes of governing personnel departments where students find they have, "trying to sell themselves."

Edward Buckley, director, Loyalist College retraining division, said community colleges are equipped to train but we have to import tradesmen from Europe.

Sid Alcorn, Centennial Secondary School guidance counsellor, queried why technical students graduating to more sophisticated training at community colleges had to show standings in mathematics, physics and science.

Neither industry nor government work agencies like Canada Manpower have established contact with school students.

There is no organized job-placement structure in the local school system and Mr. Alcorn said he would like to see establishment of a facility linking technical teachers and employers.

J. G. Fraser, Canada Manpower official, said the construction industry, for one, where demand for bricklayers is "just desperate," should establish rapport with students. Its skilled workers are highly paid.

"If they could see a construction worker drive up to the school in his hard hat and red Bidot convertible, they might think differently about the 'construction trade'," he said.

But high schools themselves may not be receptive to the fact between the trades and the "Everybody is scrambling for the student with no skills and adaptability. But these are the exceptions in industry. A great many people will never learn the highly sophisticated skills the trades necessary today. This is why many are turned off."

Government and industry should recognize the existence of such human limitations — which present a "mammoth task" reflecting modern social change.

He also suggested academic demands on job applicants were often "unrealistic" and, in reality, have very part of an employer's screening process.

Parkland Payment Deferred

Thurlow council has again delayed a decision whether to partly fund the purchase of a 340-acre property in Sidney township proposed by the Moira River Conservation Authority for parkland use.

During its meeting Wednesday, council tabled the authority's request for a firm commitment from the township to share a portion of the $700,000 price tag. With the provincial government expected to pick up 70 per cent of the purchase cost, the township has been requested to pay $20,000, a sum levied against Thurlow as one of three benefiting municipalities.

Sidney and Belleville have received a similar request from the conservation authority.

Thurlow councillors earlier this month balked at the $20,000 request. At present, council is awaiting an application as to how the other municipalities will act.

The authority has taken up a purchase option on the Ernest Potter farm west of Wallbridge-Loyalist Rd. The site is intended for recreational use in the form of a trailer park and greenbelt.

Fred Bemis Re-elected

Fred Bemis, Belleville industrial commissioner, Wednesday was re-elected chairman of the Belleville and District Employment Committee.

Jim Staveley was elected vice-chairman.

The committee, supported by local government funds and aided by local Canada Manpower officials, is a standing observation group of economic and work trends throughout Hastings County.

Newsmaker NEW

Named to new membership on the Belleville and District Employment Committee are Robert Zalkowitz, Belleville Chamber of Commerce representative; Reeve Elgin Oram, Bangor — Wicklow — Methuen township, for Hastings County, and Edward Buckley, director, Loyalist College's retraining division.

Loot Lunch

Belleville police are looking for a hungry thief.

Police Chief Douglas Crosbie reports that his department was called on to investigate the theft of six bottles of beer and a jar of pickles from an apartment at 283 Dunbar Street yesterday.

Apparently a thief walked into the apartment sometime between 12:30 a.m. and 8:30 a.m. Wednesday and stole the beer and pickles from the kitchen.

Industrial Commission

Bruce Nickson, right, was re-elected chairman of the city's Industrial Commission last night. Chosen as vice-chairman was Bob Aitken, centre. Fred Bemis continues as industrial commissioner. The directors for the commission were chosen during its annual meeting last night at the Four Seasons Hotel.

Future Bright

Industrial Commission Marks Successful Year

A total of 130 jobs arising out of new industry coming to the city were created in 1973, said the re-elected chairman of the city's Industrial Commission, Bruce Nickson yesterday.

With the expansion of facilities at Northern Electric in the former site of the Amplifone building on Dunsch Street last fall, the figure rises to 200.

The two main manufacturing industries responsible for creating the new jobs in Belleville were the Standard Paper Box Company and Canadian Durable. Both these industries are located in the city's northeast industrial park.

Smaller service industries opened during 1973 were G and B Plastering, the Olivetti Underwood company and Pan Properties in the Northeast Industrial Mall.

And prospects look just as good for 1974, Said Mr. Nickson: "We don't want to make any predictions, but already we've got 150 new jobs coming aboard from the Procter and Gamble company coming to Belleville."

Mr. Nickson was speaking following his re-election as chairman of the city's industrial commission during the annual meeting of the commission of the Four Seasons Hotel.

Elected vice-chairman was Bob Alicton of Allied Chemical. Fred Bemis continues as industrial commissioner.

The list of directors making up the industrial commission for 1974 are Bruce Nickson, Bob Aitken, Bruce Curtis, Richard Lumbers, Jim Marker and Chester Woods, all chosen last night.

Also on the directorate are Mayor Robbie Jeffrey, and Aldermen Roger Porter and Jack Ireland.

The efforts of Industrial Commissioner Fred Bemis in bringing industry to the city were lauded by Mayor Jeffrey and Mr. Nickson.

Mr. Nickson added that last year over $900,000 was paid in salaries to workers in the new industries settling in the city.

Total assessment to the city as the result of the industry amounted to about half a million dollars. And while the budget of the commission to bring industry to Belleville is allocated as $22,000, double that amount resulted in the tax yield generated in the city.

Mr. Bemis answered questions on development and industry in the city. He said that a main problem his commission faces is bringing any new industry to Belleville is availability of serviced land to build on.

He said that 22 acres of land remains in the northwest industrial park for development and 172 acres of undeveloped land is available in the northeast park.

"It is important that we stay ahead of development," said Mr. Bemis. "To generate development, we need more serviced land."

It was also disclosed that the city provided the commission with $134,000 for land sales.

Jobless Statistics More Accurate

Unemployment statistics will now be available for the first time on a federal voting constituency basis. Belleville and District Employment Committee was told Wednesday.

Until now, the closest breakdown was by provincial area. Martin, Canada Manpower official said. The more localized figures are possible through computerization at Statistics Canada in Ottawa, he said.

Few Hastings riding the jobless rate — not seasonally adjusted — was 7.6 per cent of the labor force in December he said.

Seasonally adjusted this would be about 5 per cent, compared to about 4.9 per cent for Ontario, he said.

The riding includes not only the Belleville industrial belt but rural townships in north Hastings County where jobs are more seasonal and unemployment traditionally is much higher in winter, said Fred Bemis, Belleville industrial commissioner and committee chairman.

The jobless rate in the area served by Canada Manpower — all Hastings County and Campbellsburgh township declined in January by more than 33 per cent from the same time last year, a trend that started in recent months, he said.

Job placements are down slightly, he said, due in large measure to increased computerization at the Unemployment Insurance Commission's Ontario regional office centre in Belleville. As a result, less casual help is being hired at peak time for claims.

Three Injured

TRENTON — A Trenton man remains in Trenton Memorial Hospital today following a two-car collision at the corner of Division and King Streets last night.

Christopher Dalgenais is being treated for "a mild concussion" says a hospital spokesman. Two other were also taken to hospital and were treated and released.

Police estimate the damage to the Dalgenais vehicle at about $1,500.

The second car, driven by Joan Mackie was southbound on Division when the collision occurred. Mr. Dalgenais was proceeding west on King Street, according to a police spokesman.

Police estimate the damage to the second car at about $1,000.

Some Problems Human

Not everyone — no matter the training — has the talent to hold a job demanded by modern industry, Belleville and District Employment Committee was told Wednesday.

This may account for some students' disenchantment, indicated Edward Buckley, director, Loyalist College's retraining division.

His observations came as local educators and the committee of community spokesmen pondered reasons and solutions for a shortage of skilled industrial craftsmen.

"We're talking about some pretty sophisticated trades," said Mr. Buckley. Those with the intellectual capacity and dexterity to learn them can adapt to other professions — thus help lost to industry.

He also suggested academic demands on job applicants were often "unrealistic" and, in reality, have very part of an employer's screening process.

Skills Wanted

Shortage of skilled workers was topic of concern to educators and community spokesmen at Belleville and District Employment Committee Wednesday. Tod Fletcher, Loyalist College's applied science chairman, was among contributors to debate.

Thurlow and Belleville Negotiations Continue

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

Belleville and Thurlow officials have reached another plateau in the current round of talks dealing with the city's annexation of township land in exchange for the extension of city water services to the Canniton area.

In part, Thurlow council has rejected a city proposal to annex a total of 1,200 acres of township land directly abutting Belleville's eastern city limits.

At this stage of the two-month negotiations, Belleville proposes an extension of a large watermain from Bell Blvd., under the Moira River, to end at Canniton Rd. and Adam St. From this point north, the city proposes that Thurlow pay the installation cost of water facilities that would enter the township at the south end of the village of Canniton.

Basically, Thurlow council's voluntary release of the 1,200 acres would be contingent by an agreement from Belleville to sell city water to Thurlow residents.

However, during a special meeting Wednesday, township council did not find either of the city's proposals acceptable.

Following prolonged discussion, councillors agreed to offer Belleville a counter-proposal that calls for a decrease in the size of the tract of land to be annexed.

This would still allow Belleville ample room for industrial construction, council felt.

In return, Thurlow expects the city to agree to the extension of the proposed watermain along Canniton Rd. into the city limits, immediately south of the travelled portion of Highway 401. Further conditions were placed upon cost-sharing.

Details of Thurlow's new proposal are expected to be in city hands within the week.

At this stage of talks, Thurlow and Belleville have agreed, in principle, to the annexation of lands that would extend the city's present eastern boundary line directly north to Highway 401.

Part of this 400 acres (lots 12 and 13) has been purchased by Hamilton-based Procter and Gamble Co. Ltd. for a plant slated for a spring construction start. An undisclosed parcel of land has been bought by the company in the northeast industrial park. In total, the company has purchased 150 acres.

In January, Belleville council approved a recommendation to annex an undisclosed parcel of land from Thurlow. Although not specifically stated during the council meeting in associated proposal was prompted by Belleville's desire to make possible extension of city water and sewer services to the plant.

In support of the city's proposal, Mayor Robbie Jeffrey requested Thurlow to alter its resolutions governing a possible annexation agreement.

In a report read to township open council last week, the city's solicitor formally asked Thurlow to permit annexation of land up to and including lot 13 from Highway 2 north to Highway 401. This parcel amounts to 1,200 acres — including the 400 acres adjacent to the industrial park previously agreed upon by the two municipalities.

Siting the limited acreage available for future housing development, while the city coupled with the high cost of installing services to existing vacant land, Mayor Jeffrey states the additional 800 acres will permit our city an opportunity to meet some immediate housing needs."

"We are desperately short of housing stock of all kinds in our city limits and the prospects of future development are very poor because of the cost of servicing what low-lying lands are left," the city councillor continues.

Should the annexation take place, she concludes, "A portion of the land immediately to the east of us now in Thurlow can be serviced with the extension of sanitary sewers, watermains and storm sewers from our city limits."

Workshop on Wheels

Clint Woodbeck's business is sharpening saws, scissors, chain saws. Anything that needs sharpening, Clint can handle. But you don't have to go to him, he will come to you . . . in his tailormade workshop on wheels equipped with eight power driven pieces of sharpening and grinding equipment. At his equipment's electrically driven, it is necessary to first plug into a power plant in a home or a business. Clint has been in the sharpening business for about six months. Before that time he was an electrician for 18 years. As Clint puts it, talking from inside his 4 x 7 foot mobile workshop, "I can travel anywhere. You just have to call and I'll come."

Home Show Dates Set

Dates for the Quinte Home Builders Association annual Home Show were set for April 19-20 during the organization's regular monthly meeting Wednesday.

Close to $2,000 has been pledged for the three-day exhibition to be held at Ben Bleecker Auditorium. From these funds the builders will pay rent and advertising expenses.

A special committee, enlarged at last night's meeting, will undertake the planning of the event, moved from the Quinte Mall this year.

PEC! Wins

The team from Prince Edward Collegiate Institute in Picton continues its winning ways in the provincewide championships and the annual safety awareness competition sponsored by the Industrial Accident Prevention Association.

The game was a close match with PECI edging a 75-74 lead in the first half and winning the competition with a 146-135 score over East of March.

Bemis Re-elected

Fred Bemis, Belleville industrial commissioner, Wednesday was re-elected chairman of the Belleville and District Employment Committee.

Jim Staveley was elected vice-chairman.

The committee, supported by local government funds and aided by local Canada Manpower officials, is a standing observation group of economic and work trends throughout Hastings County.

Newsmaker NEW

Named to new membership on the Belleville and District Employment Committee are Robert Zalkowitz, Belleville Chamber of Commerce representative; Reeve Elgin Oram, Bangor — Wicklow — Methuen township, for Hastings County, and Edward Buckley, director, Loyalist College's retraining division.

"Many students" have no idea what skilled courses they could take and all too often the guest speakers heard by vocational high school students are from the prestige professions — successful doctors, lawyers, accountants, said Mr. Staveley.

"I've never heard a successful carpenter being a guest speaker at a high school," he said.

The committee decided it might start its spring problem over with local industrialists, then later call a day-long community seminar.

Howe Is No. 1 In WHA Race

By GERRY SUTTON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Gordie Howe is No. 1.

That is first in the Wo rld Hockey Association scoring race with 81 points after picking up a goal—his 27th of the year—and two assists in helping Houston Aeros defeat New Jersey Knights 7-3 Wednesday night.

And to many hockey fans, the 45-year-old right winger still is to name a few achievements.

Sure, he has lost speed he'll never regain. But beyond that, his hockey still hasn't noticeably diminished since the former Detroit Red Wings' star retired just before the 1971-72 season.

The goal gave him a career total of 880 and his two assists—one shy of Jim Sk. ner in the WHA—raised that over-all total to 1,366.

In other games, Los Angeles Sharks snapped a nine-game losing streak with a 4-2 win over New England Whalers and Edmonton Oilers defeated Winnipeg Jets 4-1.

Aeros 7 Knights 3

The Aeros, who now lead the West Division by 12 points over Minnesota Fighting Saints, also got single goals from Mark and Marty Howe, a defenceman. It was Mark's 27th of the season and Marty's fourth.

"We wouldn't be in first place without them," said Houston coach Bill Dineen. "Gordie's goal in the second period was a thing of beauty."

Gordie's goal was an unassisted effort and gave the Aeros a 5-1 lead. After missing two shots moments earlier from farther out, he took the puck, skated almost the length of the ice and slipped through New Jersey defence.

He deposited the puck past goalie Joe Junkin from just a few feet out.

Terry Hughes, Larry Lund and Murray Hall gave Houston a 3-0 lead in the first period.

Howe has a one-goal lead in the points race over Wayne Carleton of Toronto Toros, who are idle until Friday night.

GORDIE HOWE

ranks at the top of the list when assessing players in both the WHA and National Hockey League.

His thinning gray hair is the same.

He still wears sweater No. 9.

And he still plays the kind of game that branded his name in the NHL record book—most goals, most assists, most points, most games and most seasons, are idle until Friday night.

Esposito Night in the NHL

By GLENN COLE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Nothing out of the ordinary happened Wednesday night in National Hockey League play.

Goaltender Tony Esposito got another shutout, his brother Phil of Boston Bruins kept his torrid goal-scoring pace and California Golden Seals and Detroit Red Wings lost again.

Goalie Esposito racked up his 10th shutout of the season as the Black Hawks shut out the Golden Seals 3-0, handing the California club its 31st loss in 32 games.

Meanwhile Phil celebrated his 32nd birthday with a three-goal effort as the Bruins battled to a 5-5 draw with Minnesota North Stars.

Detroit lost a 3-1 verdict to Philadelphia Flyers, Toronto Maple Leafs defeated Buffalo Sabres 4-2 and St. Louis Blues and Pittsburgh Penguins played to a 3-3 tie.

Black Hawks 3 Golden Seals 0

Tony kicked out 28 shots as he posted his 19th shutout of the year and his third in his last four outings. He is now with Philadelphia's Bernie Parent for the lead in shutouts this year.

The Chicago goalie has allowed only 10 goals in the Hawks' last seven games and the Black Hawks now are in the midst of a 10-game unbeaten streak.

Jim Pappin and Darcy Rota gave Chicago a 2-0 lead in the first period and Dennis Hull completed the Hawks' scoring with his 23rd goal of the year at 11:06 of the second session.

Bruins 5 North Stars 5

"I suppose 50 goals means something . . . but the season isn't over yet," said Phil after his 50th goal of the year and third of the night at 15:32 of the third period tied the score.

Esposito now has 50 goals in 55 games and appears well on route to breaking his record of 76 set in the 1970-71 season.

Carol Vadnais and Bobby Orr got the other Boston goals while Barry Gibbs an Lou Nanne scored twice for Minnesota, with Murray Oliver adding a single.

Flyers 3 Red Wings 1

The Red Wings lost again to Flyers but it was slightly better than the 12-2 humiliation Detroit suffered at Philadelphia earlier this month.

The loss was Detroit's fourth of the year against the West Division leading Flyers and the Red Wings are winless in their last nine outings.

Rick MacLeish with two and Bobby Clarke scored for the Flyers, while Red Berenson spoiled Parent's bid for his 11th shutout with 14 seconds remaining.

Maple Leafs 4 Sabres 2

Right-wingers Bick- Kehoe lined two goals and Paul Henderson and Daryl Sittler added one each as Toronto moved nine points ahead of Buffalo in the battle for the fourth and final playoff spot in the NHL's East.

Blues 1 Penguins 1

Syl Apps scored on a breakaway at 2:35 of the third period to give Pittsburgh its tie with St. Louis. Pierre Plante was the St. Louis scorer.

Tonight, Montreal Canadiens play host to Vancouver Canucks, New York Rangers meet the Kings in Los Angeles and Buffalo is at home to meet Atlanta Flames.

Gleason Beats Hope

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Jackie Gleason beat Bob Hope by a single stroke, 82-83, in a $25,000 charity golf match Wednesday, with loser Hope donating that amount to a hospital. Their match, in which handicaps were discarded, took place in the pro-am event even preceding today's start of the $200,000 Gleason-Inverrary professional tournament.

B.C. Unbeaten

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP) — George Beaudry, appears to be one of the few people who haven't think British Columbia is a sure thing to win the Canadian senior men's curling championship.

The Trail skip guided his rink to an 11-7 victory Saturday that was Wednesday in eighth-round play leaving B.C., the only undefeated entry.

"The 7-6 record will make us more relaxed but it would be games as teams that are on top Monday," said. "It would be easy to be upset." Beaudry said after the win.

Prince Edward Island, which dumped defending champion Manitoba 8-3 Wednesday is second with a 6-1 mark while Saskatchewan is third with 6-2.

Beaudry said he still had to face Newfoundland, Manitoba and Northern Ontario and "while any one of them could beat us, you have to look at Manitoba as the real threat."

Newfoundland could surprise us and Manitoba will be tough," he said.

In other eighth-round games, New Brunswick beat Nova Scotia 5-4, Alberta thrashed Newfoundland 13-2 and Quebec defeated Ontario 10-8. Northern Ontario had the bye.

Jim Hill said he and his Belleville, Sask., teammates knew a nice substantial lead, that's why we lost."

"The ice was a problem. It was tricky and we didn't know where to put the shots. The ice kept playing little tricks on us."

After four ends, Saskatchewan was ahead 7-2 but the B.C. rink counted two on the fifth and three on the seventh.

Hill fired his last shot in the 10th end, a potential game-tieing one, a little too hard and it went through the house leaving B.C. with the win.

In ninth-round play scheduled to start at 1 p.m. EST today, Alberta meets Newfoundland. Quebec plays P.E.I., Nova Scotia faces Ontario. New Brunswick encounters Northern Ontario and Alberta meets Manitoba. Saskatchewan has the bye.

However, what might be the key game today comes in the 10th round set for the evening when B.C. plays Manitoba. A win by Dr. Will McTavish's Winnipeg foursome, the defending champions, would make Dr. Wes MacDonald and his Charlottetown rink, tittists in 1971, happy, as they want another crack at B.C.

P.E.I. lost to B.C. 8-5 Tuesday in a game that MacDonald said was "one of this team's worst."

McTavish said previously his Manitoba rink was playing under a lot of pressure being defending champions, and their game had been effected.

In seventh-round play Wednesday, P.E.I. clobbered Newfoundland 14-6 Manitoba beat Ontario 13-10, Saskatchewan defeated Alberta 9-5, Quebec edged New Brunswick 9-7 and Northern Ontario defeated Nova Scotia 9-8. B.C. had the bye.

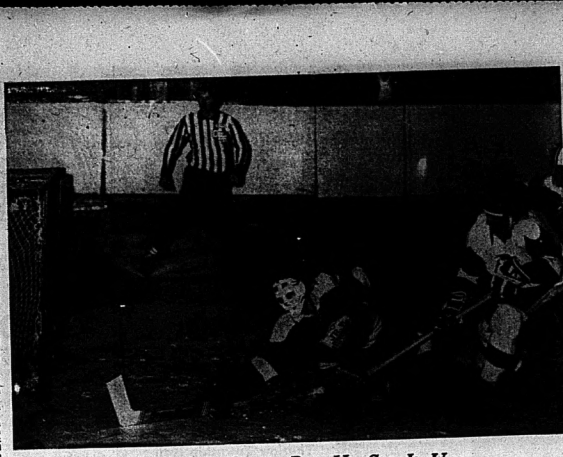
Dixie Lee In Split

TRENTON — In an exhibition game which featured some first rate goaltending, Belleville Dixie Lee posted a 4-3 win over Trenton Loyalist Coach Lloyd as the minor peewee teams hooked up here, Wednesday night.

Belleville's Hughie Northey and Trenton's Phil Dunkley took turns putting off key saves in the well-played contest.

Trenton opened and closed the scoring in the game but in between, the Dixie Lee skaters produced enough firepower to chalk up the victory.



Charlie Duran and Danny Hounslow each supplied a goal and two assists for Belleville. Tony Parks and Bobby Wolfe rounded out the winners' attack and each earned one helper.

Peter Theofylatos and Bert McPherson were the Trenton marksmen. Checking in with an assist each were Ricky Cole, Doug Payette, Kevin Stafford and Marc Benson.

The win gave Dixie Lee a split in this week's exhibition action. Tuesday night at home, the Belleville squad dropped a 5-3 decision to Wellington.

Five players shared the Wellington goals. The counters were collected by Glen McQuaid, Doug Barrett, Rick Jelley, K. McConkey and Dale Courgeau. Dave Grove had two assists.

Duran, Wolfe and Hounslow replied for the losers. Doran added two assists with one each for Wolfe, Hounslow and Danny Rose.

He Didn't Score But He Set It Up

Belleville Bobcat, Mike Watt missed a golden opportunity to score in the second period of last night's Metro Junior B contest against Peterborough Lions. Watt missed on this chance, but just five seconds later, after following his own rebound, fed the puck in front of the net to teammate John Sergeant and Sergeant put it away for his first goal of the game. Belleville scored three unanswered goals in the third period to take a 4-2 victory and jump into a 1-0 lead in their best of seven - quarter-final series.

Third Period Surge Produces Win

By MIKE BRADSHAW
Sports Staff

The Belleville Bobcats pulled off a 4-2 victory at the Memorial Arena last night to take a 1-0 lead in their best of seven Metro Junior B quarter-final series against Peterborough Lions.

Belleville came from behind twice to tie the score and had to get three unanswered goals in the final period to ensure the win.

John Sergeant won "Johnny on the Spot" for the Cats, scoring twice and setting up the third.

Sergeant and his linemates Mike Watt and Mark Coates, were the hustlers of the Belleville team, controlling the game wherever on the ice.

"We knew we would have to check them to beat them," said a Peterborough team official, "they are one of the highest scoring clubs in the league."

Check them they did. Belleville took on an offensive attack while the Lions played a strong defensive game and only turned to offense when the open opportunities arose.

The Lions kept the Cats completely off balance throughout the first two periods backchecking, forechecking and constantly protecting their goalie, Rob Duncan.

Flustered by the tight checking of the Peterborough club, the locals consistently gave the puck away on blind passes, passes to open wings and unnecessary passes.

Peterborough skated off the ice at the end of first period with a 1-0 lead as the result of a pass to an open wing. Gary Bailey scored that one.

At the end of the second 20 minutes, the Lions held a 2-1 lead. Randy Bryan tallied for Peterborough and Sergeant replied for the Cats.

Peterborough's second tally resulted from Belleville's desire to play an offensive game. One of the locals defencemen was caught in the Lions' end at the time of the visitors second goal, while the other was attempting to play the puck rather than the man.

The Bobcats did have ample opportunities to score in the first two periods, but when opportunity knocked either Lions' goalie, Duncan, kept the door closed or the Cats went to the back door instead of the front.

Belleville was deprived of a goal early in the first period, though, when the referee blew his whistle because he had lost sight of the puck.

It seemed the puck wasn't lost. It was just hiding behind a sprawled Duncan. A split second after the play had been whistled dead, the puck was in the Peterborough net.

In the second period, Watt took a lead pass from Dave Taylor and walked in on a breakaway. Just as Watt was about to shoot, the puck walked off the end of his stick.

The Cats outshot the Lions 27-19 over the first two periods, but still only managed one goal.

When the final 20 minutes got under way Cats caught their second breath and got together a good offence and a stand up defence.

With new vigor, the Cats found themselves in a powerplay situation two minutes after the period started.

Just 10 second later the home side tied the game at 2-2. Tim Yohn dribbled a shot from the point that was more than out of harms way until an unsuspecting Lion, Paul Carey, careered in front of the net and the puck trickled off his skate into the wide open corner.

Coates and Sergeant scored the final two markers for Belleville.

The Cats totalled 41 shots on goal to Peterbough's 25.

Rosebush Sets Pace In Northern League

When it comes to scoring of 36 goals, Rick Rosebush of the Yankees, first place finisher during the Northern Electric Hockey League regular schedule, has the knack.

In his team's 12 league games, Rosebush set a scorching pace in the scoring department, corralling no less than 35 goals. He added 19 assists to take top spot in the points derby with 54.

Bill Goodfellow of the Bearcats also had the scoring touch during the regular season. He counted 30 goals while picking up 10 assists for 30 points and third place in the race for top honors. Second spot went to Dwight Rathwell of Rebels who was the top playmaker with 27 assists. Dwight had nine goals, giving him a point total of 36.

Yankees had a five-point edge at the top of the heap with 17 points. Runnerup Rebels had 12 while Bearcats and Falcons were right in step with 10 and nine respectively.

The teams open best of three playoff semi-final acts Sunday with Yankees meeting Bearcats while Rebels hook up with the Falcons.

Tweed and District Figure Skating Club made its first start in competition with other clubs from the area in the recent Trent Interclub held at Trenton. And the Tweed youngsters made an excellent showing.

Second place in the preliminary section went to Janet Morrow.

Two Wins For BCI

The Moira midgets were the only team to stop BCI from a three game sweep last night in secondary school basketball action.

The BCI seniors won their contest 69-36 and the juniors, 54-42. The Trojans won the midget game, however, 46-28.

Larry Wilson picked up 25 points in the senior game with teammates Russ Simmonds, Gary Donavan and Dave Van Fleet hitting for 13, 12 and 10 points respectively.

The Trojans seniors were led by Murray Clark and Roland Walton with 16 points each.

In junior action, BCI's Lachman hooped 25 points while Wilson got 18 for the losing Trojans.

The Moira midgets got 21 big points from Kent Manning and 10 more from Rob Chase in their 46-28 victory.

BCI's top point getter was John Guthrie with nine.

Alvin Dark Back

OAKLAND (AP) — (Alvin Dark, who left a last-place baseball team in turmoil seven years ago, is coming back to take over Oakland Athletics with a mandate to perform other problems.

Controversial owner Charles Finley told a news conference Wednesday that Dark, 52, was returning to the two-time American League and World Series titlists as a replacement for exfield Dick Williams.

Finley left no doubts he hadn't changed much when he said:

"Yes, he has been manager of this club before. Yes, he was fired. Yes, he is coming back to manage this club. Yes, he expects to be fired again some day, but he said he hopes it'll be a hell of a lot longer stay than the last time."

Dark, who brought San Francisco Giants to a National League pennant in 1962, was Finley's manager for Kansas City in 1965 and part of 1967 before Finley fired him in the midst of a near playoff run.

Bon.

"Mistakes were made on both sides and things have changed," Dark said, "it is beyond any manager's dream to come into a situation like this, where the team has already won two World Series in a row."

And he admitted that he would not attempt to challenge Finley's right to run the baseball club whenever Finley felt the need. And Finley noted that the owner and general manager, he expected to have a say in what happened on the field.

Williams, who left to take the New York Yankees' managerial post, still had two years left on a contract he signed with Finley. Since leaving the Athletics after last year's World Series, Williams has been told by a federal court he cannot manage for any baseball club but the Athletics for the 1974 and 1975 seasons.

Dark has been out of baseball since the 1971 season, when he was fired by Cleveland Indians. The former major league infielder had a lifetime batting average of .289.

Reggie Jackson, one of two players who attended the news conference, said: "I'm sure he's made adjustments. He had problems with young players in Kansas City and Cleveland. Here, he's getting guys who already know discipline."

Rollie Fingers the other player at the news conference, said he was in the minor leagues when Dark was at Kansas City in 1967 and "the last thing he said to me was to go to Birmingham."

Fingers went to the minor-league team and won 16 games there in two seasons before earning a berth with the Oakland club.

HEINDL RECALLED

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland Crusaders of World Hockey Association announced Wednesday they are recalling left winger Bill Heindl from Jacksonville Barons. Heindl was traded to the Barons of the American Hockey League two weeks ago to get more playing time, a spokesman for the Crusaders said. He has three goals and four assists in 31 games with the Crusaders this season.

Reaction 'Positive'

London Makes Pitch

TORONTO (CP) — London, Ont., in its bid for a Canadian Football League franchise, received a "positive reaction" Wednesday from owners and general managers of the Eastern Conference, said Bob Harris, prime mover of the Western Ontario city's bid.

"The only thing we could do today was to discuss a preliminary proposal to get a consensus of how the presentation for an application would be received," said Bob Van Kleek, president of the London branch of the now-defunct Ontario Rugby Football Union senior league.

The London bid for a CFL franchise got the clearance for further consideration when Hamilton Tiger-Cats, who had veto rights in the London area, gave Harris and his group an opportunity to present their case to the EFC meeting Wednesday. The EFC and Western Conference general managers and owners held separate meetings during the first part of the four-day annual CFL meetings.

"Trying to sum it up in one word," said Harris, "I would have to say that it was a positive reaction to our presentation."

The London delegation met for an hour with the Eastern Conference and was told that a number of questions would have to be answered before the existing four teams would endorse the presentation to the CFL.

The London developer, a president of Western Holdings, Ltd., presented a model structure of the planned 36,400-seat stadium. The London group is prepared to build on a 180-acre site east of London, contingent on the CFL's approval of the franchise.

Harris, a former player with Edmonton Eskimos and the Lords, who has branched into real estate and construction over the last decade, said:

"We'd want to know as soon as possible" so that plans for stadium construction, roads, servicing of the stadium, financing and leasing of properties can be proceed."

He said it was necessary to form the nucleus of a CFL team by organizing this year and playing in either the Continental or M-I-6-West professional leagues in the United States prior to joining the CFL in 1975.

He said a study conducted in London indicated that 31,000 season tickets would be sold in the city alone without considering the market area between Kitchener on the east and Windsor.

He estimated cost of the new stadium, to be located just off the MacDonald-Cartier Freeway in Westminster Township, would be about $5 million.

"We have decided to consider the matter further," said Sam Berger, owner of Montreal Alouettes and member of the EFC committee meeting. "They still have to furnish us with more detail."

He said such questions as financial, ability, gate equalization payments and television revenues were still to be considered along with such matters as player personnel and whether their acceptance would weaken existing teams.

Horton Killed

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — Tim Horton, 44-year-old defence star with Buffalo Sabres of the National Hockey League, was killed early today when his sports car ran off the Queen Elizabeth Way at more than 100 miles an hour.

Horton was thrown from the car as it flipped over several times and was pronounced dead at the scene.

Horton presumably was on his way to Buffalo after playing with the Sabres in an NHL game against the Maple Leafs in Toronto Wednesday night. Although the Sabres lost 4-2, Horton was selected as one of the game's three stars.

Constable Mike Gula of the St. Catharines police detachment said a sports car passed him on the Queen Elizabeth Way about 4:30 a.m. at a high speed. Constable Gula said he gave chase and clocked the car at "over 100 miles an hour."

Officers were advised by police radio to be on the lookout for a speeding car after a motorist told OPP at Burlington that a car passed him at high speed.

The speeding car passed Constable Gula's cruiser about 35 miles later, near the Lake Street exit from the Queen Elizabeth Way into St. Catharines.

A native of Cochrane, Ont., Horton was selected to NHL all-star teams six times—three on the first team and three on the second.

He was coaxed out of retirement just prior to this season by Buffalo general manager Punch Imlach, who had been his coach for many seasons in Toronto,

Imlach said during last fall's contract negotiations with Horton that money was not the main obstacle. At Horton's age, the veteran defenceman just was not sure whether he was physically endure another long NHL season.

Another factor was the growing business interests of Horton, who owned a chain of more than 30 doughnut shops in Ontario.

A strong skater with a powerful shot, Horton played his final years as an amateur with Toronto St. Michael's College in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A Series. He turned professional with Pittsburgh Hornets of the American Hockey League in the 1949-50 season and also appeared in one game with the Maple Leafs that campaign.

His first full season with Toronto was the 1952-53 season.

He played with Toronto until March 3, 1970, when he was sent to New York Rangers for forwards Guy Trottier and Denis Dupere. He was drafted by Pittsburgh Penguins of the NHL from New York in the intra-league draft June 8, 1971, and then was drafted by Buffalo from Pittsburgh in June 5, 1972.

Prior to this season, Horton had appeared in 1,396 games, scoring 115 goals and 397 assists. He played in 126 playoff games, with 11 goals and 39 assists.

Horton was selected to the first NHL all-star team in 1963-64, 1967-68 and 1969-70. He was named to the second all-star team in 1953-54, 1962-63 and 1966-67.

Horton played on four Stanley Cup winning teams, all coached by Imlach—1961-62, 1962-63, 1963-64 and 1966-67.

Boston Bruins.

Horton was drafted by Toronto from Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Eastern Football Conference in 1952.

Horton was the first player to die in a car accident while playing in the NHL.

Wolves Rebound

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — Sudbury Wolves exploded for four goals in the third period to overcome a 4-1 deficit and down Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds 5-4 in the Only Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A game Wednesday.

Richie Hansen paced the Wolves with two goals, one a third-period penalty shot. Mark Marson, Gord McTavish and Geoff Green scored the others.

Jack Valiquette of the Greyhounds got three assists to bring his total points this season to 112, one point short of the record established for rookies last year by Dennis Maruk of London Knights.

The Wolves outshot the Greyhounds 41-38 and picked up seven of the 10 minor penalties.

Argos and Northmen

Conflict of Interest? Possibility Upsets WFC

TORONTO (CP) — There is nothing anybody can do to keep another football league from coming into the bigger cities, says Sam Berger, owner of Montreal Alouettes.

That comment Wednesday might have cost Berger a few friends in the Eastern Football Conference, but it did nothing to ruin his relationship with John Bassett, owner of Toronto Argonauts.

The WFC is convinced there is a conflict of interest between the Canadian Football League Argos and Toronto Northmen of the new World Football League.

"All Western Football Conference teams feel that on the basis of information available to us, there is a conflict of interest between the Bassetts, Baton Broadcasting and us (the WFL and CFL) as it applies to the Argonauts," said Wes Munshaw of Vancouver, newly-elected president of the WFC.

Bassett said recently he has divested himself of all connections with the Northmen and turned over ownership of that franchise to his son, John F. Bassett, and his group.

"We want the entire matter resolved," said Munshaw after the WFC's annual meeting. Western members intend to take matters to the CFL executive Thursday.

"If there is in fact a genuine conflict of interest, if a parent firm of both teams is one and the same, it is detrimental to Canadian Football," said Munshaw, who representing British Columbia Lions.

The prime consideration in determining ownership of both the Argos and Northmen is that Baton Broadcasting, of which the elder Bassett is involved is not connected in any way with the Northmen.

John F. Bassett said recently that his connection with both the Argos, of which he was a director, and the broadcasting firm has been severed.

Although Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Eastern Football Conference are believed to be unhappy with the situation, it's doubtful if the elder Bassett will be asked to sell his Argonaut franchise.

Eight of the nine CFL members would have to agree there is a conflict of interest in order to start bankbment proceedings.

Berger believes the Toronto owner is a "power of strength to the league."

Courageous Editor Conquers Cancer

RIDGEFIELD, Conn. (AP) — As journalist and author for more than 30 years, Cornelius Ryan has told millions about the courage of others.

On Oct. 29, 1970, the full meaning of the word came home when Ryan underwent an operation for cancer.

"I never told anyone about it before because I didn't want people to feel sorry for me," said the author of "The Longest Day and The Last Battle as he waited for lunch at a tavern near his home.

"Please make it clear that there has been a complete remission," he added.

Twice during the intervening years, the disease recurred and Ryan had to undergo further treatment. At one point, his doctor told Mrs. Ryan her husband might not live more than 48 hours.

During the relapse and recovery period, Ryan completed the final volume of his Second World War trilogy, A Bridge Too Far, the story of the massive Allied attack through Holland in September, 1944, will be published this fall.

"This story in which the Allies were stopped at the Dutch city of Arnhem has been swept under the rug so beautifully that this is the first time it is being told in the United States," Ryan said.

He said the book also includes the first detailed account of how Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, the Allied commander, felt about British Field Marshal Sir Bernard L. Montgomery.

"You won't believe it," Ryan said, "I used material from a tape like gave me before he died on the condition I not use it until after his death."

Ryan, born 53 years ago in Dublin, has devoted 32 years to his three-volume history. The first two volumes each have sold more than 10 million copies in hardcover alone and became man will prevail."

basis tests in high schools and colleges.

But Ryan rejects the title "historian."

"I do not consider myself anything more than a fairly good practitioner of journalism who found a new way to write history," he said. "What I write about is not war but the courage of man and the fact that

Flying Wing

This is an artist's conception of a "Spanloader" flying wing airfreighter for which Lockheed-Georgia Company, a division of Lockheed Aircraft, has been granted a patent. The gigantic aircraft would carry freight in the wing and would be powered by six engines. The spanloader would land on air cushions mounted under the fuselage and the wing tips instead of using conventional wheeled landing gear. (CP Photo)

Let The Sunshine In

TOKYO (AP) — A judge heard complaints from homeowners demanding a "right to sunshine" and then ordered the builder of a high-rise apartment house to limit the structure's height of 10 stories instead of 16. A suit had been filed by angry neighbors who feared the tall building would keep the sunlight out of their single-family homes.

CBC Under Fire From All Sides

OTTAWA (CP) — The CBC got hit from all directions Wednesday as hearings of the Canadian Radio-Television Commission (CRTC) continued on the corporation's application for five-year renewals of all its broadcasting licences.

A Committee on Television made up of broadcasters and writers said the Crown corporation is beset by timidity and is failing to keep up with the creative drive of the country.

A filmmaker group said if the corporation increased its use of Canadian films by 1,000 per cent, they still would make up only one per cent of the films shown on CBC television.

And a native-peoples brief criticized the corporation for treating the far North as "an afterthought of not much importance."

The Committee on Television said:

—Public affairs programs have declined in quality to the point that they now are irrelevant to the country;

—Drama also has "declined to a new level of inconsequence;"

—So much production is concentrated in Toronto that the CBC gives an unbalanced view of the country;

—Almost no films are shown little attention is given to regional theatre, and literature is ignored;

—There is no good light entertainment, no good country and western music program and "the CBC is weak everywhere."

The committee said the corporation should be divided, one section producing radio and television shows and the other taking care of such things as studios and transmitters.

CRTC chairman Pierre Juneau said he disagreed, even though he found the brief thoughtful analysis. CBC problems should be solved within the one agency, he said.

The Council of Canadian Filmmakers—actors, directors, cameramen, writers and others—said the CBC should broadcast Canadian films after they have been seen in theatres. In addition, it could enter into equity financing of Canadian films.

The problems in the North were the old ones of spotty or non-existent reception compounded now by television reruns that often provided the same programs twice or three times in one night.

Wally Firth, NDP member of parliament for the Northwest Territories, said other problems are the lack of programming originating in the North and the presentation of southern programs of little interest in the territories.

There also was little broadcasting in native languages, although two-thirds of the people in the Northwest Territories are Indian or Inuit.

The Winnipeg-based Ukrainian Canadian Committee brought a plea for multilingual broadcasting by the CBC. The committee said broadcasters have an obligation to reflect the demographic makeup of the communities they serve.

CBC station, they said, should provide broadcasting in the languages of ethnic groups that want such broadcasts.

The broadcast division of the Canadian Union of Public Employees (CUPE) asked for retention of commercials on CBC networks and stations.

They said advertising is part of the CBC mandate to "safeguard, enrich and strengthen" Canada's economic fabric.

Jean-Marc Lefebvre, division president, denied that members of his union would lose their jobs if commercials were eliminated on the CBC. Employees had been assured they would be reassigned.

Advertising Ban On CBC Advocated

OTTAWA (CP) — Advertising on the CBC received some harsh criticism before the Canadian Radio-Television commission Tuesday.

The CRTC, in the second of five days of public hearings on the renewal of all CBC broadcasting licences, heard briefs from a number of organizations urging either a ban on commercials or a reduction in their number.

The Association of Canadian Television and Radio Artists (ACTRA) told the commission commercials damage the CBC and should be banned from the public network.

The National Association of Broadcast Employees and Technicians (NABET) called for a reduction in the number of commercials while other groups suggested that commercials should be regulated to prevent a clutter of breaks that hurt programming.

Jack Gray, ACTRA vice-president, said his fellow performers are in favor of a ban on CBC commercials. The ban might be expensive, but would benefit the corporation immensely.

The CBC now is hampered by advertising and locked into a commercial-oriented format for programming, he said.

Mr. Gray urged a removal of advertising to allow the corporation to use freer and more innovative programming.

He said the cost can be borne by the taxpayers and will be worth it in the long run.

The Union of Artistes, which represents French - language performers, called for a new look at commercials, asking that they be moved to the start and finish of programs rather than interupting presentations.

The CBC already has banned commercials aimed at pre-school children and plans to experiment with one commercial-free evening a week. But CBC president Laurent Picard has said that an outright ban on advertising will cost more than $80 million, almost a third of the corporation's annual budget.

Earlier, the Canadian Broadcasting League told the commission the CBC should be given an annual budget of $1 billion to improve its programming.

The league, long a supporter of public - broadcasting, also asked that the CRTC renew the corporation's licences without adding any conditions.

CRTC chairman Pierre Juneau disagreed, defending his comission's right to impose whatever conditions it wants on renewal of broadcasting licences.

He said the CBC is the keystone of broadcasting in Canada and the CRTC is biased in favor of the corporation. But although the commission could not revoke the CBC broadcasting licence, held under an act of Parliament, it could impose conditions on those licences.

All the CBC licences expire at the end of March.

A delegation of Atlantic ministers of communications asked for improved service in the Maritimes, pointing out that there is no CBC television station in New Brunswick and that not all of the province is covered by broadcast signals.

Bryan Pearson, a member of the Northwest Territories council, asked for more radio facilities in the North. Much of the CBC's northern service consisted only of southern programs beamed north.

Mary Van Stolk, a Montreal author, said many television programs imported from the U.S. depict violence and a society alien to Canada. This had a harmful effect on children and adults alike.

Marion Engle of the newly-formed Canadian Writers Union said that unless the CBC programs a regularly review of books and interviews with authors, its licence applications should be denied.

Cartoon Cut

LONDON (CP) — The Royal Shakespeare Company has ordered the director of the play Section 9 not to use a cartoon slide showing President Amin of Uganda embracing the Queen. The company sided with the author who said his main point is a serious point about political leaders and "the Queen is not a political leader."

Gemini (May 21-June 20) Someone you know socially does not have the high opinion of you that you think she does. Don't be taken in by her wiles.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) A lackadaisical approach to your work will result in poor productivity. Much self-discipline is required today.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) This is not your day to speculate or gamble, though what may appear on the surface to be an unusual opportunity presents itself.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) There is likely to be excessive confusion around your house today. A few of the causes were analyzed much could be traced to you.

Capricorn (Dec.22-Jan. 19) Today you are likely to say "yes" when you mean "no" and "no" when you mean "yes." This will confuse yourself as well as others.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 - Feb. 19) There's the same sort of mix-up concerning your material affairs. Double check all financial transactions.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) You're letting yourself be pulled in two directions at this time. This greatly dilutes your chances of achieving desired results.

Her Jaw Cracks When She Kisses

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Miss is a rather unusual problem, I would imagine. Unfortunately my doctor I ask about it just smiles and says not to worry about it and it is a real nuisance to me.

My right jaw cracks! I cannot eat without its cracking. Or kiss my fiance without cracking. Or even without cracking.

It is not a quiet little sound but one which, believe me, can be heard at the next table. I would appreciate any serious suggestions.—M.W.

I won't "just smile." I'll give you a serious suggestion. For one thing, you are probably too young for arthritic changes of the joint, and anyway there would be other signs.

But a very common cause of jaw-cracking is malocclusion—the teeth don't come together quite right. This causes the jaw joints to dislocate slightly, or the two joints to close differently.

A dentist, can correct malocclusion. And may relieve your quiet attend your kissing.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I'm 17 and have had sex with my boyfriend twice. He has used a prophylactic both times but the second time it broke.

I say that because of c limax doesn't matter. If his semina fluid travels and unites with my egg, that's it, whether I had a climax or not. Who's right?—C.S.

You are almost totally right (it's a sperm cell in the seminal fluid that unites with the ovum or egg) and climax or orgasm has nothing whatever to do with it.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Can a brain wave test be taken two weeks after a convulsion show brain damage? My two-year-old grandson had a high fever and a convulsion, and someone told me the test had to be taken immediately after the convulsion to be of any use.—Mrs. M.S.

No, that's not correct. An EEG (brain wave test) taken during or immediately after a convulsion could show abnormal (and incorrect) results because of the brain activity at that time.

Unless there has been brain damage it can be taken two days (or longer) afterward would be normal.

In any event, convulsions due to high fever are not unusual in infants, and in most cases there is no particular risk of brain damage. If, however, convulsions persist at the child gets older, studies should be repeated to determine a cause other than high fever.

Note to Mrs. R. H.: No, exercise would not prevent you from getting pregnant. Have your doctor search for some other factor.

By Oswald and James Jacoby

When Helen Sobel, probably the greatest woman bridge player, first played at the Cavalieri Club she was young, very attractive and couldn't have looked less like a bridge player.

Playing at four spades she drew trumps; laid down the ace of clubs to drop East's king and proceeded to make an overtrick by cashing one and hearing.

Her partner, a self styled expert said, "You played the clubs wrong ...but you were lucky."

About a month later she made a similar successful play and drew the remark, "You'll never learn, will you?"

Helen's play was not only correct it was the only correct one. She needed two club tricks and the play of the ace insured this result against adverse distribution.

She needed two club tricks and tricks required 3-2 break. It was the 4-1 breaks that might bother her.

Suppose that an honor failed to drop. She would continue by leading toward dummy's jack. If West held the king and, queen he could only score two tricks.

Suppose East held them: West would show out. The jack would force one of the top honors.

Later on the third club would be led from dummy and Helen's hold become a winner.

Pounds, Quarts, Inches To Vanish About 1980

OTTAWA (CP) — Pounds, inches, quarts and other weights and measures of the Imperial system will go the way of the dodo bird by about 1980, when Canada's conversion to the metric system is complete, says Stevenson Gossage of the federal metric commission.

They will be replaced by the International System of Units, a refined metric system, often abbreviated SI for System International. It has seven basic units, all interrelated and based on the number 10.

By comparison, the British-evolved Imperial system has 82 unrelated basic units.

Mr. Gossage said the mourners will be few for the Imperial system, which dates from the time of the Anglo Saxons.

In any case, "it'll thrive in the museums" and the terminology of the Imperial system will remain in literature and the language, said Mr. Gossage.

It would be a "grave mistake" to use both systems, he said. Confusion would reign, especially in the marketplace, where price-conscious shoppers are trying to determine best value.

During the peak period of conversion, expected in 1977 or 1978, conversion chart will be available in retail outlets.

Shoppers will be able to calculate, for instance, how meat at $1.40 a pound compares with meat at $3 a kilogram or how dress material at $2.99 a yard compares with similar material at $3.50 a metre.

Canada undertook a 10-year conversion program to adopt universal measurements for industry, commerce and science, simplifying domestic and international communications.

Many sectors of the economy are already gearing for the switch. Don Chatter of the Canadian Construction Association said builders welcome metrication.

It will simplify design calculations and enable the industry to implement modular dimensions as different building materials can fit more easily together.

The metric commission, set up under the federal industry department to co-ordinate the changeover, is selling the metric system as the route to more exports. The switch is not compulsory but obviously holdouts will be left out in the cold.

The commission estimates $200 million a year is lost in trade because product lines produced under the old system can't be used handily in approximately 20 per cent of the world which is on the metric system.

However, the commission is concerned that Canada may be on the metric system several years before the United States. Measurement communications between the two countries, especially for Canadian subsidiaries of U.S. firms, will be complicated if the switch is delayed there.

The British were to have completed conversion to the metric system by 1975. But the program has fallen behind because of political and economic instability in the United Kingdom, said Mr. Gossage.

The Imperial system has been built on folklore dating from the Roman Empire. Roman legionaries stepped out their mile—or mille—as 1,000 paces or about 1,618 yards.

Because a pace is a variable unit, the mile was inexact until the British set it at 1,760 yards.

Other Imperial units were just as inexact when they originated.

The inch was the length of the thumb's knuckle. An acre was the amount of land a yoke of oxen could plow in a day.

Board Finds Error

British Miners' Pay Below Due

LONDON (Reuter) — Prime Minister Heath faced new pressure today to bring a speedy end to the coal miners' strike which put Britain on a three-day work week and prompted the government to call a general election.

The miners were given a major boost in their demand for more pay with disclosure Thursday that basic wage statistics, which determine their pay structure in relation to other industries, had been erroneously compiled.

After months of being told by government and coal industry chiefs that they were asking for too much money, a government pay board discovered the 270,000 miners were actually entitled to more.

The disclosure brought a new element into the election campaign, now in its final week.

Heath, leading in the opinion polls with his campaign for a strong government to face hostile trade union pressure, is expected to meet renewed demands from industrial chiefs and leaders of the opposition Labor and Liberal parties to settle with the miners as quickly as possible.

The pay board found that figures giving the miners' average earnings included holiday pay, whereas in other industries this was excluded.

Instead of being above the national average wage for manual workers, the miners were actually eight per cent below.

With only six days to go before Britons go to the polls Feb. 28, the prime minister received an unexpected boost for his tough stand against militant trade unionists.

The Roman Catholic primate of England, John Cardinal Heenan, issued a pastoral letter, to be read in churches Sunday, saying that extreme militants in trade unions were determined to foment industrial strife and disrupt society.

He said they were in every key industry "and know well that they can bring the country to ruin."

Heenan added, however, that the capitalist system needed to be reformed.

Latest opinion polls put Heath's Conservatives in the lead over Labor, with Jeremy Thorpe's middle-road Liberals running a stronger third than had generally been expected. The Liberals held only 31 seats in the outgoing Parliament but are contesting 517 of the 635 seats at stake this time.

Bookmakers' odds made the Conservatives a racing certainty. They quoted the Tories at 9 to 4 on—meaning you bet $9 in the hope of winning four—with Labor 7 to 4 against—bet four to win seven—and the Liberals 20 to 1 against.

Hijacking Foiled, Three Men Killed

BALTIMORE (AP) — Three persons were killed today during an apparent hijacking attempt at Baltimore-Washington International Airport, the Federal Aviation Administration said.

A gunman and an airport security guard were shot and killed at the scene. The copilot of the Delta DC-9 that was the target of the hijacker died about three hours later on the operating table of a Baltimore hospital, the hospital said.

The pilot was killed was seriously wounded in the shooting, according to police, and was undergoing surgery.

A stewardess who jumped from the plane during the incident hurt her back, authorities said. The plane's passengers escaped injury.

Police said an unidentified object was under a bomb blanket at the edge of the runway. It was not immediately known whether the object had been taken off the plane.

The FBI, state police, county and airport police were searching the airport with bomb-sniffing dogs after sealing off the area where the shooting occurred.

Flight 523 to Atlanta was apparently loaded with 70 passengers when the incident began to unfold at 7:03 a.m.

The gunman walked up behind the identified airport policeman, pulled a gun and shot him once in the back, killing him.

Two county policemen in the airport heard the shots and ran toward the boarding area, where they saw the gunman running down the jetway and seize the plane.

Officer Charles Toyer of county police said he got to the plane as the door was closing and the engines were being revved up.

Toyer said he fired two shots at the plane's tires but thought he missed. Observers, however, later spotted two flat tires in the front of the plane.

Toyer said he then ran to the front of the plane and through the windows of the cockpit saw the gunman shoot the pilot and copilot.

Toyer said he opened fire and shot the gunman, who was pronounced dead on arrival at St. Agnees Hospital at 8:08 a.m.

The copilot, identified by the FAA as Fred Jones of Dallas, died during surgery, hospital spokesmen said. Authorities said Jones had suffered gunshot wounds in the head and chest.

The pilot, Captain Doug Lafon of Fort Worth, Tex., underwent surgery for bullet wounds of the back and left shoulder, the spokesmen said.

Mailing Accord Will Stop Pileup

TORONTO (CP) — The post office is arranging a schedule with mass-mailing firms so that second-and third-class mail, held back this week because of an embargo, will be sent at various times to prevent another jamup at Toronto's central post office, a postal official said Thursday.

The embargo may be lifted later today as work progresses in clearing up a backlog of mail that began nine days ago with a 16-hour walkout by about, 200 men.

More than 50,000 bags of mail accumulated and were overflowing into other Toronto postal stations.

The official said 70 temporary workers hired on Tuesday have reduced the backlog that occurred when the mass-mailing firms—including publishers and advertisers—ceased labor troubles and moved their mailing dates ahead to increase their chances of being at the front of the line if the postal process became delayed.

The post office also blamed the backlog on a work slowdown by postal clerks within the Canadian Union of Postal Workers.

Arnold Gould, national director of the union, denied there has been a slowdown. He blamed poor management for the inability of the post office to handle the mail volume.

Hearsts Ready to Start Free Food Distribution

HILLSBOROUGH, Calif. (CP) — The Hearst family is ready to launch a unprecedented feed-the-poor program in the face of new demands from the terrorist kidnappers of Patricia Hearst.

Rightists Ask $700,000

Editor Expected To Be Free Today

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — The abductors of Atlanta Constitution editor Reg Murphy have made contact with an intermediary and said Murphy will be released tonight if "all goes well," the FBI reported.

A man who identified himself as a colonel in the right-wing America Revolutionary Army telephoned a citizen—according to a plan outlined in a tape recorded message from Murphy Thursday night—and said that the citizen call the newspaper.

Leo Conroy, FBI agent in charge of the Atlanta office, gave the following information at a news conference in The Constitution and Atlanta Journal building:

The citizen, who was provided with a code word given to authenticate the message, was instructed by the "colonel" to tell the newspaper to broadcast his instructions within 20 minutes.

The "colonel" said he wanted the head of the FBI in Atlanta to broadcast the announcement.

He also changed the wording in which he wanted the ransom paid, including the number of millions involved.

Conroy said: "We've attempted to comply with every manner of today for Miss Hearst's father, newspaper magnate Randolph A. Hearst, and the $2 million food program into motion.

Cinque has been identified by some San Francisco newspapers, including Hearst's San Francisco Examiner, as escaped convict Donald DeFreeze, 30.

The SLA leader reacted angrily to the attempts to identify him.

He said: "Yes, you do indeed know me. You have always known me. I'm the nigger you have hunted and feared night and day . . .

"I am the nigger that is no longer the hunted, robbed and murdered. I am the nigger that hunts you now."

Methadone Opposed

OTTAWA (CP) — The Le Dain commission's recommendation that methadone maintenance be made available to all heroin addicts is unsound and potentially harmful, the Canadian Medical Association said today. Evaluation and data on the methadone treatment for heroin addiction is lacking, and the treatment should only be used experimentally, the CMA says.

Six Charges Laid

FORT MEADE, Md. (AP) — The United States Army has charged Robert Preston, the private who brought a machine gun, helicopter down on the White House lawn, with theft, breach of peace, damaging government property and three counts of assault with intent to commit murder. If convicted of all charges, Preston could receive a dishonorable discharge and 70 years in prison.

OTTAWA (CP) — With some reluctance, officials have decided that the best man available to advise on selection and protection of heritage properties in Canada's capital is an American. Saudi Arabia Facilities Expanded

Firm Able to Ship More Oil Than Ever Before if Allowed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The major oil producer in Saudi Arabia says that if the Arab lift their oil embargo it can send more oil to the United States than ever before.

Shipments by Aramco can be increased by two million barrels a day above the pre-embargo levels, Michael Ameen Jr., company vice-president, said Thursday.

Ameen said the Saudi government forced Aramco to reduce production last fall. But the company has continued to expand its facilities.

The company produced 8.8 million barrels a day before the embargo. If the embargo is lifted, Aramco production can be increased to 10.3 million barrels daily, he said.

Ameen said almost all of the increase can be shipped to the U.S.

Aramco's projected shipments of 3.3 million barrels daily to the U.S. compares to total petroleum imports last week averaging 6.6 million barrels a day, statistics of the American Petroleum Institute shows.

As key Arab leaders gathered for an Islamic summit conference in Pakistan Thursday, Saudi Foreign Minister Omar Sakkar said the oil embargo will end "the instant before an agreement on the disengagement of Israeli and Syrian forces.

In the U.S., federal energy chief William Simon met with six governors in an effort to work out a program for allocation of available gasoline.

Simon said his office is working on a new allocation formula that will take account of such factors as gasoline sales and motor vehicle registrations. Present allocations are based on percentages of 1972 sales.

The governors who met with Simon were Francis Sargent of Massachusetts, Daniel Evans of Washington, James Holshouser of North Carolina, Philip Noel of Rhode Island, Wendell Ford of Kentucky and Marvin Mandel of Maryland.

Meanwhile, the American Petroleum Institute says that in January the average price of regular-grade gasoline throughout the U.S. hit 44.82 cents a gallon. It was considerably higher in some areas. The February average has not been calculated, but it will be higher still, the institute says.

The average price in 1972 was 36.13 cents a gallon.

Canadian Football Important

Lalonde Promises World League Will Be Barred from Canada

REGINA (CP) — Canada's health minister, Marc Lalonde, said Thursday he'll do everything in his power to keep the World Football League (WFL) out of Canada—but he didn't say what form his action would take.

"I hope the people involved are going to review the situation," Mr. Lalonde told a local service club.

A franchise, Toronto Northmen, already has been awarded.

"I am reasonably confident they will have second thoughts."

Mr. Lalonde said talk of special legislation to keep the WFL out of Canada is premature at this stage, but:

"I'll do everything I can to stop it."

In milder references, he said the WFL invasion is inappropriate and something the federal government views with disfavor.

He said his next step will be to talk to the Ontario minister in charge of sports and Metropolitan Toronto officials to decide on joint action.

If the Canadian Football League is to grow, as Mr. Lalonde said he felt it must, "not even a portion of its biggest and richest market can be allowed to go to a United States-based football league."

"The future of Canadian football is too large and too important . . . to be left to the tender mercies of a few entrepreneurs out for a fast buck."

He insisted the CFL is worth saving, even if it seems unwilling or unable to save itself.

More French-Canadian support is required, he said, and expansion to the Atlantic provinces also should be pursued.

He also favored expansion to London, Ont., and establishment of a second CFL team in Toronto.

Groups in London and Toronto have expressed interest in expansion franchises but John Bassett, owner of Toronto Argonauts of the CFL, vetoed the Toronto proposal.

"Toronto may well be able to support a second team," said Mr. Lalonde. "If that is so, let us have a second team."

In reference to permission by Hassett to allow the WFL Northmen —owned by his son, John Jr.—to use Canadian National Exhibition stadium, Mr. Lalonde said:

"The new league has issued a franchise in Toronto, apparently with the silent assent, if not the blessing, of the same CFL owners who adamantly refused to consider a second CFL team in Toronto only a few months ago."

The federal minister also said the federal government would oppose National Football League franchises in Toronto, Montreal or Vancouver. Reports have circulated that the NFL might be interested in any or all of those centres.

After Lalonde's speech, comments came thick and fast.

John Bassett said in Toronto he is willing to sell his Argonauts to the CFL for $1.3 million. He said he at first gave the CFL 15 days to reach a decision, but later said he was willing to wait 30 days to find a new owner.

Trenton Project

PUC Plans Big Watermain To Solve Supply Problem

TRENTON — The Public Utilities Commission here will soon undertake construction of a major watermain that officials feel should provide the answer to town water supply problems.

The announcement was made Thursday and followed extensive discussions with consultants over recent weeks.

Originally, the commission was considering a system that would combine spring and well water from the town's west side with "manufactured" water drawn from the Trenton River fed into east side mains.

It as an effort on the part of the commission to enhance water quality and meet peak period demands during the summer months.

After exhaustive studies on the potential of the spring water supply, "what we see is what we get," said commission chairman Charles Hilton yesterday.

To bolster the spring supply, the commission has laid groundwork for a major trunk line to cross the river, feeding the town's west side with treated Trent River water.

In the first scheme, two river crossing would have been necessary that would keep the river and spring water together — mixed to enhance quality — then fed back into the system.

Consultants Gore and Storrie laid out projectes ... which would top several million dollars.

The consultants advised the commission "it is not known if a mixed water system will achieve a significant improvement ..."

In the scheme announced Thursday, the east end will continue to be serviced with river water and the west will receive a combination of spring water and filter plant water transported across the river through the trunk line.

Cost estimates are still being evaluated for the work. But, it is supposed it will be far less expensive than a total-main system.

Coupled with this work, the commission "it is not known renovations to the east-side water filtration plant which should increase its daily output in the order of about one million gallons.

Mayor Robert Patrick said the need for water system improvements, was "brought on by the growth Trenton is currently experiencing."

No member of the commission could offer any indication how far into the future these renovations would be accepted. But Mr. Hilton said the system could easily be increased by construction of a totally new filtration plant.

Further meetings will be held between the commission to nail down costs and implementation of the scheme expected to get under way shortly.

New Municipal Setup Agreed as Necessary

TRENTON — Restructuring of local Quinte area governments is necessary, say the 30 elected and appointed representatives who met in Trenton earlier this week.

The municipalities of Belleville, Trenton, Sidney and Thurlow townships and Frankford met in caucus to discuss restructuring plans, believing rationalization on the the province is close.

The announcement from Mayor Bob Patrick's office said: "In general, each municipality wants to retain its identity, but also recognizes some form of restructuring is necessary."

Either fewer larger units created by amalgamations or the creation of a single area is recommended, the announcement said.

Representatives from the municipalities "were of the opinion," re-structuring could provide a better distribution of costs and less duplication of services.

Future meetings have been urged for the group. No date we can determine our future organization of government rather than having it determined for us by provincial authorities."

Woman Hurt In Crash

TWEED — Marie Szmolka, Toronto is in Belleville General Hospital with multiple bruises and neck injuries after being struck by a car as she was walking on the Dolore Road north of Highway 7.

Provincial police said the woman was walking north on the right side of the county road when she was struck by a northbound car driven by David Flynn, 27, of Delore. The accident occurred about 8.30 p.m. Thursday.

The woman was believed to have been visiting a friend in the Marmora area.

Teen Centre

PICTON — A drop-in centre for community teens will open Thursday at St. Gregory's Hall here.

The centre, operated by the Youth Group, will be open from 7:30 to 10:30 p.m. It will feature card games, chess and monopoly. It is not a church group and all young persons are welcomed.

Teenagers also are invited to a meeting at the Picton Teen Set at the County Centre tonight at 7:30 p.m.

Watch for Burnouts

PICTON — The Picton Utilities Commission has announced that daytime patrol of the street lighting system will be discontinued March 1 on a three-month trial basis.

Customers are urged to call the PUC offices to report burned out lights as they fail. These burned out lights will be replaced the next day on an individual basis.

Will Discuss Cemetery

SOPHIASBURGH — Sophiasburgh Council will meet next week at the Christian Education Centre of the United Church to discuss development of a community cemetery.

The meeting, for March 4 at 7.30 p.m., will be attended by W.P. Asselstine, inspector for the provincial government cemetery branch. Additional information about the upcoming meeting can be obtained locally from Mrs. Wayne Lindsay of Sophiasburgh.

Moving Now No Help In Beating the Bills

TRENTON — Moving to another community won't help skip payment of utilities bills anymore.

Trenton's Public Utilities Commission Thursday took on the services of a Toronto collection agency which claims 85 per cent success at $5 an account.

Currently, the commission employs a conventional collection agency which keeps one third of the amount collected as its fee.

A brochure circulated to prospective clients reads, "Our methods and trade secrets are based on the established fact of the science of psychology — more persuasive than the standard harassing of debtors."

The system works as a huge cross index file of all PUC customers in the province.

A new client in Trenton may be a debtor in Belleville or any other community. One of the company's stipulations is that "skips" or absconders' names be relayed to its Toronto office.

Amount of outstanding payments PUC manager Doug Maslow said is around $2,000.

Clients who fail to make up arrears payments will be refused service, says Mr. Maslow and members of the commission.

The commission has decided to take the company's three-month trial offer.

For $200, the commission receives 100 tickets, one for each outstanding debt to be claimed.

Where the company is unsuccessful tickets will be returned to be used again.

But, as commission chairman Charles Hilton pointed out, "the commission owes us no town, there's nothing stopping him from using a phoney name."

Shortages Not Hitting Bookings

PICTON — Members of the Quinte's Isle Tourist Association met informally this week to discuss energy problems, including energy shortages.

The majority of resort operators reported there is no indication through advance booking that the normal volume of visitors will be reduced because of the energy shortage. Several tourist operators attending the meeting stated that most Americans holidaying in Prince Edward live close to the border and once in Canada will have no serious difficulty in getting gas.

Manager of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce, Donald Sutton, addressed QITA members and said the need for individual promotion of lodges and resorts instead of total reliance on the association.

Conservation Executive

TRENTON — William Carter of Campbellford Monday night was named chairman of the Lower Trent Region Conservation Authority.

Other executive members are: vice-chairman, Russell Sills, conservation areas; Paul Tripp; public relations, Cy McDonald; forestry and land use, Flet McMillan; fish and wildlife, Bruce Spencer; water control, Gordon Tobey.

Police Alarm System Ringing in the Rain

TRENTON — Heavy August rain put the police department's electrical alarm system out of order here today.

Burglar alarms were touching off all morning as Bell Telephone crews worked to dry out a crucial cable that short-circuited telephone and alarm lines.

A spokesman for the department said shops and business establishments were open and that police were not responding to the alarms.

Long Service To Township

Clerk of the township of Montegagle for the past 42 years, Jack P. McAlpine of Maynooth has retired.

In recognition of his long year's service to the township, Mr. McAlpine was given a testimonial dinner attended by muncipal councillors, area municipal officials and friends.

Clarke T. Rollins, Hasting MPP, presented a plague from Premier William Davis, while township reeve S.J. Carr presented a plague from the municipality.

On Ontario Fairs Board

TRENTON — Mrs. Ronald Hamilton of Trenton has been named vice president of the women's section of the Ontario Association of Agricultural Societies.

The announcement came during the annual meeting of the association held in Toronto.

He's A Winner

PICTON — A Glenora resident, John (Pete) Neville has won a second place prize of $1,000 in a licensed bakery sponsored by the Cornwall Canadian Legion branch.

Mr. Neville, a retired longsteer formerly employed on the Glenora ferry says this is the first time he has won anything. He expects to spend his prize "a little here and a little there."

New Talks On Lease

TYENDINAGA — Further discussions are in the offing on settlement of the Shannonville lease.

The Quinte Mohawk council on this reserve Wednesday night decided to meet with federal officials from Ottawa March 8 in Belleville — the second such discussion in recent weeks.

Since the year started the council has speeded up work toward resolving the issue that hinges on a lease granted in the early 1800s to a millowner. Land parcels were later subleased off the original holding and the settlers developed what became the hamlet of Shannonville. When it moved, they sold their subleases.

Terms of the original lease make it appear an anachronism in modern times. It's for 999 years at a yearly rental of 30 barrels of flour.

Tenders To Be Called

Thurlow township approved the calling of tenders for 1974 road department requirements during a special council meeting Wednesday. At present, township clerk Clare Horton is preparing tender forms and expects to being advertising in the near future.

Tenders will call for bids on fencing materials, fuel oil, corrigated iron pipe up to six feet in diameter, and furnace oil for the township garage, hall and firehall at Pt. Anne.

Tenders will close at noon, Wednesday, March 13.

Picton Gets Pre-school Nursery For Mentally Retarded Children

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — A nursery for pre-school children has been opened here by the Prince Edward Association for the Mentally Retarded.

Approximately eight youngsters from two to four years of age meet five mornings a week, Monday through Friday, at the Christian Education Centre of Picton United Church.

Teachers Phyllis Sitzberpe and Madeline McGregor assisted by two volunteers, provide the children with experience in communication skills. Efforts are made to increase the youngsters' attention span and to bring them out of themselves.

Free play periods have been introduced in the pre-school classes prior to craft and painting classes. Stories, music and exercises also form part of the curriculum.

Baic goal of the school is to increase socialization skills of its students as well as their ability to communicate with one another.

The PEAMR is seeking additional pupils for its nursery school program and especially interested in Picton youngsters who might be eligible.

Lakes Safe In North Says Ministry

Tweed (Special) — Ice conditions on northern Quinte district lakes are now the best of the entire winter season, say officials at the Tweed office of the Ministry of Natural Resources, Thursday.

Officials said small lakes in the area are safe for travelling by foot, while larger lakes are safe for snowmobiling.

But officials, at the same time, warned that, with three inches of new snow on the ice and the sun getting stronger each day, melting ice could soon present a danger.

In the north there is now 15 to 17 inches of snow — about five inches less than average at this time of year. Snowmobiling is fair and skiing excellent.

At Lake Maniwaw the Boo Echo provincial park parking lot has been cleared of snow in readiness for an influx of snowmobilers expected this weekend. Park snowmobile trails were said to be in good condition.

Energy Lack Sees Costlier Road Repairs

PICTON — Roads in Prince Edward County will be paved at increased cost because of the energy shortage.

County engineer Donald Clark this week told county councillors that asphalt costs have raised from $18 to $24 a ton.

Mr. Clark noted that, using hot mix, roads previously had been covered at a cost of $15,-000 a mile. That price has ncreased to $25,000 a mile.

Surface treatment emulsion costs are up by 30 per cent and there is a possibility that it will be difficult to obtain prime.

Six members of the Prince Edward Agricultural Society recently attended the Ontario Association of Agricultural Societies convention held in Toronto at the Royal York Hotel.

Delegates included Mrs. Ross Whiteford, Creighton Lockyer, Walter Demille, Arthur McCormack, Philip Dodds and Thelma Cahan. Mr. Dodds has been named public relations director for the provincial association.

How Short Is Energy?

TRENTON — Trenton's Public Utilities Commission will meet with Ontario Hydro next Wednesday to determine if there really is an energy shortage.

Commission chairman Charles Hilton queried why there is an energy crisis when Canada is still selling surplus Electrical power to the United States.

The commissioners will meet with Hydro officials in Belleville to discuss the topic.

Downtown Scene!

Belleville's downtown business and shopping core has changed little in its outward character.

It is getting on for a decade now that we suggested adoption of a Norwich-style plan after the city in England which launched a facelifting initiative, and at comparatively little cost, that gave renewed life and commercial vigor to the community.

A number of centres in Ontario adopted such a plan, but beyond efforts by individual stores many of them with admirable results, the overall image of the city's heart is little different to the one presented in pictures of the area half-a-century or more ago.

Fires that have left gaping and ugly holes where busy commercial enterprises once stood — these compound the rather tired look of the place. At rush-hour on Friday in particular the atmosphere is heavy with exhaust fumes, which reminds us of another long-lost concept that was still-born — the maple circle traffic system, coupled with removal of overhead signs and all that.

There has been talk of malls, but it has never come to anything, yet the prospect, somehow, of traffic-free zones, perhaps the creation of more floral decoration (already a pleasing aspect of the summer downtown scene), areas of parkland, however small, is worthy of consideration.

A step in the right direction, in this context, is the Industrial Commission's establishment of a committee to devote special attention to the downtown area. With the Centennial in four years' time, anything that is done in the meantime to revitalize the city's welcome.

...And the Centennial

Speaking of the Centennial, the Chamber of Commerce centennial committee has been seeking the co-operation of the public in the ideas department — ideas, that is, for the celebrations of 1978.

The possibilities of course are almost endless. In the realm of history, culture, sport, recreation, not to mention the essential commerce without which no community could function, there is scope for putting the spotlight on Belleville.

In sport we have no recollection over the past decade or so of anything in the way of a track-and-field meet involving say local athletes, let alone one of an invitational character with competitors from outside as well. Maybe there is scope for such a meet — but why wait until 1978 when the emphasis may be more and more on fitness?

It is to be hoped, incidentally, that the landfill at Zwick's Island, and climatic considerations, have militated against a firm base for the soccer playing area which might have been a possibility for athletics too, but some of the school pitches could suffice.

Zwick's Island at large (remember the parade and events there during the last Centennial?) Confederation, of course holds many other possibilities. The bandshell for instance could as presentations by musical groups as well as held by the young people who train in this medium locally, and ethnic dances.

Then there are the fairgrounds where all being well the Quinte Exhibition will roll around as usual, and we could well have the popular Highland gathering again, on the weekend which in the past two years has also brought the stimulating Antique Flying Meet to Mountain View, making this one of the most interesting weekends of the summer calendar.

There has been growing in popularity, so that a full-fledged tournament should be within the realm of possibility by 1978.

The schools, Corby Library and Hastings county museum may also be counted upon to make their contribution to the Centennial million.

The harbor area by then should also be a facility of greatly expanded use, and we have seen such a trend already in the work that was carried out there last summer by Ald. Stu Meeks and his volunteers and which no doubt will continue in the years.

With greater anchorage space we shall see more visitors and they too should be a part of the Centennial scene.

These are but a few suggestions, and indicative of the opportunities, as well as the hard but rewarding work lying ahead in this Centennial project.

While Andras Acknowledges Abuses...

Changing Work Ethic Blamed in Part for UIC Rip-Offs

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — So, after all official denials, softened down to explanations and attempted rationalizations over the months, Manpower Minister Robert Andras has finally come clean on the Unemployment Insurance program.

It was, he admits, a mess.

The gross abuse of it — costing the taxpayers a $156 million over-run out two years ago — came perilously close to losing the election for the Trudeau Government.

While denying there was anything approaching the massive multi-million-dollar ripoff which the figures clearly indicated, the badly frightened Government sent in Robert Andras to clean house.

He quickly clamped down, booting 225,000 chiselers, cheaters and cute corner-cutters out of the UIC trough, all the while defending the program with a mildly diminishing conviction.

Now, in a speech to the Canadian Construction Association, he has told all — or almost all — about how and why it went the system was.

Unlikely although it seems, New Democrat MP Max Saltsman of Ontario's Waterloo constituency, a confirmed socialist, was the one who pinned the "rotten" label on the UIC.

Comes, then, the confession from Robert Andras that things were as bad at hand that the Manpower Department little or no control over benefit ripoffs when the Great Unemployment Insurance Scandal initially surfaced.

With his lightening up last year; and further cracking down on the worst, he has, he told the skeptical construction men, "to help UIC clean out of its deep public relations hole."

Finally, in telling it like it really was, he retracts all those denials, explanations and attempted rationalizations of the massive raids on the UIC fund, and admits that the right was wrong — and perhaps even suspected practice.

"Most of the criticisms levelled against us a year ago — even six months ago — were valid," he reports, confirming the carefully documented charges of Conservative MP Jack Ellis of Eastern Ontario's Hastings South riding that fraud was monumental.

The Government calls those UIC deductions from everyone's pay-cheque "contributions", but to hundreds of thousands of working Canadians who will never be "unemployed", as well as collecting any benefits, they are just another form of federal tax.

Well aware of their resentment and anger, Robert Andras again underlines that while eight straight weeks of work qualifies a jobless worker to a year of benefits, unemployment insurance, as he puts it, "is no paid holiday."

But house-cleaning UIC is not all that easy, he reveals, since robbing the Government — and the taxpayers — has become something of an established indoor sport.

He put it this way:

"I have to confess to alarm at the frequency of some people to think that 'cheating' the Government is an amusing and permissible game.

"It looks as if 'ripping off' the UIC (or the Canadian Division of National Revenue), or social welfare departments has become something of a national pastime for a number of Canadians, who, indeed, consider themselves to be honest and upright citizens.

"The worst part of it is that many of them probably did not even think there was anything wrong in trying for a free ride."

The construction men had suggested that a commission of inquiry on the great game of sucker-ing the taxpayers, followed by remedial legislative action, might help cut down on the multi-million-dollar UIC fraud.

But Robert Andras would not buy it.

"I am more or less thinking out loud," he said in discounting the proposal, "but I really question whether the problem is of too broad and too deeply rooted in the changing ethical and moral climate of society today, to be simply disposed of by Royal Commission or inquiry.

"We can't impose a sense of responsibility on Canadians through legislation."

Back to the problem, concluded the Manpower Minister, "is the whole issue of the changing work ethic."

Or, as Prime Minister Trudeau has put it, in today's society, modern man's ambition should be self-fulfillment, and work necessary is not always the best way to achieve it.

"Then I take it your answer is No?"

Canadian Stocks Show Strength Relative to United States Issues

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service ...

Stock-market analysts are showing little optimism about the investment outlook.

In the clouds overhanging the market, one silver lining appears to be the stronger earnings prospects for Canadian stocks relative to United States issues.

Fourth-quarter 1973 earnings of major U.S. companies, reported in recent days, show some big drops from October-December, 1972. Chrysler Corp. had a 77 per cent decline, and Ford Motor Co. 31 per cent.

"Canadian first-quarter corporate earnings are unlikely to show anywhere near the weakness which we expect to see in the U.S.," says Bruce Moss, Lawson and Co. Ltd., Toronto brokerage firm.

The recent abolition of the U.S. interest-equalization tax, which could bring U.S. buying support back into Canadian markets.

Stocks are being adversely affected by other factors, as well as earnings. One is the inflation psychology that is prompting many investors to seek a hedge for their savings in gold, silver and other tangibles.

Another is the continuing high level of unemployment and the prospect of a broad economic recession.

Then there is the pessimism arising from the failure of the early-February Washington conference of oil-consuming countries.

It had been widely hoped — or wished — that the conference might lead to some kind of cooperative approach by consuming countries in the face of the embargoes and price-gouging of the oil producers' cartel.

It is not a U.S.-denouncement again that the meaning of international co-operation is unclear, but which could worsen that it has beaten the energy crisis with its deals to trade French weapons of war for Arab oil.

(The French delegation even accused the U.S. administration of being motivated by self-interest at the conference.)

In the aftermath of the Washington conference, hopes for economic co-operation among Western Europeans, and among the Western allies generally, have almost vanished.

In their place are fears of a rapid return to the days of cut-throat trading policies of the decade that led up to the great Depression.

Income Tax Seen as Job for Experts

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

With reference to the article "Year of the Tax Consultant," in your issue of January 16, I think that the point is very well taken that assessments to Income Tax should be undertaken by the highly-paid officials of the Federal government.

Since neither lawyers nor accountants can make sense of the legal gobbledygook in which the Income Tax Act is now couched, how can it be fair to the taxation of dividends from companies will have to come from area residents.

At present Thurlow township is left attracting any new industry simply because we cannot render the services needed by industry. Thus these industries locate in areas which already provide the necessary services.

It has been suggested that those who will benefit the most by water and sewer lines pay for the services themselves. This cannot be considered much of an inducement to locate in the Thurlow township.

The old adage of "You must spend a dollar to make a buck" comes into focus at this time. If the township is to grow and progress it is up to the citizens as a whole to carry the load. In the end the benefits will be reaped by all.

Our council must make a decision as to the future of Thurlow township is going. Are we to have industrial developments or sit back and stagnate while Belleville continues to eat those who will not identify with "trade-offs" and easily attained annexations.

I urge the citizens of Thurlow to let their members of council know their feelings one way or another so we can determine our future direction.

"THURLOWITE"

Presidential Aides Go on Trial

By PETER BUCKLEY

WASHINGTON (CP) — The current trial of two former Nixon cabinet officers, John Mitchell and Maurice Stans, marks one more step in the wholesale destruction of the political "amateurs" who surrounded Richard Nixon in his 1972 re-election campaign.

Mitchell and Stans, whose trial on charges of perjury and obstructing justice opened Tuesday in New York, were the chief architects of the president's campaign and have already proved to be among its chief victims.

Both were self-made men, welcomed into the Nixon cabinet because their views meshed comfortably with the president's and their talents had helped assure his narrow victory over Hubert Humphrey in 1968.

However when their trial gets under way in April, just four to six weeks—they are likely to find themselves poorer in reputation than before they met Richard Nixon.

Mitchell has apparently lost his wife, the garrulous and high-living Martha, and both men are reported to have been thoroughly shaken by the lengthy process of accusation and investigation that has led up to the trial.

Although they were independently wealthy when they entered their well-paid Cabinet jobs, the two face massive legal costs in preparing their defence at a time when their earnings are understood to be virtually non-existent.

The fall from grace has been particularly harsh for Mitchell, once the symbol of law and order in the Nixon administration.

A stern, pipe-smoking lawyer who dealt with municipal bonds in Nixon's former Wall Street firm, the 59-year-old Mitchell was one of the president's most trusted confidants during the 1968 campaign.

Then, after Nixon had appointed him attorney-general to head the president's re-election campaign and was joined by Maurice Stans 65, a millionaire accountant who as commerce secretary had been the voice of the business community in Nixon's first Cabinet — who became the campaign's chief fund-raiser.

Like almost all the others who were wielded power and now face the possibility of imprisonment—John Ehrlichman, H. R. Haldeman, John Dean, Dwight Chapin—the two men on trial in New York have never been elected to public office.

Like the others, their only political experience has been gathered in the back rooms and the campaign trails of Nixon's previous election efforts.

Republican Party officials find that aspect of the Watergate affair and its related scandals the most difficult to swallow.

They recall with bitterness that Nixon, set up his own campaign organization, ignoring the professionals who run the Republican campaigns for congress. And they blame much of the Nixon "amateurs" subsequent notoriety on the lack of political experience among those who surround him.

The Mitchell-Stans trial is not the only political setback for those of Democratic Party headquarters in the Watergate building. It involves, instead, allegations that the two men received $200,000 in campaign contributions from financier Robert Vesco in return for influencing an investigation of Vesco's mutual fund operations.

But both were witnesses last summer before the Senate Watergate committee and both might face further charges in connection with other events in the 1972 campaign when this trial is over.

Ontario's Need for Senate

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau ....
Thomson News Service ....

TORONTO — Ontario desperately needs a Senate.

Perhaps not for any contribution it would make to our legislative system—though some of its old Senate halls believe the institution has been abused where perhaps it should have been given recognition if for no other reason than to take the pressure off our premiers by removing perhaps the greatest continuing problem they face.

The long overdue changes in the Ontario cabinet may or may not have been announced by the time you read.

But if they have it means that Premier Davis has been able to announce what he will admit in confidence has been the hardest task he has had in his years as leader of the province.

That after long struggles with himself he has either been able to find the hardness of heart to remove some of his veteran ministers out to pasture, or has not been able to forsake the calculousness needed and has held on to these men and overlooked the justified claims of several of his back-bench supporters who justifiably have been looking forward to elevation to a higher niche.

A Senate, of course, could solve this problem.

Veteran members of government could be settled in an upper house and still be part of politics, still have their dignity, serve a part and reward, might say, and possibly even make a contribution.

That is the lack of such a half-way house has been a problem that has disturbed premiers for decades.

There was the case of one minister, for example, who was continued in office for more than a year even though he couldn't leave his bed and never would again.

The premier of the day was too reluctant to tell him he had been moved from office—perhaps he didn't read it, would kill him.

Then there was another minister who continued in office until his late 70s.

Some political politics so much that nobody would hurt him by retiring him. (Actually he continued to do a pretty good job).

Senate seats would have been fulfilment to these men and at the same time opened the way for younger men of ability. (John Roberts and Robert Macaulay are just two members that come to mind who got cabinet rank and later than they should have).

Will we ever see it? Of course not. Senates have too bad a name.

Editor,

With reference to the article "Year of the Tax Consultant," in your issue of January 16, I think that the point is very well taken that assessments to Income Tax should be undertaken by the highly-paid officials of the Federal government.

Since neither lawyers nor accountants can make sense of the legal gobbledygook in which the Income Tax Act is now couched, how can it be fair to the taxation of dividends from companies to understand and comply with Further, in the matter of Tax cost, many are widely advertised in the press and lately on TV states that their fees are "from $5.00" and they, in 1971 advertised that they filed two million tax returns, which resulted in an additional burden of $10 per million dollars worth of additional burden upon taxpayers.

I would too at this time question the legality of this government-to-be, in part to the taxation of dividends from taxable Canadian corporations. Receipt of $100.00 plus 33 per cent equals $133.33 minus 20 per cent equals $26.66 produces a taxable income of $106.67 which is $17 per cent more than the amount actually received, and is a penalty paid out of profits which have already borne tax at 50 per cent.

It is surely debatable that the present government should be in office at the date, historic and prudent in order to purchase the Canadian Pacific Investment and improvident.

Ontario's Need for Senate

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau ....
Thomson News Service ....

TORONTO — Ontario desperately needs a Senate.

Perhaps not for any contribution it would make to our legislative system—though some of its old Senate halls believe the institution has been abused where perhaps it should have been given recognition if for no other reason than to take the pressure off our premiers by removing perhaps the greatest continuing problem they face.

The long overdue changes in the Ontario cabinet may or may not have been announced by the time you read.

But if they have it means that Premier Davis has been able to announce what he will admit in confidence has been the hardest task he has had in his years as leader of the province.

That after long struggles with himself he has either been able to find the hardness of heart to remove some of his veteran ministers out to pasture, or has not been able to forsake the calculousness needed and has held on to these men and overlooked the justified claims of several of his back-bench supporters who justifiably have been looking forward to elevation to a higher niche.

A Senate, of course, could solve this problem at a time when their earnings are understood to be virtually non-existent.

The fall from grace has been particularly harsh for Mitchell, once the symbol of law and order in the Nixon administration.

Then, after Nixon had appointed him attorney-general to head the president's re-election campaign and was joined by Maurice Stans 65, a millionaire accountant who as commerce secretary had been the voice of the business community in Nixon's first Cabinet — who became the campaign's chief fund-raiser.

Like almost all the others who were wielded power and now face the possibility of imprisonment—John Ehrlichman, H. R. Haldeman, John Dean, Dwight Chapin—the two men on trial in New York have never been elected to public office.

Like the others, their only political experience has been gathered in the back rooms and the campaign trails of Nixon's previous election efforts.

Republican Party officials find that aspect of the Watergate affair and its related scandals the most difficult to swallow.

They recall with bitterness that Nixon, set up his own campaign organization, ignoring the professionals who run the Republican campaigns for congress. And they blame much of the Nixon "amateurs" subsequent notoriety on the lack of political experience among those who surround him.

The Mitchell-Stans trial is not the only political setback for those of Democratic Party headquarters in the Watergate building. It involves, instead, allegations that the two men received $200,000 in campaign contributions from financier Robert Vesco in return for influencing an investigation of Vesco's mutual fund operations.

But both were witnesses last summer before the Senate Watergate committee and both might face further charges in connection with other events in the 1972 campaign when this trial is over.

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS
Feb. 22, 1974

The last invasion of Britain, by the French, was staged 177 years ago today—in Wales. The date was 1797. An army of 1,400 landed at a time when France and Britain had been at war for four years with virtually no fighting. After the French ships sailed away, the troops surrendered to Welsh militia with hardly a shot being fired.

1965—The Rio de Janiero area was struck by San Francisco harbor, killing 130 persons.

Living Costs Theme of PCs

OTTAWA (CP) — The rising cost of living is expected to be a major issue in the next general election and Robert Stanfield's progressive Conservatives plan to get their anti-inflation campaign into top gear when Parliament resumes Wednesday.

Some of his followers are convinced that 1974 will be an election year. And, they say the public will welcome an opportunity to heave the minority Liberal government out of office.

For the time being, however, says party House leader Tom Bell, "all we can do is keep gnawing away."

The first bite might come after Wednesday's throne speech. Mr. Bell says there might be a showdown on the speech but it probably will be later.

Business Opposes Price Curb

STRATFORD, Ont. (CP) — The Canadian Federation of Independent Business, representing small and medium-size businessmen, has reversed itself on the question of wage and price controls in Canada.

President John F. Bulloch said Thursday night a survey of one-fifth of the federation's 11,000 members showed 53.4 per cent against controls and 43.8 per cent in favor, with the remainder undecided.

This reverses a vote in March, 1972, in which 64.4 per cent supported a wage-price freeze in Canada and a subsequent system of controls, he told a meeting of the Lions Club.

The implication of the latest survey is that small businesses are turning away from the Progressive Conservative stand for price and wage controls.

"Undoubtedly, the experience of Britain and the U.S. with controls has given small firms in Canada some thoughts about the distortion created by such system," Mr. Bulloch said.

He also criticized the growth of government bureaucracy and spending, aiming his attack at the present welfare system which he said supports the wrong people.

The federation, a political action group, is protesting what it calls overly generous unemployment insurance payments.

Immigrants Must Prove Skills Needed

OTTAWA (CP) — Immigration changes announced Thursday by Immigration Minister Robert Andras are described as one of the last in a series of measures aimed at patching up the time-worn 1952 Immigration Act and its regulations.

Effective immediately, prospective immigrants seeking work will have to prove their occupational skills are needed or have a definite steady job offer before they will be allowed entry.

Mr. Andras has said he has one more house-cleaning measure in mind.

A one-line amendment to the Immigration Act would be brought before Parliament as part of a group of changes to the Criminal Code. The amendment would provide fines and jail terms for deported individuals who return without special permission.

No Move

MONTREAL (CP) — Mayor Jean Drapeau denied a published report Thursday that the United Nations will move its headquarters to Montreal from New York, following the 1976 Olympic Games.

Mayor Drapeau said:

"I know of no negotiations taking place" and such matters do not come under the jurisdiction of the mayor or the municipality.

Dairy Products to be Higher

Big Price Boosts Predicted for Milk

OTTAWA (CP) — Consumers can expect a hefty round of price increases for dairy products during the year, say agriculture sources.

They believe that federal authorities are planning to allow industrial milk prices to climb worth roughly $230 million, or about $2 a hundredweight, when the annual dairy policy is announced March 31.

Others say all provinces intend to follow Quebec's lead and raise the price of fluid milk during the next few months.

In 1973, price rises for both fluid and manufacturing milk products—cheese, butter and powder—were partially offset by heavy government subsidies.

But Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan has indicated in a number of recent speeches that dairy subsidies, now worth more than $300 million a year, are high enough.

"This time the consumer will have to bear the burden," he said groups in Ontario and Eastern Canada earlier this week.

There are indications that consumers not only will be faced with higher costs as a result of government-ordered price increases. They also may be expected to fill the price gap left by two federal subsidy programs end this year.

One, a "temporary" program introduced last August 1 that guaranteed dairy farmers an extra $1 for each hundred pounds of manufacturing milk sold, ends March 31.

The other, a one-year five-cent-a-quart subsidy paid to provincial milk boards which promised to maintain or lower milk prices, terminates next fall.

The dairy industry, represented by the Dairy Farmers of Canada, said after its annual meeting earlier this year that consumers should immediately withdraw from the consumer-milk producer agreement, a program requiring farmers to sell their milk to boards which promised to maintain or lower milk prices, terminates next fall.

But the industry says it is worried about consumer reaction should the subsidy end.

Role-Playing The Way To Real Understanding

"Try to remember what it was like to be 13 years old and falling in love for the first time.

"Can you remember the excitement, the embarrassment, the fears and the dreams that you had?"

Steve Forrester, theatre arts teacher, took the audience (at the last Session in Sexuality held this week at Loyalist College) back to their own adolescence to help them "step into the shoes of their children".

He led the group through a series of theatre games designed to eliminate shyness, and then introduced "role-playing". This is a technique in which people adopt roles other than their own in order to take part in a situation.

Taking a role, Mr. Forrester said, is a good way of finding out what it's like to be somebody else.

He suggested various situations typical of the predicaments that teenagers find themselves in, and then small groups presented these situations.

Trying to understand how the other person feels is the key to good communication between two people, social worker Lesley Forrester explained at the end of the role-playing activities.

Parents who have trouble talking to their children are usually doing just that - talking to, instead of talking with.

"Parents often let their own agenda for discussion prevent them from hearing what their children are saying," Mrs. Forrester said.

"For good communication (especially in sensitive areas such as sexual behavior) people must actively listen."

The art of active listening is expounded in a book called Parent Effectiveness Training by psychologist Dr. Thomas Gordon.

Mrs. Forrester demonstrated the system in which the parent "feeds back" what he hears the child say, so that there is no room for misunderstanding.

As the child then verifies or corrects the parent's impression of what he has said, he becomes involved in conversation more actively than he would otherwise be.

"Let the kid run with the ball instead of steering him yourself," Mrs. Forrester advised.

Exploring his own identity and feelings is the most useful thing a teenager can do, she said, and a parent's role should be especially supportive during the difficult years when an adolescent is discovering sex.

Dr. Gordon's technique of active listening gets rid of the usual tug-of-war that occurs when parents and children try to talk about sex.

Mr. Forrester then organized the groups in further role-playing exercises in which they could experiment with the active listening techniques.

Dim View

TORONTO (CP) — Rita McKay's new color television took a dim view of CBC's recent screening of the controversial Montreal Nichlas comedy Hell's of Hell. At the critical point where Henry Morgan entered a topless massage parlor, the set broke down and smoke began pouring out of the back. Firemen had to be called in to douse the small blaze.

'Did I Hear You Right?'

Lesley Forrester listens carefully to what her husband Steve has to say during their presentation on role-playing to the session at the final session in Sexuality. Mrs. Forrester stressed the need for active listening in any two-way conversation.

KICKING TIRES FROM AROUND THE WORLD

"Oh how things have changed." — Toronto Automobile Dealers' Association Souvenir Program.

To drive to Toronto to see the 'AUTO SHOW '74!' my husband and I left rather early in a morning elegantly draped with pale veils of mist. Passing, familiar, models of cars seemed as huge monsters appearing, disappearing from nowhere . . .

Upon arriving at The Toronto International Centre of Commerce, Airport Rd. (Dixon Rd. one mile N.W. of the airport), where parking for more than 8,000 cars was available, supervised and free, we entered an Aladdin's world; a splendid hall of soft lights, spacious, crimson-carpeted floor displaying more than 300 of 1974 cars — including exotic cars and racing machines. Some were on revolving platforms where lovely white satin ,shirtwaisted and long-skirted girls, in dulcet tones depicted enviable features of the cars models.

We were, indeed, in a new era — instantly outdistancing the one we had just left, minutes behind. An era filled with . . . could these be the cars of the future?

First to greet the visitor are three urban car-ideas featured by General Motors. Each with a different power system. One runs on gas, one on electrical power and the third a combination of gasoline and electrical power. So tiny and compact are they - - as if toys.

Down and along the vast endless beyond waited the lastest mode of major exhibitors to welcome your inspection:

General Motors, Honda, B M W (Bavarian Motor Works), Alfa Romeo, Rolls Royce, Mercedes-Benz, Renault, Datsun, AMC, Ford, Volkswagen, Toyota, Glassic, Lamborghini, Chrysler, Peugeot, Ferrurri, Citroen — cars from around the world. But why such an event?

Toronto's 75-year old Automobile Dealers Association is proud and happy to offer this first annual Toronto Automobile Show - - for it is a dream, at last, come true. It is pointed out that Toronto is the centre of the Canadian car industry, where more cars are bought than anywhere else in the country. Also, all the major North American car manufacturers have their plants within a radius of a few miles of the city.

An added feature and enjoyable one was the Crown Jubilee. This Foundation was created in honor of the House of Craven noted for its tobacco products, and is an effective instrument through which meaningful cars, some of National significance, can be retained.

An example: the Foundation has acquired a 1919 Pierce-Arrow 7-Passenger car originally owned by the daughter of the late Sir William C. Van Horne, KC-M G, President of the Canadian Pacific Railway 1888-1899. This car was located in Columbus, Georgia.

The collection already has 64 automobiles ranging in time 1901 to 1933. In it are cars such as - the 1931 Duesenberg (the only one in Canada), and a great favorite in Hollywood during the 20's and 30's, ...the 1913 Flat 7-Passenger Tourer (1 of only 5 in the World) — the 1930 Packard Boat-tail Speedster...and many, many other models that will reflect an era of nostalgia and charm which is a living memory to so many Canadians."

But the Peerless Speedster, 1911, was one for our memory bank - - beautifully refurbished with gleaming brass-its engine hood strapped on by two canvas straps!

We depart from this world of future ultra-modern motor cars; our heads a whirl with visions of £30,000 Mercedes-Bens and other masterpieces of the scientific dimensions of Man's technical, miraculous know - how - to gradually find ourselves again driving, enroute to Belleville, as if in A Turner landscape painting of mist and gray beauty.

How at peace, we seem, with the order of our present world - - in the comfort - - of our old dependable 'family car, of THIS era.

Change needs "getting use to" - - a little time.

Rural Mail Carrier Retires

In the course of her job Mary Gilbert has travelled the equivalent of ten times around the world. Right here in Hastings county.

For 27 years she has driven 30 miles each day she's carried the RR 3 mail along a route that starts on Cloverleaf Drive and ends on Wallbridge Road. Mail delivery six days a week on one of the largest rural times until she retires at the end of this month.

Mail carriers like Mary Gilbert feel a real responsibility toward their work. She knows the names of the 400 families on her route. She knows some of the people as they've grown from babies to parents with babies of their own.

And the folks who know her, all know her as Mary.

"Nobody ever calls me Mrs. Gilbert," she says with a smile. "It has always just been plain ordinary Mary."

During the warm months when people are outside, Mary often stops for a chat by the mailbox.

"I'm going to miss those people. And I'm going to miss the fellows around here," she says, "and the time spent sorting mail beside her in the post office.

"We've had a good time together all these years. Since I've not been in good health the last few months, the boys here have loaded up my car for me every morning. I won't forget those kindnesses in a hurry."

Mary started doing the mail delivery when her husband, now deceased, having successfully bid for the route, found he didn't enjoy the routine. She took over for him, and with the help of her five children continued the route through the years.

"I guess it used to be a harder job," she reminisces. "There used to be much more snow in the winter than there is now, and people weren't required to keep their mailboxes shovelled clear.

"Many a time I had to dig my car out of drifts, or send one of my children on foot with the mail through the snow.

"No matter what the weather, you had to get through, that was the feeling. You put yourself out to get the mail and daily paper to people who really depended on it."

Mary has seen a gradual change in attitudes and working conditions during her years of mail delivery. She's also spotted social changes.

"Little children used to write to Santa Claus and put their letters out in the box for me to pick up. That doesn't happen any more, and I think that's too bad.

"In fact, younger people don't seem to get many letters, not as many as the older people do on their route. In this busy world there just isn't time for writing letters.

"But I did notice this year that there were more valentines in the mail than I've seen for a while. I wonder what that means?"

Because of her health, Mary is retiring before the usual retirement age. She has no definite plans for the future, outside of "sleeping for a week to start with!"

"I expect to give more time to my flowers now," she says. "I have 40 African violets, and I love to grow unusual plants.

"I have a son with me at home now so I won't be too lonely. And I might get active again in the Boy Scouts Auxiliary.

"I'm training the fellow now who's taking over the route. He has a lot to learn, like the difference between the mail for two women with the same name on RR 5.

"It's been a good job. I'm going to miss it."

Sorting the Mail

Mary Gilbert spends up to two hours every morning sorting the mail that she takes out on RR 5 six days a week. She's been delivering for the Post Office for 27 years, and retires this month. Her fellow employees say they're going to miss her.

Ann Landers

Waitresses Depends on Tipping

Dear Ann Landers: I agree with you that the tipping system is lousy—but somebody should pay the people who work for them and not pass the burden on to the customer. But as long as the system exists, waitresses must depend on it to get by.

I am no longer a waitress, but being one for six years was a great learning experience for me. It taught me to be considerate of others. For example: I remember how four and five secretaries used to sit at a table for two hours at lunch, ask for third cups of coffee, and leave 15 cents each—even though they were making at least $500 a month. It never occurred to them that they were tying up a table that otherwise might be used by two or even three other groups whose tips would help a waitress pay her rent.

Of course, a tip is a gift—but so is thoughtfulness and consideration. Thanks for letting me sound off.—No Name

Dear No.: I'm sure you spoke for thousands of waiters and waitresses from coast to coast, and on behalf of them all, I thank you.

Dear Ann Landers: I am 43, divorced, and living with my widowed mother who is in her 70s. While I was married, mother lived alone in an apartment near us. I saw her several times a week, took her grocery shopping, to the doctor, etc. When I was divorced she suggested that we buy a house together. She made the down payment and I have been taking care of the mortgage and upkeep.

I have since met a woman I want to marry. Mother is against the marriage on religious grounds. The questions I need answered are these: Do I have a moral obligation to continue to live with my mother since we bought the house together? It would be impossible to move my new wife in with us because they are not compatible. Also, I will have custody of my children soon and my mother doesn't get along with them because she despises their mother.

I realize now I made a mistake in buying this house with her mother. She can't keep it up you can have a life with your without my help. What's more, she is doing her best to make choice.

me feel guilty about suggesting that she live alone again. Any answers—Too Many Commitments

Dear T.M.C.: The house must over her head. You must be sold so your mother can get her own payment back and children and the woman of your

Of course, you'll have to help mother up in a new apartment and continue to take her marketing, to the doctor, etc. You owe her this, but you don't

Lonely Women In Pubs

By DORIS CLARK

When she presided at her first meeting, the newly-elected president of a women's group likened her executive to an herb garden.

She said that, to her, the past-president represented sage (the wisdom of experience), while the president provided allspice, by being alert and knowledgeable about everything. The vice-president, she thought, added the zest of pepper to the proceedings, while the treasurer, of course, was mint in her garden.

The recording secretary, with her tedious but necessary chores, was salt, and the corresponding secretary was curry powder. By bringing in new members, the membership chairman added savoury to the club, while the publicity chairman added that extra bit of flavor represented by vanilla!

What a positive start for the executive's year of working together!

Dorothy Turcotte.

Dear Doris: To answer "Needing Consideration", it is no wonder there are so many lonely women. They are looking for a good time only, dancing, sitting in the pubs sipping beer.

What do they plan in return? Neither much love, help or understanding; nor willingness to help in building a better home in return for security and love.

My dear Needing Consideration, try to be fussy about whom you choose. No dancing or pubs can make up for a long lonely night. I am a family man but believe me I'd rather stay alone if I cannot find a female who has more interest than just money, travelling and dancing.

If you want a he-man look in the right places, not in any beer parlor.

Alone.

Dear Alone: What makes you so suspicious? A woman can enjoy dancing and other recreation without being a no-good, can't she?

I greatly doubt that most lonely women are merely looking for a good time.

MAGIC LADY

By Connie

What's for spring? Watch the class of '74 and you'll see. Pants for mother were trendsetters. Combine and denim are still strong. Skirts are less tight, but still clinging pants. They go all lengths, from short shorts to floor length. The new look is "pulled in" at the waist and skirt scene, just as the skirt and the hem are pulled in. Sleeves are very full, from the shoulder to the cuff. Tucked in sleeves are out, but flared forms, shaped and belled tops from the elbow down are in. Ponchos are still around, but in smaller proportions.

It's go with your new image. The 3's Company look just won't do! Dictable and major are very! Gars are the rage! Be sure to consult with your mood. Buying clothes and getting hair to make you MAGIC, too!

Jim Lenko Is Given His Visa

MOSCOW (AP) — Eugene (Jim) Lenko, a Canadian-born who desires to return to his homeland from the Soviet Union, was informed by authorities today that his visa request has been granted.

Lenko, who came to the Soviet Union with his Ukrainian parents in 1956, was called in by immigration officials in Kiev and told that he and his wife and family were free to leave within a month's period. The Canadian embassy in Moscow said this had been confirmed by the foreign ministry.

Lenko had been informed by officials in Kiev only last Tuesday that his application to leave had been "indefinitely deferred." The reason for the reversal was not clear, but considerable pressure has built up in Canada for Lenko's return.

Lenko had come here reluctantly as an 18-year-old youth, with promises he could return home when he wanted. He carries a Canadian passport.

There was no immediate indication on when Lenko would leave.

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Stephen Lewis, Ontario New Democratic Party leader, accused the provincial government Thursday of using a dispute over teachers' contracts as a ploy to lull the public into believing the province was fighting inflation.

Speaking to representatives of teachers groups, Mr. Lewis said the government's education spending ceilings were "a crude political act to win the votes of the overtaxed homeowner."

OTTAWA (CP) — The health department Thursday night announced recall of another product of Rogers Chocolate Ltd. of St. Hyacinthe, Que.

SHAWINIGAN, Que. (CP) — The manager of B.F. Goodrich Canada Ltd. plant said Thursday employees have started wearing oxygen masks to protect themselves from gas believed to have led to the deaths of five workers at one of the company's American plants.

John Brooks said tests conducted so far have shown some workers are exposed to the same percentage of the compound—vinyl chloride—as in the operation at Louisville, Ky.

More Heavy Water Facilities Planned

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission says it has filed an application with the federal Atomic Energy Control Board seeking approval to build additional heavy water production units within the Bruce nuclear power development site on Lake Huron.

The additional units would increase production capacity at the Bruce heavy water plant to 2,200 short tons a year from 800 short tons. The commission said it's a news release.

The application supersedes one made by Ontario Hydro last October for approval to double the plant's capacity.

Idaho Editorials Must Be Signed

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — The Idaho Senate passed by a 21 to 14 vote Thursday a bill to require all newspapers in the state to sign their editorials.

Sponsors said the measure, sent to the House of Representatives, would make newspapers more responsible for policies they advocate in editorials. Most debate on the measure concerned editorials in the Idaho Statesman, the state's largest newspaper at Boise, although the bill would apply to all 72 newspapers in the state.

"It seems inconsistent that political office holders are required to reveal all of their private—including their financial standings and even their love life—and yet editorial writers, who probably have more impact, can remain anonymous," he said.

Oxygen Lack Would Be Last Thing Suspected

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — A medical expert testifying at the inquest into 23 deaths at Sudbury General Hospital said Thursday that hospitals may alter their policies as a result of the inquest.

Dr. David Pelton, chief anesthetist at the Hospital for Sick Children in Toronto, came under stiff cross-examination from Elmer Sopha, a lawyer representing the family of a six-year-old girl who died Sept. 7 in the hospital.

Catherine Dominic died, he told the jury, from brain damage caused by lack of oxygen after she had undergone an operation to set a broken arm.

Earlier, the inquest had been told that a crossover of medical gas lines had resulted in nitrous oxide being piped into oxygen outlets.

Dr. Pelton said all medical gas systems in hospitals should be modified to meet 1973 standards, and that an oxygen analyzer should be employed in anesthetic circuits.

Mr. Sopha asked why the doctor would not recommend provincial hospital inspectors.

"Ideally your suggestion is correct, but I don't know how practical," said Dr. Pelton.

He told the jury that one of the last things a doctor would think of was that the patient was not receiving oxygen.

"I'm not trying to cover up for physicians, but I think the jury must attempt to understand how we think," said Dr. Pelton.

He said doctors might have come up with several reasons for the girl turning blue before checking the gas she was receiving.

If all else fails, he said, a doctor might consider taking the patient off anesthetic and using mouth-to-mouth resuscitation.

However, he said doctors must rely on the equipment they use.

Dr. Pelton said the doctors' final thought would be that an equipment failure may have occurred, but by the time anything might have been done, brain damage would have been caused.

He termed unfair a question by Mr. Sopha, who asked why Dr. Joseph Fyfe, chief of anesthesia at this hospital, did not check the wall outlets personally.

The inquest was adjourned to Monday after six weeks of testimony into the death of the Dominic girl.

The next death to be investigated will be that of Rudolph Preaske, 16, of Toronto who died June 28, 1972, after being given six pints of blood for a cut.

The inquest is expected to hear another 100 witnesses and last three more weeks.

Drug Freaks Use Horse Medicine

OTTAWA (CP) — Drug freaks, ever willing to experiment are turning to a horse medicine in their search for kicks, RCMP say.

Narcotic investigation officials said Thursday the drug takers are risking their lives as they take PCP—phencyclidine—either alone or in a potent cocktail with LSD.

PCP is a narcotic used as a muscle relaxer for horses by veterinarians. It started turning up on the illicit market about 1½ years ago and last summer was put on the list of dangerous drugs in narcotic legislation.

While RCMP said its use has not caught up with others, such as the amphetamines, it is a problem nationally. It appeared to be more in use in Ontario than elsewhere.

An indication of its use was given Thursday when RCMP swooped on alleged drug traffickers in the Ottawa-Hull area in search of more than 50 men charged with more than 90 drug offences.

The charges included 14 for trafficking in PCP or THC—tetrahydrocannabinol. Police said some traffickers mix LSD with PCP—making a potent cocktail—and market it as TCH, which is an ingredient found in cannabis.

Cattlemen Seek Use Of DES

TORONTO (CP) — The federal government must relax the growth hormone DES for beef production or place "an immediate and absolute" ban on imports of United States beef and live cattle, the president of the Ontario Beef Improvement Association said Thursday.

Canadian producers will face a considerable economic disadvantage relative to American producers in terms of cost of production if we are to be denied the use of DES (diethylstilbestrol) while our American counterparts can use it," Stewart Brown told the association's annual meeting.

Christmas Eve Robber Guilty

A Deseronto man was yesterday convicted of robbery when he appeared before Judge J. L. Clendenning in provincial court here.

Steven Robert Valliere, 18, pleaded guilty to robbing Tory's Variety Store, in Deseronto, of approximately $330 on Christmas Eve.

Court was told yesterday, that Valliere had been on his way home around 5 p.m. last Dec. 24 when he saw that there was just one elderly woman working in variety store, and decided that he would be able to rob the store.

Valliere told the police that he went home and cut up a pair of his wife's panty hose for a mask, took a grey overcoat and a paper bag from his home and returned to the parking lot behind the George Street liquor store.

From the parking lot, Valliere watched the variety store until he was certain there was no one but the proprietor present. He then put on his nylon mask and the overcoat and crossed the street to the store.

Valliere told the proprietor that he was holding her up and used his finger in his trench coat pocket to make her think he had a pistol.

After the robber, Valliere returned to his apartment where he hid the stolen money in a washing machine.

Judge Clendenning remanded Valliere in custody for sentence March 7 pending the preparation of a pre-sentence report.

Testing, Testing . . .

Outdoor Skating Is Dwindling

Winter unseasonably balmy in recent days hasn't warmed to Belleville's outdoor skating-rink program this year.

Not that the city recreation department seems to be exactly complaining.

After all, the weather's been lovely.

But for outdoor rinks the elements have been so bad the department has had to drastically cut back its facilities.

Originally, about a score of outdoor rinks, big and small in city neighborhoods and park areas were opened.

The total is now down to five. But even that's once again nature of winter 1974 hasn't encouraging recreation officials to attempt any restoration of the outdoor skating surfaces dashed by a temperate winter.

"We had programmed for 31 outdoor rinks," said Sonny Belch, deputy recreation director, Thursday. We had most of them established too, but now have had to cut right back because of the warm weather."

By Thursday the department had reduced the total of outdoor rinks to five -- at Hillcrest, Moira Secondary School, Haig Parkette, and the big surfaces on Belleville harbor and at Zwick's Park cove.

To maintain the full complement of rinks in uncertain temperatures would have been wasteful extravagance, he indicated.

Meanwhile, the department has retained the depth of ice in the harbor -- possibly slimmed by continuous warm sunshine -- to be tested as a precaution, said Mr. Belch.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 22, 1974

Methyl Poisoning Death Indicator

A post mortem report on two University Ave. men who died in hospital earlier this week states the cause of their death as cerebral hemorhage, a police spokesman said today.

Such a report, said Police Chief Douglas Crosbie, was consistent with the intake of methyl alcohol.

Arthur Alvin Brant, 32, and Milton Francis Hobbs, 40, both of 141 University Ave., were rushed to hospital within an hours and a half of each other Monday after complaining of chest pains and vomiting. Police said one man claimed he had lost his eyesight.

Hobbs, transferred to Kingston General Hospital died after midnight Tuesday. Brant died in Belleville General Hospital.

Chief Crosbie said today, a partially empty can of methyl alcohol was discovered in the house.

Exact cause of death will not be know until police receive a report from the Centre for Forensic Sciences in Toronto. The chief said simmach condition of the two men have been forwarded for analysis.

Tax Rebates Faster

Bellevillians in recent years contribute about a quarter of one per cent of Canada's total income tax revenue.

The 23 per cent (in 1971, latest statistics available) may only seem a sliver in the silver lining the nation contributes to its own coffers.

Nonetheless, it's a sizable source of action for information officers staffing the Belleville district taxation office.

And the peak period is now for the civil servants assigned to help taxpayers tackle any tangles in their tax returns.

To Monday, the Belleville district office had handled 10,000 queries -- over the counter, phone and mail, says information officer John Lennon.

It's total "considerably up" from the same time last year.

A major reason for the increase is the Ontario Tax Credit system -- this year with boosted benefits -- processed with federal returns.

Some 75 per cent of the inquires have involved provincial tax credits -- many of them from senior citizens who must file returns to receive a $100 pensioner credit.

Not all the inquiries are generated in the city. The Belleville taxation office administers a region reaching from Napanee to Bowmanville, north to the Peterborough area.

However, returns are flowing in faster this year -- and being processed more swiftly, says the information officer.

By Monday, the national revenue department had received 214,700 returns from across Canada compared to 207,200 at the same time last year.

Almost 101,900 had been assessed against 12,425 in 1973. Best of all the flow of refunds was faster -- and more abundant: Nearly $6,700 amounting to $16,000,000 compared to 9,657 and $11,114,000 last year.

Belleville area statistics would be in "direct ratio" to the latest national statistics, he said.

Meantime, telephone answering services have been extended 75 minutes to 6 p.m. each Monday and Tuesday to process local inquiries. Long-distance calls can be placed through toll-free Zenith 04000, local calls though 962-8611.

Service Stations Have Own Bylaw

The question of store closing hours is one that the city's Chamber of Commerce is concerned about.

The chamber was asked last November to arrange meetings between representatives of local merchants from downtown, the Quinte Mall, and the Plaza to air their views on the matter.

The chamber is to report back to council on the feelings of the merchants, being careful not to inject the views of the chamber on the subject.

Of particular concern was one paragraph in the brief on the matter dealing with stores that could remain open outside regular hours.

During the monthly meeting of the chamber held at the Four Seasons Hotel this week, the chamber was told that businesses selling gasoline and motor oil wished to be removed from the list of exemptions of stores operating outside regular hours.

Reason for this was that the service stations have their own bylaws on the matter and are content with them the way they are.

Also discussed at the chamber meeting was progress on the centennial committee and the fact that a second meeting has been set up for early March. The annual dinner of the Chamber was also discussed. The dinner is scheduled for this Friday night at Sun Valley starting at 6.30 p.m. Speaking will be the Ontario minister of commercial and consumer affairs, John Clement.

All in a Night's Work

Prior to every performance, hours are spent by actors and actresses piling on makeup to hide pale complexions from the glare of spotlights. Last night was no different for cast members of Hello Dolly, Centennial Secondary School's big budgeted musical extravaganza. Chris Alexander (foreground) portraying the male lead, Horace Vandergelder, dabbed on the few finishing touches as Linda Sneffjella brushed her hair before the mirror and Jennifer Jaynes, as hat store proprietor Irene Mallow, powdered her hands. Minutes later, all were on the stage for the second night of a four-night run of the musical. Tickets for the production are in short supply for the remaining two nights -- tonight and Saturday.

33 Try to Break The Habit

Say $150,000.

That seems the personal saving if 30 tobacco-smoking Bellevillians had never acquired the habit. By money measure -- health is something else.

The estimate emerged Thursday night as a five-night session on how to maybe drop tobacco drew its final attendance at Belleville General Hospital.

Says Margaret Hallam of the group:

It included a young girl, five months pregnant, who wants to quit cigarets for fear if damage to the child she's carrying.

There's a 55-year-old packa-day man for the "who's who's bound he's now going to quit."

The contrasts personify the group's make-up -- mixed ages, backgrounds, motives, personalities -- linked to a common denominator: they want to stop smoking.

To stimulate basic encouragement, two community agencies combined in the program -- Hastings Prince Edward TB and Respiratory Disease Association, of which Mrs. Hallam is executive secretary, and the Seventh Day Adventist Church.

The sessions were conversational and a special five-day plan for quitting tobacco, on which the Adventist church holds the continental copyright for one of the program's key impact methods -- movies.

But the plan isn't all on film. It lays down a day-to-day guide on eating habits, possible psychological problems during its five-day tenure. The night-time sessions also include speakers. The BGH meetings have heard from spokesmen representing various aspects of health care -- a doctor, a therapist, a physical fitness enthusiast.

There was even a former smoker who was freely/wrongly exchanged through the habit.

The success is hard to ascertain.

"How can you tell for sure if the plan has worked?" says Merrill Dales, member of both the church and the TB and RD association. "A man might go for ten years and then start smoking again."

But, indicates Mrs. Hallam, increased awareness of the problem is at least indicated by rising attendances.

This is the third such session in Belleville. The first drew tentative response. This week 19 concerned smokers registered.

Cautious organizers took a cross section to produce statistics.

Some 20 smokers of various ages had been indulging the habit, for a collective, 358 years. At current prices the cost figured out at $154,800, said Mr. Dales.

There'll be more such sessions in future, indicated Mrs. Hallam. The Ontario head quarters of her association now helps its local branches to keep up a sustained anti-smoking campaign.

But success ratings are elusive at best.

"We don't know how many we're able to influence over time. But you just have to keep plugging."

Art Film Series Continues Saturday

The second in a year-long series of monthly showings of experimental short films will be aired this Saturday at the Corby Public Library by David Brechkosky, co-ordinator of The Art of the Film program.

Tomorrow's set of six shorts is the second in a three-part program entitled Canadian Film Makers -- to be concluded in March, with the following month taken up by a study of the animated film, beyond Mickey Mouse. The film program begins at 2 p.m.

Three of tomorrow's films -- Walking, Once Upon a Prime Time, and Synchrony -- are works whose directors have been earlier represented in the film program last month.

Ryan Larkin's Walking is similar in its wash technique as was Street Musique presented last month. Norman McLaren, by contrast, includes prominence with films such as Ballet Adagio and Pas De Deux, will have synchronovy represented. Once Upon a Prime Time is another of David Bairstow's films -- this being a spoof on people who watch TV overly much, according to Mr. Brechkosky. Attendance may be swamped with monsters.

Also on the same program is Les Drew's What on Earth and Very Nice, Very Nice, directed by Arthur Lipsett, a film that abnormality applauds the imbecility of man through a montage technique of newsreel and Zikhoren is the final short.

Mr. Brechkosky, an enthusiast of Norman McLaren's work, expects to draw more than the 27 people who attended last month's show.

Builders Will Study Plan

A committee of the Quinte Home Builders Association has been assigned the task of studying the city's draft official plan and report upon the building trade in Belleville.

During its February meeting Wednesday, the association charged committee chairman, Reg Breault, with investigating the policies outlined in the recently completed document -- jointly drafted by Quinte Planning Board professional staff and consultant Jean Wells Monteith.

It is expected a report of the committee's findings will be presented to the association at its March meetings.

Mike DeMark association president, told builders Wednesday the association had "no major areas of dissent with the plan." For information purposes however, he said a letter has been sent to city officials requesting further statistics concerning Belleville's residential building lot availability.

Textile Workers Settle

Strike action at the Constellation Canada Co. plant was averted last night when members of Local 1815 Textile Workers Union of America voted to accept the latest contract. The contract calls for an increase of $5.2c over two years.

There will be an initial weighted average increase of 40c retroactive to January 1, 1974 and additional increases of 20c effective September, 1974 and 25c effective May, 1975.

Jim Lloyd, local president of the union said the main disagreement was over wages and the union membership was satisfied with the settlement they received. "Our members elected to accept the contract and there will be no strike action" he said.

There are 82 members in Local 1815, TWUA at the Constellation plant. The question of benefits was settled earlier and that night's meeting dealt strictly with wages. Average wage at the plant as of December 31, 1973 was $2.77.

Roy Brett, plant superintendent at Constellation, said he was satisfied with the settlement worked out. "We are relieved. And the union members are too. It's the right down to the wire and they could have struck yesterday," said Mr. Brett.

A similar situation existed at Collingwood at Harding Carpets Ltd. plant when a strike was averted Thursday when members of Local 1857, TWUA, voted in favor of accepting a 70-cent-an-hour wage increase over two years.

Keeping Crossed Fingers

Some Bellevillians are now keeping crossed fingers in hopes they can give up smoking after course in quitting. Merrill Dales, a course organizer, gets signals of willingness to try from (left) Marilyn Hopkins, Joyce Peterson, Joan Bone.

Two Convicted As Impaired

Two Belleville men, convicted in provincial court yesterday of impaired driving, were fined a total of $300 by Judge J.L. Clendenning.

Walter Fred Reid, 69, was fined $75 after he was convicted of driving along Sidney Street on Feb. 9 while his ability to drive was impaired by alcohol.

Reid was arrested and charged, after he was seen driving erratically and after he had failed to obey a stop sign. He had a breathalyser reading of 220 milligrams of alcohol per 100 milliliters of blood at the time of his arrest.

Allan Colin Wood, 25, was fined $125, after he was convicted of driving along Catherine Street on Feb. 16 while impaired.

Wood was arrested after he had been involved in an accident at the intersection of Catherine and Yeoman's Streets. He had a breathalyser reading of 240 milligrams of alcohol per 100 milliliters of blood at the time of his arrest.

The criminal code calls for a conviction against a driver who has more than 80 milligrams of alcohol in 100 milliliters of his blood.

Canucks Still Wait for Win

By GLENN COLE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Vancouver Canucks have played Montreal Canadiens 22 times since joining the National Hockey League. The full of 1970 and still are waiting for their first win.

The Canadiens brought their lifetime record against Vancouver to 20-wins and two ties with a 5-2 win Thursday night.

Elsewhere, Buffalo Sabres battled back to tie Atlanta Flames 4-4 and Los Angeles Kings dropped a 5-3 decision to New York Rangers.

Canadiens 5 Canucks 2

Steve Shutt put the Canadiens ahead 2-1 early in the second period with his 13th goal of the year. It came off a faceoff which Jacques Lemaire won away from Gerry O'Flaherty and snapped back to his waiting team-mate.

Jacques Lemaire scored when Serge Savard centered the puck from the corner to him in the slot. The Canadiens centre, who was playing only his second game since a shoulder injury Feb. 1, slapped the puck quickly past goalie Gary Smith.

Chuck Lefley had two goals for the Canadiens to increase his total to 19 for the year and Murray Wilson added the other. Paulin Bordeleau and Tracy Pratt scored for Vancouver.

Sabres 4 Flames 4

The Sabres, obviously affected by the death of veteran defenceman Tim Horton in a car crash earlier in the day, fell behind 4-1 in the first period before rallying to tie the game.

"We just didn't have any spirit at the beginning of the game," said defenceman Jerry Korab. "But after Atlanta got those four goals, we started to work hard."

Don Luce's second goal of the game at 1:46 of the third period gave the Sabres the draw. Gerry Meehan and Norm Gratton got the other Buffalo goals. Randy Manery, Curt Bennett, Tom Reid and Jacques Richard replied for the Flames.

Rangers 5 Kings 3

Walt Tkaczuk scored the tying goal and set up the winning effort by Bill Fairbairn as the Rangers handed the Kings their 10th straight loss.

Bruce MacGregor, Steve Vickers and Brad Park got the other New York goals. Mike Corrigan, Frank St. Marseille and Neil Komadoski scored for Los Angeles.

Riley Loses 9-5

BC Wraps Up 1st Place

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP) — About the only thing to be decided today in the final round of the Canadian senior men's curling championship was who will take second place.

British Columbia, with a 9-0 record, clinched first place in 13th-round play Thursday night by beating defending Manitoba, skipped by Dr. Will McTavish of Winnipeg, 10-7.

Saskatchewan, with a 7-2 mark, took the inside track on second place by defeating Newfoundland 10-6.

However, third-place Prince Edward Island, 6-3, could take the runner-up shot by defeating Saskatchewan today.

P.E.I. was crushed 13-4 Thursday night by Nova Scotia. Northern Ontario beat Ontario skipped by Belleville's Bill Riley 9-5 and Alberta beat Quebec 6-4.

The final round, at 10 a.m. EST today, has had B.C. against Quebec, Nova Scotia facing Alberta and Ontario playing New Brunswick. Newfoundland got the bye.

Beaudry said after his win over Manitoba:

"Manitoba gave us a good fight. They were really up for the game."

Beaudry was the second on Roy Stone's runner-up foursome from Trail which lost a playoff 9-8 to McTavish last year.

"I was also beating him after last year," Beaudry said.

B.C. was up 4-1 going into the fourth end but McTavish surgered a brilliant four-point throw.

The Winnipeg skip drifted his last rock in behind a B.C. guard and split two counting opposition stones.

Beaudry duplicated McTavish's effort in the next end for three points. B.C. had a big break when the doctor slipped as he left the hack and was unable to complete his throw.

Beaudry took advantage of the miscue for the three-ender and outclassed McTavish the rest of the way for the victory.

Said Manitoba second John McLean:

"We were up tonight. We wanted that game. But we made some little mistakes and only got two when we could have had a four-ender in the sixth. And then Will slipped in the fifth."

Fighting Saints to Give Tessier Tryout Before Tonight's Game

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Minnesota Fighting Saints will give a tryout to Fern Tessier, who developed his hockey skills during nearly 11 years in prison.

Tessier, 38, was released from the Laval maximum-security institution at Montreal Wednesday.

Friday he will skate with the Saints in their warmup before playing their Nordiques in a World Hockey Association game in Quebec City.

"If he shows outstanding, we'll have a contract available for him," said a spokesman for the Saints.

Tessier was in prison he was given a 15-year sentence for robbery. He entered prison in 1962 and was paroled in 1970. In 1968 he was arrested again, this time on a murder charge. He went back to prison and served until his release Wednesday.

Tessier has admitted the first offence but has maintained he was innocent of the bank robbery.

Last August, with the end of his incarceration in sight, Tessier wrote to 18 professional hockey teams, including the Saints.

Wren Tessier: "I am presently looking for a professional position as a hockey player. I would also like to inform you that I am a 'free agent'. I am a skilled and cunning capable of playing either left wing or right wing. I am ideal left hander, but I also play right or left wing, and also centre ice.

"I would like you to know in the position time I am incarcerated until February, 1974. I hope that revealing this to you it will not influence you to reject my chance to operate with your organization. Sir, I have considered some courses in my life, but now all I need is a chance to start a new life. You have my guarantee that I am out to be in contact with the criminal element."

The Fighting Saints decided to look at Tessier on Friday and again March 17, when the club will return to Quebec for the playoffs.

Coach Harry Neale of the Fighting Saints said he didn't care about Tessier's past, adding, "He has paid his debt to society."

Tessier has been playing hockey for prison and the club has practised his shot every day in the basement of the prison gym. He says that as a youngster, he once won a skating race with Chris Bordeleau, now with Winnipeg and of the WHA.

Tessier told the Saints he would like to play for them. He said he still he has is the hope that he can make a life out of hockey.

Braves Win Over Knicks

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The National Basketball Association's No. 1 offensive team, New York, lost 118-97 Thursday night to the league's No. 1 defensive team Buffalo Braves.

Braves 119 Knicks 97

The crowd of 16,433 was the largest this season for a Buffalo game in Toronto where the Braves will play nine contests.

Bob McAdoo, league leader in both scoring and total field percentage, collected 29 points for Buffalo and rookie Ernie DiGregorio added 23. Jim Frazier topped the NBA champion Knicks with 27 points.

Marlboros Tie Petes

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — Defenceman Dan Spang's blueline shot at 14:58 of the final period gave Toronto Marlboros a tie with Peterborough Petes in an Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A game Thursday before 3,636 spectators. It was the only game scheduled.

Goal Mcintosh, Bob Wasson Brad Pirie and Paul Evans got the Peterborough goals.

John Smrke, Kevin Devine and Mark Napier got the other goals for Toronto, which outshot the Petes 32-29.

Peterborough took six of 11 penalties called.

Peterbrough led 3-2 after one period and 4-3 after 40 minutes.

Cougars' Trade Proves Worth

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

When Chicago Cougars traded Bob Whitlock this week, the World Hockey Association club literally riled a few of its fans.

After all, Whitlock had 16 goals and 19 assists in 53 games with the Cougars, who obtained right winger Don Gordon—eight goals and 17 assists in 39 games—he has gone—in the trade with Los Angeles Sharks.

The trade was made before Gordon's last season—got his second in the game.

Action resumes tonight with Toronto playing in Winnipeg and Minnesota Fighting Saints visiting Quebec for a game against the Nordiques.

Kuhn Will Wait

BRADENTON, Fla. (AP) — Baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn says he will wait until spring training is in full swing before he makes a decision on the Hank Aaron controversy.

The Atlanta Braves have announced that Aaron will not play the opening series of the baseball season in Cincinnati so he can have a chance to break Babe Ruth's home run record before the home fans.

Critics have pointed out that, by missing the Cincinnati games, Aaron could affect the outcome of the pennant race. He needs one home run to tie Ruth's career record of 714.

Kuhn said he is satisfied that whatever decision is made it is two years.

Garvin Blames Norris

SARNIA, Ont. (CP) — Former coach Ted Garvin blames owner Bruce Norris for the sagging fortunes of Detroit Red Wings in the National Hockey League.

"The only way Detroit will ever have a chance of winning again is for Norris to sell out and for the people taking over to fire everybody in the workforce at the moment," Garvin said in a telephone interview after he was fired from coaching jobs by the Red Wing organization twice in the same season.

First, the National Hockey League club fired him as coach in November, only to rehire him as vice-president in his place.

Ten days later, the Wings made him coach of their Virginia team in the American Hockey League. Last Friday, he lost the Virginia job.

"He (Norris) won't let anybody run it (the Red Wings)," said Garvin.

"It doesn't matter who is coach or general manager. Things are done Norris' way or they're not done. The whole organization is just one big disaster."

Garvin said that, at one point, Norris ordered then-general manager Ned Harkness to retire Delvecchio as a player—and trade Marcel Dionne to Montreal Canadiens.

The Wings were ready to send Dionne to Montreal in exchange for Larry Robinson, Chuck Lefley and Yvon Lambert.

The ex-coach said Dionne told him a few days later he was pushed out of Detroit to play in Montreal.

Garvin said it was he who first recommended that Dionne, who still is a Red Wing, be traded and that Delvecchio retire. Dionne, he said, is a better hockey player.

Four days later Delvecchio was named as a player. He had Garvin's job.

Many Tributes For Tim Horton

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Coach Cecil Hart of the Buffalo Sabres: "We can't bring Timmy back . . . go to work . . . get in the playoffs, which he wanted."

That was before a National Hockey League game in Buffalo Thursday night against Atlanta Flames.

Missing from the Buffalo lineup was defenceman Tim Horton, 44, who died of multiple injuries in a highway crash when his car went off a highway at high speed near St. Catharines, Ont., and rolled over.

"To finer person, team-mate or hockey player has ever lived," said George Armstrong, who was with Horton during many years with Toronto Maple Leafs.

Clarence Campbell, NHL president, Horton's death was especially shocking because he gave an impression of "indestructibility."

Punch Imlach, Buffalo general manager, said Horton was "one of the greatest defencemen who ever played, as an athlete, and it was fitting he was chosen as one of the three stars in his final game."

Horton, who was in his 22nd NHL season, was picked as the third star of the game for his defensive play in a 4-2 loss to the Wednesday night to the Leafs in Toronto.

Police chasing Horton's car said it was going more than 100 miles an hour before it left the highway. His body was found 123 feet from the wreckage.

He was driving alone. The weather was clear and the highway dry.

King Clancy, Maple Leaf vice-president and Horton's coach both with Toronto and Buffalo, said his belief: "Don't career at Pittsburgh, said:

"Horton was a tremendous competitor, a great person. Nothing was too much, no task too difficult, for him to do for us or buts. He did the job, without a bark.

"He was the strongest skating defenceman in hockey," said Buffalo general manager Sam Pollock. "The kind of guy everybody wanted on his team."

Harold Ballard, president of the Leafs, ordered all flags at Maple Leaf Gardens flown at half mast until after his funeral.

Funeral arrangements have not been announced.

There was a minute silence for Horton prior to Thursday's New York Rangers-Kings. Players on both teams wore black armbands. Delayed at the start, Buffalo came from behind to tie Atlanta 4-4.

There also was a minute silence for Horton in Montreal before a game between the Canadiens and Vancouver Canucks.

Horton made his debut with New York Rangers and Pittsburgh Penguins. He took part in 1,446 regular games, third highest total in the NHL.

He scored 115 goals in league play and picked up 403 assists. He played on four Stanley Cup teams, all with Toronto, and was selected to the first all-star team four times and to the second all-star squad three times.

He is survived by his wife, Lori, and four daughters—Jeri, 21, Kim, 18, Kelly, 17, and Tracy, 13.

It hasn't been determined whether there will be an inquest.

Northmen Sign McVay To Three Year Deal

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Northmen of WFL hold one of the top training grounds of pro football coaches Thursday for the sign to lead their fledgling World Football League team.

John McVay, 43, athletic director at the University of Dayton and head football coach at that school for seven years, was signed to a three-year contract.

McVay played under Woody Hayes and Ara Parseghian at Miami of Ohio, a training ground for such successful coaches as Weeb Ewbank, Paul Brown, Carl Red Parsegian, Bill Arnsbarger and Johnny Pont.

After 21 years of coaching at the high school and college level, McVay had a coming conference he looked on the Northmen's job as a challenge to make good in "one of the top 47 jobs in football."

He was referring to the head coaching jobs of 47 professional football teams in North America — the 26-team National Football League, the nine Canadian Football League teams and the proposed 12-team WFL, scheduled to begin play this year.

Eagles' Folding Costs Weller Possible Senior Scoring Title

TORONTO (CP) — After six years, moving from one hockey team to another, you're finally in position to win the scoring championship when your team evaporates because of financial problems.

It's too late in the season to sign on with another team and it looks as though the whole league will fold after the season ends.

With 22 goals and 21 assists, Weller was leading the scoring race in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series when Belleville went into its last game Feb. 15. He added two goals that night in a 6-2 loss to Barrie Flyers.

Later that week the Belleville club folded and with it, Weller's hopes for a scoring title. By the time the club folded, the deadline for signing players had past and he could not join another team.

Weller had never been so close to a Senior A scoring title.

"I was excited about it," Weller said in an interview. "I was really hoping I could win it.

"It's a matter of pride and recognition to be that high in the scoring, so it really was disappointing when the club dropped out."

Will he go back and try again next season?

"If there's a league. I don't

WAYNE WELLER

know. The way it looks now Association championship team slip, now a National Hockey League star.

He moved to the Barrie club and played there in 1965-66 before going to Switzerland for a year as a player-coach. Then came one-year stints with Woodstock, Oakville, Owen Sound and Belleville.

Weller said he thinks the senior league is fighting a losing battle against junior hockey.

"It seems that wherever there's been a strong Junior B club, the senior club loses out because the juniors draw the fans.

"It was that way in Oakville and Owen Sound and now the same in Belleville. They had a good Junior B team there and we were drawing only a couple hundred fans."

The remaining teams in the league are Barrie, Orillia, Cambridge and Brantford.

Top Notch Rookies With Montreal Expos

By MEL DIDIER

1973 was a good year for the rookies of the Montreal Expos Baseball Club. Primarily due to such players as right-handed sensation Steve Rogers, brilliant second baseman Larry Lintz and outstanding late season play of Pepe Mangual.

The 1974 season should bring another supply of fine young players to Manager of the Year — Gene Mauch.

Barry Foote(Smithfield, N.C.), recently chosen the outstanding catcher in all of Triple A baseball will be a prime candidate for the first string catching position. Foote was an outstanding catcher at Peninsula in the International League and hit .262 with 19 home runs, 22 doubles and 65 RBI's. Foote was the Expos' No. 1 Draft Choice in 1970. He has a fine throwing arm and great hitting potential.

Also among the outstanding catching prospects is young Gary Carter (Fullerton, Ca.), a 19 year old who had a brilliant Winter Instructional League. Carter hit .300 in the Winter Instructional League in Florida and hit .5 home runs. Carter was voted the outstanding player in the Eastern League All-Star Game and had a fine year hitting .333 with 13 home runs, 17 doubles and 58 RBI's. Carter's receiving and throwing have improved to such a point that he will be a prime candidate for the Major League catching position.

Two pitchers who should be outstanding in the game are Don DeMola (Cormack, N.Y.) a hard throwing right handed pitcher who pitched at West Palm Beach and then went into Quebec City in the Eastern League. DeMola is a right hander who won 4 and lost 4 in the Eastern League with a 1.57 ERA. Possessing a great arm and an improved curved ball, DeMola could well make a 25it for one of the pitching slots on the Expos' roster.

Another pitcher who did an outstanding job at Quebec City and will be on the big league club in spring training is Robert "Chip" Lang (Pittsburgh, Pa.) who was 8 and 5 in the Eastern League. Lang was at the Winter Instructional League in Florida and improved his control and breaking ball and is another hard throwing right hander who will be heard from in the future.

Jimmy Cox (Bloomington, Ill.), second baseman who played at Peninsula in the International League and who made the International League All-Star Team will be a prime candidate for second base duties. Cox, who hit .270 with 13 doubles, 10 home runs and 49 RBI's also had 13 stolen bases. Cox also improved a great deal on his fielding and Gene Mauch feels at if Cox will be a very fine young infield candidate for the second base job with the Major League Expos Club.

Jerry Wille (San Fernando, Ca., 20 year old centerfielder for the Peninsula Club will be in the Montreal spring training Major League camp. While, a switch-hitter, hit .275 and had 22 stolen bases. He has outstanding speed and is a brilliant fly chaser. While is another one of the fine prospects the Expos will have in their camp for 1974.

Sport Briefs

TOP SCHOOL SKIERS

COLLINGWOOD, Ont. (CP) — Jeta Woodcock of Huntsville and Miss Kelcet of Meaford won the girls' slalom events Thursday in the Ontario high school skiing championships. Cross-country titles went to Chet Pitka of Collingwood and Gisela Kosta of Whitby Collegiate.

COLLINS INJURED

ST. LOUIS (AP) — St. Louis Blues announced Thursday that right winger Billy Collins, acquired recently in a trade with Washington Capitals, will be sidelined for the next three weeks with a pulled muscle in his groin because of a broken thumb.

Sires Stakes Races At Belleville Track

The Ontario Racing Commission has released the dates and locations for the 1974 Ontario Sires Stakes. A total of 80 events will be raced at 20 harness tracks across Ontario.

The three-year-old events will start with a pacing event for colts at Garden City on June 1, and end with a colt trot at Windsor Raceway on October 27. The two-year-old events will commence on June 25 for pacing colts at Kingston and this same category will wind up the season at Barrie on November 16.

The 36 events at the provincia's 14 Fall Fairs are expected to exceed $9,000 in gross value. The 24 events designated for the 8 "A" tracks are expected to average $25,000.

At Quinte Raceway in Belleville, Sires Stakes dates are Friday, June 14 (three year colt pacers); Monday, July 1 (two year pacing fillies); Friday, August 23 (three year filly trot), and Friday, August 30 (two year trotting colts).

Both the Ontario racing commission, the Province of Ontario Horse Racing and Breeding Advisory Board, have approved an agreement between Orangeville Raceway and the Ontario Jockey Club whereby Orangeville would transfer its originally scheduled two-year-old filly pace to Garden City for racing on September 28, and Garden City would transfer the two-year-old trotting filly event to to Orangeville on September 15.

Since the jockey club adds considerably more to Sires Stakes events than Orangeville, approval was granted on the basis that Orangeville would add the same amount as the jockey club, thus assuring that horsemen would race their trotting fillies at Orangeville for the same purse they would have received at Garden City.

The pacing filly event will race for a larger purse at Garden City than at Orangeville since the jockey club will be adding more to that purse than Orangeville harness.

When nominations closed on January 15, a total of 597 three-year-olds were named for 1974, representing 236 colts and geldings and 271 fillies. Owners will pay another sustaining payment of $25 for three-year-olds by March 15, with those still eligible after that date required to face the entry box this summer.

Nominations for the two-year-olds to race in 1974, and sesain at 5 in 1975, closed on February 15. Owners will have a further sustaining payment on April 15 before the starting payments are due at race time.

Extend Sponsorship

Air Canada announced today that it would meet officials of the Royal Caledonian Curling Club soon, to work out details for an extended sponsorship of the World Curling Championship for the Air Canada Silver Broom.

D. E. McLeod, chairman of the Silver Broom committee and director of Public Relations for Air Canada, said that the airline is'd' kvra pleased with the growth of sponsorship of the World Curling Championship and looked forward to continuing sponsorship.

"The Silver Broom has been good for us," said McLeod "and we believe it's been good for world curling, too. The improvement in the world standards of curling since we began our sponsorship in 1968 has been substantial as was evidenced by Sweden's victory in Regina last year."

Adam Cockburn of Scotland, president of the RCCC, the mother club of curling, welcomed the news. "The world championship has done so much good in so many ways. The policy of staging the championship on both sides of the Atlantic and taking it to various parts of Europe," said Cockburn "has spread the interest in the game in a spectacular way."

The president of the International Curling Federation, Colin Campbell of Canada noted that under the airline's sponsorship, the world competition had grown to include ten countries. "Most important, however," he said, "is the tremendous growth of curling in Europe. Air Canada's sponsorship has been vital. Without their support, the world championship would have been impossible."

The 1974 championship is slated to be held in Berne, Switzerland, March 18-23. The 1975 competition will go to Scotland, at a site to be announced shortly.

Canadian Film Makers

Film makers Gil Taylor, right, and Jackson Samets, CSC, spent a year making a film about Amherst Island, just offshore from Kingston, Ont., where people live a meaningful life which city folk often let slip away. Their film, The Island, will be presented on CBC television's Canadian Film Makers series, Sunday, Feb. 24 at 2:30 p.m. It was produced by Taylor's Intercom Films Ltd., with Jackson Samets as director of photography.

North Ontario French Want Own Network

OTTAWA (CP) — Northern Ontario's Francophone population wants a French-language television network with local and regional programing, with its base station at Sudbury, the Canadian Radio-Television Commission (CRTC) was told Thursday.

Marie Brunet of the Association Canadienne-Francaise de l'Ontario and the Sudbury Conseil d'Action said Northern Ontario gets no local or regional programming on the Sudbury and region, French-language television stations.

The CRTC is hearing CBC applications for five-year renewals of all of its broadcast licences.

Yet, she said, Northern Ontario's French-speaking population numbers about 171,000 and represents 35.4 per cent of the total population.

The 30,000 Francophones in the Winnipeg-St.-Boniface area of Manitoba—5.7 per cent of the population—get their own local and regional productions, she said. New Brunswick, with a French-speaking population of 215,000, also has local programming.

The programming now provided on the Sudbury French station is relayed from Montreal and Ottawa and provides local programming from those points which is irrelevant to Sudbury residents.

In addition, the Sudbury station is beset by technical difficulties, with the screen often going blank for periods of up to three minutes while material being directed to Sudbury is carried in Ottawa or Montreal. Bad sound and snow were other problems.

Miss Brunet said the CBC could at least fill in the blanks with music and community announcements.

But what was wanted most was production facilities in Sudbury, Robert Paquette, a Sudbury chansonnier who recently cut his first record following a European tour, could not be seen except on a program originating in Montreal.

Richard Fitzgerald had the same complaint about French-language broadcasting in Ontario's Timiskaming district.

The district was served by Quebec television stations, which meant the Ontario residents were cut off from their own provincial news.

Both Mr. Fitzgerald and Miss Brunet said a good interim solution would be to tie the Northern Ontario French service in with Toronto's CHLN.

"But a long-term language television station until a Northern Ontario French-language service could be established.

CBC Radio Affiliates Don't Like Agreement

OTTAWA (CP) — CBC radio affiliates want out of their agreement with the publicly-owned corporation while its television affiliates want the arrangement to continue, the Canadian Radio-Television Commission (CRTC) was told Thursday.

John J. Redford, chairman of the CBC radio network advisory committee, said radio affiliates are willing to continue transmitting CBC material until the CBC has transmitters serving all areas.

But he said he hopes the affiliation agreements will not be needed indefinitely.

William Wingrove of the Private Affiliates Committee of CBC Networks (TVO), however, called for continued affiliation agreements linking private television stations to CBC service.

He said such agreements were needed for CBC television to reach a wider audience.

Mr. Redford of Brockville, Ont., said the private radio stations want to preserve their local identities and a current CBC demand for them to carry more network programs "scares the pants off us."

He said stations liked to schedule local programming at times when they could sell large amounts of local advertising.

The position of the television affiliates, however, was just the opposite.

Mr. Wingrove said the TV affiliates now get about $5 million a year from CBC network commercial revenue and elimination of advertising from the CBC would seriously affect their finances.

The current pressure to ban CBC TV advertising was even more dangerous in that its advocates seemed to want "an elitist sort of programming" that would cut into their audience and further undermine their financial position.

There are 37 radio affiliates with the CBC and 37 television affiliates. The TV affiliates bring the CBC signal to 98 per cent of its audience.

A stream of submissions on Thursday called on the CBC to eliminate, limit or at least screen the content of commercial TV advertising.

Briefs from the Consumers Association of Canada, Women for Political Action, the Ontario Committee on the Status of Women, the B.C. Committee on the CBC and the Canadian Labor Congress (CLC) criticized both the time given to commercials and their content.

The CRTC is hearing public submissions on the CBC's application for five-year renewal of its broadcast licences for radio, television and its networks.

Other submissions Thursday:

—The CLC said the corporation should look for a diversified format, providing both mass-appeal programs and programs which would interest smaller groups.

—Francophones from Northern Ontario asked for a separate French-language network with its flagship station in Sudbury to serve their needs. They now get a relay of French Service from Montreal and Ottawa, but no local programming and little Ontario content.

—A joint brief from the Canadian Polish Congress, the Ukrainian Canadian Committee and the Federation of Italian Canadians called for multilingual programming by the corporation.

Award Winner At Cinema

Cries and Whispers, an Ingmar Bergman film that has received rave reviews since its release in 1973, opens a limited run at Cinema One at the Quinte Mall tonight.

The film, nominated for an Academy Award last year in the best picture category, is an account of the relationships between a dying young woman, her two sisters and her faithful, adoring servant.

Photographed by Sven Nykvist and with music by Kabi Laretei, the film has been awarded the Best Picture, Best Director, Best Screenplay and Best Actress (Liv Ullmann) awards by the New York Film Critics.

Waste Not...

LONDON (CP) — For weeks many British newspapers have been cutting the number of pages in the face of a growing newsprint shortage. But a Cheshire newspaper unwittingly took the economy campaign a step further. It ran a announcement to readers that its layout "has been altered to permit more news to be printed on each page."

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Saturday, Feb. 23

Aries (March 21-April 19) Extra responsibilities will not rest on your spare time today. A negative attitude will make them seem tougher than they are.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) Regulate what you spend so that you're not buying something you won't need till a future date.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) It's good to have determination when seeking a goal but it's not worth stepping on another's toes needlessly.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) The biggest challenge to your thoughts will come from yourself. You tend to view things darkly today.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) An outsider is going to poke her nose into a situation that's the sole concern of you and your mate. Her probing irritates.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You won't appreciate it much when a companion lays out a program for both of you to follow without asking you first.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Someone you've promised a favor is going to take you up on it at a very inconvenient time. Be sure you mean what you say.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You're liable to bring unwarranted serious overtones to a social situation today. Keep the conversation off the heavy stuff.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) To prevent possible discord later, be sure you and your mate are in complete agreement on important family issues today.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You tend to let obligations get a negative edge on your thinking today. Relax. Take things in stride.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Look for imaginative ways to enjoy yourself. Pursuit of pleasure will carry a stiff price tag if you don't.

Pisces—Feb. 20-March 20) If you're doing the best you can at this time there's no reason to feel guilty. If not, then that's another story.

Grits Gain In England

From AP-REUTER

LONDON (Reuter) — Britain's minority Liberal party was given a significant boost in voter support today and the latest opinion poll shows the Liberals hold a decisive balance in the new Parliament.

"The Liberal bandwagon rolls on in a way which no one can stop," said party leader Jeremy Thorpe following publication of a Louis Harris poll which showed declining support for the Conservative and Labor parties and a continuing swing towards the Liberals.

The poll gave the Liberals 23.5 per cent of the total vote—a jump of 6.5 per cent in less than a week.

If translated into seats in the House of Commons, the Liberals could hold 60 seats and force either of the two major parties into a minority government.

In the 1970 election, Conservatives took 46.4 per cent of the popular vote and 32.4 per cent of the 630 Commons seats, while Labor took 42.9 per cent of the vote and captured 45.6 per cent of the seats. The Liberals then had seven per cent of the vote and a mere six seats—fewer than one per cent.

A further boost for the Liberals was the poll finding that Thorpe is running equal with Prime Minister Heath in terms of personal popularity.

This week's poll figures for the parties were Conservative 40 per cent, Labor 33.5 per cent and Liberal 23.5 per cent.

With only five days to go before Britain's 40 million voters cast ballots, the coal miners' strike appeared again as the dominant issue in the campaign.

The government pay board disclosed that it made other mistakes in compiling statistics used to determine the country's pay in relation to other industries.

Not only did the wage table include vacation pay but also sick pay and the salaries of 20,000 high-paid supervisory staff—all of which are excluded in pay calculations for other manual workers.

The revelations make a massive pay rise certain and added further strength to Labor and Liberal claims that the government used the strike for its own political purposes, to force an election.

A further setback for the Conservatives was expected today when party rebel Enoch Powell broke a Birmingham hall rally opposing Britain's membership in the Common Market.

Powell resigned his Commons seat because he claimed the election had been fraudulently called, and announced he would speak during the campaign in support of the Get Britain Out campaign—perhaps the most influential anti-market group in Britain. It has called on Conservative supporters to abstain during the election or to vote Labor.

News Briefs

Metro Pop Drop

TORONTO (CP) — The provincial government reported Friday that for the first time ever Metropolitan Toronto's population has dropped. E. J. Marchant, executive officer of the central Ontario assessment area division, said the population dropped to 2,086,703 last year from 2,115,318 in 1973.

Prices Spark Riots

ADDIS ABABA (Reuter) — About 300 persons were reported in jail and an estimated five persons died Friday night after four days of violence in this Ethiopian capital, sparked by soaring prices and unemployment. Steel-helmeted troops moved into the city Thursday night, ending the citizen clashes with police.

Island Occupied

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnamese government forces have occupied five of the 11 islands in the disputed Spratly archipelago, completing their "program for consolidation of sovereignty," the official news agency Vietnam Press reported Friday. The South China Sea island chain, which may contain oil, is also claimed by Taiwan, the Philippines and China.

Water Boost Proposed

TORONTO (CP) — A surcharge of up to 20 per cent on water rates will be considered by Metropolitan Toronto in an effort to meet rapidly rising civic costs. Preliminary budget estimates show a record 6.88 mill tax increase this year, amounting to $34.40 for each residential property with a taxable assessment of $5,000.

Compacts Coming

NEW YORK (AP) — General Motors will increase its production of small cars by 70 per cent for the 1975 model year, E. M. Estes, executive vice-president in charge of the operations staff, said Friday. He said the company plans to produce and sell more than two million small cars next year.

Couple Arrested, Ransom Recovered

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — A self - employed subcontractor and his wife have been arrested and charged with the kidnapping of newspaper editor Reg Murphy, the FBI said today. Murphy was released unharmed Friday night.

Police said the $700,000 ransom was recovered today at the home of the Lilburn, Ga., couple who were charged with the kidnapping.

Leo Cooney, special agent in charge of the FBI office in Atlanta, identified those arrested as William August Haim Williams, 32, and his wife, Betty.

Murphy, 40, editor of the Atlanta Constitution, said upon his release Friday night that his kidnappers—included four—men and a woman. He said they identified themselves as members of the American Revolutionary Army, a previously unheard of, apparently right-wing extremist organization.

The 32-year-old Williams and his wife were charged with violating federal kidnapping statutes.

The couple was scheduled to appear in court Saturday.

Murphy was freed after the ransom money was delivered at the end of a lonely highway 20 miles north of Atlanta.

Kidnapped Wednesday night by a man who said he was a colonel in the American Revolutionary Army, Murphy said his abductors told him the army is pledged to overthrowing the government, which it believes is too liberal and too corrupt.

"It's important for them to know they didn't win a great victory," he said. But he conceded, "They frightened me very badly. They frightened my family."

"Before I was so rudely interrupted, I used to ask my daughter to be a civilized country. I still think this ought to be a civilized country. The people who think like this (the kidnappers) are going to have to use some other tactics because this won't win them many friends."

He said his kidnappers covered his eyes with tape and kept him bound and blind in the trunk of a car much of the time until he was freed in the parking lot of a motel. He immediately called his wife and his colleagues at the newspaper.

He said the American Revolutionary Army "is a group of 223 members and six colonels who operate throughout the United States. They are committed to the overthrow of what they called the federal government.

"You ask me if I'm sure of the authenticity of this. The answer is no. I don't know. I don't have any way of knowing. I never heard of them before."

Nixon Mailed Another Order

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Another subpoena for President Nixon to testify in the Los Angeles trial of three former White House aides has been mailed to Washington, with the judge taking precautions this time to insure that delivery is not delayed.

The precautions were taken because the first subpoena to Nixon, mailed in Los Angeles Feb. 4, took more than a week to get to the clerk of the District of Columbia Superior Court.

Court officials said the subpoena mailed Friday was prompted by the rescheduling of a pretrial hearing for John Ehrlichman, David Young and Gordon Liddy.

Powell Supports Labor

BIRMINGHAM (Reuter) — Enoch Powell, a powerful right-wing politician, advocated today a vote for left-wing Labor in next Thursday's general election to get Britain out of Common Market commitments.

In a speech prepared for delivery to a rally of the anti-market Get Britain Out campaign, Powell accused Prime Minister Heath of planning to deprive parliament of its right to make laws by committing the country to the community's monetary and trade regulations.

Powell, who withdrew his Conservative seat yesterday charging the election was a fraud, did not specifically name the Labor party of Harold Wilson.

But he said there was an alternative "offered . . . by a political party which does not secure a majority in the House of Commons and sustaining a government."

The Labor party has pledged to renegotiate entry terms and hold a referendum on the results.

Powell said "this is the first and last election at which the British people will be given the opportunity to decide whether their country is to remain a democratic nation, governed by the will of its own electorate expressed in its own Parliament or whether it will become one province in a New European superstate."

He said Prime Minister Heath had committed Britain to economic and monetary unity within the Market, without the slightest reference to the Parliament or the electorate.

The whole story of Britain and the Common Market to date has been one long epic of deception."

The price for Britain's membership "turned out to be a comprehensive renunciation by the House of Commons of its control over the laws of the land, over the taxes of the people and over the policies of the executive."

Horton Death Car

Tim Horton, 44, veteran defence star with Buffalo Sabres of the National Hockey League, was killed when this 1974 Ford Pantiac ran off the Queen Elizabeth Way at more than 100 miles-an-hour. Horton, returning from Toronto where the Sabres lost 4-2 in a game against Toronto Maple Leafs, was thrown from the car and died instantly.

Unsuccessful Hijack Attempt Kills Three

BALTIMORE (AP) — A Philadelphia tire salesman who had been arrested twice while pickeing the White House has killed himself and two others in an unsuccessful hijack attempt.

The burst of shooting broke out at Baltimore-Washington International Airport Friday as a Delta Air Lines DC-9 passenger jet was being readied for a flight to Atlanta, Ga.

The dead were identified as co-pilot Fred Josef, 31, of Dallas, Tex.; airport security guard George Ramsburg, 24, and the gunman, Samuel Byck, 44.

The pilot, Reese Loftin, 39, of Fort Worth, Tex., was listed in critical condition in hospital after undergoing surgery. A stewardess, Karen Smoot, 23, of Detroit, sustained severe back injury when she jumped from the plane.

The melee began when Byck, carrying an attache case which contained a crudely made gasoline bomb set to detonate, shot Ramsburg several times in the head from behind and then ran down the ramp to the plane, FBI agent Thomas Farrow said.

The bomb was defused later by a police bomb squad.

Byck and Josef then entered the plane and ordered the pilot to "fly this plane out of here." After the crew complied, the blocks were in front of the wheels and that the plane didn't have clearance to leave, the gunman fired several warning shots and said, "The next one will be in the head."

Farrow said Byck then took a woman passenger at gunpoint in the cockpit, where he shot the pilot and co-pilot. After reloading his 22-calibre pistol, he ordered another woman to accompany him to the cockpit and shot the two crewmen again, Farrow said.

Meanwhile, Charles Troyer of the county police saw Byck through the cockpit portholc and fired his .38-calibre service revolver at the gunman but was unable to penetrate the glass. He then fired a more powerful pistol, sending a volley of bullets through the window.

A state medical examiner's report said, however, that Byck died of a self-inflicted wound.

Byck was arrested twice last fall, while picketing the White House without a permit. He was acquitted after a judge ruled that permits aren't required for persons picketing as lone individuals.

Witnesses Kill Trial

BRAMPTON, Ont. (CP) — Heather Smith, a federal prosecutor, said Friday that eight of the witnesses failed to appear for a trial Thursday, leading to the dismissal of drug trafficking charges.

She said some of the witnesses were under the impression that the Thursday hearing was only to set a trial date.

Provincial Judge Donald August dismissed two charges of trafficking in MDA against Thomas Gibson, 31, of Brampton after the prosecutor asked for an adjournment.

Gibson was arrested following a drug party in Brampton last April at which Ed Parry, 17, also of Brampton, died of an overdose.

Gibson had been charged with manslaughter, criminal negligence and the two trafficking charges. The manslaughter and criminal negligence charges were dropped earlier for lack of evidence.

Judge August dismissed the trafficking charges Thursday saying he could not let the accused go with charges hanging over his head.

In an interview Friday, Mrs. Smith said she had already talked to her superiors about appealing the dismissal.

President Alone On Impeachment

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — President Nixon apparently is in an isolated position in his narrow definition of impeachment after an opinion by the justice department that impeachable offences can be almost anything Congress and the public decide.

Nixon and his lawyers feel the president can be impeached and removed from the White House only for established crimes for which a private citizen can be tried and found guilty, and are ready to formally forward that opinion Monday.

But the justice department said in effect Friday a legal definition of impeachment is impossible. While the language of the U.S. Constitution supports the narrow view that a president can be impeached only for an indictable criminal offence, the language of constitutional debates supports the view that impeachment can be for non-criminal conduct.

"Public opinion and political strength may be the ultimate determinators," it said.

The judiciary committee's legal staff holds that impeachable offences are any actions by a president which tend to harm operations of the government and the office of the presidency, or misuse the presidential power is enough to impeach.

This might include the Watergate affair and related scandals, even though the president was not charged with a specific offence.

The house committee will request material from Nixon which is needed for the probe.

The committee has subpoena power to obtain any evidence, even from Nixon, and if the president is unco-operative, some members of the house feel that would be grounds enough for impeachment.

More Gasoline Is Promised

WASHINGTON (AP) — More gasoline has been promised to Americans in 24 states, but for many drivers trying to buy it the only realities are less gasoline, more promises and a possible strike by independent station owners in the United States.

Energy chief William Simon announced Friday night, for the second time during the week, additional allotments for certain states.

But a spot check across the country found motorists having a harder time getting gasoline in many areas as dealers exhausted their monthly allocations.

Simon said 226 million gallons of gasoline will go to service stations very quickly, in some cases immediately.

Ten-per-cent increases in the February gasoline supplies were given to 24 states and the District of Columbia. Two states were given six-per-cent increases.

The increases are mandatory, Simon said. Oil companies must provide them by drawing from their own gasoline stocks.

Simon also said the energy office will work with all states to improve reporting systems and allow greater equalization of gasoline supplies in March.

Industry Goes to School

John Walsh, a Quinte Secondary student, is interviewed by I. A. Mellor, personnel officer for Brooke Bond, in a program arranged by the English department of the school. Five men from local industries agreed to participate in the mock job interviews to give the students experience in job seeking and the requirements of industry.

Student Job-seekers Get Practical Advice

Parents who are critical of the teaching of reading, writing and spelling, will find an ally in Peter Sandall.

The Quinte Secondary English teacher says bluntly that "communication subjects" are not meeting the needs of students.

A case in points is the language skills needed in a job interview. No amount of tea, cherry good advice can convince the student that his English course is relevant to the "real world" out there.

So, in an innovative program, Mr. Sandall brought the real world to Quinte's cafeteria Tuesday, with the help of personnel officers from five city businesses and industries.

The personnel officers engaged in educational roleplaying by agreeing to interview several selected students for a job. The types their companies have to offer high school graduates.

The companies supplied the students with real application forms to fill out beforehand, and the personnel men went over the forms to spot typical job interviews before groups of 20 students.

Those who offered their services for the afternoon were Bill Gallagher of Mead-Johnson who interviewed applicants for a lab technician's job; L. A. Mellors of Brooke Bond, whose job offer was product clerk; R. C. Moon of Corby's, who was looking recruiting for general help; R. I. Busch of Trenton Memorial Hospital, who pretended to be seeking a pharmaceutical technician and Stephen Chorna, interviewing candidates for a transportation assistant's job.

The personnel officers told the students they were looking for promptness on the part of job applicants and take it into consideration.

"You are relaxed today, because we are meeting you on your own territory," said one.

Several sweat-soaked volunteer job applicants disagreed with him.

"Have you a record of your school marks?" one interviewer asked consistently. Few job applicants bring the required records, thus creating a bad impression.

It developed that the students were not aware such records are readily available from the school. Poor marks in some subjects can be a handicap students thought they might be, because personnel officers look only at marks in the subject relevant to the job at hand and ignore the rest.

Dress is not the crucial issue students expected it to be.

"A good neutral dress for boys," said Corby's Mr. Moon, "is slacks, a sport shirt and sports jacket. Ties aren't really necessary. I look for neatness."

The application form is a telling document, the students learned. Personnel officers look for neatness and accuracy in filling out the form, and many take into consideration the time required to fill it out.

The students got advice on references. Never include family, friends or neighbors as references, or even an acquaintance already employed in the plant or company.

School teachers are the most objective and valuable references, the students were told. Most companies, provided the students have worked for them on a full or part-time basis for about two months. Doctors and ministers are good, but casual friendships among established merchants and service providers should not be ignored.

Are references checked? To their surprise, the students learned that at least one company uses the facilities of the local credit bureau to check out references. Police records often turn up that way.

Even a police record is no handicap, provided the offence was a minor one, the result of youthful indiscretion.

The most important question is: "Is there anything more you want to know about the job?"

This is the place to ask about wages, fringe benefits, opportunities for advancement and possibility of transfer to other branch plants of the company.

Students, warned against self-interest and too much materialism, were afraid to ask the important questions.

"If you don't ask about wages, I assume you aren't interested," bluntly asserted Mr. Moon. "This, and the fringe benefit package, is an important part of the job."

Finally, the students, in their subtle ways, were urged to sell themselves with all the linguistic forces at their command.

"A job interview," said one officer, "is no place to be shy."

Annual Report to Commission

Few More Drug Counts in 1973

Belleville police laid seven more drug charges last year than in 1972, the annual police department report presented to the police commission Friday shows.

In 1973 a total of 39 charges were laid for violations of the federal government's drug control legislation. A total of drug-related offences were reported to or discovered by, police during the same period.

A breakdown of the statistics reveals a total of 73 known offences involving cannabis (marijuana), while restricted drugs, such as LSD, and MDA, accounted for 14 known offences.

There were no reported offences involving addicting opiate like drugs or controlled drugs, which includes amphetamines, methamphetamines and barbiturates.

A total of 36 adult males and four adult females were charged with offences involving marijuana in 1973, while five male juveniles were charged with similar offences.

Only two adult males were charged with offences involving restricted drugs.

There is one reason, for the small number of charges laid by police, in relation to the number of incidents investigated. The federal government's drug analysts laboratory in Toronto is currently running two to three months behind in analyses. As a consequence, a number of offences that were not cleared in 1973 will be cleared by charge in 1974.

Last year, the Belleville police department trained an additional six police constables in drug enforcement, thereby placing the Belleville force among the provinces police departments with the highest per capita number of trained drug officers.

City Fire Department Awarded Commendation

Belleville firefighters have been commended by the Ontario Fire Marshal's office in Toronto for the excellence of their fire prevention programs.

The Belleville department was one of seven Ontario communities, with a population between 20,000 and 100,000, to receive honorable mention in the annual awards list drawn up by the fire marshal's office.

Last year, the Belleville firefighters responded to a total of 599 fire service calls. That number was up from the number of calls last year, but the total value of loss due to fire dropped drastically despite the increase in alarms.

Fire caused a total of $302,205.50 damage in Belleville last year.

The fire loss figures, however, was just one-third of the figure recorded for 1972.

Fire Chief Leo Culhane attributes the dramatic decrease in the fire loss figures to the hard work of his firefighters, the fire prevention programs conducted by fire department inspectors Paul Stephenson and Rod Christopher and the co-operation the Belleville department has received from the public.

"Close to 99 per cent of the fires we have to fight are the result of carelessness," the chief said. "People have started to realize that and they have been very co-operative with the department. The inspection division has done a tremendous job and the firefighters have killed a lot of fires that could have caused considerably more damage than they did."

Chief Culhane also noted that the fire department's figures for the number of fires reported and the total loss of property from fire may differ slightly from the figures that will be released by Ontario Fire Marshal later this year.

The discrepancy arises from the fact that the Fire Marshal's figures are culled from a variety of sources that include the fire department, insurance agencies adjusters and adjusters. The insurance companies usually report fires and fire losses that are not reported to the Belleville fire department.

In the field of fire prevention, the Belleville department undertook several different programs last year. The inspection division continued to make special fire safety tours of all the non-commercial premises, factories and homes throughout Belleville last year. All of the city's schools were visited, the drills were held and safety talks were given.

In the past year, all of the schools under the Hastings County Board of Education have had "fire detection" systems upgraded and the fire department was instrumental in guiding the city in drafting a new building code bylaw that regulates the installation of sprinkler systems in new buildings.

The fire department also initiated the Have a Heart Save A Life program with the help of Radio Station CJBQ and the Independent Insurance Agents. The Save a Life program provides elderly persons, and the disabled with special heart-shaped decals that, when posted in the window of a home, tell firefighters of the presence of persons who may need assistance in case of fire.

CHIEF CULHANE

Other fire prevention programs included a fire safety poster contest for grade school children, and ning an information booth at the Quinte Mall during Fire Prevention Week and conducting special demonstrations on the use of fire extinguishers at a variety of industrial sites in the city.

This year's award was not the first the Belleville firefighters. In past years they were an honorable mention in 1970 and a commendation in both 1971 and 1972.

Despite the impressive record chalked up by the firefighters in 1973, Chief Culhane says that he hopes to better the department's past performance and expressed concern over the use of new materials in building construction, the development of high rise apartment buildings and the use of automatic fire detection devices.

"Fire prevention is an endless job," the Chief said, "and it will require the continued co-operation of all the people of Belleville. Developments in technology will likely see increased use of devices such as automatic fire detection systems and we hope to see progress in that area in the year to come."

Fire department departments who won honorable mention for their work in fire prevention in Belleville's category included: Kingston, Niagara Falls, Barrie, Guelph, Timmins, and Gloucester Township.

Garden Club Meets

At the regular meeting of the Belleville Garden Club December 4th at the home of Harry J. Clarke School, and finalist in the county speaking competition, presented her talk on the feeding of plants.

Miss Hanna related experiments which have been used to demonstrate the effect on plant growth of the grower's attitudes toward the plants. These experiments indicate that "tender, loving care" has a very beneficial effect on growth.

After a travel film on the Trenton-Severn Waterway, Ron Fergusson and Mrs. Johnson demonstrated taking cuttings of geraniums, impatiens and begonias, then answered numerous questions from the floor.

Prizes for Valentine arrangements of African violet flowers were won by Mrs. Barbara McDowell, Mrs. S. Bongyan, and Mrs. Betty Gardiner.

Pollution Trap for Oil

The Ministry of the Environment has approved a system to trap any oil escapes at Bellville General Hospital.

Meantime, checks have shown no oil is being lost from the storage facilities, Harleigh Hamilton, board property committee chairman said.

Last year, seepage of oil from the boiler into the nearby Bay of Quinte brought criticism from local anti-pollution activists.

The system for trapping any oil will be ground will cost about $8,000.

Trenton Bureau

Council Scared Of Publicity ?

By COLIN BRUCE

Trenton town council this week made it obvious that it really doesn't want the people to know how it conducts its business.

A resounding alarm is echoing through town hall with municipal doors closing at every touch and turn — guarding the sanctity of council debates and opinion.

Town council is running scared of publicity. One councillor said "some people are afraid of the press and embarrassed in its presence."

During the last committee of the whole sessions councillors give their opinions and their personal stands. This is where the issues are hammered out.

In the public session, the rubber stamp comes out and councillors vote by a raise of the hand or bum and have at beer. Almost already knows what the vote will show the well-oiled stamp hitting the paper is all that breaks the monotony of the public meeting.

The public has no idea where individual councillors stand on crucial issues.

Following Monday's regular meeting, members of the press were asked for their opinions' when a possible council move to improve coverage.

Council suggests the press attend committee of the whole sessions — but leave their pencils and paper at home. "The is for background information," says Mayor Robert Patrick.

It is evident town council wants the opportunity to say whatever it pleases behind closed doors and then smooth it over in municipal monotones at the public council session.

Councillors don't want to offend anyone's sensibilities by publicly saying what they think.

Council asks any information for publication be the result of the public session.

The last public meeting lasted 18 minutes with the longest discussion being the reading of the resolutions and bylaws. It takes a while for the bylaws to be read because they have to be read three times to make them legal. The second longest discussion seemed to be the Lord's Prayer.

Council wants to take the spice and the guts out of anything it says.

Several weeks ago Trenton council indicated the press would be allowed to attend discussions concerning Trenton's regional government plans.

Belleville — a discussion participant — had no objections but Trenton council backtracked Monday night, saying the press was no longer welcome because Sidney and Murray Township and Frankford wanted privacy.

The mayor bowed to the wishes and gave the news media a flat "no comment," refusing to discuss the subject.

If you can't stand the heat, get out of the kitchen. Let everyone know — as it happens — what guides council in its decisions.

Council has ample opportunity in caucus sessions to have their hallowed privacy, the public doesn't have to be thrown out of committee meetings as well.

There's an old saying, "If the public doesn't know anything, it won't know enough to ask questions."

If so, such a novelty makes it a fitting landmark for this community. All of it as a historic focus of Quinte country settlement — had originality.

Specifically, it was the inspiration of one man — Billa Flint.

Not that there is much trace of Flint's stamp now on what has become a Hastings County hamlet near highways 7 and 37. But, at least, it's still the only government centre of what was a raw backwood he helped open — for profit. Ironically, the raw land itself today is proving once again profitable as bigcity dwellers seek a stake in nature.

Actinolite is the municipal centre of Elzevir-Grimsthorpe townships, most significant of which is Elzevir. But it's all Canadian Shield country. Flanked by Highway 7, Elzevir has a sparse population of 700. Grimsthorpe is another matter. It has a single resident, on a road into popular Weslemkoon Lake that leads across the township line. The rest of Grimsthorpe is beaver country.

Yet, even that has a unique feature. Wildlife officials say the highest concentration of beaver — which like to live in pelts -- anywhere on the continent are in Grimsthorpe.

But, in a time of urban bigness the townships' open spaces are their own natural attraction. Specifically Elzevir, Grimsthorpe is still wilderness trekked only by the trapper and hunter.

Still, says Lloyd Cox, township clerk-treasurer and one-time county warden, Elzevir land is attracting buyers -- with resulting inflation. A 100-acre lot may fetch as high as $5,000 -- as urbanites seek land of their own.

"It's a ridiculous price to my mind," says Mr. Price, "But again, I suppose they feel they want to own something, and $5,000 to a person living in an apartment in a city on a big salary is peanuts -- and in that light, understandable."

Yet they're only discovering what bachelor George Scanlon found through necessity years ago.

He settled here in the 1920s, a badly-wounded survivor of World War 1. Mr. Scanlon's closer-to-nature move was dictated by hope of eking out a tiny disability pension by growing his own food. Today, at 78, he is Actinolite's oldest resident.

GEORGE SCANLON
Actinolite's Oldest

Would Billa Flint the man who bought land almost by spiration of one man — Billa Flint.

Not that there is much trace of Flint's stamp now on what has become a Hastings County hamlet near highways 7 and 37. But, at least, it's still the only government centre of what was a raw backwood he helped open — for profit. Ironically, the raw land itself today is proving once again profitable as bigcity dwellers seek a stake in nature.

Actinolite is the municipal centre of Elzevir-Grimsthorpe townships, most significant of which is Elzevir. But it's all Canadian Shield country. Flanked by Highway 7, Elzevir has a sparse population of 700. Grimsthorpe is another matter. It has a single resident, on a road into popular Weslemkoon Lake that leads across the township line. The rest of Grimsthorpe is beaver country.

Yet, even that has a unique feature. Wildlife officials say the highest concentration of beaver — which like to live in pelts -- anywhere on the continent are in Grimsthorpe.

But, in a time of urban bigness the townships' open spaces are their own natural attraction. Specifically Elzevir, Grimsthorpe is still wilderness trekked only by the trapper and hunter.

Still, says Lloyd Cox, township clerk-treasurer and one-time county warden, Elzevir land is attracting buyers -- with resulting inflation. A 100-acre lot may fetch as high as $5,000 -- as urbanites seek land of their own.

"It's a ridiculous price to my mind," says Mr. Price, "But again, I suppose they feel they want to own something, and $5,000 to a person living in an apartment in a city on a big salary is peanuts -- and in that light, understandable."

Yet they're only discovering what bachelor George Scanlon found through necessity years ago.

He settled here in the 1920s, a badly-wounded survivor of World War 1. Mr. Scanlon's closer-to-nature move was dictated by hope of eking out a tiny disability pension by growing his own food. Today, at 78, he is Actinolite's oldest resident.

By the 1850s Bridgewater had 300 people, a blacksmith, tannery, tool factory.

Optimism already had built a schoolhouse of rough marble -- now the township offices. In 1864 came the church built from marble, quarried nearby.

Change also came. Receding forest lands dissipated much of Flint's fortune. There was change -- then disaster. In 1880 fire gutted the village, seriously damaging even the marble church. Actinolite never recovered its original status.

Today, says George Scanlon, there are only five houses of the original village along the Shoutamatta River still left. But, it's the centre for an area that has been appreciation from the outside.

Elzevir's spaciousness has drawn those seeking closer contact with nature. Recent times have seen establishment of a flourishing art school, a centre for spiritual contemplation. Latter settlers include an author and artist.

This may be a pattern.

For, says Mr. Price, since Elzevir has no labor there is a limited resort factor except for development along Highway 7. At one time it was otherwise advertised abroad. A pretropolitan dealer secured some inaccessible land tracts and began advertising for sale which the municipality could not control. Overtures from Europe, even Japan, says the township official, remained unanswered. Americans were enticed into purchase before the promotional police stopped in.

Still Elzevir, with its old homesteads, has its attractiveness.

"For creativity, the country is more suitable than the city," says Mr. Price. "How about, we have a peaceful scenic atmosphere people can be creative in.

Mr. Scanlon -- who has watched prosperity and price change with detached interest in recent years, seems to say almost the same thing: "It's the best place you could find -- for neighbor and all.

"And I don't know where you'd find any better scenery."

Bill Flint would probably agree -- with one reservation. The township — including his Actinolite, recently held a plebiscite. They voted back public liquor sales.

Students Seek More Paper

MADOC — High school students, encouraged by an initial success, are organizing a second wastepaper collection drive here.

The event will be staged by forestry students of Centre Hastings Secondary School March 1-2 at Madoc, Marmora and Tweed.

Goal for the drive is eight tons. The first drive -- in February -- collected five tons of waste paper.

One spinoff of the project was that it started many people toquitying about recycling, says teacher Cy Winterburn.

Paper can be deposited for pickup at the same locations as in February in all three communities -- IGA parking lots in Madoc and Tweed at the BP station in Marmora.

Safety Crosswalk Also a Hazard

By MARGARET HAVLOCK

PICTON — Little old ladies attempting to cross the street to the County Centre may require more help than just a boy scout for safety.

The Main Street East crosswalk painted opposite the fairgrounds gates has become a pedestrian decoy through the carelessness of many motorists. Although the crossing is clearly marked both by road lines a street sign and an overhead sign, most drivers neglect to slow or stop.

Properly used, the crosswalk could represent an ideal safety measure for school children and persons crossing from Main Street East to enter the fairgrounds gates.

Located as it is, out of Picton's business section, it seems largely ignored by motorists. Several regular users of this crossing agree that it would be suicidal to merely look both ways, point, then move into the crosswalk.

The suggestion that drivers to use this crosswalk is forced to stand at the edge of the sidewalk and wait while any reckless motorists streak past, is not stands ready to brave the crossing he will be rewarded eventually by one or more drivers who slow and stop for him.

In fairness to all drivers, especially out-of-town motorists who may not become as a slight surprise in this residential part of Picton.

It is clearly marked, however, and there is little excuse for the driver who fails to slow for a pedestrian.

Picton police Sgt. Scott Hele reports that he can recall only one accident in the crosswalk since its designation.

This is a surprising fact in view of the apparent disregard most motorists seem to cherish for this safety measure.

The lack of accidents is only proof of luck, not a tribute to safe driving. Children who use this cross walk in complete trust that adults will stop are in danger of being injured or killed.

A second danger spot is the paved entrance to the fairgrounds and the County Centre. In this open area hot rodders enjoy spinning their cars on the ice and making sharp turns on two wheels.

If they are seriously injured through their own stupidity, sympathy is unnecessary. If they should injure a child coming from the County Centre, the situation becomes greatly changed.

Hundreds of youngsters enjoy the arena's facilities and often can be seen walking to the rink after dark. To reach it they must cross the open area staked out by the hell drivers as their private playground.

Although town police do patrol the fairgrounds periodically, perhaps a more determined surveillance would curb the hazard of daredevils on ice. Also the crosswalk might be watched more closely and motorists failing to stop apprehended.

The Decision Process

We have referred a couple of times of late to Alvin Toffler's book, "Future Shock," because within its pages there is so much that is relevant to the human condition today, as well as to business and commerce.

In one chapter Toffler discusses what he calls "the Collapse of Hierarchy." He quotes Professor William Read of the Graduate School of Business at McGill University (just one of a number of Canadian authorities quoted) as saying that hierarchial arrangements are facing "irresistible pressures."

"The central, crucial and important business of organizations," he says, "is increasingly shifting from up and down to 'sideways.'"

As Toffler expains: "What is involved in such a shift is a virtual revolution in organizational structure — and human relations . . ."

Stemming in part from the growth in business of vast numbers of expert and frequently mobile personnel who move from job to job with agility as well as functionary capacities, such people fit into the decision-making process in a way described thus by Toffler: "... For people communicating 'sideways' — that is, to others at approximately the same level of organization — to have differently, operate under very different pressures, than those who must communicate up and down a hierarchy."

Describing a couple of years he spent as a millwright's helper in a foundry, the author explains how in the case of a breakdown (which occurred frequently and in a variety of phases) a radical speed-up could have been effected simply by allowing the worker to report the breakdown directly to the maintenance supervisor or even to the maintenance crew, instead of passing the news along through his foreman and production supervisor.

He adds that at least one and perhaps two steps could have been cut from the four-step communication process. What he calls the "up-and-down or vertical" steps.

Apply such rationale to the absentee-management type of situation to be found in some Canadian plants where the incident of some radical occurrence the local personnel can say nothing but rather must leave that responsibility to the parent company people elsewhere — say in the United States.

An example was the recent mishap at the Essex International of Canada Ltd. plant in Ingersoll where a faulty gas furnace was blamed for the hospitalization of 33 workers.

A plant foreman, who asked not to be identified, told of how several workers came to him over a period of two hours Friday complaining of illness. Two employees passed out. An ambulance was called and (a decision on his part — and a wise one) he ordered the plant shut down.

Beyond that, however, a company spokesman refused to comment, saying any information would have to come from the head office — in Detroit.

Tim Horton

The death of veteran hockey player Tim Horton in a traffic accident is a great loss to the game. The circumstances of his death too were peculiarly tragic, his car rolling over — a situation not uncommon these days, but somehow unexpected in his instance. Horton will be remembered in Belleville not only for his hockey fame but also as proprietor of one of the city's excellent new food establishments, one of a chain he owned in various communities.

Chopper Caper

The young soldier who flew a helicopter from a base near Washington in the predawn hours and landed it on the lawn of the White House grounds has given the security guards sounds almost in the tradition of the jet pilot who some years ago flew under the Clifton suspension bridge near Bristol in England. Here was a soldier out to prove he could fly and navigate the chopper, because even though he had more than 150 hours experience, he had been grounded on the instrumentation phase. For his trouble he got short at and sent for psychiatric examination (what else, in these days when even the mildest deviation from normal behavior is regarded as suspect).

As Inflation Mounts...

Tom Cossitt Nails Down PM's Personal Extravagance

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Put it all together, says Conservative MP Thomas Cossitt of Eastern Ontario's Leeds riding, and it is costing the taxpayers nearly $1 million to keep Prime Minister Trudeau in the luxurious style to which he has become accustomed.

Thomas Cossitt should know for he asked the questions about those items, and despite the complicated manner in which the Government answered them, he has sorted out and totalled the figures to $1,031,000.

Years the key Liberal in the Leeds, president, in fact, of the constituency association, and a formidable fund-raiser, he was so turned off by Trudeau he was turned into a Tory.

He long has been convinced that the Prime Minister is an actual "threat" to both the unity and economy of the country, and so Trudeau has been his target in and out of Parliament.

He reached his $1,031,000 prime ministerial cost total under six major heads:

Operation of the PM's office: $1,500,000.

Renovation of the Harrington Lake lodge: $85,000.

Refurbishing the official 24 Sussex Drive residence: $81,000.

Redecoration and refurnishing of the Centre Block office suite: $61,000.

Purchase of bullet-proof limousine: $76,000.

Care of the grounds at 24 Sussex Drive: $18,000.

And the costs will increase with the spending of some $90,000 more on continued refurbishing of the official residence, Harrington Lake.

Tom Cossitt charges it all to what he calls "Trudeau's emperor complex; he thinks he is a late Twentieth Century Caesar, remember that Julius style' glad-to be afforded and is affli-ted with the self-defining conviction that he is above and beyond both the problems and the questions of the people."

Those he describes as "apologists" for the Prime Minister's "scandalous arrogance and contemptuous waste in the face of truly frightening inflation," have argued the spending is all well justified.

Especially, they insist, the two-year $171,000 expenditure on the official residence, regarded as a "public showplace" for Canadians at Pierre Trudeau's 24 Sussex Drive.

Cossitt disagrees. "What he means by 'public showplace' for Canadians is that White House is for Americans. That might be an acceptable rationalization, concedes Tom Cossitt, but Canadians don't get to see 24 Sussex Drive, except from outside the guarded gates — while American taxpayers are given guided tours of many of the White House rooms.

Tom Cossitt's research pins the costs of 24 Sussex Drive on the Prime Minister's office over a period of the past two years at $1,000 it was $97,920 with Prime Minister Diefenbaker in residence.

In 1965, Prime Minister Pearson raised it to $107,652.

Then it climbed to $1,131,000 in '72; up to $1,384,000 last year, and currently is estimated to be heading for $1,500,000.

To Tom Cossitt, this kind of spending is not only "unjustifiably extravagant, but reeks of Trudeau self-indulgence."

How so?

Well, he explains, it is just not the "non-economy size of the figures — not just the spending of all that money — as much as it is what it was used to purchase.

"Thousands upon thousands of tax dollars, for example, for sausages, "on indulging Pierre Trudeau's over-cultivated taste for luxury."

Such as?

Such as self-contained apartment that is said to be costing $80,000, inside the Sussex Drive residence," says Tom Cossitt. "What's to need it for — putting up David Lewis so he won't have to trouble himself to come to Parliament Hill for his committee?

But more seriously, Tom Cossitt points to such prime ministerial spending — charged, of course, to the taxpayers — as $30 for ashtrays, $8,000 for suede chesterfields, $5,106 for Eskimo carvings, and $2,300 for tapestries for the offices.

Then in refurnishing the residence, such items as a $1,800 Persian rug, $1,515 for crystal, $2,250 for a pair of Hepplewhite consoles, $1,231 for chine, $165 for a Chinese chocolate vase, $400 for a Dutch chandelier, $607 for Chinese lamps, $283 for decanters, $1,742 for linen, $178 for book matches, and another $181 for wooden matches.

And what makes Tom Cossitt, himself a wealthy people to go in awe of Trudeau's self-indulgent arrogance," as he views it, is the fact that while the Prime Minister was "splurging in such an extravagant manner, he was suggesting Canadians must learn, in these days of increasing shortages, to make do with less.

Dr. Kissinger Is Off to Mexico

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger is in Mexico City for the latest meeting of the foreign ministers of member nations of the Organization of American States and in a region he knows very little about.

In fact Mr. Kissinger happens to be secretary of state for a president who has all but ignored Latin America in his foreign policy planning and directions. Dr. Kissinger has many times visited the city where the OAS foreign ministers are meeting, usually as a tourist or as a holidaying academic.

But Latin America its ways, its attitudes, the substantial differences politically and ethnically between its largest nations are all largely unknown to him.

And he will be representing a president who representing a president who has never forgotten, he almost lost his life in Caracas in 1958 when his car was stoned and he was mobbed.

Mr. Nixon's appointments of the highest officials in the state department directly involved with the Americas, have usually been unspectacular.

His first such appointment was a senior executive of Sears Roebuck, an American multinational retailing concern which has stores in Mexico, Venezuela and Brazil, and used to have a wide chain in Cuba before Castro.

This seemed somewhat insensitive bearing in mind the attacks faced by U.S. multinational companies in Latin America, notably the attacks on the I.T. and T. crisis and its role in trying to overthrow the Allende Marxist regime in Chile by trying to solicit the support of the United States government.

This incredible activity was documented in detail and established by the admission of I.T. and T. employees who were involved in such interventionist activities.

And the previous publicity about Dr. Kissinger at the OAS meeting in Mexico City centred around a possible meeting between him and the Cuban Ambassador to Mexico.

What is probably more important for Kissinger at his first OAS meeting as secretary of state is for him to find what are the basic undercurrents of international life in the rest of this hemisphere and to what extent the United States is still credited with suspicion at this time.

The OAS is in bad shape, under bureaucratized and ridden with ideological priorities for decision-making, the main reasons our External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp gives for still delaying full Canadian entry.

Nevertheless there is an overriding criticism shared by nearly all the member states, including those three Latin which have strong business and military ties with the United States. It is that OAS headquarters must be moved from Washington to a new permanent home in a Latin American capital city, say Mexico City, Caracas or Rio de Janeiro.

When and if that time comes and the United States security at the OAS the sooner the better, the new struggle will be to decide which nation gets the nod for a future Latin American venue.

Enoch Powell Fly in UK Ointment

By CY FOX

LONDON (CP) — As the British election campaign enters its final stage, right-wing rebel Enoch Powell—always known for his shrewd sense of timing—has unleashed a political explosive which will cause anguish among some Conservatives and apoplexy in Common Market headquarters.

Tory leader Edward Heath confirmed he will speak for the anti-market movement within five days of the Feb. 28 polling date, one Market officials in Brussels were feeling perturbed by the ominous campaign pronouncements of Opposition Labor Chief Harold Wilson.

He said that if he becomes prime minister again, he will try renegotiating the terms for Britain's market entry. He conjured renewed visions of British withdrawal from the already shaky economic community.

With Powell's intervention, the market administrators and the governments of Britain's partners on the European mainland will have a little more reason to worry about the community's future.

Opposition Conservative Prime Ministe Heath have always had a rich seam of mass discontent to exploit as a result of the Common Market decision for Britain to blame steeply rising food prices on the country's 1973 market entry.

Wilson's anti-market declarations came early in the campaign and now rumors Powell is about to reiterate more dramatically than ever his contention that British voters are membership means, among other devastating things, the unauthorized surrender to the "eurocrats" in Brussels of powers that rightfully belong to Parliament in London.

Such a spectacular campaign intervention by Powell was long expected, even though the political Conservatives ever since the controversial Tory branded Heath's calling of the poll as fraudulent and irresponsible and refused to run for re-election.

Laborites will be delighted at possible top-level Conservative cringing over Powell's latest political strike.

No one can say for certain just what impact his intervention will have on the election's outcome.

But the least that some commentators expect is an increase in the number of Conservatives abstaining on election day.

At 61, Powell still harbors ambitions to be Tory leader and prime minister.

But the result of the Feb. 28 poll will be crucial to the achievement of this country's continued involvement in the present Common Market arrangement.

Even if Heath loses the election, however, the decision to Powell's advance would remain formidable.

For one thing, the Tories make a fetish out of loyalty to the party. And Powell's refusal to run again this time may have violated this principle, thus alienating powerful party elements.

Moreover, whoever wins the impending election, Powell won't be in Parliament in the immediate future and may suffer as a result.

Thus he is currently treading a politically dangerous path which could be his undoing over which even great outsiders like Winston Churchill and Aneurin Bevan have declined to pass.

This is the path that leads into a isolated political limbo devoid of affiliation with any major ex, established party.

In any event, the Tories now have a new worry to compound their concern over matters like the remarkable rise in popularity—reported by opinion polls—of the apparently resurgent Liberal party.

All eyes and ears will thus be at the speeches Powell will be delivering on behalf of a movement which urges the dismantling of Britain's people to support Labor candidates opposed to the country's continued involvement in the present Common Market arrangement.

Silver Boom Worries Merchants

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Editor

The boom in silver has bullion dealers and coin merchants worried.

Silver prices have skyrocketed, in the wake of soaring prices for gold bullion. Those who caught the trend early enough have made big profits—on paper, at least.

But the amateurs are catching the big boys. Newer boards are trying to solicit the support of the United States government.

This incredible activity was documented in detail and established by the admission of I.T. and T. employees who were involved in such interventionist activities.

And the previous publicity about Dr. Kissinger at the OAS meeting in Mexico City centred around a possible meeting between him and the Cuban Ambassador to Mexico.

Syl Apps to Step Down

By DON O'HEARN

Thomson News Service

TORONTO — Because he had been a good hockey player a lot of people wouldn't believe that Syl Apps was also a good politician.

Very early in his career here, a year or so after he had first been elected as the PC member for Kingston in 1963, I did a piece rather complimentary to a speech he had made.

Letters to the editor.

This was one of the few times in my life I have had a call from a publisher.

"I heard that speech was funny," he said.

"It wasn't" I replied.

And the dignity of the working press was upheld.

Actually it was quite a good speech. And so has been every effort that Syl Apps has made in his government career.

The point of this publisher's complaint, and really the point of public acceptance of the Toronto Maple Leafs former captain was that they expected him to break up a game with everything he did.

They wanted stardom in politics as they had seen stardom turned into a Tory.

Perhaps Syl Apps as a member of the government hasn't reached the heights he did as a hockey player. And perhaps he wasn't quite as scintillating.

But first there is the game.

In politics, first of all you really don't score goals.

At least very seldom. It is a game of puck-passing, of finesse. Only the hawks, the scandal-hungers, get real prominence.

There is little room for stardom. And probably, even with that, this game Syl Apps was not a star.

But he was a very valuable member of a team. He played a solid game. He was, or has been, a good striker. So good that, in fact, if he worked trading in politics as we do in sports, Lougheed of Alberta might be quite open.

Syl has now announced that he won't run again, which is the purpose of this piece.

And let us say he goes out with honor.

For he figures he is perhaps in the way of good rookies on the bench.

The seige of the Alamo in San Antonio, Texas, began 138 years ago today—in 1836—when about 180 Texans were attacked by Gen. Santa Ana's army of 4,000 troops during the war of independence in the state. The walls of the Alamo mission were breached after 13 days of fighting and hand-to-hand combat ensued. Only five Texans lived through the fighting, but these were killed in cold blood on Santa Ana's orders.

London Economist' on Coal Strike

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

After reading a letter to The Editor entitled "Strike" I suggest to the writer that he look up a rather illuminating article on the British coal miners' strike printed in the Globe and Mail of a few days ago. The article is actually a reprint of one published by the Economist, London. To grasp its significance properly, it should be read in full but the second last paragraph intrigued me particularly. It runs as follows:

"So what happens if an economic crisis—particularly if British coal that it is the most inefficient mining industry left in western Europe, that the majority of British pits are so uneconomic that 75 per cent will be closed within 15 years, that the planned pay offer would put most coalface workers well within the top quarter of all income-earners in Britain, and that the average miner's pay, (so often misleadingly quoted) is brought down by the human and economic practice of keeping old men in surface jobs where they are paid less because they are not really needed."

Perhaps we should refrain from criticisms until after the election or until we have researched the issues thoroughly.

Snowmobiles Worst Menace To Canada Since Fenians

By BOB HUGGAN

Let's face it! Snowmobilers are a menace.

Probably the biggest single group menace to hit this country since the Fenians gave up trying to invade Canada 100 years ago.

For instance, snowmobilers are a menace to life.

Every Monday, the papers list accidents involving snowmobilers. They whip across country roads, from one field to another — either not looking for cars, or playing "chicken".

They start off across frozen lakes, apparently not realizing that, though the ice will support a lightweight ice-but, it won't take the strain of a couple of 350-pound machines plus passengers.

They allow their snowmobiles to be raced around fields of barely covered rocks and fallen trees by kids hardly old enough to control a pushbike. Their own kids, too.

And they influence their local township or city councils to allow the machines full use of snowcovered roads — and how that word "snow-covered" is stretched.

Twice recently, I've had my car, travelling at a safe speed, on an icy (but snowcovered) road, passed by a speeding snowmobiler. I wonder how much control he'd have trying to stop his vehicle on that kind of surface?

Snowmobilers are also a menace to wildlife.

They use their machines unfairly to run down animals for "sport" or "fun".

Snowmobilers are a big menace to the environment.

You don't have to look hard in the spring to see the broken young trees and bushes, the cut fences, the piles of beer and coke cans that mark the regular bilers at the park gate. They were sitting, revving their engines loudly, as they yelled out the details of their next ravaging route.

The biggest surprise, for us, was that the monster who had nearly become a killer turned out to be a grandmotherly lady in her 80s!

Lastly, snowmobilers are a menace to health — their own!

Spending all their spare winter time sitting on a snow machine adds inches to their waistlines and more recruits to Canada's unfit majority. Many snowmobilers, unfortunately, are the same people who spend summer weekends sitting in a car or in canoe-swamping speed-boats, and most evenings in front of TV sets.

If only they'd trade in their fuel-consuming machines for bikes and snowshoes for the family, they might add some years to their lives.

If you've read this carefully, you'll have noticed that my criticisms have been against snowmobilers, not snowmobiles. There's a simple reason: Used properly, the snowmobile is a good machine, with a potential for lifesaving rather than life-taking.

It's the perfect work machine for Hydro workers, trappers, farmers. For the conditions that need supplies. For rescue work after a big storm. Or for cottagers who want to get into snowbound cottages for a quiet winter weekend of peace and log fires and long walks.

But it badly needs local, provincial and federal legislation with teeth in it to stop the growing menace it has become.

I really mean it when I say that inventing the snowmobile was a good idea. But then, so, too, was splitting the atom.

BOB HUGGAN

Thanks to snowmobilers, Sunday has become the noisiest day of the week, a day to stay indoors, in the hope that your double storm windows will keep out some of the racket of the spluttering machines.

Not long ago, while walking in lovely Vandervaater Park, north of Belleville, pulling a couple of youngsters on toboggans, we nearly lost one of the children to a snowmobile, driven by a ragged-eyed, red-faced, grinning monster that leaped its machine over a small hill down on top of us.

We caught up to the snowmobilers at the park gate. They were sitting, revving their engines loudly, as they yelled out the details of their next ravaging route.

The biggest surprise, for us, was that the monster who had nearly become a killer turned out to be a grandmotherly lady in her 80s!

Organization into Clubs Keeps Sport Respectable

By the LONESOME RIDERS.
Snowmobile Club

Snowmobiling is one of the fastest growing winter sports in Ontario. This growth has created a need for increased attention to safe use of snowmobiles, respect for fellow winter sport enthusiasts and care of the equipment.

Because of the nature of our sport, snowmobiling is simple but it can be hazardous. The machine is only as safe as the person operating it. The key to safe snowmobiling is knowledge of the vehicle, good judgement and courtesy. The operation of a snowmobile requires the operator's attention at all times and properly handled, the snowmobile can provide safe and enthusiastic enjoyment.

The Lonesome Riders Snowmobile Club has accepted the challenge of our sport with the responsibilities and commitments so necessary to society.

The Lonesome Riders Club was founded November 15, 1970; initially some fifteen members formed the nucleus of our Club, with a total of nine snow machines. An Executive Committee was elected to perform the duties of the Club.

Since our inception in 1970, to the present date our Club has enjoyed full growth and at present, some 42 active members, with a total of forty machines enjoy year 'round program.

As a Club, we have been active in the following community ventures: winter carnivals; coordinating recreational rides upon request; made our Club available for search and rescue; assisted land-owners re tices; assisted stranded motorists.

As an active club for the past four years, we would be involved in an yearly average of some 24 snowmobile outings. Such outing or safari would consist of 15 or 20 machines. In an average year, the club would log some 1,500 miles. The intent of this information is to say, that after approximately 4,000 club miles we have not had one single accident.

We therefore, attest that safe snowmobiling is our opinion, can be performed most successfully in a club setting. The Lonesome Riders Snowmobile Club has been successful because the membership strongly supports our constitution and by-laws.

The Lonesome Riders Snowmobile Club is satisfied that the future of our sport is in the hands of the snowmobiler. We strongly endorse the formation of snowmobile clubs which would in turn, practice the high ideals of our most popular winter sport. The Lonesome Riders Snowmobile Club is available to assist in the formation of new snowmobile clubs or help existing interests, whatever they may be.

If our Club can be of further assistance, please contact Mrs. Marjorie Hughes, President, Lonesome Riders Snowmobile Club, 31 Byron Street, Belleville.

Silver Screen Has Changed For Stella

By MAURICE SWITZER
Managing Editor

When Stella Culhane first began her filmhouse career as a cashier, her main concern was balancing the dime and quarter admissions that were paid to see "The Bluebird", a Shirley Temple movie.

Now, a member of the Famous Players' 25-year-old club and manager of the Quinte Mall Cinemas, Mrs. Culhane finds the job of providing motion picture entertainment for the public placing very different demands on her.

For example, there's the task of arranging standby emergency facilities by the St. John Ambulance Corps for the Exorcist, which she expects in Belleville "in early summer."

Mrs. Culhane is among the first to recognize that the public's entertainment tastes have changed.

It's not Shirley Temple tapdancing across the silver screen that packs them in anymore, it's films like the one — Jonathan Livingstone Seagull — hardly anybody shows up."

The theatre manager was describing the square turnouts that forced her to cancel the film version of one of the most popular little paperbacks in history.

"The photography is beautiful, the music is beautiful but there is no sex or violence. It's not the type of film most of the public wants."

Her old boss, George Forhan, longtime manager of the downtown Belle Theatre, used to tell Stella Culhane, "When we send people home with a smile on their face, we've done our job."

But films like the Poseidon Adventure — about a ship disaster; Deliverance — an abortive canoe trip that features five deaths; or Walking Tall — a violence-filled law-and-order production of time could be accused of sending viewers home smiling.

And they were Mrs. Culhane's three top grossers for 1973.

In fact the best drawing card she has ever had booked in the Mall Cinema's two and a half years was Billy Jack. For 13 weeks local audiences lined up to see a movie about a man standing up for his rights, to put it politely.

Stella Culhane sees her job as twofold — "to give people what they want, and to run a proper house."

But we'll bet that way back when she was selling tickets for Shirley Temple, she never dreamed that someday movie houses would consider ambulance service as necessary as popcorn.

The crunching of shoulderpads resounds throughout high school athletic fields every autumn. But some feel that not just football, but all school sports are an unnecessary educational frill.

Costs Could be Tackled By Cutting School Football

By LENNY WILLIAMSON

The Ontario cabinet has publicly rejected compulsory physical education in elementary and secondary schools.

The subject has been optional for several years, and will stay that way, says the minister of education. He made his position clear last week to a Windsor phys ed teacher who told him 200,000 students across the province dropped the subject this year. Good.

Now let's drop the phys ed teachers, convert their expensive gymnasiums to class-rooms and sweep out the costly paraphernalia of the athletic cult.

The savings would be terrific, and school boards are desperate for ways of cutting costs. But it isn't just the excessive amounts of money spent on school sports that bothers us — it's the unequal distribution of funds.

The football team eats up the largest chunk of phys ed appropriations and the lion's share of student council funds. Never has so much money been lavished on so few students — students who, orthopedic surgeons have warned, may be inflicting permanent damage to one another's innocent bones out there on the playing fields.

Students, teachers and principals react with horror to the idea of giving up football. It's absolutely essential, they say, to the development of school spirit.

Nonsense.

McGill University, formerly one of the big four of college football, is still hanging together despite the disbanding of its Redmen because "of their cost.

Inequity in funding isn't confined to school sports. The gym is the last bastion of male chauvinism, in schools. How much money and spirit is spent on girls' teams and girls' sports? The women always come out second best and the cheerleader is the personification of woman as a sex object. When did you last see the coach send out his second string players in pompoms to display their secondary sexual characteristics for the enhancement of school spirit between plays?

The worst indictment of phys ed was given by a teacher who intended his remarks in its defence.

The phys ed department is the only one that offers a program geared to superior students, he said. Every other department in the school caters to the average, or below, student.

Exactly.

It is not true that the superior student can get on his own. He too needs good teaching, but perhaps not as much of it as the slower child. This is particularly true in sports and athletics, where the emphasis should be on the awkward and youngster who needs a lot of help in developing his physical skills. Every classroom teacher, it students," to teach the whole student, "to develop the whole child" to practise "individualized instruction," and to be prepared to do a little remedial work with the youngsters who don't grasp a concept the first time around. But this philosophy doesn't extend to the gym, where the insensitivity of the instructor is monumental.

There are no slow learners in phys ed. All jocks, male and female, hold sacred the conviction that all Kids are incurably lazy lumps who will never lift a finger unless yelled, shamed or physically forced into it. Learning disabilities are now recognized and treated, but no gym teacher will acknowledge that the lazy, unco-ordinated kid in the corner might have a mild, border-line physical disability so slight as to be unrecognized by the family physician. No one expects a teacher to diagnose a condition unsuspected by any but the most skilled medical specialist. But we have a right to demand that the phys ed teacher look occasionally for an explanation other than laziness.

No wonder the kids are dropping phys ed and leaving the gyms in the athletic superstars. But can we afford those expensive playrooms and coaches for a small elite? That's why we say: shut the gyms, turf out the teachers, disband the teams and put the money into devising a system of physical education that will raise it to the level of teaching in other departments of the school.

Perhaps Education Minister Thomas Wells had something like this in mind when he told the Windsor phys ed instructor that "I cannot fault students who do not want to take physical education instruction."

He reproved the teacher for saying kids are fat and flabby.

"I feel the opposite is the case," he said. "What is needed is a creative program that will induce a life-long desire for fitness."

Phys Ed Opinion Split

By MIKE BRADSHAW

The physical condition of the average 30-year-old Canadian has been described as better on the same level as that of a 60-year-old Swede.

Similarly physical health supposedly begins to deteriorate as early as age 12, but health and conditioning is part of our schooling right through the early years of our lives.

"Canada is one of the least physically fit nations in the world," says 20-year-old Ron Hall. "Physical education needs to be part of a academic system, but a reorganization of the physical education courses now offered in our school systems is drastically needed. Phy ed now is probably one of the least effective subjects in school."

Joanne Alexander, an 18-year-old employee of Maple Stereo-Pak, feels, "the physical education system should be compulsory up until grade 10 or 11. There are other more important credits you should be able to take in the phys-ed time periods if you should want to. Once you reach 16 or 17 you usually know which courses will be relevant to you for your future."

"You don't get any benefit from a 40-minute phys-ed period," says John Irvine, 20. "You spend 15-20 minutes changing and showering, 10 minutes listening to your teacher explain everything and then you get 10-15 minutes to work up a sweat. On top of that, because you have to take half of your phys-ed course in the classroom taking health, the physical benefits are even less."

Mrs. Luella Bates, an employee of Zegouras Variety, commented, "I never could really see the points of the girls being taught physical education. Girls should be taught more homemaking skills in that time period."

A Bucket of Paint Worth $1,500

A $50 investment in paint can add $1,500 to the price of your home according to Belleville real estate appraiser John Halloran.

Mr. Halloran, who appraises homes for buyers and sellers as well as for mortgage companies, says that a fresh paint job inside and out and an appearance of perfect cleanliness always make a home more saleable as well as worth more. Neat landscaping helps, too.

"On the other hand, Mr. Halloran says that families intending to sell an older home often "go overboard and do things that don't create value like carpeting and adding expensive cupboards."

"These things may increase your own enjoyment but they don't add to the value. They're not really an investment."

For prospective sellers, already gearing up for the annual spring real estate boom, Mr. Halloran has another bit of advice.

"Get a committal on a mortgage for the house you want to sell; it immediately makes it more saleable because it eliminates problems."

Mr. Halloran said that many sales are aborted at the last minute because conditional offers based on obtaining a mortgage fall through.

Deciding what your house is worth is a job for a professional, Mr. Halloran said.

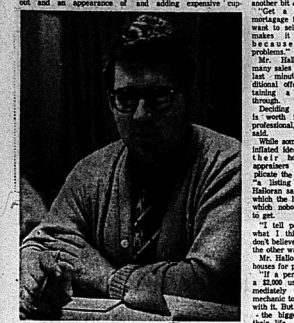
While some people have an inflated idea of the value of their house, overzealous appraisers sometimes complicate the issues by writing in "listing appraisal", Mr. Halloran said. It's a price at which the house is listed but which nobody really expects to get.

"I tell people straight off what I think it's worth; I don't believe in doing business the other way."

Mr. Halloran also appraises houses for prospective buyers.

"If a person wants to buy a $2,000 used car they immediately take it to their mechanic to see what's wrong with it. But they buy houses — the biggest investment of their life — without help. A $40 appraisal fee is worthwhile just to know you're making a wise investment."

When appraising older homes, Mr. Halloran says he looks first at plumbing, wiring, heating and the roof. He said that if these things need repair or replacement, a purchaser must realistically add up to $6,000 to the cost of the house. On the other hand, he would not advise a seller to do this work just to raise the value of the house.



"You're not getting anything extra for your money — you'd just realize what you put in."

Mr. Halloran maintains that this system works to the advantage of both buyer and seller because the seller isn't making an unprofitable investment and the buyer may be able to do the work more cheaply on his own and reduce his total cost.

Mr. Halloran believes that this year as in recent years the real estate market will continue to be a "sellers" market with ever increasing prices.

He blames the price increases on a lack of serviced lots in Belleville and an increase in the cost of building materials.

For example, he said, a Briarwood home with a fireplace sold for $29,900 in November, 1973.

Consumers' Association Studies Canada's Health Care Services

"Prescription for Health" is the theme of National Consumers' Week, March 1-7.

It will serve as a focal point for the Consumers' Association of Canada.

The CAC is a voluntary, non-profit organization of approximately 100,000 Canadian consumers. Since one of its main objectives is to collect and express consumer opinions and interests, it is not surprising that they are concerned about health care.

While government health services are adequate for most Canadians, the CAC feels that they do not reach all people equally. It is also felt that health services in their present form cannot be improved without raising costs.

Health care already takes seven cents out of every dollar earned in Canada, which works out to an average of $1,000 per family of four, every year.

And that is not the worst part, according to the CAC. Health care costs are climbing at a rate of 12 per cent a year.

The main objectives of the CAC, then, are to provide good quality health care services to all Canadians, and to bring down health care costs wherever possible.

The CAC feels that some experimentation will be necessary to find the most efficient means of delivering health care, since it hinges directly upon income and geographic locale. But the best answer, they feel, is community health centre.

Not to be confused with small, badly-equipped hospitals, the community health centres would be a medical complex of high quality services. Their functions could include diagnosis, prescriptions, x-ray and laboratory facilities, opthalmological and optical services, dental care, minor surgery, education, occupational and physical therapy, psychiatric care, and family and marriage counselling.

The use of paramedical personnel (as in the U.S., Britain, Russia and China) in health centres to cope with routine tasks and small emergencies, would ease the doctors' work - loads, and hopefully reduce costs.

Emphasis on preventive medicine and health education, especially nutrition, is expected to bring down costs over a period of time simply by helping people to better health.

The community health centres are efficient, accessible to low income and remotely situated people, offer high quality services, and over an extended period of time, may bring health care costs down.

These are the conclusions formed by the CAC. They may well be a prediction for the future of health care services in Canada.

In November, 1973, the same model sold for $35,000 without a fireplace.

"It sounds like the public is being ripped off but in that time the price of the lot went from $6,000 to $9,000 and building materials increased in price by 42 per cent.

"It's in actual fact, the builder's return on his dollar was less at the higher price."

Today, he added, the same model is selling for $38,900.

Like most realtors, Mr. Halloran says that the only way a family which doesn't currently own a home can get one is to just go out and buy it.

"Overextending yourself today is a good deal tomorrow," he maintains.

Currently, Mr. Halloran says, there are only 65 to 70 serviced lots available in Belleville and until the surrounding townships are serviced, homes will continue to increase in value.

"There haven't been many investments that have made as much money for people as buying their own home," Mr. Halloran says.

The meeting of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary was held at Educational Hall. Guest speaker was Elizabeth Rolston, Senior Occupational Therapist, Department of Rehabilitation Medicine at Belleville General Hospital. Mrs. Rolston, a graduate of the University of Toronto, is a qualified Occupational as well as Physiotherapist.

Mrs. Rolston aptly explained that occupational therapy is the use of functional activity for the restoration of the patient to his optimum physical, mental, social and vocational independence. She described several interesting individuals, disabled by accident or illness, who are now living normal lives through the help of occupational therapy.

Mrs. Rolston told of the facilities that Belleville General has in order for her to carry on her programs, in which volunteers assist patients.

The business meeting, conducted by the president Mrs. C. D. Ashley, preceded the speaker.

It was reported that there are now 141 paid members of the Auxiliary.

Shawls and light knitted coverings will be provided to needy patients in the Extended Care Unit.

Mrs. C. A. Campbell, representing the Opportunity Shop turned over to the treasury $1,500.

Mrs. R. B. Bocknek, Chairman of the Coffee and Gift Shops presented the month's total income, $2,000.

Mrs. George Wilson, Chairman of Volunteer Hospital Services, reported a total of 682 hours of service by our Volunteers. Mrs. James Morgan and her committee served tea and cookies following the meeting.

The Hastings Manor Auxiliary met for their regular meeting Feb. 18 in the library of the Manor.

President Marguerite Wessels welcomed every member to the meeting.

The heads of the different committees gave their reports. It was reported that there would be a bingo on March 21.

Ken Yorke, who is leaving the Manor, was presented with a gift by Marguerite Wessels.

Last month, you could buy a shopping basket of groceries at a local store for $10.58. This month those same items would cost $11.51, an increase of more than eight per cent.

The sample basket, which includes soup, soap, potatoes, crackers, furniture polish, chicken, ground chuck, milk, round steak and eggs, is shopped monthly by the Purchasing Management Association of Canada, Eastern Ontario District.

The same basket of food would cost $11.03 if purchased in Trenton. Last month it cost $10.87.

If there's any segment of society which consumes more unnecessary gadgets and goodies than any other, including some that are downright dangerous, it's the pre-three group.

For every kid, a family may go through as many as 15 different containers for the poor little tykes from bassinet to crib to playpen to baby tender to high chair, bounce chair, two-seat baby bumper, walker, buggy, stroller, swing chair, kiddie rockers and tables and chairs to "pottie" chairs and innumerable scooters, rapid racers, trikes, tractors and imitation ATV, running to hundreds of wasted dollars.

Yet probably only a crib, playpen, baby tender, high-chair, car seat and stroller are really necessary.

What makes us buy all the other stuff, not to mention toys by the basket, is probably just social pressure. Or some peculiar notion that giving things is giving love. And ironically, the more gadgets you have, the easier it is to let the equipment look after the baby. With enough gadgets you could go for days without ever holding a baby at all but for diaper changes and moving it from one container to another.

One of the ugliest new gadgets on the market has to be a plastic babysitter with rigid plastic arms holding a plastic bottle. Just plunk the baby in, fill the bottle and you're freed. For just $9.99 your baby can be fed by a machine. I wonder when someone will design a baby tender that burps, too.

If you want to get in on the big cross country skiing boom, it might be wise to read up on the subject before you invest the necessary $70 to $137 in equipment. Two books suggested by Canadian Consumer, the publication of the Consumers' Association of Canada, are Nordic Touring and Cross-Country Skiing, Michael Brandy, Dreyens Spring, and the Cross-Country Ski Book, John Caldwell, Stephen Greene Press.

You may want to contact the Canadian Ski Association at 333 River Road, Vanier, Ontario. 613/239 for information about local organizations and equipment outlets.

The CAC by the way, recommends the following safety equipment be carried by cross-country skiers: adjustable ski tip, map compass, repair kit to supply, pliers and wire, short, strong screwdriver, survival blanket, first aid kit, whistle, patches.

Contaminated Foods Turned Back at Border

OTTAWA (CP) — Canned mushrooms from Taiwan and Korea, cheeses from Italy and frog legs from Asian countries have been identified by the federal health department as the imported foods most likely to be contaminated.

Inspectors turned away hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of these at the border during October and November, the health department disclosed Monday in its Rx Bulletin.

Shipments of canned mushrooms were refused entry because maggots were found in the cans.

About 12 tons of Italian cheese were turned back because of high levels of pesticides.

Several tons of frog legs from India and other Asian countries were turned away because of salmonella bacteria which causes food poisoning.

Refusal to allow large quantities of foods into Canada has been routine for several years but the public hasn't been aware of the extent because the health department until last December kept secret its monthly smuggling activities.

Health Minister Marc Lalonde agreed to supply the information after journalists and members of the public asked for it.

Contamination in mushrooms and cheeses was more prevalent a few years ago. Dr. A. B. Morrison of the health protection branch said Monday in an interview.

Asked whether some of the products are getting by health inspectors, he said it is possible although screening is thorough.

Improvements in sanitation have occurred because exporters have learned Canadians will not accept contaminated products, he said. Importers are using better judgment in choosing foods.

Keh Reeder, chief of the department's field operations directorate, said health officials have met those of other countries to discuss health standards and methods for improved sanitation.

The Rx Bulletin lists 10 occasions during October and November when frog legs were refused entry. Most originated in India and all had been refused entry to the United States, said Mr. Reeder.

"Often when cargo is refused entry in one country, the exporters will try to get it into another country," he said. "But the U.S. Food and Drug Administration tips us off."

However, the spokesman said contaminated foods might be made available at reduced prices to countries with product shortages.

Many and Toussaint brand whole mushrooms and pieces and stems, and Monica brand canned mushrooms, all from Korea, were denied entry, as well as Gold Coq frog legs, Gold Cup pieces and stems, Woodwards canned, button mushrooms, Co-op whole mushrooms, Mosay's pieces and stems and Green Giant canned sliced mushrooms—all from Taiwan.

Italian cheeses denied entry were Pecorino Romano cheese, Pecorino latte cheese, Pecorino cheese, Grana Padano cheese and Mandarini provolone cheese.

Companies involved with the frog legs were not identified.

Ann Landers

Diaries Can Be Dangerous

Dear Ann Landers: I did a terrible thing. I succumbed to temptation and read my daughter's diary this morning and now I am heartsick.

Before I read that terrible thing, I had a wonderful relationship with my child, I trusted her and believed everything she said. We had long talks. I was sure she was the kind of 16-year-old girl every mother hopes her daughter will be. Now I know she's been lying to me and it's more than I can bear.

Please, Ann, tell children not to write anything in their diaries that they don't want their parents to see. I can't describe the emptiness and anguish I feel because of what I now know.

I hope my child reads this letter and will be among the first to destroy her diary. I hate the sight of it.—Know Too Much

Dear Mother: You are right. You did a terrible thing in invading your child's privacy. But don't believe everything you read. Some girls have vivid imaginations and transcribe their fantasies in their diaries. The diary becomes a third party and they weave some incredible yarns.

While the blame for your heartbreak lies mainly in your snooping, I agree with you that nothing should be put in writing that should not bear examination by any member of the family. I hope every girl who has a diary will ask herself, "How would my mother feel if she read it tomorrow?"

Dear Ann Landers: Last week I had a "dirty birthday" (when a woman) goes from a number with a nine at the end into another decade).

My husband bought me an expensive gift that was positively hideous. My initial reaction was to feign pleasure, but the next day I decided I would be crazy not to exchange the gift for something I liked.

When I asked Leroy if he'd mind, he said, "If you feel terrible about it, go ahead." I was furious when I learned his secretary (who doesn't like me) had picked out the gift. I'm sure she chose something ugly on purpose. Furthermore, I was lures — and take a trip.

Should I tell him how I feel or keep quiet?—Hurt

Dear Hurt: I agree, a gift selected by a third party becomes less meaningful. But your feelings about Leroy's secretary probably intensified your anger and magnified your hurt.

Tell him. If your marriage is any good it should be able to tolerate such openness. In fact, this might be a splendid opportunity to open the windows and let a little fresh air in.

Dear Ann Landers: You goofed on your advice to the woman who didn't want a fourth child. Her husband refused to have a vasectomy and she couldn't go on the Pill for medical reasons. You told her to have her tubes tied after she delivered the third child. In some states the husband must give his consent.

After my fifth baby I wanted my tubes tied but my husband wouldn't sign. So my doctor inserted an intra-uterine device and told me to keep my mouth shut. It was the best thing that ever happened to me.—No Longer Barefoot And Pregnant

Dear No L.B.: True, a tubal ligation needs a husband's signature in some states. Since the IUD doesn't work for everyone, the wife might check with a lawyer and learn what states don't require two signatures — and take a trip.

Successful Living

Anyone Can Write

By DORIS CLARK

Says Marjorie Major: "So you want to write? Well, why not? Anyone who really wants to become a writer can do it." Marjorie doesn't mean that just anybody can produce best sellers, and suggests two of the main reasons why more people don't try what they can do on paper.

One of these is procrastination, and the culprit rationalizes by expressing doubts about his ability or ideas.

(When we were at college and struggling to get started with a thesis, our professor said: "Don't get the idea that you are writing a masterpiece. The main thing is to apply the seat of the pants to the seat of the chair and write a report about this research you have been doing.")

The second reason is that those who do begin writing find that it is appallingly hard work. Why is it so hard for us to put a perfectly good idea into words? Because it is. We search for the just right phrases, often in vain. Was it Tennyson who, they said, smoked 10 pipes over a single line?

Marjorie goes on to say: "Some of the most famous and successful writers have confessed that one of their great difficulties is to get themselves firmly in that chair before that typewriter." (Shades of my professor!) Writing needs doing first such as: sharpening pencils, making a phone call, letting the cat in or out, getting a drink of water.

Then there is writing, rewriting, admitting, rejection slips, and sometimes there is even money to be made in royalties.

We need writers, Marjorie says. Because we need to record current history, the kind of material that originates in the remote areas of the country, among the people about whom the rest of us know so little.

The country is changing rapidly. The people who need a hobby might well look around their neighborhood for some ideas for humans interest projects. Nursing homes are getting on record.

Remember my story about Bess Forbes, the newspaper woman, who suffered a badly broken foot in a car accident? Even she found it hard to keep an interest in life when she lay in a hospital bed believing she would never walk again.

But walk again she did. And because that, because of the insight and concern of a young hospital typewriter place beside her bed started to intrigue her. Then she saw stories around her a-plenty; stories of courage in the face of pain, in the face of almost hopeless odds for life; in the lives of the nurses who gave loving service, covering their wards on tired feet.

Look around you. Put what hits you in the eye on paper. That's how to get started!

(There are Canadian courses to help solve your problem. Write to Doris for direction, in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.)

Indian Orphans Receive Care From Wealthy

BOMBAY (CP) — A small town is attracting the attention of rich Indian industrialists and businessmen.

But Malur in Karnataka state in south India offers no scope for making money. In fact, it is a sleepy place where, as one local resident put it, "all of us manage to sleep for at least 10 hours a day."

The goings-on in Malur are being talked about in big business houses in far-away Bombay, Calcutta and Kanpur because of what one tycoon here describes as "their reluctance to the humanitarian aspect of private enterprise."

A wealthy businessman there has invested all his money in the welfare of orphaned children for whom he has built a fine home.

For V. V. S. Shetty the care of orphans has become the foremost business. That he is doing in Malur has won high praise in Indian business and management circles.

"Malur has become an inspiring example in the social responsibility of big business," a speaker said at a management seminar in Calcutta the other day.

The Aasha Sewasrama or Home for the Service of Orphans built by Shetty now looks after 90 children, including 50 girls, in the age group 6 to 15.

The home runs a kindergarten, a primary school and a high school. A college is being planned—the first of its kind in India exclusively for orphans.

Everything is free for the kids at Malur. The food is excellent; their clothes are tailored by traditional craftsmen and the dormitories are described by Ramnath Jain, a Bombay businessman, as "a model for school hostels in developing countries."

Says Jain: "The Shettys have shown how wealthy men can put their surplus money to good use in the cause of suffering humanity."

The Shettys began to take interest in the welfare of children when their own children—six in all—died one after another.

"If I have my way, I will not allow a single child to suffer," Shetty said.

Christian University Planned For New Brunswick Centre

ST. STEPHEN-MILLTOWN, N.B. (CP) — If Donald Rutherford Kanlet's dream comes true, a Christian university with a $50-million campus will be built at a wooded site on the banks of the St. Croix River about six miles from this New Brunswick border community.

The 29-year-old Toronto native appears undeterred by financial difficulties or lack of support from the New Brunswick government.

His plans call for a bilingual institution which would teach academic subjects in the context of ecumenical Christianity.

"It's going to be decidedly Christian rather than denominational," he said. "But to be a Christian one doesn't have to crucify one's intellect. God's Truth — with a capital T — can withstand any intellectual assaults. So we're not going to be narrow."

He said he and a friend, R. A. Windhorst, have been planning the institution, to be known as St. Stephen's University, for about six years.

They were taken with the possibilities of the Oak Point site on the St. Croix River as soon as they saw it and now have options on 400 acres of land.

Mr. Kanlet, the president of the university, said he was not satisfied after obtaining a bachelor of arts degree in political science from York University and a bachelor of theology from University of Toronto.

An Anglican, he had planned to enter the ministry. But it became clear to him and Mr. Windhorst, who had also studied theology, that "this was not the particular course that seemed to be right for us."

They were both on the staff of community colleges in Ontario when "we simultaneously came to the awareness that there was a decided need in Canada for a Christian centre of higher education."

Mr. Kanlet said the university was not prepared to accept public funds.

"We are in constant contact with people of very substantial means," he said. But he emphasized that a great deal of support to date had come from small donors.

As the project moves into the development stage, they plan to establish a national committee.

The young university president is reluctant to disclose definite amounts at this poin. "Our budget so far has been very modest, not in excess of $30,000 a year. But we're in the process of moving into a much broader appeal for financial assistance which will enable us to move forward with the campus purchase.

Mr. Kanlet refers to a "disagreement" he had with New Brunswick Premier Richard Hatfield over a charter for the proposed university. The province does not plan to issue the charter.

"Mr. Hatfield seemed to think it was necessary for us to get a provincial charter in order to proceed. But I pointed out to him that this isn't the case.

"We can simply get started and then it's a matter of becoming accredited. I don't see any problem in that. In Canada, it's a rather informal procedure. Faculty of established universities come and look at your library and your facilities. They assess the quality of your faculty and your students. I don't anticipate any difficulty in that because we'll have superior standards."

Premier Hatfield said there had been no request for provincial funds and none would be forthcoming.

"I respect these people in their determination," the premier said. "But I also know that it takes a lot of money."

The premier was simply not willing to finance another university in New Brunswick.

"We're much more concerned with taking keen young people with motivation and exposing them to a very challenging higher education and helping them as Christians to understand how their Christian faith relates to knowledge."

He said he does not see the proposed university as a rival to anyone else. "Although I imagine the existing universities would sort of wish we'd go somewhere else."

Robert Bell, the mayor of St. Stephen-Milltown, was cautious in his appraisal of the project.

"It would be a great asset to the area, that's for sure, to have a multi-million-dollar university here," he said. "It would be bound to have some effect on the town.

"There's a little skepticism about the whole thing because we don't really know that much about it. People are looking forward to it if it becomes a reality. All we can do is wait and see."

Plans Campus

Donald Rutherford Kanlet is president of a university which so far has no students, no faculty and no campus. He is planning a $50 million campus in the Stephen-Milltown, N.B., for a Christian university, and apparently is undeterred by financial difficulties or a lack of support from the New Brunswick government. Peril of Prosperity Is Familiar Story

By DR. GORDON C. SMYTH

Moses, according to general tradition, was brought up in the luxury of Egypt, living as a prince, learning the philosophy of the Egyptians, watching a marvellous river as it fed the land with its fertilizing stream.

He was a young man and might well have been overwhelmed by the flood of abundance, as the Nile itself was covered by the flood of the Nile.

The spectacle, however, produced in him spiritual revulsion. The more prodigal was the wealth about him, the more he dreaded its influence upon himself and upon his people. He saw the spirit of materialism eating the fibre out of a nation's heart.

Moses dedicated himself to the leadership of his people out of that land of splendid bondage. Beyond the comforts of the present he saw the hardship of the desert. But beyond the desert he saw the vision of a free nation and the worship of the true God.

There is much in his story which has a modern note. No doubt, perhaps, since the days of Egypt, has there been a time or a country so seriously threatened by its own prosperity as this country. Never did as many Canadians have it so good. And here is the peril before western society in general.

Our civilization is by no means the first which has found its materialism the seed of its decline. Egypt became the spoils of Greece, and Greece in turn of Rome, and Rome, again, of the unspoiled Goths. When the cries of poor citizens vexed their rulers, Romans were given entertainment at the state's expense instead of jobs to cultivate initiative.

If we are to be rescued from the fate which overtook the splendors of Egypt, Greece and Rome, it must be by encouragement of faith, through our schools and colleges. Then young idealists will emerge having endured the suffering which is part of the intellectual adventure, learning obedience towards God who is invisible, and seeing that reverence for the Lord is the beginning of wisdom.

Scarcity Or Not ?

Situation Cloudy For Fertilizers

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

The threatened fertilizer shortage — is it fact or fiction, real or imaginary?

The answer, it seems, depends on many factors — the energy crisis, the price of beef, the specific blend of fertilizer required, whether there will be an early or late spring.

Suppliers admit there may be a limited supply of certain fertilizer blends. But any shortage will not be as serious as earlier predictions, they say.

Their advice to farmers: Place orders as soon as possible and be prepared to take delivery at any point.

However, Hastings County agricultural representative, Douglas Tipper of Stirling, is inclined to be a little more on the cautious side.

He, like area suppliers, said the biggest problem was one of basic supplies which in turn was related to the energy shortage.

"It will likely mean a wiser use of fertilizer with farmers possibly having to be satisfied with a blend of 18 per cent. nitrogen, 46 per cent phosphate and no potash," he said.

Mr. Tipper said the potash could be applied later if, and as, required.

But if there is a shortage of fertilizer this coming spring, the energy crisis and wheat prices are contributing factors.

One Belleville-area fertilizer manufacturer said that Western wheat farmers last fall held wheat off the market looking for higher prices. When the higher prices materialized, all available railway hopper cars were pressed into use getting the wheat to market.

The result was that railway hopper cars were generally unavailable for shipment of Saskatchewan potash at a time when stockpiling of supplies is normally done by eastern fertilizer plants.

Transport Trouble Too

The short supply of certain basic fertilizer materials is said related to the energy crisis. For instance nitrogen and phosphates are by-products of oil and natural gas.

Most nitrogen comes from the United States where fuel shortages have not only cut back production, there also are transportation problems moving supplies north to Canada.

These earlier shortages of materials meant a number of fertilizer blends had to shut down until supplies were again available.

This, in turn meant less fertilizer production.

But if the coming spring planting season happens to be late or spread out over a longer period the weather would aid the fertilizer supply. Plants would have opportunity to catch up.

The price of beef might seem to be a distant relation to fertilizer but suppliers assure there is a valid connection.

If beef prices remain high and feed grain costs continue to soar, farmers might grow more of their own feed supplies. This in turn would increase fertilizer demand.

One supplier estimated that supplies this spring would be about the same as last year's production. But shortages could develop as result of farmers planting more crop than requiring more fertilizer.

Mr. Tipper agreed there could be increased demand for fertilizer if farmers grow more of their own feed supplies. Feed costs are now at an all time high, he said.

It's Supply and Demand

All in all, it seems to add up to the old law of supply and demand. With possible supply shortages, farmers will undoubtedly have to pay more for fertilizer.

Mr. Tipper said that seed grain was in short supply. Earlier indications were that both seed grain and fertilizer would be up in price this year as much as 20 per cent.

In view of the possible shortage and increased prices for fertilizer, agriculture officials are urging more efficient use of barnyard manure. MORE

Dr. C. S. Baldwin, head of the soils section at Ridgetown College of Agriculture Technology says that manure should be considered one of the most important by-products of agriculture production.

He says the time honored equation of one ton of manure being equivalent to 100 pounds of 10-5-10 commercial fertilizer appears to be too low and that farmers with access to a source of barnyard manure could save money by using this as fertilizer.

Chemical analysis of manure is the first step to calculating the amount and grade of commercial fertilizer to use as a supplement.

District Health Needs Now Are Under Study

An out-of-province expert in preventive medicine is conducting a survey of health care needs in the Belleville-Trenton area for the Ontario health ministry.

The area is represented in the legislature by Health Minister Richard Potter.

His ministry has commissioned the study from Dr. Peter C. Gordon, head of preventive medicine at Dalhousie University, Halifax.

Dr. R. G. Anderson, Belleville General Hospital's medical director, said a comparable project has been undertaken in Owen Sound by University of Toronto personnel. He said preliminary discussions have already been held with Dr. Gordon on his study.

The ministry says the project will include a review of current facilities and services in the area. These range from acute hospital care to home care. The study will evaluate community facilities and present care levels in relation to population needs.

Dr. Gordon will also interview health care agencies and local officials and gather statistics and historical data for background information to the study.

His report to Dr. Potter is expected in three months, says the ministry.

Remember . . .

This is a reminder. Bonnie Olsen is on temporary staff helping issue 1974 car licences. From today, Canada's only four days left for renewals. Deadline is Thursday, it hasn't been extended.

Stickers a Sticker In Licence Renewals

It pays to advertise - - even when purchase of the product is made mandatory by the law.

At least, that's one reason indicated by George Olsen for the slower-than-usual volume of business in automobile licence renewals this year.

Mr. Olsen, motor vehicle licence issuer for Belleville, estimated the traffic through his Front St. office late this week was running about one third behind 1973.

Deadline for new licences is Feb. 28 - next Thursday. No extension has been announced.

Mr. Olsen says one reason for laggard licence holders is the new system by which licence plates stay the same for four years. Now, only stickers in a corner of the plate signifies renewal.

However, with no new plates on the road a visual impact is lost.

No Decision Made Yet On Parking at BGH

Belleville General Hospital board of governors are still pondering the dimensions for a parking project.

The project was debated again Friday when yet another concept was presented for consideration, but evoked no board decision.

Last year the board called for plans for a multi-level parking project on the hospital's east side. But a proposed $750,000 structure housing 440 cars was rejected

Cars Collide

MADOC — Three teenage Marmora girls were taken to Belleville General Hospital Friday, following a two-car collision four miles west of Madoc.

Damage to car was estimated at more than $1,200. Heather and Kimberley King of 37 Forsythe St., and Connie Stalker of 27 Forsythe St. were treated and released, after being mainly shaken up in the incident, officials said.

A second car, driven by Ken Weir, Madoc, had $1,000 estimated damages.

"People now don't keep on seeking new plates as they drive around. The plates were a constant incentive to get your licence renewed," says Mr. Olsen.

Whatever the reason the renewal business - - which began Dec. 1 - - has slowed down at the Belleville bureau and for the Isle of Quinte licence issuer for Belleville, estimated the traffic through his Front St. office late this week was running about one third behind 1973.

Deadline for new licences is Feb. 28 - next Thursday. No extension has been announced.

Crime Increase Slight

By PETER GOODSPEED...
Staff Reporter

Traffic charges by Belleville police rose nearly 10 per cent. last year, while reported criminal offences increased by only 1.84 per cent.

Police chief Douglas Crosbie gives the figures in his annual report presented Friday to the city's police commission.

Last year city police laid a total of 2,621 traffic charges. They investigated 1,964 criminal offences. In 1972 there were 1,236 traffic charges laid and 2,916 criminal offences reported.

The number of calls for police assistance increased drastically in 1973. Police were dialled 16,486 times to investigate occurrences. In 1972 there were 13,239 calls.

Chief Crosbie attributed the increase in traffic charges to a rising number of complaints by citizens about driving habits in the city and an increase in police surveillance.

Most common offence was speeding. Charges totalled 1,083.

Police hope to reduce speeding in 1974 by adding another radar unit the chief said.

Other thefts - - under $200.00 were the commonest offences. Some 1,060 such thefts were reported.

Theft over $200 dropped drastically - by 89 cases from 345 in 1972.

Value of goods stolen in 1973 was estimated to be approximately $1,000,000.

Break-and-enter crimes continued to increase. A total of 631 breakings were recorded - up 44 from last year.

Residences and homes were increasing targets. Some 361 break-ins were counted for 34 break-ins, and stores 81.

July and August were high months for burglary. In July 42 break-ins were recorded, and 54 in August.

Total burglary property loss was estimated at $93,280. Police recovered $8,574.

Vandalism was another major problem. There were 488 offences reported with damage estimated at $9,464.

Assault increased slightly. Some 203 assault charges were investigated and 54 charges laid.

There were two charges of attempted murder, nine robberies, 20 sexual assaults and 18 reported sexual offences.

Some 181 fraud cases were reported, 31 in connection with counterfeit currency. In 1972 only six cases of counterfeiting were reported to police.

Impaired driving increased by nearly 50 per cent. 306 people being charged.

Chief Crosbie said that he hoped the slight increase would indicate a levelling off in the number of drinking drivers. In past years, impaired driving showed a marked increase in police statistics.

More Efficient, Says Minister

Businessmen, Consumers Should Try to Solve Problems

By JIM SMELLE
Staff Reporter

Businessmen and consumers should get together to settle their problems and complaints rather than continue running for help to government.

This was the message Ontario Minister of Consumer and Commercial Relations John Clement gave the annual meeting of Belleville-Quinte Area of Commerce, Friday night at the Bon Vista Motor Inn.

"We should develop methods and procedures for bringing coincidental businessmen and consumers together to solve disputes and misunderstandings," he said.

By doing so, both the consumer and businessman can save much in money, time and efficiency, he said.

"One of the best ways to keep down the costs of resolving warranty disputes is to establish a system that gets buyers and sellers together on an equal basis to settle problems and complaints," said the minister.

"This is obviously more efficient than involving the consumer turn to the government, which is forced to go back to the manufacturer or retailer.

"To a certain extent, it will probably always be necessary to have some impartial third party mediate such disputes. That third party doesn't necessarily have to be government though," said Mr. Clement.

As an example dry cleaners and launderers have met successfully up complaint mediation panels made up of representatives of consumer organizations and people from within the industry.

A problem of voluntary groups is that decisions or participation are not mandatory or binding.

"Legislation I'm in favor of increased steps toward business self-regulation. It's a method I will have to be resolved before complaint proceedings can be turned over completely to these groups," said the minister.

After looking at both sides of the voluntary and mandatory aspects of membership in these self-regulating associations, he said: "I'm sure that there are some cases where competitors dislike each other so much they would rather submit to government regulations than be in the same association together. It's an area we have to work on."

Talking about dishonest businessmen who rely on misunderstandings of terms in a law, who benefit most from the climate of trust honest businessmen have built and who move around quickly, Mr. Clement said: "It doesn't really make much sense to license all categories of business to protect the consumer.

"For this reason, our ministry is presently drawing up fair business practice legislation that will apply to over-all business practices rather than extend our present licensing system.

"We think that this system will provide a more flexible answer to the shifting problems of the modern marketplace and also make more efficient use of the resources that we have available," Mr. Clement said.

Chain of Highway 2 Mishaps Sends Two to Hospital

Two persons were treated for cuts and bruises and released from Trenton Memorial Hospital in late night following a series of accidents, involving four cars, on Highway 2, just west of Trenton's Main St. hill.

Police said that an initial two-car crash around 9 p.m. was followed by a three-car collision that sent a pedestrian to hospital.

The initial accident involved eastbound cars driven by Steven Rix, CFB Trenton, and Peter Neilson, 60 Bridge Street, Sharbot Lake.

The Rix car spun out of control following the crash and both vehicles were smash fence on the south side of the Highway.

Wayne Colberry, Trenton, stopped on the highway to offer assistance to the other drivers. As he walked to his car toward the Neilson vehicle, a half-ton truck driven by Edward W. Gammon, of Mobile Village, collided with the rear of the Neilson car, pushing it into Mr. Colberry, said police.

The truck then spun out into the west bound lane.

Mr. Colberry and Mr. Gammon were treated for minor cuts.

Total damage was estimated at $3,800.

Exemption Granted

Lamplighter Realty Ltd., local developers planning construction of a multi-storey residential complex on the city's waterfront, will be exempted from provisions of council's new sprinkler bylaw.

This was the decision of council Monday when company representatives said plans for the development had already been completed before the bylaw was discussed.

Solicitor for the company, George Murray said it would be impossible to include a sprinkler system in the building without complete redrawing of plans.

He said the sprinkler equipment alone would cost at least $60,000 which with new plans and increase in building height of eight feet to accommodate pipes, the total additional cost would be about $211,000.

This increased cost would make the project unmarketable, it was stated.

Mr. Murray said the project were presented to council and were referred to the Quinte Planning Board and the special planning advisory committee.

Vandalism

Vandals struck at Bayview Public school last night and broke three windows valued at approximately $30.

The broken windows, all on the west side of the building were discovered by a school night janitor around 2:30 a.m.

Some Pleasant Words

Group Seeks Revival Of Humane Society

The Quinte branch of the Ontario Humane Society is being revitalized, after lying dormant for a year.

Jim Burns, vice-principal of Sidney Public School, Stirling, is a board of directors member responsible for the work of the society in this district.

Volunteers are needed to serve on the board of directors, to sell $5 tickets for the Ontario-wide $15,000 lottery and to sponsor Kitty Villa, one of three outdoor cat shelters in the province.

The Belleville animal shelter, one of the largest in the province, is located at the junction of Avondale Rd. and the 2nd concession of Sidney Twp. It employs three attendens, a kennel keeper and an office staff of two.

A domestic animal zoo once in operation at the shelter is not being considered, but organizers hope to revive it on a sound financial footing.

Organizers envision a park and picnic area at the site, operated in conjunction with a children's zoo. The latter, zoo was heavily used by classes of school children who visited it as part of their "pet unit", a thematic approach to learning for younger elementary school children.

"Visiting cages upsets children," says Mr. Burns, who hopes eventually to form a junior humane society.

"The local shelter is now giving destroyer shots to dogs in its custody. This has ellminated a lot of complaint against the society — that dogs from its shelter sickened and died of distemper soon after adoption. The dogs cannot be adopted until they have been in the shelter for 5 days and legally belong to the society. If an adopted dog dies soon after leaving the shelter, it will be replaced by another at no extra charge.

Money charged for pets ranges from the shelter covers the cost of picking them up and boarding them. The charge, executives say, is a deterrent, not a money maker.

The society is now asking $2 for a short-haired cat, $3 for a long hair, $5 for a puppy, $10 for a bitch and $12 for a dog.

For $10 a year, a cat can be sponsored in Kitty Villa, the outdoor cattery. The cat will be maintained indefinitely until it is adopted.

Anyone wishing to volunteer to help the society in its reorganization is asked to telephone Mrs. Vivian Ebbet at the shelter, 967-1423. Annual membership is $5.

Teenage Open House Wednesdays

The school will be open every Wednesday evening from 7 to 9 for young people from the grade 7 level up.

Queen Victoria School's community recreation program will be featured Monday night, Feb. 25 on Cablevue Channel 4.

'Let's Celebrate!'

Belleville's Cubs and Scouts staged a public birthday party at city's Quinte Mall Friday night for anniversary of birth of Baden-Powell, founder of scouting. Cub Dean Marshall hands out birthday cake to Lynn Savage.

Bequest Gives BGH Bursaries

A bequest left by a long-time city pharmacist will enable Belleville General Hospital to award annual bursaries for health care education.

BGH board of governors Friday approved creation of the Gardiner Duff Foundation for funding the awards.

Mr. Duff, in business many years in Belleville and who died last year, left the hospital $5,000. Investment interest on the bequest would pay for two annual $1,000 bursaries.

Bursary candidates would be drawn from hospital staff wishing to take a post-basic education course in health care.

Vachon—No Reason to Panic

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Rogatien Vachon has started 29 consecutive National Hockey League games for Los Angeles Kings and the last five have been defeats, but the goalie insists "there's no reason to panic."

"Physically, I'm not tired at all," he said. "We've had some bad games but we need to put just one good game together and we'll be all right."

The Kings try tonight at Montreal against Vachon's old team in the opener of a four-game road trip. Vachon may be rested against the Canadiens or at Toronto where the Kings play the Maple Leafs Sunday.

In Friday's only NHL game, New York Rangers edged California Golden Seals 4-3.

Other games tonight see Vancouver Canucks at Toronto, Boston Bruins at Pittsburgh Penguins, St. Louis Blues at Detroit Red Wings, Philadelphia Flyers at Chicago Hawks and Atlanta Flames at Minnesota North Stars.

Sunday, St. Louis is at Montreal, Philadelphia at New York Rangers, New York Islanders at Detroit, Boston at Buffalo and Pittsburgh at Chicago.

Despite the losing string, Los Angeles has hung onto fifth place in the NHL West Division, slightly ahead of Minnesota and only three points behind fourth place Atlanta.

Vachon blames mental fatigue or "bad thinking for giving up a couple of bad goals" in recent games.

Meantime, he says his streak of 29 games isn't all a mistake.

The NHL record for a goalie in 501 straight games, set by Glenn Hall of Detroit and Chicago 1955-1962.

Vachon, 28, was a sensation in the nets for Montreal in his first full NHL season, 1967-68. He shared the Vezina Trophy with team-mate Ernie Wakely.

But Montreal wanted Ken Dryden in the net, and Vachon felt shunned. "I asked them to give me 25 games and I'd stay here, but they said no. I said, 'If you don't need me, trade me.'"

On Nov. 4, 1971, he was traded to the Kings for Dale Hoganson, Denis DeMarchy, Noel Price and Doug Robinson, and Los Angeles threatened to gain a playoff berth until Vachon was sidelined by a knee injury.

The Kings were their last game in Montreal a month ago by a 9-1 score and another win tonight would be a big boost for the Rangers who moved to within three points of the Canadiens Friday. Montreal is in second place in the East with 75 points.

A crowd of 7,744 saw the Seals rally from a 3-0 first-period deficit with a second period goals by Reg Leach and Pete LaFrancoise. But rookie Jerry Butler scored his second goal of the game early in the third period to clinch the win for New York.

Hull's Fortieth Marker Ends Jets' Losing Streak

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Toros came to town Friday night hoping to take advantage of the slumping Winnipeg Jets and move into sole possession of first place in the World Hockey Association East Division.

But playing-coach Bobby Hull's 40th goal of the season ended Winnipeg's four-game losing streak at 5:49 of overtime.

In the only other game, Minnesota Fighting Saints maintained their solid hold on second place in the West Division, with Jack Carlson's 6-4 win over Quebec Nordiques.

Winnipeg 5 Toronto 3

In an effort to shake up his slumping club, Hull sat four players in the stands and four more on the bench, not including alternate goaltender Joe Daley. Going with only nine forwards, one of them defenceman Duke Asmundson! Hull engineered the most wholesale shakedown since the team's inception.

He said later he wanted those forwards to "pay themselves into shape."

Fran Huck and Ted Hargreaves gave Jets a 2-0 lead before Wayne Dillon cut the margin to 2-1. McDonald put them ahead 3-1, but Guy Trottier and Dave King again gave Toros a comeback that continued to forced to the final whistle.

Toros netminder Gilles Gratton was outstanding. The best young goalie since Ernie Bower, as he was called by veteran Carl Brewer after the game, had some luck as Winnipeg forwards hit the goalposts, but shook off a minor foot-injury was forced to make some quick 3rd save on Jean Guy Gratton, later named first star of the game.

Minnesota 4 Quebec 4

Mike Walton, with his second goal of the night, and Mike Antonovich stifled a determined Quebec comeback after Alain Caron and Andre Gaudette lifted the Nordiques to a 4-4 tie in the final period.

Jimmy Johnson, Bob McMollan and Huffer Christiansen also scored for Minnesota.

Serge Bernier got two goals for the Nordiques, who now trail Toronto and Winnipeg by three points in the East Division.

In tonight's action, Edmonton Oilers visit Boston, Aeros—Vancouver travels to Cleveland and New England plays the Cougars in Chicago.

Saints Will Look Again at Tessier

QUEBEC (CP) — Fern Tessier, fresh from 11 years in prison, picked out some mistakes he committed in a professional hockey tryout Friday morning, but the coach of Minnesota Fighting Saints of the World Hockey Association said he had enough to rate an other shot.

"Tessier has enough talent that we'll take the trouble to have another look at him," said Harry Neale, the Fighting Saints coach.

"We're going to ask him to come and practice with us for our next visit here, March 16."

The 35-year-old prospective professional defenceman, released from a Laval, Que., institution Wednesday, was more nervous in performance than with me and wanted to give me a job.

"I hope it will work out," he said.

"It's long time," he said, "but with a bit of practice, that will come back pretty fast," he said.

Last August, Tessier, a native of the Bouyn-Noranda region, wrote to all teams in the WHA, National Hockey League, American Hockey League and North American Hockey League, asking for a tryout and explaining his background.

"The Fighting Saints are the only ones to whom we've straight

Snead Closes To Within One Shot of Kermit Zarley

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Sam Snead, a legend from another era, fired a four-under-par 66 in the second round of the $300,000 Jackie Gleason golf tournament Friday and closed to within a single shot of the leading Kermit Zarley.

Zarley, who has won twice in his 10 years on the tour, had a 4-under-par 70 and a 139 total, five under par.

Snead, 61, who won the last of his record 84 tour titles in 1965, was tied at 140 with defending champion Lee Trevino who had a second consecutive 70.

Grouped at 141 were Chi Chi Rodriguez who had a second-round 68, Tom Kite 69, Jim Dent 70, Leonard Thompson 69, Buddy Allin 70 and J.C. Snead, Sam's nephew, 69.

Ben Kern of Toronto shot his second 72 for a 142. Wilf Homenuk of Winnipeg and Jack Nicklaus just made the cutoff for the final two rounds by shooting 73s for 147 totals.

First-round leader Gene Littler slipped to a 75 and 142. Johnny Miller, a three-time winner this year, had a 74-147.

Tom Weiskopf, winner of seven titles that included the British and Canadian opens last year, missed the cut by a single stroke.

Snead, who played his first nine holes in five-under-par 31, enjoyed "the best putting round I've had in years."

He used only 27 strokes on the greens and would have sole control of the lead but for a double bogey on the first hole when he hooked active out of bounds.

CFL Has Task of Arranging Argos' Sale

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Football League is faced with the task of trying to arrange the purchase of Toronto Argonauts from John Bassett in eliminate an alleged conflict of interest.

Only tentative interest in an Argo takeover has been shown by a handful of prospective buyers, including Harold Ballard, president of Maple Leaf Gardens.

Meanwhile, the CFL is looking nervously over its shoulder at the new World Football League Toronto Northmen, headed by John F. Bassett Jr., son of the Argo owner, who plan to move into the Canadian National Exhibition Stadium in competition with the Argos.

The CFL wound up its annual meetings Friday after appointing a committee of commissioner Jake Gaudaur, league president James Hole of Edmonton and vice-president Ralph Sazio of Hamilton to examine possible purchase of the Argos.

Bassett challenged the league to buy him out when he was confronted with charges he was in a conflict-of-interest position because of his son's interest in the rival Northmen.

Gaudaur said Friday Bassett gave the league 15 days to reply to his offer "but the sale period would be extended to permit an amendment to the constitution to purchase the club."

Gaudaur said the league does not want to take over the Argos, but hopes to find a suitable private investor.

Gaudaur said he had received four inquiries already, including two long distance telephone calls, since Bassett's offer to sell for $3.5 million was announced.

"I don't know whether they were bona fide offers or not," said Hole. "But the thing that impressed me was that two of the calls were collect."

Ballard, who control Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League through his Canhoes holdings, expressed mild interest in buying the Argos, but said he would first want to examine the club's financial records.

Gaudaur said earlier in the week he did not want to see the WFL Northmen competing in CNE Stadium against the Argos, the most profitable club in the league.

But Bassett, who had veto rights at CNE Stadium, already had given his son permission to seek a contract to play at the CNE. The CNE board of directors Friday approved such a contract in principle but passed it on for final approval to the Metropolitan Toronto executive committee.

John F. Bassett Jr. said he expected no problem in getting the contract cleared through the executive committee

Metro chairman Paul Godfrey said Friday he welcomed the Northmen and disagreed with critics who thought Toronto could not support two pro football teams.

In other business on the final day of the CFL meetings:

—Gaudaur was authorized to set up a franchise draft plan to determine how prospective new teams at London and possibly Halifax would be stocked;

—The London bid for entry into the league was not considered but further presentations are expected within a month.

—The CFL approved a record $2 million cost-sharing plan for referees.

—CBC television contract of $1.4 million said graded $125,000 to football hall of fame in Hamilton and $50,000 to the Canadian Amateur Football Association.

—The deadline for teams to declare their rosters of 17 Canadians and 15 imports was set at midnight, July 20. The 1974 season opens July 24.

Beaudry Wants Shot At National Men's Winner

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP) — With the Canadian senior men's curling championship tucked away, George Beaudry would like to play the winner of the national men's playoff.

Beaudry and his Trail, B.C., rink won the title with a 9-1 record. They lost their final game 10-9 Friday when Quebec took a single point in the 11th end.

Saskatchewan's record of 8-2 gave Jim Hill's Deloise rink second place while Dr. Wes MacDonald and his Charlottetown team was third with a 7-3 mark. Saskatchewan beat Manitoba 11-4 and Prince Edward Island downed Northern Ontario 13 in the final round.

Many who attended the bonspiel said they felt the best seeded teams were of the same calibre as the top-flight teams expected in the men's championship.

Few seniors could stand the gruelling pace of the men's competition, but were capable of curling as well, they said.

Beaudry said he would like to play the national championship winner. "I don't know if we could beat them, but I'm sure we could give them a good game"

Beaudry, mate Burn McGibney, second Tom Clark and lead Harvey McKay were relied by some as one of the best ever in the 10-year-old competition.

Many fans were hoping B.C. would beat Quebec to become the only team to match the 1966 Saskatchewan rink's unbeaten record.

But fine play by Tom Hunter's Hudson, Que., foursome and a key last-rock shot by Hunter in the 11th end dashed such hopes.

In other final-round games, Alberta beat Nova Scotia 8-3 and Ontario beat New Brunswick 10-8.

Quebec finished fourth with a 6-4 record, followed by Manitoba and New Brunswick 5-5, Northern Ontario and Alberta 4-6, Nova Scotia 3-7, and Newfoundland and Ontario 2-8.

McAdoo Hoops 52, Braves Still Lose

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Buffalo's Bob McAdoo scored the most points Friday night, but Boston Gave Cowens got the most satisfaction.

"I was glad McAdoo got 52 points, as long as we won," the Celtic center said after Boston's 116-109 National Basketball Association victory over Buffalo. "When you're ahead, you can sit back and enjoy the show."

McAdoo's total was the highest this year in the NBA. While he was scoring, his team-mates were not. And 30 points from Cowens plus 31 from John Havlicek beat McAdoo's total.

Elsewhere in the NBA, Chicago beat Portland Trail Blazers 117-110, New York Knicks trounced Cleveland 127-110, Detroit Pistons edged Capital Caviliers 84-83, Milwaukee Bucks defeated Houston Rockets 122-113, Kansas City-Omaha Kings defeated Phoenix Suns 119-104, and Los Angeles Lakers squeezed by Philadelphia 76ers 104-101.

Bulls 117 Trail Blazers 100

Bob Love scored 29 points for Chicago while holding Portland's Sidney Wicks to 17.

Knicks 117 Cavaliers 110

Walt Frazier scored 25 to lead a quartet of Knicks with 20 points or more. Phil Jackson and Bill Bradley followed with 22, while Earl Monroe added 22. Cleveland was led by Austin Carr with 22.

Pistons 84 Capital 83

Kings 119 Suns 104

Jimmy Walker had 24 points for Kansas City. The lead was tied before Don Kojis hit a jumper with 2:12 remaining in the third period to put the Kings ahead 80-78.

Bucks 122, Rockets 113

Abdul-Jabbar scored 38 points for the Bucks who have never lost to the Rockets in Houston.

Lakers 104 76ers 101

Gail Goodrich scored six points in the final two minutes to push the Lakers within two games of first-place Golden State in the Pacific Division. Goodrich finished with 24 and Cazzie Russell was second 26 for the Lakers, while Fred Carter had 22 for Philadelphia.

Pro Football Has 1st Black Head Coach

PORTLAND, Ore. AP — One of two World Football League franchises in Portland will be moved to Portland by a 30-year-old Houston accountant who has hired pro football's first black head coach, Ralph Goldston.

John Rooney announced Friday in Houston he has made arrangements to purchase the New York draft list for an undisclosed six-figure amount.

New York's other franchise recently was shifted to Boston. Goldston, former defensive halfback with Hamilton Tiger-Cats and later assistant coach with Montreal Alouettes in the Canadian Football League, has been an assistant coach at the University of Colorado for the last two seasons.

Goldston, 43, began his pro football career in 1952 as the first black to play for Philadelphia Eagles of the National Football League.

Rooney said he will maintain majority control over the franchise but hopes to include some Portland investors.

WE SINCERELY BELIEVE THAT WE HAVE THE MOST EFFICIENT, FULLY AUTOMATIC WATER REFINER ON THE MARKET TODAY. WE THINK AQUAFINE IS A PREMIUM WATER SOFTENER AND MORE.

MOST PEOPLE KNOW THE GRAIN HARDNESS OF WATER IN BELLEVILLE. AUTHORITIES SAY ANYTHING OVER FIVE GRAINS HARD SHOULD BE SOFTENED. IN FACT UPON EXAMINATION YOU WILL FIND THAT THE HARDNESS LEVEL IN BELLEVILLE EXCEEDS FIVE GRAINS. PEOPLE WHO LIVE IN THE COUNTRY WITH WELLS NO LONGER HAVE TO PUT UP WITH BAD TASTES, ODORS OR BACTERIA. AQUAFINE IS YOUR ANSWER.

DISSOLVED CALCIUM AND MAGNESIUM COMPOUNDS CAUSE THE HARDNESS IN WATER. HARD WATER BRINGS SUCH INCONVENIENCES AS BATHTUB RING, TATTLE TALE GREY IN LAUNDRY, UNSIGHTLY SPOTS ON TILE, SHOWER CURTAINS, DISHES, FLOORS AND COUNTER SURFACES.

HOCKEY TIPS

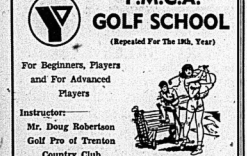
HUSTLE PAYS OFF

A little hustle never hurt anyone. As a matter of fact, you'll be surprised at the number of goals scored because a player never quits on a play.

There isn't one position which couldn't benefit through hustle.

Forwards, for instance, could prevent a lot of goals if they hurried back to help defencemen check the attackers in their zone.



A tip to forwards is to never let up if one of your teammates has a breakaway. Defencemen have a tendency to almost stop and watch players who beat them for breakaways. When you see one of your mates in the clear rush up the ice and follow the play because there's a rebound you might have a chance to score.

Defencemen, on the other hand, should never give up the pursuit because the player might lose control of the puck as he skates in on goal or his goalie might stop the play. He should be ready to help his goalie cover up or agree anyone else who follows the play away from the front of the goal.

Goalies are also hustling these days not only when they rush off the ice for an extra attacker either late in the game or during delayed penalties but even during sustained power plays by their teams.

When a penalty killer ices the puck, it's not uncommon to see a goalie rush to the corner and pass the puck up to his defenceman at the blueline.

These are all little things but you'll notice that the better teams in the league hustle all the time in these areas. Try it and see if it doesn't pay off.

Locals Two Up in Series

Four Star in Bobcats' Playoff Win

By MIKE BRADSHAW
Sport Staff

The Belleville Bobcats were late leaving the city for Peterborough last night, the game was 20 minutes in getting started and the Cats were a little late in standing to roll after their bus trip up to the Lift-Lock City. But once they did get rolling, it was all over for the Peterborough Lions.

Last night, the Cats downed the Lions 6-4 to take a 2-0 lead in their best of seven quarter-final series.

Belleville had four heroes in last night's contest.The line of John Sergeant, Mike Watt and Mark Coates once again led the scoring attack of the Cats and the Cats goalie, Bruce Clark, worked miracles in the early and late minutes of the game to maintain the Bobcats victory.

"That was really nice," said centre Sergeant, "we've been trying to put it together all season and it's finally happened."

The trio picked up 11 points including three goals. Sergeant had three assists, Coates a goal and two assists and Watt two goals and an assist. In the first game of the series the line picked up five of the Cats seven scoring points which included three of Belleville's four goals.

"Our passing was off in that first game," said Mark Coates, "but we're doing drills and working on it to remedy what was wrong. The team was having trouble at the end of the season getting up for games. Everybody was kind of dragging around. For some reason, tonight about half way through the game everything just came together and right now we're on fired up with spirit I don't think anybody could beat us." But tonight," added Coates, "a lot of the credit goes to Bruce (Clarke). He played one hell of a game for us in the net."

Clark stopped 33 Peterborough shots and out of that number only two were from or outside the blue line.

Steve Byers, the Lions high scoring winger, put two goals on Clark but Bruce robbed him from less than 10 feet from the goal on five other occasions.

In the final 1:01 of the game, Belleville had a man in the penalty box and Peterborough pulled their goalie to give themselves a two man advantage.

Clark was unbelievable in that minute and 43 seconds. Six times he stopped the Lions on point blank range, twice when he had lost his stick. Peterborough had the puck in the Cats end for the entire time but it was the goal work of Clark that kept the Lions from scoring.

All Bruce had to say was "that was the longest minute I've seen."

Belleville went ahead early

BRUCE CLARK

in the first period when Andy Ricketts banged home a rebound from right in front of the net.

Peterborough goalie Rob Duncan performed admirably in the contest but couldn't keep the high flying Cats from scoring.

The Lions tied the score early in the second, on a goal by Rick Doyle, but Belleville went ahead again half way through the period when Coates tallied.

The Cats went two goals up on the home team when Grant Gorgan fired a goal on a beautiful pass play combination with Coates and Sergeant.

Peterborough came back to within one goal with less than one minute remaining in the second period on a goal from Randy Bryan, but 30 seconds later Mike Watt and Mark Coates combined as Watt drove through the defence in front of the net to make it 4-2 Belleville at the end of the middle frame.

In the third period, Byers started the scoring for the Lions just 1:38 after the face off to pull Peterborough to within one goal again.

Watt tallied his second and Jim Richardson scored his first to make the score 5 - 3 by the 5:32 mark.

Byers scored half way through the period to round out the games scoring at 6 - 4 with 10 minutes remaining and the two teams battled scorelessly for the last half of the final period.

The game started out rather slow, but ended up a fast, hard hitting affair with players combining close to fisticuffs on several occasions.

Eight penalties were handed out, six to the Cats.

Belleville outshot the Lions 40 - 33.

Sunday, at 8: p.m., Belleville takes on the Lions at the Memorial Arena. There are still over 1500 seats available for Sundays game and as Cats General Manager 'Snipe Matthews' described it, "there's room for everybody."

Billets Needed

Organizers of the Belleville Shrine Peewee Tournament are getting an early start this year on the large job of obtaining billets for all the out of town hockey players which invade the city annually for the tournament.

According to tournament spokesman Jean Reid, about 220 billets are required for the weekend of March 29th, 30th and 31st.

Teams involved in the tournament this year come from as far as St. Thomas and Ottawa to compete.

A total of 16 teams are entered in the tourney, which gets under way with four games at each of the two city arenas on the Friday night of the weekend.

Anyone who could provide billets is asked to give Jean Reid a call at 968-7446.

First Place For Rovers in Broomball

The Belleville Broomball League played games both Thursday and last night in their league, with the Rovers moving into first place in the league by virtue of two wins, Thursday night in Trenton, they shutout Brooks Bond by a 5-0 score with John Paul firing two goals. Others went to Kevin Kirby, Joe Romano, and Chris Johnston.

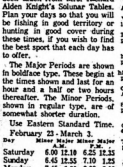
Friday night at the Dick Ellis Rink, it was a different story, with the Rovers edging Northern Electric 1-0.

John Paul scored the only goals of the game in the hard fought contest, on a goal pass from Bobby Watson.

The two wins give the Rovers 24 points in the four team league, two more than second place Northern.

Northern defeated Union Carbide 1-0 in the other game Thursday night, while Union Carbide turned the tables on Brooke Bond 7-0 Friday. The win was the second of the season for the Carbide team.

B of Q Continues



The Bay of Quinte Men's Borspiel closed out it's first round last night, completing the opening draw at CFB Trenton, and Trenton Country Club.

At Trenton Country Club it was Barnes-Petawawa over Holgson-CFB, Rittenger-CFB over Atchison-Cornwall, Akkenhead-Ottawa Uplands over Wartman- Kingston, and Isabeck-CFB over Wair-Picton.

At CFB it was Lagrois-Ottawa Uplands over Shaw-Petawawa, Preston-Quinte over Dufton-Brockville, McKeown-Toronto Royal over Wingate-CFB and Davidson-Kingston view Toronto over Simon-Tweed.

There is one correction in the results of Thursday's action. Sullivan-CFB defeated Chambers-CFB.

The Borspiel resumed on three fronts, CFB, Trenton and Quinte Curling Clubs this morning at 10 a.m.

THE UNEXPLAINED

by Allen Spraggett

Are you a human seismograph that can pick up the foreshocks of a disaster before it strikes?

If so, science wants you.

It all started back in 1966 when, early on the morning of Friday, October 21, an elderly man in northwest England had a peculiar dream.

He saw, spelled out in dazzling letters, the word ABERFAN.

The word meant nothing to him -- until he heard a radio news report later that day.

A gigantic slag heap had thundered down a mountainside into a Welsh mining village, engulfing a school house and burying 128 children and 16 adults.

The name of the village: Aberfan.

Then it came to light that all across Britain, for two weeks before the disaster, human seismographs had been quivering from the foreshocks of the disaster. Careful checking of many of the claimed premonitions was done by London psychiatrist J.C. Barker and he found sixty that were exceedingly well documented.

In Aberfan, the morning of the tragedy, a 9-year-old girl named Eryl Mai Jones told her mother, "Mammy, I dreamed last night that I went to school and there was no school there. Something black had come down all over it."

At 9:30 that morning Eryl Mai was one of the children in Pantglas Junior School buried under a half-million tons of coal waste.

Dr. Barker, the investigating psychiatrist, noted that some of the premonitions were more or less literal forecasts of the disaster while others were in symbolic albeit, symbols easy enough to enterpret after the event.

One woman, for example, dreamed two days before the coal-slide a "hundreds of black horses thundering down a hillside dragging hearses."

In a dream the night before the tragedy another woman saw a procession of children dressed in the Welsh national costume ascending to Heaven.

Dr. Barker wondered: Can this strange ability that some people have to sense a coming calamity be put to practical use?

In January, 1967, he formed the British Premonitions Bureau. People were invited to send in their dreams or impressions which they felt were precognitive. Hopefully, these would not only add to scientific knowledge but form the basis of a disaster early warning system.

In its first year of operation the Premonitions Bureau received 500 predictions of natural disasters, plane crashes, political upheavals, deaths of notables, assassinations, etc.

By the end of that year six persons had emerged as particularly reliable seismographs. Unusually accurate predictions about the Robert Kennedy assassination, for example, came from these people.

In 1968 the Central Premonitions Registry was established in New York by New York Times staffer Robert D. Nelson and his wife. It has received a steady stream of dreams, hunches, visions, and just plain guesses -- more than 3,000 to date. Some have been strikingly accurate.

Late in the summer of 1970, a housewife in Bridgeport, Conn., wrote in the registry that "President Nasser of Egypt will suffer a sudden attack or chest region in the winter — by the end of the year."

On Sept. 28, two weeks later, Nasser dropped dead from a heart attack.

One pred ction received by the registry in December, 1968, has positively eerie in the light of current political events in Washington.

A young Englishman, Malcolm-Bessent, as part of a series of long-range predictions wrote: "Starting with 1972-73 it will be a crucial year for the U.S

"Water everywhere, resulting in social upheaval, anarchy and political confusion. The people will be looking for a new leader."

"Water everywhere?"

A symbol of Watergate?

Opening lead—♠Q

By Oswald and James Jacoby

The right way to play six diamonds is to lead a trump at trick two and finesse the 10 spot once East follows. This is a safety play designed to guard against the possibility that East holds all five trumps.

South was a good enough player to know all about safety plays but he was also a talker. As soon as dummy hit the table he remarked, "It looks if we haven't bid enough." Then he won the spade lead and led the five of trumps to the ace.

The rest of the hand was played with all the speed and solemnity of a pontifical high mass. Fortunately for South's well-being he managed to make his small slam after all because East had to follow to enough spades, hearts and clubs to allow South to score all his seven trumps plus five of dummy's six aces and kings.

Several lines of play would have worked. The one adopted by South was to lead a heart to dummy's ace at trick three; to discard a club on the king of spades at trick four; ruff the last spade next; enter dummy with the second high heart at trick six; ruff a heart at trick seven while East discarded a club; enter dummy with a high club at trick eight and ruff dummy's last heart at trick nine.

This series of plays left East with four trumps. It would have been pointless to ruff some time along the way.

South had nine tricks in. He led his last club. East ruffed and had to lead to South's K-Q 10 of trumps.

The Chird Sense

The bidding has been:

West	North	East	South
	1♦	Pass	1♠
Pass	1♠	Pass	?

You, South, hold:

♠ AK74 ♥ A74 ♦ 632 ♣ 6K 10 3

What do you do now?

A-Bid four spades. This is a classic example of this bid.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Your partner opens one five diamonds, what do you do now?

Obviously pleased with their Academy Award nomination are left to right Celia Merkur, Pen Densham, Liz Grogan and Paul Blaxton, all of Insight Productions in Toronto. Their film, Life Times Nine, produced with aid of a Canada Council grant, has already won significant recognition and stands against two other nominations for an Oscar in the Short Film-Live action category. Hearing Can Be Overly Acute

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What is bad I hear about stop-smoking pills? Are they dangerous?—Mrs. M.J.Q.

Dear Doctor: I have severe hypercrania which became so bad I had to stop work—I am operating an automatic type-writer. Sudden noises seem to become worse when I'm close up to a loud sound and my ear ring. I also have a hearing loss.

My doctor prescribed tinnicaine acid which helps the ringing. Where can I turn for further treatment?—Ms. A.T.I.

Presbycusis is a gradual loss of hearing, and is the strict sense of the word, has to do about the same in both ears, and is related to the aging process.

One of the common causes is otosclerosis. That is, one of the tiny bones which carry sound vibrations between the eardrum and next one, and the bones cannot vibrate freely. Surgery for this is highly effective these days.

Impacted wax in the ear canal, or ringing of the Eustachian tubes, are other common causes and these, particularly the latter, will respond to treatment.

Hyperacusis is the opposite condition. The hearing is abnormally acute, and can cause pretty close to being painful if there are loud noises.

A defect in one of the tiny muscles of the inner ear usually is a factor, but there may be other ear problems present. I can offer only one bit of advice: have the condition evaluated by an otologist (ear specialist). Sensitivities sometimes is followed later by a loss of hearing.

I dare say it is possible for one's attitude to have some bearing on this. At least I have known of people who got used to a loss of hearing that had it restored by some such surgery as a stapedectomy, and complained of ringing in the ears, the roaring noise of a bed sheet.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My son is 65 and his doctor has diagnosed his disease as hardening of the arteries, but not of the rosclerosis. He does not seem to feel this is really his condition. He has a roaring sound in his head and ears and this causes him to be unable to sleep.

Do you agree with this diagnosis?—Mrs. J.E.

I see no reason not to agree with it, and do not see why your son disagrees with it. I dare say that his doctor has considered signs in addition to the roaring noise, however.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is it safe to eat soup, cold, right out of the can? Or does it have to be brought to a boil like it says on the can?—P.B.

hot, and a good many canned soups are easier to eat when mixed with water or milk. But there are, you'll notice, some soups quite commonly eaten cold, such as jellied consomme.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have a few dark, thick hairs growing around each of my nipples. Would plucking them cause cancer in the breast? Would plucking hair from a mole cause it to be cancerous?—C.W.

No to both questions—but I don't recommend doing it. You might better check with your doctor about the advisability of electrolysis or removal by electrolysis, or just cut the hairs off with scissors. Plucking won't prevent them from growing in again, and there is the risk of infection, which is why I don't recommend plucking.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have heard that a person with high blood pressure should not eat cheese when taking medication. Is this correct?—Mrs. E.A.N.

When stated flatly like that, no, it is not correct.

With some medications, eating certain types of cheese causes a sudden rise in blood pressure—which, of course, is precisely what you don't want to happen.

However, there are few such medications and, as you might easily suspect, physicians avoid using them for patients with high blood pressure there are, after all, plenty of others which do not involve that problem.

The cheese which have that characteristic are the "cured" ones, with a high concentration of amino acids and tyramine. Cheddar is the one in particular to avoid under these circumstances. Some other items need to be avoided with those particular medications, such as chicken liver, pickled herring, chocolate, beer and wines of the sherry and chianti type.

However this does not apply to the average American cheese or cottage cheese.

So there's the story — but I wouldn't brood about it because the medications that can be troublesome just aren't often prescribed. Or if, for some unusual reason, one of them is, then the doctor will give specific instructions as to what to avoid.

For practical purposes, the answer is no, there is no reason for a person to avoid all cheese just because of being on blood pressure medication.

Dear Dr. TheMeses: My husband has an infected ingrown hair in his stomach. Every time he pulls it out with tweezers another one takes its place. Would this be a sign of cancer? What can be done to make it stop?—E. R.

No, it's not a sign of cancer. Pulling out the hair does not destroy the root. I would say that electrolysis would be the obvious answer.

WE SALUTE THE BOY SCOUTS and GIRL GUIDES

SCOUTING'S 64th ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATION

SCOUTING SERVES CANADA

— through four programs designed to help prepare young Canadians to take part in the present and future of their country. Since its beginnings in the early years of this century, Scouting has served and influenced millions of Canadians. Today in every province, as well as the Yukon, the North-west Territories and the Arctic, over 300,000 Canadian boys and adults are actively involved in the programs of the Boy Scouts of Canada. Scouting came to Canada shortly after its introduction in England in 1907. The Scout program, founded by Robert S. S. Baden-Powell and based on his book, Scouting for Boys, was an immediate success and growth in Canada, as well as in every part of the world, was rapid. Younger boys, anxious to get into Scouts, brought about the Wolf Cub program in 1916, and in 1917 the Rover Scout program for young men was initiated. A fourth program, Venturing was introduced in 1966 for young men between Boy Scout and Rover Scout age. These programs are kept up-to-date and continue to serve the needs of Canadian boys by constant review and updating.

SCOUT GUIDE WEEK

This week, celebrating the birthdays of both Lord and Lady Baden-Powell, the founders of the Boy Scout and Girl Guide organization, is known as Scout-Guide Week. The scouts are proud of their record and justifiably so. Since its founding, this organization has helped Canadian boys become men, through its program of building character and providing wholesome activities for growing youngsters. We salute an outstanding group of people.

OPERATING POLICIES

There are a number of distinctive characteristics which are common to the operation of all sections of Boy Scouts of Canada — these are stated as operating policies:

- Membership is voluntary and open to all boys, youths and young men, who will endeavour to live by the promise and law of their section.
- Membership involves participation in small groups, who with adult help and guidance, operate so as to achieve maximum self-management and shared responsibility.
- Each program section has stated objectives suited to the contemporary needs of the age group served.
- The program content of each section is to be adapted to meet the specific needs and interests of any particular group.
- Boy Scouts of Canada work co-operatively with other organizations in serving the community.
- Programs are made available to boys through the operation of program sections which may be sponsored by institutions or may be operated by groups of citizens, or, alternatively, in the Venturer and Rover sections may be operated by the youth members and adult leaders.

AIM

The aim of Scouting is a statement of the purpose of the organization — it is Scouting's reason for being.

"The aim of Boy Scouts of Canada is to help boys, youth and young men develop as resourceful and responsible members of the community by providing opportunities and guidance for their mental, physical, social and spiritual development."

This statement expresses Scouting's concern for the whole person. It does not include methods — these are covered separately in the objectives and operating policies of each program.

PRINCIPLES . . .

To Scouting, principles are "fundamental truths or sources of action-based tenets."

- Belief in God and the positive application of one's religious beliefs in everyday life.
- Closely related and arising from this belief is respect for one's fellow man. The recognition that all are born free and equal in dignity and rights, no matter what their country, class, color or creed. That for life to be full, man must give of himself to those around him, to help and be helped. That the peace of the world lies in developing better understanding between people.
- Development and care for one's self to the best of one's ability. Through developing his potential, a person is better able to enjoy life and bring happiness to others.

These principles form the basis for the code of behaviour of Scouts throughout the world. From the above evolved the following:

"Scouting is founded on the principles that man must to the best of his ability . . .

—love and serve God.

—respect and act in accordance with the human dignity and rights of individuals.

—recognize the obligation on himself to develop and maintain his potential."

These principles are the basis for specific codes of behaviour (promises) for each program.

PROGRAM OBJECTIVES

Program objectives indicate the goals towards which the efforts of a program section are directed. Objectives determine the content and method of the program which must meet the needs and desires of a particular group of boys, in a particular place, at a particular time. Program content can vary from place to place and from time to time, but program objectives will only require review as changes in society affect the needs of boys.

Program objectives provide Scouters with a basis on which they can evaluate a section's program. With these program objectives they can adapt programs to meet the needs and interests of their boys. This flexibility of program, coupled with specific and concrete objectives, is a major strength of Scouting's programs.

Each program secton has its own specific program objectives, detailed in full in the pamphlet "Scouting Serves Canada."

GUARANTEED SALE PLAN

Transferred, or finding your present home too large or too small? Concerned about selling your existing property before buying the new home of your choice in another district . . . or even in another Canadian city? If this is your situation — and it's one that happens all the time — it would be well worth your while looking into JOYCE REALTY'S Guaranteed Sale Plan.

The JOYCE REALTY Sale Plan, which is the only truly national guaranteed sale plan of its kind available in Canada, is designed to guarantee that you will have funds available when required to complete the purchase of your new home. Also, to ensure that you will have no continuing worries or expenses in connection with your existing home.

QUESTIONS ABOUT THE PLAN

1. What is a Guaranteed Sale Agreement?
2. Will I obtain as good a price for my home by going along with JOYCE REALTY'S Guaranteed Sale Plan?
3. How can I be sure that you will try to obtain the best price for my house in the shortest possible time?
4. How is the "Guarantee Price" arrived at?
5. How do I get my money?
6. Will JOYCE REALTY be able to tell me what the guaranteed price will be well in advance of my new home?
7. How can I make an offer on my new home without knowing the guaranteed price on my existing one?

For the answers to these and any other questions you may have regarding this plan, call the experienced JOYCE MAN of your choice.

Hearst Family Still Waiting for Reaction

HILLSBOROUGH, Calif. (AP) — The family of Patricia Hearst is waiting to see how her terrorist kidnappers react to learning that their latest demand won't be met unless she is released unharmed.

Charles Gould, publisher of the Hearst-owned San Francisco Examiner, said Friday that, if Miss Hearst is freed, the Hearst Corp. will meet demands for an additional $4 million to bolster a $2 million free-food program for the needy set up at the kidnappers' insistence.

Gould said $2 million of the new money will be paid "immediately upon her release" and $2 million will be contributed in January, 1975.

Miss Hearst, a 20-year-old sophomore at the University of California at Berkeley, was abducted Feb. 4 by members of the terrorist Symbionese Liberation Army (SLA).

The food program, called People in Need, began Friday with thousands of persons taking home bags of free groceries, despite some confusion and violence that closed one of four distribution outlets in the San Francisco Bay area.

Police shut down the East Oakland centre after it had served only a handful of the 5,000 persons who waited in line for several hours. A few recipients, angered that food was being thrown to them from trucks instead of handed out, began throwing bottles, cans and milk cartons at the truck. Police cleared the area.

Sporadic violence continued near the centre into the evening. Police reported a small fire was set at a food store a block away and at a hardware store in the area.

Gould spoke to reporters after the girl's father, Randolph Hearst, said he could not afford the new demand by the SLA. Hearst is chairman of the Hearst Corp. and editor and president of The Examiner.

To meet the original $2 million demand, Hearst put up $500,000 and the family's Hearst Foundation donated $1.5 million.

"The size of the latest demand of the SLA is far beyond my financial capability," Hearst said in a brief statement. "Therefore, the matter is now out of my hands."

Gould stressed that "no other funds beyond the $4 million will be committed by the corporation or foundation under any circumstances."

In its first communique—a letter delivered to a Berkeley radio station three days after the kidnapping—the SLA said it was holding Miss Hearst as a "prisoner of war" because of crimes her parents had committed in service of the corporate establishment.

A second letter spelled out demands for free food grocery, which state officials estimated would cost some $400 million, as a "gesture of good faith" before the kidnappers would negotiate Patricia's release.

A third conciliatory message assured Hearst that a sincere gesture on his part would be acceptable, and he set up the $2 million program.

But the last message accused Hearst of "throwing crumbs to the people," and the SLA said it would cut off all communication unless Hearst provided an additional $4 million within 24 hours for an expanded program to start within a week.

All but the first communication included tapes with the voice of Miss Hearst and a male speaker who identified himself as Cinque, military leader of th SLA.

Hees Is Ordered To Pay Damages

HALIFAX CP — George Hees, a former Progressive Conservative federal cabinet minister, was ordered Friday to pay damages to a party worker in New Glasgow, N.S., after the Nova Scotia Supreme Court found him responsible for assaulting the man.

Douglas MacDonald, 43, an insurance agent, was awarded $6,000 in fixed general damages and special damages of $175. Mr. MacDonald was treasurer of the Central Nova PC Association when the incident occurred following a party rally in Trenton, N.S., Sept. 22, 1972.

He said he suffered a lacerated forehead after being shoved through the glass door of a motel room occupied by Mr. Hees in any way.

Davis Hints at Fallow Farmland Takeover

PERTH, Ont. (CP) — Premier William Davis hinted at government action Friday to bring thousands of acres of prime Ontario farmland, owned by developers, back into production.

Mr. Davis said at a meeting in this community 50 miles south of Ottawa that in his own riding of Peel North there are "thousands of acres" owned by developers which are lying idle or low.

The premier said that with a world food shortage and rising prices, good Ontario farmland should be farmed.

Indicating that land owned by speculators and developers should not lie idle, he said the Ontario government would be "taking a very serious look at this."

The premier said that land which the government owns in North Pickering for a proposed new town would be farmed.

Earlier, during his tour of Lanark County, the premier defended government policy on regional government to a Smith Falls group.

Labor Minister Wants Political Involvement

HAMILTON (CP) — Business executives and academics who refuse to get involved in politics were criticized Friday by Labor Minister John Munro.

Speaking to a group of about 25 political science students at McMaster University, Mr. Munro said heads of large corporations can be bitter about what the government is doing, but they have a policy that none of their executive employees identify with any political party.

"Their idea of political participation is to write out a cheque to the political party of their choice at election time. Then they pout when the kind of political help they need isn't forthcoming.

"What kind of nonsense is that?"

He said academics such as those he was addressing were "cop-ping out" by refusing to get involved in politics on the excuse that political parties are not responsive to their ideas.

He said the government's recent election expenses law and wiretap bill were major pieces of legislation but regretted that there was little help from political scientists in drafting the bills.

When a member of the audience suggested that the reason for this was fear by professors of losing their academic freedom, Mr. Munro replied: "I don't know how you can have a healthy academic freedom if you don't contribute to the process that guarantees freedom?"

Snowmobiles Moving South

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — Outboard Marine Corp. will halt production of snowmobiles here next month and move the operation to its parent plant in Waukegan, Ill., general manager Tom MacMillan said Friday.

He said the 115 employees here will be laid off.

However, the chain saw production here is to be expanded at the cost of about $1.6 million, and that the result should return employment close to the present level, he said.

But the expansion will take about 1½ years.

Parliament Break Not Stanfield's

OTTAWA (CP) — The six-week parliamentary recess that ends next week was no recess at all for Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield.

For him, the "break" was probably more strenuous than when the Commons is in full swing and the legislative mill at its busiest.

Mr. Stanfield, 59, spent the recess jetting back and forth across the country, preaching the evils of inflation.

He spread his message with a blitz of news conferences, open-line shows, interviews, dinner speeches and television appearances.

It added up to methodical and determined campaign to make inflation the hottest political issue around. And, judging by comments made Friday by Prime Minister Trudeau, it had some impact.

Mr. Trudeau said inflation is the biggest, single issue facing the country and the top concern of his minority Liberal government as it prepares for the re-opening of Parliament this week.

All government policies will be geared toward the problem and a many-pronged attack will be launched to bring it under control, he said in an interview.

Mr. Stanfield pledged repeatedly in his travels to make inflation the No. 1 issue when the Commons resumes sitting.

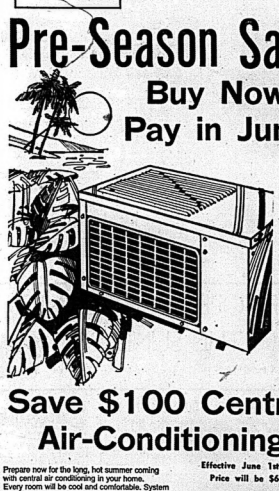
He told audiences and reporters that inflation is choking those least able to defend themselves—persons on low and fixed incomes—and slashing the savings that Canadians put away for retirement.

At the 1973 inflation rate of more than nine per cent, he said, persons lose almost $100 in purchasing power for every $1,000 of savings. Interest rates, in most cases, fall well short of recovering the loss, he added.

In each term, Mr. Stanfield renewed his long-standing call for a 90-day wage and income freeze followed by an 18-month to two-year period of lesser controls to slow the inflation spiral.

He also announced a new Conservative anti-inflation proposal—indexing Canada savings bonds to the cost of living. This would maintain the original purchasing power of the investment, he said.

If inflation amounted to 25 per cent over the life of a bond, a person should get back $125 for every $100 invested.



Mr. Stanfield is expected to elaborate on the proposal during the three-speech debate which follows the Wednesday opening of the new parliamentary session.

A similar Conservative proposal, indexing income taxes to the cost of living, was rejected initially by the government but implemented in Finance Minister John Turner's 1973 budget.

Kissinger Again On Peace Search

WASHINGTON (CP) — U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger travels to London today en route to Syria and Israel to seek a disengagement on the Golan Heights front.

Kissinger, making his third quest for peace in the Middle East, will meet Sir Alec Douglas-Home, the British foreign secretary, and spend the night in Britain before flying on to Damascus.

He is expected to visit Jordan, Egypt, Saudi Arabia and Algeria before returning home next week.

He returns to the Middle East with high hopes that he can bring a list of war prisoners to Israel from Syria in midweek, clearing the way for disengagement talks between the two October war foes.

The secretary has the enthusiastic backing of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat for his mission to the Middle East.

Syrian President Hafez Assad, attending the Islamic summit in Lahore, Pakistan, said "Syria will never make any concession" in its demand for a full Israeli withdrawal from Golan Heights territory lost in the war.

"We will continue our struggle," said Assad, who was quoted by a Kuwaiti newspaper.

However, Sadat predicted a Kissinger success on disengagement.

Undersecretary Joseph Sisco, who is accompanying Kissinger to the Middle East, said the trip also would include a stop in Saudi Arabia. He indicated the Arab oil embargo would be discussed.

Sisco, referring on the CBS-TV Morning News program to Israel's confrontation with Syria, said both sides "are tired of war" and ready for peace.

"I think the whole atmosphere is more favorable than it has been," he said.

If Kissinger obtains the list of prisoners, it will meet the principal Israeli prerequisite for negotiations with Syria.

His main task is to bring Syria and Israel together to negotiate a disengagement of their armies similar to the agreement he worked out between Egypt and Israel last month.

He also will confer with Sadat in Cairo about extending the life of the United Nations peacekeeping force in the Sinai peninsula.

The UN force, which serves as a buffer between the Egyptian and Israeli armies, will be removed April 27 unless it is voted a new lease by the Security Council.

Meir Delays Confirming Government

TEL AVIV (AP) — Premier Golda Meir is delaying confirmation of Israel's new government until after talks begin with U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger on Mideast peace moves, her aides said today.

Officials said that neither the delay nor the uncertainty over the new government would endanger the start of Kissinger's efforts for an agreement with Syria to calm down the tense Golan Heights ceasefire line.

Alternate Day Service Mandatory

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — New York motorists should find an improvement in the gasoline situation this week. But the change may be attributable more to increased supplies than to Gov. Malcolm Wilson's new mandatory, alternate-day rationing plan.

The governor imposed the mandatory plan Saturday, along with a requirement that gas be sold only to motorists with less than half a tank. He expressed hope that the measure, which takes effect Tuesday, would help unsnarl the long lines at service stations.

Leaping Ahead

Labor Party Could Split

LONDON (Reuter) — The general election next Thursday could disturb the see-saw pattern that has dominated British politics for most of the last 50 years.

For one thing the underdog Liberal party could, if opinion polls are borne out, make it's strongest showing since 1945.

Another possibility is that the Labor party, if badly defeated, might splinter.

In the heat of the present campaign, Labor party internal differences have been set aside, but a decisive defeat, as some polls suggest, might reopen old wounds.

From the mid-19th century to the First World War, British politics was a duel between Liberals and the Conservatives. More often than not, the Liberals won.

But in 1910 the Liberals gained their last outright election victory, under Herbert Asquith. From 1915, they were involved in a series of uneasy coalitions until, in 1922, Labor took over as the second most powerful party in Parliament.

Now, opinion polls indicate the Liberals could win 25 or more seats in the 635-member House of Commons. This is more than they have secured at any time since the Second World War.

If the election brings a neck-and-neck finish between Conservatives and Labor, such a Liberal bloc could hold a power balance in Parliament.

The latest opinion poll gave the Liberals an unexpected 28 per cent of the popular vote, compared with 31.5 for Labor and 38.5 for the Conservatives. This shocked leaders of the two major parties into turning some of their big guns on the third party and its leader, Jeremy Thorpe.

The poll figures, if borne out in the actual voting, could give the Liberals, who held 11 seats in the last Parliament, as many as 70 in the new one, although 30-35 is a more widely accepted figure.

When Heath said during the weekend that a vote for the Liberals would be a vote for chaos, and Mr. Wilson said it would be an evasion of a responsible decision.

Russian Military Advisers in Peru

WASHINGTON (AP) — United States intelligence sources say Russian military advisers have moved into the South American continent for the first time.

They say Russian technicians have arrived in Peru to train soldiers in the use of tanks bought from the Soviet Union last year.

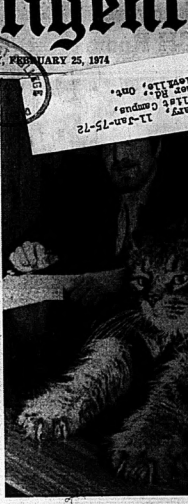
When Peruvian President Juan Velasco acknowledged two months ago that his government had bought tanks and other weapons from Russia, Chile's new military rulers began negotiating with the French for the possible purchase of medium tanks, and asked for U.S. tanks and planes.

The Chileans fear the Peruvians may use their new military muscle to try to take back territory lost to Chile in the War of the Pacific nearly 100 years ago.

Ecuador, another neighbor of Peru, is reported to have indicated to the U.S. recently that it wants to buy arms.

Germans Held

MOSCOW (AP) — Twelve Soviet citizens of German origin were arrested Monday during a demonstration demanding permission to emigrate to West Germany.



Twenty uniformed police and plainclothesmen arrived 12 minutes after the five women and seven men started demonstrating outside the West German embassy.

The demonstrators were believed to be from Latvia, on the Baltic.

Oil Parley Underway

BANGKOK (Reuter) — Officials of 36 countries, mainly from Asia and the Pacific region, began a week-long conference today on ways to deal with the energy crisis. The conference is being held under the auspices of the United Nations' economic commission for Asia and the Far East.

Oil Policy Prepared

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — Experts from 12 countries meet here today to prepare action against the world energy shortage. The meeting arises from the Feb. 11-13 energy conference here which, over French objections, decided to set up a coordinating group to prepare for an eventual conference between oil-importing countries and poorer countries, and then between oil consumers and producers. France is staying away from this two-day meeting.

No Cut In Oil For U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Shah of Iran says the U.S. is importing at least as much oil as it was before the beginning of the Arab oil boycott.

Appearing on the CBS news program 60 Minutes, the shah, whose country is not involved in the boycott, said the U.S. is receiving as much imported oil as in the past.

Asked if he feels the energy shortage may be connected to something that doesn't meet the eye, the shah said: "Well, something is going on for sure."

Asked who was being enriched by it, he responded: "the oil companies."

Following the broadcast Rep. Clarence Long, (Dem. Md.) called for a congressional investigation.

"This confirms what most Americans have been thinking all along and comes right from headquarters. The statement of the shah suggests fraud on the part of the oil companies and Congress has to get the facts immediately," said Long.

Meanwhile U.S. Energy chief William Simon says he would have to recommend gasoline rationing in the United States if the incompetence of lengthy service station lines became widespread.

He said on NBC's Meet the Press Sunday, "at this time the shortages and long lines are really concentrated in the metropolitan areas . . ."

Asked if he felt President Nixon would approve a recommendation for rationing, Simon said they "would have a long, hard conversation if I made the recommendation, but I wouldn't presuppose what his decision might be."

Simon said he is personally opposed to rationing because "basically, I just think it wouldn't work . . . it would put a great many rigidities in a very complex economy."

Giveaway of Food Resuming Tuesday

HILLSBOROUGH, Calif. (AP) — Randolph A. Hearst's taste vigil marked its third week today as People in Need (P.I.N.) prepared to distribute more food to the needy, a precondition for the release of his kidnapped daughter.

Donations poured in during the weekend to P.I.N., the organization set up to meet the demands of the terrorist Symbionese Liberation Army (SLA). It is holding Patricia Hearst, 20, kidnaped Feb. 4 from her Berkeley apartment.

Hearst is president and editor of the San Francisco Examiner and chairman of the Hearst Corp.

Organizers promised that Tuesday's distribution of food from centres in the San Francisco Bay area would be more orderly than it was Friday.

"The response has just been super," Steve Weed, Menlo, P.I.N.'s acting director, "People from all over the country have been sending bread, milk, frozen food, money and love."

The distribution program is loaded with $500,000 from Hearst and $1.5 million from the non-profit Hearst Foundation. However, the SLA has demanded $4 million more from Hearst personally.

In response to that demand, Examiner publisher Charles Gould said the Hearst Corp. will put up another $2 million immediately if Miss Hearst is released unharmed and promised $2 million more in January, 1975. The SLA has not responded to that offer, the FBI said.

The first attempt to distribute food Friday to meet the initial demands of the SLA was marred by violence, looting and confusion when thousands jammed four centres. Thirty persons were injured and 35 arrested.

"A great many mistakes were made," said Ludlow Kramer, Washington state secretary, who organized the program. But he said 14,000 persons received food.

Mrs. Maze said the food would be on hand Tuesday when the centres opened, avoiding discontent among waiting crowds, and many more centres may be in operation.

IRA Says Slain Man Informer

BELFAST (AP) — British troops found the body of a young man shot through the head and with hands and feet tied Sunday night. The Provisional wing of the Irish Republican Army claimed responsibility and said in a statement security forces had paid the man 100 (about $250) for information.

"Let this man's fate be a warning to anyone who will cooperate with the occupation forces in any fashion," the statement said.

The killing raised Northern Ireland's fatality toll to 958 since sectarian strife erupted in 1969 between the province's extremist Protestants and Roman Catholics.

Meanwhile, the British army is checking new recruits carefully following fears that Irish guerrillas may be enlisting to obtain up-to-date weapon training.

The number of soldiers with Irish relatives and who desert from the British forces to take refuge in the Irish Republic has increased recently, British military sources said.

Plans would call for the purchase of several hundred acres of farm land as well as a number of cottages on the lake front.

Township Reeve Felix Browne will lead his delegation to Toronto today, while Tuesday the Papineau Lake cottagers' association will present their views.

It is understood that Reeve Browne and his delegation ask that the government take no further action with respect to establishment of the park until a feasibility study can be done to determine if the park is needed and if its cost is warranted.

The cottagers' association will be headed by its president, Mrs. Sybil Saylor of Papineau Lake. She will be accompanied to Toronto by past-presidents Harold Carruthers of Belleville and Ian Salgo of Toronto, Rev. Eric Weber of Kitchener, Dr. Bert Spilsbury of Port Hope and association treasurer Ray Poste of Stirling.

The association's brief to Mr. Bernier objects to the province's plans to proceed with the camp despite local zoning of the area for agriculture and summer resident use.

The brief claims the camp would increase the pollution and decrease the value of cottages. There are already between 250 and 300 cottages at Papineau Lake.

Harold Carruthers of Belleville said that no one yet has shown that the proposed camp would result in any monetary value for the area.

The only local people to benefit would be the operators of a few gasoline stations and grocery store outlets, he said.

Shy, But a Winner

More than 125 dogs were entered in the Belleville Kennel Clubs sanction match Sunday and nearly all the dogs were winners one way or another. One of the entrants in the 90-breed show was a three month old golden retriever, Dawn, owned by G. Cummings of Belleville. Dawn was just a little too shy during his first show and tried to run away from his owner when it came his time to perform. Nevertheless, he won his junior puppy class. Winner of the best in show class was a Doberman Pilcher owned by Glenn Heel of Kingston. A grey French Poodle, owned by Mrs. Thora Fleming, of Belleville, won the obedience trials with a score of 194 out of a possible 200.

Cars Collide At Bayside

A Belleville couple were treated at Belleville General Hospital for minor cuts and bruises and released Saturday following a two-car collision at the intersection of Highway 2 and White's Road, near Bayside.

PC Robert Jackson, of the Belleville detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police, said that Mr. and Mrs. Mark Vanoer, of 7 Turnbull Street, Belleville were injured when the car they were riding in collided with a car driven by John B. Giambo, of Trenton.

Damage from the accident was estimated at $900. The accident occurred around 3.30 p.m. Saturday.

Tibetans Mark Year of the Tiger

Tradel Dekek means happy new year in Tibetan.

It's a phrase Belleville people will have to add to their vocabulary as this city becomes the Tibetan capital of Canada.

Belleville now has 44 Tibetans, twice as many as the original number allocated to the city by the federal government three years ago, Across Canada, Belleville is known as the rallying point for Tibetans who were brought here from India in a resettlement program begun by Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson.

Belleville's Tibetans celebrated the New Year Sunday. The beginning of the year of the tiger brought them a gift from the federal government — $3,000 to help them teach their culture to their young. Tsering Wankhong, one of the first two Tibetans to come to Canada, says the money will be used in part to pay religious teachers to hold classes for the children in the Lindsay, Cobourg and Belleville areas. Belleville now has its own lama in residence and another lives in Montreal.

The 11 Tibetans who arrived here from India in May, 1971 have been augmented by other immigrants selected by the federal government, by Tibetans from Quebec and Alberta and by family members sponsored by the original immigrants.

Tomorrow, one of Tibet's two master painters will arrive in Belleville from India, sponsored by his son, Noodup Rongze. Tenzin Yodzeps Rongae is a painter, sculptor and ceramic artist. He will be accompanied by his wife and an 18-year-old son.

Man Hurt In Collision

MARMORA — Ontario Provincial Police here are investigating a single car accident that sent a Marmora man to hospital with severe head and neck injuries Saturday.

Police report that Thomas Hedley, 57, of RR 2 Marmora was admitted to Belleville General Hospital after the car in which he was riding went out of control and struck a tree on the Centreline Road around 5:30 p.m. Saturday.

Hedley is reported to have sustained a concussion, whiplash and an eye injury in the accident.

A damage estimate was not available at press time.

Car Fire Stubborn

Belleville firefighters spent nearly an hour fighting a car fire at 14 Stanley Park Road Sunday.

Fire Chief Leo Culhane reports that firefighters received a call for assistance around 12 p.m. Sunday after a 1967 Oldsmobile belonging to Dr. John Hartt caught fire in a garage.

When the firefighters arrived on the scene, the car had been pushed out of the garage and the owners had tried to extinguish the flames with a fire extinguisher.

Damage to the car was reported to be extensive, but no official estimate was available at press time.

Cause of the fire has not yet been determined.

Education and Security

Education and a state of awareness as necessary qualities to national security and progress is a premise enunciated in almost like terms by two contrasting personalities in recent days.

In an article from The Kitchener-Waterloo Record reprinted on this page Thursday, on the subject of newspapers as a classroom aid, Mrs. Hope Shackleford, a Wichita, Kan. junior high school English teacher, was quoted as saying: "Schools must teach today what no one knew yesterday but what must be known tomorrow for mankind's survival."

In very much the same vein, Lord Clark (better known perhaps as Sir Kenneth Clark) was asked a question on the future security of this planet by Harold Hobson, London drama critic of The Christian Science Monitor.

"If direct attack is not going to destroy civilization," Lord Clark (whose "Civilization" series was seen by Canadian television viewers a year or two ago) was asked, "where is the danger?"

His reply: "The danger is in the lowering of standards in education. Why did we nearly lose the First World War, in which we were saved only by the skin of teeth. Because the Germans had a better technical education than we had. If the standards of education are maintained, we shall, I think be all right."

Observations worth remembering, these, especially in times of subsidized idleness and talk of guaranteed annual income and the growth of a generation to whom challenge is virtually a meaningless term.

Error-Prone

Computers, like humans, make mistakes, some of them quite horrendous. The public therefore will have reservations about the news that a computerized drug distribution system for use in hospitals is being developed at the University of Saskatchewan.

How can we be sure, in the light of the booboos perpetrated in the past, that this particular computer system will perform with accuracy job in storing drug orders, as claimed, as well as providing information for the control, preparation and administration of all medication?

We have already seen how (in the realm of human error), according to an engineer's testimony, the people who installed the medical gas system in the new wing of Sudbury general hospital "had no idea how you should put a medical gas system together." Twenty-three deaths at the hospital have been under investigation as a result of this alleged construction fault.

Given the propensity of computer systems and their programmers for error, any hospital adopting this one should ensure adequate back-up checks on patients' drug dispensation.

Ironically, in the same issue of the newspaper that we read about this development, there was a report from Swansea, Wales, about a 17-year-old who had passed his driving test. When his licence arrived, it bore 12 endorsements for a whole array of driving offences, plus a 28-day driving ban.

All the work of a newly-installed computer system.

See what we mean!

Male Lib

Unisex — or at least a greater melting of male-female interests — is increasingly in evidence these days. In Cobourg they have had a Posture Queen contest (to promote good posture) in one of the community's primary schools and it has been so successful that next year the boys want to compete too.

Meanwhile, in Peterborough, The Examiner reports that male liberation is making inroads at Norwood district high school with boys taking sewing and even turning out dresses for the girls.

March 1 will bring the school's spring fashion show which clearly has a new dimension with both boys and girls showing their handiwork.

Cabinet 'Unwieldy' But Who Is Prepared to Drop Out?

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP) — No, said the ministers questioned about a possible cabinet shuffle, they didn't expect any changes in the immediate future. But if all had their way, the 30-member cabinet would become smaller.

"It's just too unwieldy now," said one. "There must be easier ways to make decisions."

Naturally, no one is voluntarist to drop out, but all those questioned seemed to agree that the cabinet should consist of 15 to 20 members.

Prime Minister Trudeau and former prime minister Lester Pearson considered establishing a British-type "inner" and "outer" cabinet. Under this system some ministers are not actually members of the cabinet. But the idea was scrapped.

"It wouldn't work in Canada," says one official involved in the discussions.

"Unless every province and every interest was represented in the inner group there would be trouble.

"In our way of doing things, unless you are part of the decision-making process there is no point in being a minister."

Mr. Trudeau partly solved the difficulties of 30-voice decision-making by establishing an elaborate system of cabinet committees.

Nine permanent and various temporary committees, consisting of up to 10 ministers, make decisions before presenting their findings to full cabinet.

Usually their verdict is accepted without prolonged debate, but not always.

Mr. Trudeau heads a planning comittee that involves key members of his cabinet and deals with over-riding issues and how they are to be handled. Their decisions seldom are questioned by the full cabinet.

Members of this committee include External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp, Finance Minister John Turner, Treasury Board President Charles Drury, Privy Council President Allan MacEachen, Transport Minister Jean Marchand and Justice Minister Otto Lang.

The make-up of cabinet committees is kept secret, even from the Liberal caucus, so ministers will not be subjected to pressures in any particular area. But it is known that Mr. Drury heads the committee on the treasury board, that Mr. MacEachen heads the committee on legislation and House planning and that Mr. Trudeau heads the committee on federal-provincial relations.

The system, most ministers agree, has worked as well as expected.

But they say many of the decisions reached by committees might benefit from consideration by the full cabinet, providing it was a smaller cabinet.

The original 1867 cabinet of Sir John A. Macdonald consisted of 13 members. John Diefenbaker left office in 1963 with 34 ministers and Lester Pearson took over with 26. Mr. Trudeau began with 28 in 1968 and has since added four.

The prediction is that the 30-member cabinet system, along with its various committees will be around for a long time.

Uncensored Films Featured By New Television Outlet

Ottawa Journal

A new dimension has been added to the prime-time cultural life of Ontario through the medium of the new Global Television system which will consist of "adult" feature films uncut — or almost so — by the censor's scissors.

For Ottawa audiences at least, showing uncut films at any hour is something of a leap forward into cultural liberalism. To show them between seven and nine or so in the evening is positively eye-popping for many viewers. Except that some would call it negatively eye-popping.

It will be a measure of Ottawa's maturity if we have intelligent a public debate developed over the network's movie policy. So far, the few scattered complaints heard fall far short of a wave of public protest.

Is it enough to tell such people that nobody is forced to watch any particular TV station? Is it too much to expect parents who go to one movie a year to be sufficiently "up" on the recent films to give the "parental guidance" usually suggested by the TV announcer before and during many of the films?

For others taking a detached view of the situation, the question may well be whether the popular cyclical theory of morality is still valid. Recent Supreme Court decisions in the U.S. suggest it is at work there, with a swing back toward more censorship at the local community level after a spell of "permissiveness."

One thing seems clear. There needn't be any inevitable backlash against any showing of uncensored movies on television if good judgment is also shown.

If the network is careless about the times it schedules "adult" films; if it fails to maintain a good quality of movie in which all the scenes can honestly be said to contribute to the total value; or if it pushes the uncertain limits of public tolerance too far, even with a good film, then it could help incite a backlash that will tend to prove the cyclical theory of public morality.

Guild Production Praised

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

On Feb. 14, I attended my first production of the Belleville Theatre Guild since we moved here from Toronto.

I found the entire production and management extremely good and the play itself, "The Anniversary" surprisingly well handled. The evening was so pleasant I told my husband we had better not wait two years to go to Toronto and Ottawa for our theatre and give support to what is now our "home-town" group. To my surprise and joy the evening I read a very critical write-up in The Intelligencer by a Mr. Al Tuck.

Now I am by no means a theatrical critic, but 40 odd years of theatre-going in many cities give me the right, I believe, to express my opinion of a critique of his column.

(A) Face to his remarks about the "machine-gun-delivery that left too little time to laugh at the lines." Surely it is obvious that comedy, particularly fast comedy, is the most difficult of all drama to produce. Lines can be thrown away or swallowed, with the comedy lost. If the pace was too fast it was due to the fault of the manager who chose such a speedy production or was the fault of the audience (at least 'one' member) who could not keep up with the meaning.

(B) The success of a comedy is quite literally based on counting the laughs. I suggest that Mr. Zabas was either absent or asleep or he would have noticed a very spectacular number of loud giggles.

(C) The complaint that much was lost in "the sound of feet shuffling to and from the liquor cabinet" is rather juvenile and unthinking. The obvious message was that an evening with "Mum" required a great deal of liquid "back-up" to endure. What else could the director do, except perhaps seat each member of the cast with his own bottle and glass?

As a amateur group should have the critical eye of the local press (kept) on it, to point out its faults. However, since it is amateur, completely voluntary and obviously, without fee or financial backing, I feel some leeway should be given and it should not be judged as one would a completely professional group.

O.K. enough. I used to read the late Hector Dinnen's column and if he "panned" a production, I would immediately order tickets secure in the knowledge I would be a success. Must I now adopt the same critical attitude towards your paper — which incidentally I read excellent in every other sense?

Marcos Fights Filipino Moslem Rebellion

By JOHN D. HARRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

The Republic of the Philippines, where democracy has had a most uncertain path since 1945 and ended in December, 1972, now is swept with rebellion by its Moslem inhabitants.

Most of us are not aware that in Islam's relentless sweep into Asia after the seventh century AD its further extension over not countries identified as strongly Moslem like Pakistan, Bangladesh and Indonesia, but the Philippine archipelago.

Called the Moros or Moors, a misnomer applied to Moslems elsewhere by the Spanish who once ruled in the Philippine Islands, they settled mainly in the southern half of this country of thousands of islands and inlets and especially in Sulu and Cotabato.

Philippine troops, many of them fresh home from the Vietnam war had been moved south by President Marcos to put down the Moslem rebels.

The reasons seem obscure, rather a collection of grievances by Moslem communities that their lands had been parcelled out to Christian settlers moved down from the northern half of the country and opposition to the government decree for the collection of arms announced in November, 1972.

The Moros also called Tausugs in the basic native language of the Philippines which is Tagalog, have always been opponents or potential foes to various occupying forces, first the Spanish, then the Americans and now the central government in Manila.

The uprising by Moslem citizens of the Philippine Republic is the latest in 29 years of political uncertainty in the islands which were supposed to have absorbed the American democratic method.

For most of the 1950s, the Southeast Asian republic was plagued with Communist guerrilla activities in the form of the so-called Hukbalahaps, or the People's Liberation Movement who literally bottled up entire islands and communities all over the hard-to-reach national archipelago.

The famous and late former president Ramon Magsaysay, undoubtedly the greatest Filipino leader since the war, not only put down the Huk movement, but persuaded the Huks to move into new farm settlements areas in the southern islands offered to them by the Manila government.

Not only did Magsaysay give them land, freedom and loans to begin in business or farming, but removed most of them from the major island of Luzon where they had concentrated their command and centre of guerrilla attacks.

Today President Ferdinand E. Marcos rules a nation under siege, not only with the recent Moslem rebellions, but as a result of the massive civic unrest which resulted in December, 1972, in controls over the press, temporary closing of the university and nation-wide curfews.

In a continent used to overthrow as a way of life, the use of it in government and business in the Philippines has left many Asia watchers wide-eyed. President Marcos himself has not been above suspicion, but he isn't criticized with the severity of restrictions on freedom of expression.

In Manila the homes of very rich families are fortified with iron fences and private armies and the threat of that homegrown and hard-pressed city simmer under political and economic repression.

The dream of a genuinely free state for which so many Filipino guerrillas fought, died or were tortured by the Japanese during the Second World War, has long ago faded in favor of a most uncertain future.

U.S. Republicans in Strategy Bind

By BRUCE LEVETT
WASHINGTON (CP) — Republican strategists, the loss of a "safe" Michigan seat in the House of Representatives behind them, are heading toward a new challenge in Ohio and facing a dilemma as ironical as it is critical.

The problem—as some observers see it—is how to dissociate a Republican candidate from a Republican president and still retain the hard core of support of traditional party voters and workers.

The irony is that little more than a year ago Republican candidates were complaining that President Nixon was neglecting them—selfishly—and holding his personal prestige as he waged what was essentially a "re-elect me" campaign.

Some strategists saw the special congressional election in Cincinnati two weeks from now as a partial reply of the situation they faced in Grand Rapids, Mich.

Both districts are—or were—traditionally and staunchly Republican. Grand Rapids hadn't sent a Democrat to Washington in more than 60 years.

If Gerald Ford, who vacated the Michigan seat when accepting Nixon's call to the vice-presidency, held the Michigan riding for 25 years, capturing more than 60 per cent of the votes in each of 12 consecutive elections.

Yet, when Richard Vander-Veen—a Grand Rapids Democratic loser—took on powerful State Senator Robert Vander Koon who had never lost an election, the Democrat won by a margin of more than 7,000 votes.

In what many see as a strategic pattern for the November congressional elections, VanderVeen claimed his victory by pointing to his opponent as "Richard Nixon's choice for Congress."

"Republicans are in a bind," says Senator Bill Brock of Tennessee, Republican campaign chairman in the Senate.

"The potential benefit in speaking out against the president is better treatment in the press and possible gains among Democrats and Independents.

"But there's a sizeable risk in alienating the people who work the precincts — who feel the president has been ill-treated."

Strategists feel there may be trouble the Republicans are in to turn things around. If there is no resignation and no impeachment, they say, the party will be forced to sink or swim with Nixon.

In any event, if Republican congressmen see the issue as a choice between saving their own seats or saving the president, it appears likely the president will suffer.

UCS Appoints Director

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Now the cat is out of the bag. Council has been advised that the United Community Services of Belleville Inc., intends to spend the sum of $12,000 of the taxpayers money to assist in offsetting the salary of a professional executive.

Obviously they have not learned anything from the debacle left behind from their last venture in this field. The use of again the citizens are to have the opportunity of shouldering the expense of another director.

Following the usual pattern the UCS set city council up in caucus, to discuss this latest request. Again it will be the public that will foot the bill. Once again both parties have demonstrated that they do not govern the public, which pays the bills, worthy of the privilege of being privy to the discussions that went on.

It seems to me that in the first place nobody has established that a professional director is needed beyond the most interested party, the United Community Services. In the second place, if it is found to be necessary, we are in fact hiring an other public servant. You will note that the grant is only a request for $12,000 "toward" the salary so we can be sure who ever is hired will receive in excess of this amount.

If the public is to be made to pay this individual's wage then the public has a right to a say in his terms of reference, to pay such duties as accountability — thus he or she, should be answerable to the taxpayers.

Of course, the most sensible thing to do in this case, would be for council to say "no dice", but we all know, in the light of past experience, that such a thing is unlikely to happen.

The public, if they are going to be forced into paying out salaries for individuals, have an inherent right to know what they can decide in the first place if there is any requirement and in the second what wage scales will apply.

Another prerequisite should be that whoever is hired must be from Belleville. It is an insult to all the talented people of this city that every time it becomes necessary to hire an expensive employee only somebody from outside the city seems to fit the bill.

Pope Pius V excommunicated Elizabeth I of England and declared her a usurper 404 years ago today—in 1570. Elizabeth's concern—and eventual—was her supremacy in ecclesiastical matters had resulted in a break in diplomatic relations with Rome in 1561. Largely out of political and diplomatic support, the queen's excommunication came too late to encourage northern rebels.

The company reports that in 1973 there was an increase of more than 12 per cent in insurance in force and a decrease in claims of more than 27 per cent. This provided the company with an underwriting profit of $59,667, the first in four years.

Ontario CONSUMER BUY-LINE

There are no bargains in driveway paving

Ontario's Consumer Protection Bureau receives many complaints about residential driveway paving. Fly-by-night contractors appear every spring, offering to asphalt or resurface driveways at ridiculously low prices. Their usual ploy is that they "just happened to be in the area and we have some orders from your neighbors so we can give you a good deal if we do your driveway now." Be suspicious of this type of operator.

Despite repeated warnings, many consumers do business with contractors who do not even have an address. Anyone can rent equipment and slap down a thin covering of asphalt. When the driveway cracks and weeds start growing through it soon after the job is completed, these hucksters cannot be found so nothing can be done to have repairs made.

Choosing a Contractor

There are no bargains in driveway paving. You only get what you pay for. Paving is a major undertaking that involves expensive supplies and equipment. A first-class paving job should last at least 10 years with routine care.

Your best bet when considering either resurfacing or paving your driveway for the first time is to get three estimates from reputable contractors.

Ask the contractor for the names of three people in your area with whom he has done business. If possible, look at their driveways and ask if they are satisfied.

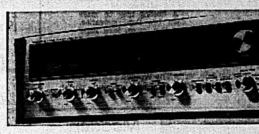
Don't haggle or cut corners on the quoted price. A contractor may cut his price, but he will also reduce the amount of material he supplies. Thus, a lower price will affect the quality of the work.

Make sure that all quotes include everything you want and list the types of materials to be used and the method of construction. Be especially careful if you have a drainage problem. Once you have three estimates in writing, telephone the Consumer Protection Bureau to ensure that the contractor is duly registered under the provisions of The Consumer Protection Act. The Bureau will be able to indicate whether the company has been the subject of consumer complaints.

Three Driveway Types

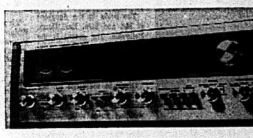
There are basically three types of driveway paving jobs:

1. An adequate first paving requires a six-inch excavation which is then filled with crushed and compacted limestone to a depth of four inches. To this, two inches of compacted asphalt is added.
2. For a severely cracked older driveway, a good job requires that the old asphalt be completely removed before backfilling with four inches of compacted crushed limestone. After this, two inches of compacted asphalt is added.
3. For a re-capping job, where minor cracks have appeared, a layer of asphalt over the original driveway is sufficient.



The Contract

Before signing any residential paving contract remember:



- Never sign a blank contract. This amounts to signing a blank cheque.
- Make sure the contract includes full details and specifications of the job to be done.
- Read and understand all terms and conditions before signing.
- Make sure all verbal agreements are written into the contract. (Verbal agreements rarely stand up in court.)
- Delete any terms in the contract you find unacceptable and make sure that both parties initial the change.
- Get a firm date for completion of the work.
- If there are still unacceptable conditions or terms, don't sign. Learn how to say, "NO."
- Make sure the contractor's name and address are included in the contract.
- Never pay more than ten percent of the total cost as a downpayment.
- Don't be fooled with the offer of a lengthy guarantee. A guarantee is only good for as long as the company remains in business.

Ann Landers

Antique Auto Collector Wants to Be Buried in Car

Dear Ann Landers: I'm not sure you'll need three or four pints to accommodate the Dodge, plus special equipment to lower the car into the ground. If it's what you want I hope you get it.

Dear Ann Landers: Our son has four beautiful youngsters and we love them dearly. The oldest is nine; the youngest is four. He is our only child so these are the only grandchildren we will ever have. The problem is this: Whenever we go to see them (about twice a week) their first question is, "What did you bring us?"

I suppose we are to blame because we started early in their little lives to bring them gifts every time we came over. They are what you might call spoiled. I discussed this problem with my husband recently and we decided not to bring gifts anymore except for special occasions. I'm sorry to say our last visit turned out to be most unpleasant. The children hardly spoke to us.

My husband says now that we have spoiled them it's too late to do anything about it and we should resume the old practice bringing gifts to make sure we get a warm welcome and enjoy ourselves. His philosophy is, "You can't teach an old dog new tricks."

What do you say, Ann?—Happy Grandma . . . . . .

Dear Grandma: Your grandchildren aren't "old dogs." They are youngsters who are capable of learning a great deal.

It's too bad your husband is so insecure he is afraid the kids won't like him unless he brings something besides himself.

My advice is to adopt a new line. When they ask "What did you bring us?" Reply, "A lot of love! And it will last forever. What could be better than that?"

Women Clerks

OTTAWA (CP) — Between 1961 and 1971, the proportion of women in clerical work rose from 62.4 per cent to 72.1 per cent. By 1971, more than 30 per cent employed women on Canada's labor force worked in clerical occupations.

Families of Mentally Ill Need Medical Support

NEW YORK (AP) — Families of the mentally ill need help, too, says Nedda Logan, feisty wife of Broadway director Joshua Logan. In her soft-spoken manner she was describing her role in coping with the illness of her husband, a manic-depressive, during his bad years.

"It is one of the problems of mental health—they take care of the patient, but they don't help the families," she observed.

Fortunately, her own doctor provided strength when she needed it, she says, and she was able to cope.

But some families do not receive mental illness and some do not know how to cope with it if they are aware, she has concluded.

"Manic depressives are up and down. When they are depressed, it is easier because they need the family. When they are high, they don't need anyone. They are in euphoria, spending a lot of money and going for days without sleep. Their brains race—Josh could learn a whole language when he was in the hospital," Mrs. Logan recalled.

Interviewed in her New York apartment, Mrs. Logan said her husband has lost all his fears and has been in the shape for many years.

But in her opinion, more education would promote better understanding of mental health—some families may be ashamed or try to hide the problem. The way to start, she said, is with the young.

For example, she is trustee of the Museum of the City of New York which has been providing exhibitions and lectures on topics of interest to youth in the last few years. A program on drama was a big success, she said, and one on venereal disease is coming up.

She said they will go on from there, emphasizing visual presentations which seem to be extremely effective in teaching young people.

She was co-chairman of the museum's 50th anniversary celebration, a $100-a-ticket affair with a fashion show sponsored by the American fur industry, using celebrities as models. Such events, she said, help maintain the museum and its special programs.

The museum captured Mrs. Logan's interest in 1955 when it did a special exhibition of the work of her father, playwright-actor Edward Harrigan.

Harrigan owned his own Broadway theatre and his plays in the 1870s and 1880s depicted New York City life. Memorabilia from that era dots the unique decor of the Logans' apartment, where a background of sketches, family paintings and photographs spills into every room. Intermingled are turn-of-the-century bibelots, fine French furnishings and a collection of decorative art pieces.

Mrs. Logan did the decorating. In addition to her daughter, Ann Connolly Perrow, and two granddaughters, the Logans have a daughter, Susan, and son, Thomas.

Shop Carefully for Pets

EDMONTON (CP) — Shopping for a dog should take more time than looking for a new car, says veterinarian Dr. David Cartledge.

"A dog is going to be with you for 10 years or more while most people don't keep a car nearly that long," said the president-elect of the Edmonton Association of Small Animal Veterinarians.

More thought should be put into selecting a pet.

"Lots of people don't know what they're looking for. They forget they should be looking for faults and they get all emotional about that cute puppy."

Dr. Cartledge advises that temperament of the potential pet is the most important quality to look for. Purebreds are likely to have a better disposition, he said.

"I hate to push purebreds but . . . mongrels sometimes have the worst temperaments."

Although dogs of a particular breed tend to have similar characteristics, Dr. Cartledge cautions that individual dogs can vary greatly. Inhumane treatment can change any dog's basic behavior patterns.

Dr. Cartledge recommends that if a purebred is selected, the prospective owner should go to a dog show to take a close look at how the breed acts.

Obedience courses are suggested by Dr. Cartledge.

"It trains you in how to handle a dog and how to communicate with a dog."

"If you hit a dog too much, or get uptight yourself, the dog will get uptight. If you can control your emotions, you can control a dog's emotions."

If the owner decides to get rid of a dog, Dr. Cartledge says the best solution is not to have it destroyed, but to give it to someone who wants a pet.

"So many people get the idea that a dog becomes so attached to them that it will pine away without them. Or that nobody else will take care of it as well as they did.

"I know a lot of people who got dogs at the SPCA and they're really good people and take good care of their dogs."

Thoughtless Letters Can Ruin Day

If you would see that man again,
Pour out your bitterness and ire

On paper, then lay down that pen
In throw your letter in the fire.

— Margaret Fishback, in "Safe Conduct", 1938.

I would go even further, Margaret: "If you would keep that friendship still, be it Cousin Ethel or Uncle Will: Don't let your pent-up heart all bad news; tell gay events, don't cry the blues!"

A girl at college dreads opening the family letter because it is always a pouring out of complaints. There ought to be a good healthy discipline in what we put down on paper. Have a thought for whether your epistle will improve or ruin the day for the recipient!

Dear Doris: "Smelling a Rat" was concerned about insurance money. English companies used to issue a "third party policy" where a man would insure himself, wife and each child (at birth). On his death the wife continued the payments, on her death it passed to the eldest child who could carry on premiums or cash it in.

The eldest was paid the entire claim; neither could any other claim anything.

The widow mentioned cannot claim anything from her husband's sister. I am an English immigrant and my mother left me such a policy, which is perfectly legal. — Mrs. J. W.

Dear Mrs. J. W.: "Smelling a Rat" will appreciate this information. The aunt who followed through with paying premiums, and now wants to collect, must have been the eldest.

Dear Doris: My three teenage sons fight among themselves; then club together to tease their nine-year-old sister. I am on her defence. I am continually hollering at the lot of them.

Each one of these boys is perfect when he is alone and the teachers say what well behaved sons we have. But at home they resent my complaints and I believe that is why they tease their little sister. I have over-protected her and not shown much love towards the boys since she was born. I'm afraid.

Now if I try to show them affection, as my husband suggests, they just rebuff me. I lose patience with my daughter when she whines and I end up hitting her, when it is the boys' fault.

I know exactly what she is going through because I had three brothers who treated me the same way and I got the cool from my mother. If I didn't have such a kind and understanding husband I would go crazy. — Total Failure.

Dear Failure: So the pattern repeats itself! Your too-sympathetic tune-in with your daughter, because of your own childhood, started the spoiling; and the boys lost out.

But it is not a lost cause. You can stand a rebuff or two; and you can say "I love you" in other ways, like little kind actions, a hand on the shoulder, a gentle tone of voice. Praise for your boys when praise is due; and some practice at holding that too-ready bitter tongue of yours.

(Doris can help you with that puzzling decision. Write to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.)

Commanding Lead for Cats

By MIKE BRADSHAW
Sports Staff

It appears as though the Belleville Bobcats could take their best of seven quarter-final series against the Peterborough Lions in the minimum number of games.

Last night at the Memorial Arena the Cats downed the Lions 5-2 to extend their serving lead to 3-0.

Jim Richardson, Belleville's leading scorer during the regular season, demonstrated that he had broken out of his playoff slump by scoring two goals and assisting on another. In the previous two games Jim had only one point, a goal.

"It was good to get those two," commented Richardson, "even though they weren't the greatest scoring plays of the season."

Jim's first goal was the result of a smooth passing combination around the visitors' net while the second occurred in a more scrambly fashion.

"The team still isn't playing as well as it can," added Richardson. "We're feeling the effects of a long, tough season, but we're starting to get it back together. Peterborough isn't the greatest team in the league and everyone knows it, so it's hard to get up to play for our games against them. Once we knock them out of the playoffs and start a series against Pickering or Markham we'll be playing top notch hockey again."

Rich Duncan, Peterborough's goalie, made some astounding saves on the Cats, especially in the first period.

Duncan appeared to have it

Watt, "we should have scored on him 10 more times than we did. He stopped me twice when I thought I had sure goals."

On many of the Cats' first period rushes that Duncan was beaten as, the locals missed the corners of the Lions' net by a matter of few inches. "A lot of his saves looked like more good luck than good management," added Watt.

The Hustlers found themselves stymied by Duncan in last night's game, though Sergeant picked up a pair of assists and Coates had a goal and one assist. The line had totalled 16 points in the first two playoff games including six goals.

Defensively Belleville came up with their best effort since the quarter-final series opened.

Tim Yohn was a standout for the Cats at his blue line position and Dave Taylor and Dave Flesch, also defencemen, played good games as well.

John gave Bob Moore, Belleville goalie, all the protection he needed. Tim not only checked effectively but took out Peterborough rushers with authority.

Peterborough had a total of 29 shots on Moore, but Bob

ST. LOUIS (AP) — St. Louis Blues said Sunday they are recalling right winger Phil Roberto from their Denver farm club of the Western Hockey League. The 25-year-old Roberto, injured in an off-season accident, missed the first 24 games of the National Hockey League campaign.

The game was even on scoreboard, at 1-1 after the opening 20 minutes as Peterborough's Jake Ayotte tallied.

play and Richardson adding the other.

In the third period, the two teams battled on even terms for the first 17 minutes, but Richardson scored at the 16:55 mark and Taylor got his open net goal two minutes later.

With less than 30 seconds remaining Larry Gibson beat Moore to finish the game's scoring at 5-2.

Toro's Share First On Gratton's Shutout

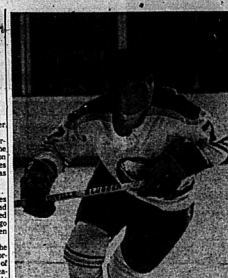
By IN MacLAINE
The CHAMPION PRESS
Gilles Gratton hasn't had much prior experience, but he firmly believes that shutouts for him are going to be hard to come by.

"There's no difference in an easy shutout or a tough shutout," the 21-year-old Toronto Toros goaltender said Monday night. "You still have to work hard."

Gratton was giving a postgame review of his first ever shutout as a pro following the Toros' 2-0 win over New England to climb into a first place tie with the Whalers in the World Hockey Association's Eastern Division.

Elsewhere, Winnipeg Jets got two goals from player-coach Bobby Hull in a 3-1 win over Chicago Cougars, Quebec Nordiques beat New Jersey Knights 7-4, Cleveland Crusaders edged Minnesota Fighting Saints 2-1, Houston Aeros defeated Vancouver Blazers 7-1 and Edmonton Oilers beat Los Angeles Sharks 5-3.

The Aeros, who are 12 points clear of Minnesota atop the Western Division after six straight wins, Edmonton is third, 2 Saturday night while New England blasted Chicago 3-0 Carleton handled the corner Gerry Cheevers and handled Vancouver 7-3.



Toronto 2 New England 0 .

"My hardest save was on a deflection off Rick Ley's shot from the point with about 30 seconds left in the second period," said Gratton, a Lasalle, Que., native who turned pro last year with Ottawa Nationals, Toronto's farm club in the area then fledgling WHA.

"The whole team played super hockey and that means a lot in getting a shutout," he said after stopping all 21 New England shots. He shared a shutout with veteran Les Binkley earlier this season, but the pint-sized Gratton can recall doing a solo effort was when Los Angeles scored on him with 10 seconds to go in the third period of a game last year.

Rick Smith's two third period goals broke up the scoreless game before a sellout house of 7,451 at Toronto's Varsity Arena.

"I missed a couple of real good chances in the second period but it's not as good in the first one," the young Toros left winger said. He credited his mates with a solid all the work. Guy Trottier and Wayne

World Indoor Record Set by Steve Smith

POCATELLO, Idaho (AP) — Steve Smith vaulted 18 feet, 1¾ inches for a world indoor record, closing out Saturday night's program after John Carlos, Wyoma Tyus and Paul Gibson also set world records at an International Track Association meet.

Gibson ran the 70-metre hurdles in 8.7 seconds, smashing the 9.5 record set by Bert Steines and Karl Schottes in 1956.

Miss Tyus zipped 70 metres in 8.3 seconds, eliminating a 1955 women's indoor record of 8.7 set by Christa Stubnick. And Carlos, running with a hand-aged leg, flashed 70 metres in 7.3 seconds, winning by a stride over Jamaican Ravelomanantsoa, who also broke the record with a 7.4 timing.

Ben Jipcho of Kenya nearly ran away and hid in the 1,500-metre run. He won his fifth straight race since turning pro and left 1971 Olympic gold medallist Dave Wottle a well-beaten second. Jipcho's time was three minutes, 40.7 seconds, while Wottle ran the race in 3:48.8.

Smith relied on the new pole and his father designed for his second title of the weekend. He acquired 18-1 Friday night in Salt Lake City, Utah, beating his previous world record.

The winning her second straight Canadian championship, the 20-year-old skier had runs of 38.29 and 39.93 seconds in the two-run slalom.

Judy Crawford, 22, of Toronto, also a member of Canada's World Cup ski team, was second in 40.22 and 40.27 seconds. Laurie Kreiner, 19, of Timmins, Ont., was third at 40.58 and 40.86 seconds.

Skiing in sunny, 25-degree weather, Phil Graves, 20, of Ottawa won his first major ski racer in capturing the men's slalom with runs of 46.03 and 47.03 seconds. Almost a full second back in second place was Rick Eaton, 20, of Ottawa, in 47.22 and 46.79 seconds.

Dave Irwin, 20, of Thunder Bay, Ont., finished third in 47.26 and 47.06 seconds.

This has been a comeback year for Miss Clifford following an early treatment after her surprise gold medal victory in the 1970 world championships.

In 1972, she broke both her heels, missed the Olympics and the national ski team.

Last year she started on the comeback trail and almost fell off by winning the Canadian title.

Germany Nordic Skiing Power

FALUN, Sweden (AP) — East Germany established itself as the leading power in Nordic skiing, as Gerhard Grimmer won the men's 50-kilometre cross-country race Sunday, the final event at the World Nordic Skiing Championships.

The victory was the fifth for the East German team and the second for Grimmer, who earlier won a gold medal as a member of the men's relay team and also a silver in the 15 kilometres. He finished nearly two minutes ahead of Stanislav Henych of Czechoslovakia and Thomas Magnuson of Sweden was third.

East Germany finished with five gold and six silver medals while the Soviet Union had three gold, one silver and three bronze medals.

Norway and Sweden each won one gold and one bronze. Czechoslovakia, two silver and two bronze; Finland, one silver and one bronze and Switzerland, two bronze medals.

Hans Schnieid of Prince George, B.C., finished 30th Sunday in two hours, 31 minutes and 19.39 seconds.

Grimmer's winning time was 2:19:45.36.

Ernie Lennie of Inuvik, N.W.T., was 46th in 2:36:40.64 and Ed Day of Prince George 43rd in 2:45:00.92.

In jumping Saturday, Peter Wilson of Ottawa wound up 36th with 131.6 points from leaps of 280 feet and 222. Richard Grady of Edmonton was 40th with 128 points and leaps of 271 and 231 followed by Richard Graves of Ottawa was 46th in 2:36:40.64 and Ed Day of Prince George 43rd in 2:45:00.92.

DETROIT (CP) — Detroit Wheels of the new World Football League announced Saturday they have signed Bubba Wyche, former quarterback with Saskatchewan Roughriders of the Canadian Football League. Looks Like Bears Will Pull It Off

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Smiths Falls Bears appear finally to have a big enough edge to become Central Junior Hockey League champions when the season's schedule ends Wednesday.

But right behind them there remains a bitter battle for the other playoff spots with Gloucester Rangers, Nepean Raiders and Pembroke Lumber Kings tied five points back of the pace. Pembroke ran away with the league last season.

The only remaining games are Tuesday when Pembroke it at Rockland against the nationals and Nepean is in Gloucester in a rescheduled game and Wednesday when the Bears make up a Dec. 4 postponement by playing the Warriors in Brockville.

The playoffs are scheduled to start Friday with the champions meeting the fourth-placed team and the second and third teams meeting in best-of-seven series.

The Bears made their position secure Sunday by beating Brockville 5-4 while Nepean missed a chance to gain a leg up when they tied Rockland 5-5. Pembroke joined the tie Sunday with a 7-6 win over Gloucester.

Brockville is 4th and Rockland sixth in the standings and out of the playoffs.

But although the Bears won, they suffered a heavy casualty when team captain George Thomson broke an arm in a fall during the second period. He probably will miss the opening playoff series at least.

Barry Kerfoot set the winning pace for the Bears with two goals. Don Robertson, Brian Trimble and Terry Fournier scored once each. Rick Bordeleau scored twice, Bob Mitchell and Jack Donald once for the Warriors.

In Rockland, the Nationals got two goals from Gilbert Lacavalier, league-leading scorer with a record 72 goals. Assists from Lac Charbonneau and one from Mike Perreault, Sid Tarschuk, Bruce Raymond, Randy Dordon and Scott MacLeod scored for Nepean.

The game in Pembroke turned into a brawl in the second period with Ray Antilla of Gloucester taking a game misconduct and match penalty and Mark Sullivan and Dave Rouse of Pembroke picking up game misconducts as a result.

In all the fracas produced 26 minutes in penalties to Gloucester and 34 to Pembroke with Antilla out of action until the league deals with his case.

Lakers Coming Through When It Counts Most

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Embroiled in the tightest fight for a division championship in the National Basketball Association, the Los Angeles Lakers won their third game in as many nights with a 100-90 victory over Golden State Sunday night.

That left the Lakers 1½ games behind idle Golden State Warriors in the Pacific Division while Chicago dropped 3½ games in back of Milwaukee Bucks in the Midwest. Because of poorer won-lost records, only the winner in the Pacific may make the playoffs while the top three in the Midwest should go.

Elsewhere in the NBA Sunday, Capital Bullets stopped Detroit Pistons 94-86, Boston Celtics defeated Atlanta Hawks 111-96, Milwaukee Bucks trimmed Seattle City-Omaha Kings 108-93, Cleveland Cavaliers upended Phoenix Suns 101-97, Houston Rockets beat Portland Trail Blazers 113-115, and Seattle SuperSonics defeated Philadelphia 76ers 115-105.

Lakers 100 Bulls 90

It was the fourth time in five meetings that Los Angeles defeated Chicago this season and the 12th time in a row the Lakers trounced the Bulls at the Forum. Gail Goodrich scored 28 for Los Angeles and Bob Love had 23 for Chicago.

Bullets 94 Pistons 84

to carry Capital past Detroit. Mike Riordan led the Bullets with 22 points and Dave Bing paced the Pistons with 18.

Celtics 111 Hawks 96

John Havlicek sparked a 16-3 Boston scoring burst early in the second half and finished with 32 points to lead the Celtics. Pete Maravich led Atlanta with 25 points.

Bucks 108 Kings 93

Lucius Allen scored 31 points and Bob Dandridge had 27 to spearhead Milwaukee.

Cavaliers 101 Suns 97

Len Wilkens' 19 points, including a layup with 29 seconds remaining, powered Cleveland. Keith Erickson and Neal Walk each scored 22 for Phoenix.

SuperSonics 115 76ers 105

Spencer Haywood's 27 points carried Seattle. Tom Van Arsdale was high for the 76ers with 26 points.

Rockets 113 Trail Blazers 115

Hockey Hilliard's layup on 28 points from Rudy Tomjanovich and 24 points by Calvin Murphy. Geoff Petrie topped the Trail Blazers with 23 points.

Three Grand Juries Ready With Watergate Indictments

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three federal grand juries are on the verge of returning indictments in the Watergate cases, meeting a deadline mentioned previously by special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski.

Already identified as targets of the grand jury investigations are several former high-ranking Nixon administration officials.

Jaworski has said on a number of occasions that the indictments should be returned by the end of February.

Former attorney-general John Mitchell, already on trial in New York on charges arising from a secret $200,000 contribution to President Nixon's re-election campaign, is believed to be a central figure in the Watergate cover-up investigation.

John Wilson, lawyer for former White House aides H. R. Haldeman and John Ehrlichman, said he would not be surprised if his clients were indicted.

Another possible target is Charles Colson, former White House special counsel and political troubleshooter, who was excused from testifying before the Watergate committee last fall on the grounds he believed he would be indicted.

In another Watergate-related development, Edward Hutchinson of Michigan, ranking Republican on the House of Representatives judiciary committee, said he believes the White House will co-operate with the committee's impeachment inquiry.

Also, John Andrews, who resigned in December after four years as a White House speech writer, said Nixon should be impeached for abuse of power and failure to have the Watergate scandal fully aired.

Almost certain to come this week were the findings of the grand jury investigating the Watergate break-in and cover-up.

Other investigations nearing completion include campaign contribution cases, campaign dirty tricks, the White House plumbers and the probe of the unrecorded and obliterated subpoenaed tapes.

So far, 25 individuals and nine corporations have been charged in state and federal Watergate cases; 18 individuals, including five defendants in the original Watergate break-in trial, pleaded guilty.

Four former administration officials and Nixon campaign aides pleaded guilty and agreed to co-operate with the prosecutors—ousted White House counsel John Dean; Jeb Stuart Magruder, former deputy director of the Nixon re-election committee; Frederick LaRue, a former White House and campaign aide; and Egil Krogh, former head of the plumbers unit.

In addition, Donald Segretti, employed as a political saboteur by the Nixon campaign committee, pleaded guilty to misdemeanor charges and agreed to aid the prosecutors all he knew.

Dwight Chapin, former presidential appointments secretary, was indicted on charges of lying to a grand jury about his knowledge of Segretti's activities. He pleaded not guilty and is scheduled to go on trial April 1.

Andrews was interviewed on tape for the Washington Post and Washington Straight Talk, to be shown tonight on Public Broadcasting Service stations.

He said he doesn't think Nixon is a criminal, but is chargeable for "offences of the abuse of power or permitting power to be delegated to be abused; offences of . . . negligence or dereliction in seeing that the laws are faithfully executed."

Domestic Air Fares Raised 10 Per Cent

MONTREAL (CP) — Domestic air fares increases averaging 10.5 per cent went into effect Sunday, a spokesman for Air Canada said.

The spokesman said the fare increases were filed with the Canadian transport commission Jan. 25 and were scheduled to come into effect 30 days later, barring any objection from the commission.

Regional airlines filed rate increases in November which took effect in December.

A one-way fare between Montreal and Toronto now costs $34, up from $30 while the new Vancouver-Montreal economy fare is $142, up from $131.

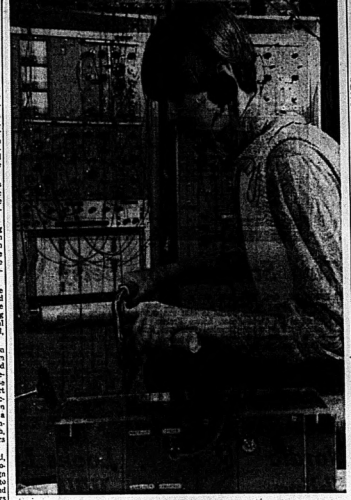
Economy fares for trips of more than 500 miles generally will increase by less than nine per cent. Higher percentage increases will apply to flights of less than 500 miles with actual price increases being up to $2. Rates are based on a standard boarding charge of $15 a ticket, plus mileage charges which decrease with distance traveled.

Two major discount rates, those of senior citizens and the standby youth rates, have been cut in half. The discount for senior citizens has been reduced to 10 per cent from 20 per cent while the standby youth fare has been cut to 20 per cent from 40 per cent.

The discounts are based on the normal economy fare.

Similar fare increase asked by CP Air also went into effect Sunday.

The two airlines have attributed the fare increases to rising fuel costs and other operating costs and it is the first increase on domestic routes since March 6, 1971.



Detroit Plans Big Cars Using Less Gasoline

DETROIT (AP) — U.S. automakers say they are going all out to produce big cars with improved fuel economy and hope to market fuel-saving devices within the next few months.

But most major fuel-economy improvements are still on the drawing boards. And many of the current devices will add to the price of the autos.

In the short term, the auto companies plan to offer rear axles that help save gas, smaller engines, radial tires and fuel gauges to let owners know when they're wasting gasoline.

"We had a four-hour meeting with Henry Ford II and others a few days ago and we went over how and what we are doing to get better economy," said Ford President Lee Iacocca. "We discussed radial tires, a lot of goodies and what the possibilities are for breakthroughs."

However, it's not really an earmuff but an easily clipped-on felt-covered monitor designed to replace the more cumbersome and less comfortable procedure in which three electrodes are attached to the subject's chest. Italian-Canadians Organize Congress

OTTAWA (CP) — Encouraged by federal cabinet ministers, the National Congress of Italian-Canadians (NCIC) was created Sunday to foster ethnic unity.

The new multicultural awareness among the one million Italian-Canadians was welcomed by External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp and Dr. Stanley Haidasz, secretary of state for multiculturalism.

About 70 delegates from five regions of Canada gathered to organize the congress, helped financially by a $9,500 federal multicultural grant.

A provisional constitution says the primary purpose of the congress is "to foster the evolution of a better Canadian society by promoting mutual understanding, goodwill and co-operation between Canadians of Italian and of other origins."

Goodwill messages came from Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau, from Baron Maurice de Strobel, the Italian ambassador, and from ethnic associations similar to the NCIC—the Canadian Polish Congress, the Ukrainian Canadian Committee of German-Canadians.

Mr. Sharp praised the NCIC Sunday for its precise definitions of multiculturalism and ethnic consciousness as prerequisites for full integration into Canadian society.

"You have rejected the notion that a national congress or society should be a cocoon, shutting its members from interaction with other groups," he said.

Mr. Sharp said the size of Canada's Italian community indicates the need for greater representation "in senior posts of government," because there is "growing awareness and increasing respect for the values of a plural society."

Disputes peppered the Saturday morning session when delegates objected to the formation of an electoral committee but the congress was short-lived.

Sundayt he NCIC acclaimed Alfred Campo, 69, of Montreal, chairman of Petrofina Canada Ltd., as its first president.

Truck Burns

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — A fire destroyed a tanker truck and crop sprayer Saturday and blocked Highway 115 for about 10 hours.

Firemen from St. of Richmond Hill, Ont., escaped the flames of the truck filled with 2,000 gallons of gasoline—just before the fire.

Planned Crown Oil Company Similar to Firms Elsewhere

OTTAWA (CP) — With its proposal to set up a Crown-owned oil company as an instrument in keeping behind similar actions already taken by most of the world's oil-producing countries and many of the big gest companies.

Legislation is expected in the new parliamentary session starting Wednesday to set up a national petroleum corporation with powers to explore, do research and ultimately refine and distribute products.

Prime Minister Trudeau said Dec. 6 the company would be able to invest $25 million in the next five years in the Alberta oil sands alone, as well as launch other projects.

But many countries are far ahead of Canada in government-owned oil companies.

Several Arab oil states own producing firms or share ownership with private corporations. Others, including Venezuela, now are taking steps to nationalize their oil industries.

The government's energy white paper released last June says that among consuming states, "countries with national oil companies are more nearly the rule today rather than the exception."

It says that although North American attitudes have limited government participation in industry, "most other parts of the world do not have the same ideological inhibitions against government initiatives and many nations look with favor upon government ownership in energy industries."

Energy Minister Donald Macdonald has noted that many of the foreign-owned oil companies operating in Canada are actually owned by foreign governments.

Among the largest examples:

—British Petroleum, almost half-owned by the British government, one of the top 10 oil companies in Canada.

—The French government owns 100 per cent of one company whose subsidiary, Aquitaine, operates in Canada. And it owns 35 per cent of another which owns Total Petroleum (North America) Ltd., also operating in Canada.

—Italy's national oil company, Ente Nazionale Idrocarburi, is the largest wholly-owned government oil firm in the world, the energy report says.

—Norway has set up the Norwegian State Oil Co. to develop its North Sea reserves.

—Australia has moved to set up a national petroleum and minerals authority, with exploration, transportation and refining powers.

A major benefit of government ownership, which assumed greater importance with the new era of higher and serious Arab supply and price practices last fall, is the inside information it gives governments on the operations of the business.

Officials say the current state of rumors about oil company and windfall profits reveals the need for information more than ever.

The energy report says most countries get into the business for reasons not directly related to economics.

Security of supply and the role of foreign-owned companies is impact on the management and growth of national economies often are important.

Mr. Trudeau cited the security-of-supply issue, saying the proposed national petroleum corporation "will be an instrument for ensuring reliable and adequate supplies of oil to meet present and future needs . . ."

Venezuela, which supplies about 40 per cent of Canada's imported oil, has already said it wants to deal with a government agency in any arrangements for guaranteed supplies.

Session Opens Wednesday
Most MPs Back in Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP)—After a six-week recess, most MPs are back in their offices today ready to open a new session of Parliament and to renew the search for solutions to pressing national problems such as inflation.

They meet briefly Tuesday to end formally the old session which opened Jan. 4, 1973, and which covered more than 200 sitting days. The new session begins Wednesday with a throne speech outlining the latest government legislative proposals.

The new session is expected to focus heavily on economic issues, with inflation leading the way.

"Inflation is the single biggest issue," Prime Minister Trudeau said in an interview late last week. "It's the one on which the thrust of all our policy will be directed . . . Our attack . . . will be many-pronged."

Inflation rose to more than nine per cent during 1973, the highest level in about 22 years, but was overtaken as the dominant parliamentary issue by the fear of winter oil shortages and emphasis on new energy policies.

A combination of factors—including mild weather in the East and better-than-anticipated oil supplies, since have eliminated most worries of fuel shortages this winter.

As a result, the opposition parties, the Progressive Conservatives in particular, plan to use inflation as their prime weapon against the minority Liberal government.

Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield criss-crossed the country during the recess to emphasize the dangers of an ever-rising cost of living.

Mr. Trudeau has said a key goal of his government will be to increase food supplies, reduce one cause of inflation, and to ensure a fair return for farmers.

"We'll obviously have legislation to that effect," he said.

Cuba Releases Church Plane

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — An airliner carrying church volunteers back to the United States from missionary work in the Caribbean flew here Sunday after it was released from custody in Cuba. The plane was forced down by Cuban fighter planes Saturday for allegedly flying too low.

The release of the plane, its crew and 32 passengers came after the U.S. state department said it had to guarantee for payment of $6,650 to be Cuban.

The department said American officials understood that the money was to cover maintenance of the plane, care of its passengers and crew and the cost of forcing it down.

The passengers and three crew members, all reported in good condition after landing in Fort Lauderdale, refused to talk with reporters.

The plane, used in international missionary work by the Pawnee Avenue Church of God in Wichita, Kan., is reported to have received permission to fly over Cuba en route to the U.S.

Glen Shaver Sr. of Pompano Beach, who identified himself as the father of the plane's pilot, Donald Shaver, said that while in Cuba the plane's crew and passengers were detained in a hotel room and that their lives were never threatened.

Regan Calls Nova Scotia Vote

HALIFAX (CP) — Premier Gerald Regan will seek a mandate Tuesday, April 2, to continue his fight against rising fuel prices and the two opposition parties will try to topple the Liberal government by criticizing Nova Scotia's economic performance.

Premier Regan, whose Liberals took office in October, 1970, announced dissolution of the Nova Scotia legislature in a statement Saturday.

Standing in the 46-seat house was Liberals 26, Progressive Conservatives 18, New Democratic Party one, vacant one.

NDP Leader Jeremy Akerman and Conservative Leader John Buchanan both said Mr. Regan should have held another session of the legislature before calling an election.

Mr. Regan said the problem of rising fuel costs can only be solved by "long, hard negotiations" with the federal government.

Both Mr. Buchanan and Mr. Akerman said their attacks would centre on the performance of the economy.

He will attempt to form the second Liberal government since 1956, the year Robert Stanfield, now national Conservative leader, ended 23 years of Liberal rule.

North Digs Out After Gale

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Residents of Northern Ontario spent the weekend digging out from under the remnants of one of the worst storms of the winter.

Most roads were reported clear and bare Sunday night and schools were expected to open in most areas today, police said.

Schools were closed in Sudbury and North Bay Friday as up to 18 inches of snow fell in some areas.

The ministry of transportation and communications reported roads in southern Ontario were bare as were most highways in the north with the exception of a few snow-packed sections.

Waffle Plans Candidates

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Mel Watkins, one of the founders of the Waffle group which split from the New Democratic Party last year, said Sunday the group hopes to run candidates in the next Ontario election.

The University of Toronto professor was here to speak to students of the London Waffle.

119 Pigs Die

ORILLIA, Ont. (CP) — A spot inspection by Ontario Humane Society personnel Saturday turned up 119 dead pigs among a truckload of swine being shipped from the West to the Stratford area.

Bruce Parry, a humane society inspector, said the shipment of 438 pigs had been bought by Sheldon Hahn of Sebringville, Ont., and were being transported from Lloyd minister, Sask., by Lambert Livestock Farm Transport.

The truck used was a semi-open trailer with slatted sides covered with a tarpaulin.

Mr. Parry said the pigs had huddled together for warmth and 119 had either frozen to death or suffocated.

He said the animals were worth about $5,000.

Plants Bombed

GUADALAJARA, Mexico (AP) — Seven bombs exploded in Guadalajara and Oaxaca Saturday night and Sunday morning, authorities said. Three of the targets were American firms—Pepsi-Cola, Coca-Cola and Union Carbide.

No casualties or arrests were reported.

Try Short Week

TORONTO (CP) — Provincial police in five Ontario detachments started Sunday an experimental switch to a four-day work week.

OPP officials said 160 officers are taking part in the 28-week trial-period changeover to four shifts of 10 hours from five shifts of eight hours each week.

Settle Strike

FLINT, Mich. (AP)—A two-day strike involving more than 1,500 workers at four Flint-area General Motors parts division plants ended Sunday night when workers voted 266 to 2 to accept a local contract settlement.

Boat Missing

HALIFAX (CP) — There was "no luck" Sunday in the search for four men and their pleasure craft, missing a trip between Louisburg, N.S., and St. John's, Nfld., a spokesman for the air-sea rescue centre said.

The spokesman said two aircraft would be involved in the search today.

Military Device May Help Blind

BOSTON (AP) — A military device used by battlefield soldiers to convert night to day may aid persons with a blinding eye disease to see in dim light, researchers reported Sunday.

Initial studies involving 10 patients at the Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary here proved so successful that field studies with prototypes will begin soon. The developer hopes to have a marketable device ready in less than two years.

The light amplification device was developed for the military over the last eight years by International Telephone and Telegraph Corp. (ITT) and the Army Night Vision Laboratory in Fort Belvoir, Va.

The amplifier was used by night patrols and air rescue teams in Southeast Asia and attracted the attention of Dr. Eliot Berson of the Boston hospital, who thought it might be useful to patients with retinitis pigmentosa.

Berson, who worked with Arnold Rabin and Leathem Mehafey, says studies show that the devices amplify light sufficiently to give patients with this disease the equivalent of their best daytime vision under dim to poor light conditions such as moonlight.

Retinitis pigmentosa is a hereditary, progressive eye condition, which usually leads to almost total blindness over a period of years.

The retina, an extension of the optic nerve in the back of the eyeball which sends sight signals to the brain, contains light receivers called rods and cones. The rods are the eye's nighttime system and recognize dim tones and the cones see brighter lights, natural or artificial.

Forms of retinitis pigmentosa irregular both rods and cones, Berson says, but the effect is more pronounced in night vision because there are 16 times more rods than cones in the eye.

Davis Says Expansion Curbs Must Yield to House Needs

OTTAWA (CP) — Some of Ontario's municipalities should be prepared to make sacrifices in order to help solve the province's housing shortage, Premier William Davis said Saturday.

"As people situated in a house with a roof over their head—we can't afford to be selfish and not continue to provide the same kind of facilities for others," the premier said.

Mr. Davis' remarks at his cabinet ministers attended the latter's in a series of question-and-answer sessions with the public, sponsored by the Progressive Conservative party.

He said many municipalities were concerned about limiting growth and density but concessions may have to be made and red tape cut in order to resolve an acute housing shortage.

"We can't have things both ways on every occasion," Mr. Davis said. "People who are already comfortably ensconced in a house have to recognize at some point that their children might want a home of their own, too."

The premier added that there had to be some sort of saw-off . . . in order to get more (building) lots on the market."

John Clement, minister of the consumer and commercial affairs, said the province would have to go to a single liquor bottle in order to introduce returnable bottles to the province.

Expects Child

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — Gabrielle Dorbolo of nearby Dowling says she is looking forward to visiting Sudbury General Hospital in July.

Mrs. Dorbolo, whose daughter Catherine died in that hospital last September, is expecting to give birth this summer and says she has no apprehension about staying there.

Club Liquor Laws May Be Changed

OTTAWA (CP) — Ontario might revise its liquor legislation to make it easier on some types of clubs and tougher on others.

John Clement, minister of consumer and commercial affairs, said as much Saturday at a question-and-answer period sponsored by the Progressive Conservative party.

Mr. Clement agreed with a Royal Canadian Legion member who said it is ridiculous that he should be allowed to bring a guest into a legion club and the guest not be allowed to buy a drink.

But he said there are other types of clubs operating under the guise of social clubs who charge only a few cents a month and are really nothing more than bars.

The minister said it is unfair that they should compete with licensed business establishments.

"They are in open competition with the tourist industry and earn their living primarily during the tourist season.

He was applauded by an audience of about 200 when he said that "consumerism really don't want stores open 24 hours a day, seven days a week."

Agriculture Minister William Stewart said that rising food costs are making the public increasingly aware of the value of farmland.

"I've heard more about saving farmland in the last two years than I did in the previous 10 years combined," he said.

He said many farmers sold choice farmland to developers and other non-farmers because of a disenchantment with their own standard of living.

Mr. Stewart said rising prices and government initiatives such as relieving succession duties on family farms have improved the farmers' lot.

But he warned that farmers "can't have their cake and eat it too."

They can't expect cash subsidies to keep valuable farmland out of the hands of developers.

There isn't enough money in the provincial coffers for that, he said.

Housing Minister Robert Welch was told by Peter Reilly, federal MP for Ottawa West, that public housing projects are turning into "welfare ghettos."

Mr. Reilly said the Ontario Housing Corporation's rent policies should be altered so that people can save enough to get out of public housing.

Mr. Welch said the matter was under consideration by the government.

IN MEMORIAM

HORTON, Harry Milroy — In loving memory of our dear father who passed away suddenly Feb. 24, 1972. If we could say,
If we could say,
Hale Milroy, in the same old way;
We'd hear your voice and see you smile,
But oh, how we miss you,
Only time will tell.
—Lovingly missed by Mom and Dad.

In memory of a loving memory of a dear brother and uncle, Harry Milroy Horton, who entered rest Feb. 24, 1972.
Time flies but not forgotten,
As it flies our memories rest,
Those who think of him today,
Are those who loved him best.
—Sadly missed by sister-in-law Clare and family.

CLAPPE — In loving memory of Mary Ann Clappe who passed away one year ago today, Feb. 26th, 1973.

For perhaps it's just as well.
We'll meet you when we're sleeping,
To you be loved as well.

Editors Meet

TORONTO (CP) — Canadians and Americans share a continent more or less in harmony but sometimes look at the world through different eyes and don't fully understand each other. A group of newspaper publishers and senior editors met here late last week in an effort to find out why.

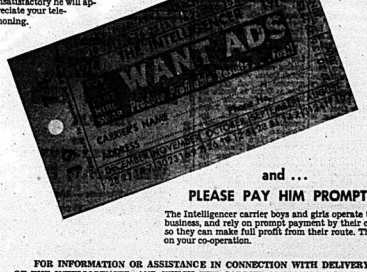
If any conclusions were reached at the three-day seminar on Canada-United States relations of the International Press Institute (IPI), it was that both countries will continue to remain separate but inseparable.

Discussions were informal. Causes of friction and national concerns between the two countries were examined in the hope that information obtained would be reflected in understanding news coverage in the future.

AFFAIRS CAUSE STRESS

LONDON (CP) — Extramarital affairs are common by middle-aged men lead to emotional stress during intercourse and sometimes to impotence, Dr. Malcolm Carruthers says. "One of the penalties of living a double life is that you stand the risk of living only half as long," he added.

LONGER SEASON PLANNED



STRATFORD-UPON-AVON, England (CP) — The Royal Shakespeare Company's forthcoming season here is to last 10½ months—longer than ever before. It will include more works in The Other Place, a small theatre close to the main Stratford building. The season opens with King John, a play which has not been given a full Stratford production for 17 years.

Canadian Consumers Test

These panel members representing a cross section of Canadian consumer, are taking part in a national television quiz called the Canadian Consumers Test on CBC television, Tuesday, Feb. 26 at 8:30 p.m. The one-hour special program is designed to give viewers valuable information on buying during these inflationary times. Panel members representing senior citizens are: L.R. Mrs. Bonnie Burnett, Edmonton; Mrs. Winifred Philip, Port Perry; and Harry Ward, Toronto. Representing consumer mothers of babies are L.R. Mrs. Doreen Kissack, Winnipeg. Mrs. Susanne Bilodeau, Ottawa, and Mrs. Debbie Moore, Port Erie.

Mistakes a Part of Learning

OTTAWA–(CP)—The CBC is learning from its mistakes and is determined to correct them, CBC president Laurent Picard said Friday.

But he told the Canadian Radio-Television Commission (CRTC) that no progress is made in developing new and better programs without making mistakes.

At the end of week-long CRTC hearings on the CBC's application for renewal of all its broadcasting and network licences, Mr. Picard promised improvements.

The CBC would strengthen its entertainment programs and work harder to depict the regional interests and multicultural character of the country.

It also would reduce unnecessary violence in television shows.

The CBC's radio, television and network licences expire March 31 and Mr. Picard appeared at the closing CRTC session with two CBC vice-presidents and the heads of the English and French services.

CRTC chairman Pierre Juneau said that if a decision on the renewal applications is not ready by March 31, some way will be found to permit the CBC to operate, but he was noncommittal about the possibility of attaching conditions to the renewal of the licences.

He concluded the hearing with praise for the CBC, saying the CRTC does not want to embarrass it or make its role more difficult. He also said the submissions were the "best we've ever had" at a CRTC hearing.

The CRTC received more than 300 briefs, many complaining about specific aspects of CBC activity. Most supported renewal of the licences, however.

One of the most common demands was for elimination of commercials on CBC-TV. But Mr. Picard said that would cost $80 million a year and had a very low priority on his list.

He also said little encouragement to groups who want the CBC to begin multilingual broadcasting. Though Canada's multi-national character provided a wealth of good ideas, the CBC's mandate from Parliament was to broadcast in English and French.

Parliament would have to provide the authority to broadcast in other languages. There were a few exceptions where long precedents left established the practice, such as radio broadcasts in Cape Breton.

Mr. Picard also said it would be impossible to try to combine French and English newscasts as author-broadcaster Pierre Berton proposed.

Besides the technical problems of bilingual news programs, English-and French-speaking Canadians differed too much in their viewpoints to make such a project feasible.

Lister Sinclair, CBC executive vice-president, promised that the CBC will recognize equality of women in hiring and in the employee benefit plans.

He said "We'll do what we can" about demands that more Canadian films be shown, but there are many difficulties involved.

Mr. Picard said the CBC has cancelled a number of U.S. import shows because of excessive portrayal of violence, but he added that violence is part of life and cannot be eliminated from news reports or classic drama.

Mr. Juneau said the CBC's English-language TV budget is $104 million, only $9 million more than the privately-owned CTV television network budget. The CTV budget of $95 million includes CTV's profit margin.

Yet, he said, CBC-TV produces far more Canadian programs and covers 95 per cent of the population, compared to 65 per cent for CTV.

Cast to Be All Canadian

TORONTO — Herman Geiger-Torel, general director of the Canadian Opera Company, has announced all-Canadian casting for the double bill of Bela Bartok's Bluebeard's Castle and Maurice Ravel's L'Heure Espagnole -- brilliant contemporary one-act operas which will open the Company's 26th season, September 6 at O'Keefe Centre. Both are new productions and the Bartok is a Canadian premiere.

Bluebeard's Castle will feature the outstanding young Quebec-born bass, Claude Corbeil, as Bluebeard, and mezzo-soprano Lois Vernon, British Columbian star of the Vienna Opera, as Judith.

Corbeil, who has appeared with some of the world's leading opera houses, including London's Covent Garden and the New York City Opera, already has acquired a repertoire of roles ranging from Figaro in Mozart's Marriage of Figaro to Valline in La Boheme, Basilio in The Barber of Seville and Don Fernando in Fidelio. In the French-language repertoire his credits include Faust and Les Contes d'Hoffmann. Recently he starred with soprano Gwenlynn Little in the CBC-TV production of Pergolesi's La Serva Padrona.

For the past two season, Lyn Vernon has been the leading mezzo-soprano of the Zurich Opera, where she has appeared in such disparate roles as Ulrica in Verdi's Un Ballo in Maschera and Barbara in Janacek's Katya Kabunova. In guest appearances with Palermo's Teatro Massimo, the Australian Opera and Geneva's Grand Theatre, the young singer has won applause as Carmen Octavian (Der Rosenkavalier) and Waltraute in Gotterdammerung. This spring she will be featured with Jon Vickers in the Guelph Spring Festival production of Britten's The Rape of Lucretia.

Bluebeard's Castle, with its score of great dramatic intensity, is one of the masterworks of the 20th century lyric theatre. A stupefying exploration of the themes of suffering and power, the opera tells of Bluebeard and his fourth wife Judith, who prevails on her husband to give her the keys to the seven doors of his castle. The revelations are filled with terror and unearthly beauty.

Starring in Ravel's delicious modern opera buffa, L'Heure Espagnole, are Gwenlynn Little as Concepcion, Alan Crofoot as Torquemada, Peter Milne as Don Inigo Gomez, Avo Kittask as Ramiro, and John Arab alternating with Emile Belcourt as Gonzalve.

Printmakers to Have $30,000 Competition

All artists in Ontario have been invited by the Ontario Arts Council to enter a new $30,000 printmaking competition, EDITIONS I, aimed at supporting and encouraging the art of printmaking throughout the province.

Up to 30 artists will be offered an honorarium of $1,000 to produce an edition of at least 25 prints and provide the Council with 10 prints from the edition with which the Council will organize exhibitions, tours and other special events.

The competition is open to Ontario artists working in any print medium suitable for multiple reproduction including lithography, silkscreen, blockprint, etching and mixed media.

A color catalogue of selected entries will be produced to promote and stimulate sales of the prints to the public. All entries should reach the Council by May 17, and will be juried by a panel of three.

Further details and entry forms are available from the Ontario Arts Council office, 151 Bloor West, Toronto.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Tuesday, Feb. 25

Aries (March 21-April 19) You will be tempted today to spend lavishly in order to make a favorable impression on another. Don't—it isn't worth the price.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) Avoid using flattery to gain your ends in dealing with others. Be frank and honest, and actually say what's on your mind.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) Your feelings are very vulnerable today and you are likely to read more into something someone says than is really meant.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) Early in the morning you're likely to get off on the wrong foot and this will affect your mood for most of the day. Later you'll calm down.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) An increase of importance to you is in some doubt at this time. Be patient and use your head; the results will be favorable to you.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If you're buying or selling anything today don't jump at the first offer. A little bargaining is required in order to get your best price.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You will be better able to handle business situations later in the day. Adjust your discontents to take advantage of this.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Give yourself ample time today to weigh and ponder big decisions. You won't do as well if you impatiently blurt out your answers.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Steer clear of friends who are more interested in a good time than in being productive. Otherwise you'll neglect something that needs doing.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan.19) Try to arrange your schedule today so you have some time to yourself for relaxation in the afternoon. You're entitled to some fun.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Take care of your important outside activities as early as possible. Once they're out of the way, centre your attention on family matters.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) Before you buy anything today ask yourself if this is something that you really need now, particularly if it's a luxury item.

Viruses, Toxins Cause Cirrhosis

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What causes cirrhosis of the liver, other than alcoholism? If a person has cirrhosis which is not from alcohol, would alcoholic beverages in moderate amounts be harmful?—M.M.

Yes, there are other causes: infection by viruses or other organisms; faulty nutrition, obstruction in the duct through which bile would flow; toxins from bowel infection; irritation from certain drugs.

Your second question: the chemical breakdown of alcohol in the system does not place an intolerable substance which can add to the liver damage. Hence, no one with cirrhosis, regardless of the cause, should consume any alcohol.

Poor circulation, faults in foot structure, dietary deficiencies all contribute to pain in the leg cramps. Remedies therefore include medication, exercises or other means of improving circulation, correction of foot defects (and sometimes footwear), and moderate change in diet. Your cramps are not unusual. I think you'd best get your doctor's help.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: About six years ago I had a cast and treated with x-ray for about 15 minutes. It was on the base of my big toe so I lay on my stomach and the doctor said to hold my foot and be still.

I didn't know I was alone and at one time passed. I asked how much longer. I received no answer and turned and saw I was alone and I felt they'd forgotten me.

I could see a nurse through a glass window operating the machine and I called to her but she ignored me.

When the machine was turned off I was too stunned to question. If she'd read the time wrong. Now I have pains in that foot at night and sometimes they wake me.

Could she have used too much radiation, or not? I can't help wondering if I got cancer of the bone or anything because of this.—Mrs. R.V.

I strongly suspect that you have a severe case of runaway nerves. First of all, for warts on the feet, the usual habit is to use penetrating intensity used for deep x-ray therapy. Second, the machine does not turn itself off and is not turned on as soon or as long as the operator wants. You had received enough radiation to destroy the "cancer of the bone or something" in a single exposure, an x-ray burn would have been apparent.

To set your mind at ease, you might have either your doctor or a podiatrist see if anything is wrong with the bone—which I doubt very much ever. But if it hurts only at night, that's rather odd, and certainly doesn't sound like bone cancer.

Note to Mrs. I.F.E.: Ophthalmologists refer to one of the eyes; ophthalmic surgery is eye surgery. An ophthalmologist is a doctor who specializes soley in eye care. As to the things you've been told about cataract surgery, they are wrong. Your doctor can clear up your worries in two minutes if you'll just tell him about them.

FLAG REDESIGNED

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — The Newfoundland government has unveiled its design for a new provincial flag. The emblem retains the Union Jack, symbol of the province's British history and ties, in the upper left-hand corner and displays the provincial coat of arms in its fly. Win at Bridge

By Oswald and James Jacoby

Jim: "The opposite of the single-suit play has to be the all-suit play where declarer must consider all four suits."

Oswald: "Here is one from this year's blue-ribbon pairs. Dealer's four-spade call was one of those bids that just should not be made. He had passed at two spades. When he bid four he was trapping his partner."

Jim: "His decision was a good one. Four spades can't be beaten. What happened?"

Oswald: "West started with three rounds of clubs, which had to ruff the third one in dummy. East discarded a heart. Then South led a diamond to his queen. West won and led the suit back. South won with his jB. Cashed his ace of trumps. Led a trump to dummy's king and tried to discard his 10 and trey of hearts on the good diamonds. As he explained later, he was very unlucky since West held the long trump and East the long diamond."

Jim: "The bad luck was that South forgot about the fourth suit. He should have laid down his ace of hearts before playing ace and king of trumps. The singleton king would have dropped. South could have drawn all the trumps, entered dummy with the queen of hearts to make his last heart discard on the king of diamonds and claimed his contract."

Islamic Nations Want Jerusalem

LAHORE, Pakistan (AP)—Leaders of the world's Islamic nations have declared that Arab recovery of the Old City of Jerusalem is "a paramount and unchanging prerequisite for lasting peace in the Middle East."

They pledged "all means available" to the recovery of occupied Arab lands, and termed the return of "full national rights of the Palestinian peoples" as the "essential and fundamental condition" for peace in the Middle East.

The statements were in the Declaration of Lahore, issued Sunday at the end of a three-day summit by the leaders of 37 Moslem nations and of the Palestinian Liberation Organization.

"No agreement, protocol or understanding which postulates the continuance of Israeli occupation of the Holy City of Jerusalem or its transfer to any non-Arab sovereignty or makes it the subject of bargaining or concessions will be acceptable to the Islamic countries," the Moslem leaders said.

But the final statement did not go as far as a resolution passed Saturday which condemned the United States by name for its support of Israel.

The conference set up an eight-nation committee to prepare plans for co-operation to ease the economic problems of poor Islamic states and to battle "exploitation" by developed states.

Among the committee's goals were "the eradication of poverty, disease and ignorance from the Islamic countries" and "mitigating the current economic difficulties of the developing countries due to recent increase in prices."

No Reason to Believe More Involved in Case

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — An assistant United States attorney says he has no reason to believe that more than two persons were involved in the kidnapping of Atlanta newspaper editor Reg Murphy.

William Williams, 33, a contractor from nearby Lilburn, and his wife Ruth, 26, are being held in connection with the abduction of Murphy, editor of the Atlanta Constitution, who was released unharmed Friday night.

Assistant U.S. Attorney William Gaffney said: "At this time, I know of no reason to conclude that there were more than two people involved."

Murphy said he was told by Williams that he was part of the American Revolutionary Army, a previously unknown group which Williams claimed had 223 members and six colonels.

Williams and his wife were arrested early Saturday, within hours after Murphy was released. To obtain Murphy's freedom, the newspaper paid a $700,000 ransom. FBI agents said "a voluminous amount of U.S. currency" was found in the Williams home.

Economic Council Report Flays 'Confrontation Federalism'

TORONTO (CP) — Relationship between the provinces and Ottawa has deteriorated to the extent that co-operative federalism has been transformed into "confrontation federalism," says a report prepared for the Ontario Economic Council.

The report by Joe Martin, a specialist in intergovernmental affairs, was one of five commissioned by the council from various specialists at a cost of $56,000.

They dealt with the evolution of policy in Ontario from 1945 in federal-provincial relations, municipal-provincial relations, the economy, social services and resources.

Their basic conclusion: Ontario faces a troubled future unless fundamental changes are made at both the federal and provincial levels.

Specific conclusions are:

—Higher taxes combined with higher debts and dramatically reduced services might be in store for Ontario if the federal government doesn't revamp its tax-sharing policies.

—The Ontario government proclaims its support for strong municipal governments but pursues policies that are gradually wiping away municipal autonomy.

—Major industries would probably have located in less prosperous parts of the province if Ontario hadn't instituted regional government in Toronto in 1954.

—Citizens thwarted by a growing bureaucracy find voting an occasion of frustration which could contribute to the growth of apathy, alienation and violence.

The Ontario Economic Council is a provincial advisory body funded by the government but traditionally considered autonomous.

In a statement, the council said the controversial reports were the opinions of the authors and not necessarily those of the council.

Besides Mr. Martin, who prepared the study on the federal and provincial relations, the other authors were D. R. Richmond, senior council economist who prepared the report on economics; social policy consultant Vernon Lang, on social development; political scientist Lionel Feldman, on provincial-municipal relations; and W. R. Smithies, a consultant on natural resource economics on resource economics.

They praised some provincial initiatives such as the pursuit of industrial expansion in the post-war period but issued blunt warnings in other areas of federal-provincial government endeavors.

Economic Plight Now Top Issue

LONDON (CP) — The country's perilous economic situation has emerged as the dominant last-minute issue in Thursday's British election.

Following the announcement of Britain's biggest-ever monthly trade deficit, the governing Conservatives reminded voters that all through the campaign they have been warning about the gravity of the economic crisis.

The Tories also argue that only a big parliamentary majority for them will allow the country to achieve prosperity once more.

Labor party chief Harold Wilson said Monday night the foreign trade deficit for January—when exports fell 383 million ($242.6 million) behind imports—was final proof of how since 1970 the Tories had ruined the payments surplus achieved by the Labor government in the preceding six years.

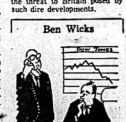
The Liberals, revelling in more poll indications of their increasing popularity, also condemned the Tories over the trade figures. Liberal Leader Jeremy Thorpe went as far as to predict a landslide for his party Thursday.

However, the spectre of another election was raised by Prime Minister Heath in a fresh effort to deflate the much-vaunted Liberal threat.

If the Thursday poll brings no clear decision by the voters between the two major parties, there will be another election "sooner rather than later," Heath said.

The Tories insisted that the record-January trade deficit resulted from the rocketing cost of oil and other imported raw materials, and that Labor would be incapable of handling the threat to Britain posed by such dire developments.

Rationing Of U.S. Gas Unlikely



WASHINGTON (CP) — "I do not expect to be impeached," said President Nixon who also repeated that he will not resign. And he said the chances for gasoline rationing in the United States are less than 50-50.

In a 38-minute news conference Monday night, his first in four months, the president also disclosed he had been asked to testify before a Watergate grand jury but "respectfully declined to do so" on constitutional grounds.

Pollution Fighters Under Fire

TORONTO (CP) — Samuel Cass, Metropolitan Toronto road commissioner, today slammed environmental groups for providing exaggerated and one-sided reports on major highway projects.

He told the Ontario Good Roads Association convention that intelligent appraisal of new projects has been made difficult by false claims and "gross exaggerations made by certain groups of environmentalists."

He said Pollution Probe, the University of Toronto-based organization, has indulged in "confrontation tactics of dubious effectiveness" rather than presenting open-minded and objective opinion.

In the United States, a Washington-based group recently criticized the state highway department for using bromacil, a roadside weed-control chemical, which the group said was detrimental to wild life, Mr. Cass said.

Later testing showed that a Bobwhite Quail, weighing 4.3 ounces, was not affected by doses of the chemical equal to that found on 125 million pounds of treated gravel.

Brussels Meet Planned

WASHINGTON (CP) — Officials from 12 major oil-consuming countries decided Monday that a series of working meetings be needed to resolve the fuller questions left by an international oil conference here two weeks ago. The next such session will be held March 13-14 in Brussels under Belgian chairmanship, they agreed.

Belfast Bar Bombed

BELFAST (AP) — A bomb blasted a crowded bar in the Belfast suburb of Ligoniel Monday and at least 13 persons were reported injured by police. Eyewitnesses said police said the bomb was planted in a car stolen two hours earlier. The explosion was the work of the Ulster Freedom Fighters, a fanatical group of Protestant guerrillas, authorities said.

Picture Held for Ransom

LONDON (AP) — Scotland Yard says it believes the Patricia Hearst kidnaping in the United States inspired the theft of a priceless Vermeer painting from a London showplace mansion. A caller to a London newspaper demanded a ransom of food worth $1.15 million to be given to the poor on the troubled Caribbean island of Grenada.

Tourists Go Astray

TEL AVIV (AP) — A busload of American Jewish visitors to Israel went astray on the Suez canal today and was captured by the Egyptian army, the Israeli military command announced. Officials said 26 persons were in the group. A military communique said the group would be freed as part of the Israeli-Egyptian disengagement agreement worked out last month.

Mad Rush Pushes Gold Up to $184

PARIS (Reuter) — A "mad rush" of speculators pushed gold to a new record high price of $184 an ounce at the opening of the small Paris gold market today, dealers said.

They added the price was being carried forward on the crest of an international wave of speculative demand aggravated by concern over domestic inflation.

They said publicity given to fantastic rises in the value of gold was making the situation worse with French investors resorting to their traditional antiinflation safeguard and driving up the price of gold and coins.

Fourth Week of Anguish Begins for Hearst Family

HILLSBOROUGH, Calif. (AP) — A fourth week of anguished waiting has started for the family of Patricia Hearst, a shaggy heiress Patricia Hearst.

"There is nothing to do and it is frustrating, just waiting," said Jay Bosworth, son-in-law of Miss Hearst's father, newspaper executive Randolph A. Hearst. "We feel she is still alive and healthy."

The Symbionese Liberation Army (SLA) has not replied to an offer of another $4 million in food in exchange for the release of the 20-year-old University of California coed.

Hearst and a Hearst family foundation already have made $2 million in food available for California's needy.

The SLA abducted Miss Hearst Feb. 4 and said she would be held as a "prisoner of war" until demands for food and other terms, not yet specified, are met.

Joy Ride in Car in Icy Field Kills 8 Oakville Teenagers

OAKVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Eight Oakville teen-agers were killed Monday night when a car they were joyriding in an icy field plunged over a steep, 200-foot cliff into a creek.

Police said 10 teen-agers participated in the joyride which began when they found a stolen car in a field and ended with the deaths of six boys and two girls all between the ages of 15 and 17.

Seven of the dead were identified as Karen Molnar, 15, Glorida Russell, 17, Steve Ingis, 16, Henry Hulberts, 16, Steve Massie, 15, David Gowe, 17 and Eric Harrison, 16.

Police first identified the eighth victim as John Morgan, 17, but later said they were encountering difficulties in confirming identification.

The frozen bodies were removed from the mangled wreckage at a police station where the top of the car, flattened by the steel, was cut away by blow torch.

Police said one of the survivors, Scott Partridge, 15, who was sitting to the front seat of the nine-passenger 1973 station wagon, managed to jump out of the car just before it skidded over the brink into Sixteen Mile Creek.

Another 15-year-old boy survived because he got out of the vehicle to "stretch his legs" after having a turn at the wheel of the car prior to the accident.

Police said all the victims lived in a subdivision close to the cliff and were aware of its steepness.

"The roof was flattened to the top of the seats and the bodies were all tangled up," a witness said.

The joyride had gone on for about an hour through the field and along the right-of-way of an Ontario Hydro transmission line before the accident occurred at about 8:30 p.m. Monday night, police said.

Police said the car had been stolen during the weekend and may have been abandoned in the field near the victims' homes.

Divers attached tow-truck cables to the overturned vehicle and it was dragged out of about four feet of water. Two tow trucks then hauled it to the top of the cliff.

Police said the accident was the worst recorded in the Oakville area and that officers were appalled by the sight.

The bodies were jammed together, frozen with icicles matting their hair. The driver had been crushed by the steering column and the girl beside him was found with her legs protruding from the crushed metal.

Police said the flattened roof squashed three boys in the middle seat and two boys and a girl in the rear seat.

"There's a good 200 years of life that will never be," one officer said. Seven of the eight victims were students at White Oaks secondary school.

Skin diver Todd Shannon said the current in the creek was so swift that the job of removing the wreck was difficult and dangerous. The tow cables dislodged rocks on the cliff race, he said.

Constable Leonard Shaw, the first policeman on the scene, said tracks indicated the car slipped off the cliff top, then flipped upside down into the 40-foot-wide muddy, ice-cluttered stream.

When the wreck was raised onto the field police covered it with a tarpaulin before it was taken to a station that was turned into a temporary morgue.

All night long police brought in relatives of the victims and identification was particularly difficult in several cases because of head lacerations.

Police withheld identification of the boy who got out to "stretch his legs."

Crown Testimony Opens Trial

A jury, composed of six men and six women, yesterday heard the evidence of three expert Crown witnesses during the first day of the murder trial of Barbara Bertha Smith, of 129 Front Street, Trenton.

Mrs. Smith was arraigned on a charge of murdering Cpl. James Robinson, 35, late July 24 or early July 25 at her Trenton home.

The arraignment and trial commenced at 2 p.m. yesterday after a grand jury, which was sworn in at 11 a.m., returned a true bill of "true bill" on the charge.

Mrs. Smith pleaded not guilty to the murder charge when she was arraigned before Mr. Justice Grant of the Supreme Court of Ontario.

In addition to the jury prior to calling evidence, Crown Attorney Glenn Dinsley told the court that the Crown expected to prove that Mrs. Smith killed Cpl. Robinson by stabbing him in the upper left portion of his abdomen with a kitchen knife.

The Crown expects the evidence considered by witnesses to show that on the night of July 24 Mrs. Smith and Cpl. Robinson had been drinking at the Corporals' Mess at CFB Trenton.

While at the mess, Mrs. Smith and Cpl. Robinson got into an argument and Mrs. Smith left to go to a Trenton hotel before returning in her home, Mr. Dinsley said.

Mr. Dinsley also said that witnesses are expected to testify that one of Mrs. Smith's neighbors heard a commotion on the second floor of the Front Street apartment building and on investigation the incident, found Cpl. Robinson lying on the floor of Mrs. Smith's bedroom with a knife wound in the abdomen.

Cpl. Robinson is reported to have died shortly after his arrival at Trenton Memorial Hospital July 15.

The first witness to tender evidence at the trial was a biologist from the forensic sciences laboratories in Toronto, Dieter Von Gemmingen.

Mr. Von Gemmingen identified ten exhibits that he had examined for blood stains and blood group identification at the Toronto laboratories July 16.

Among the exhibits introduced were several blood samples alleged to have come from both Cpl. Robinson and Mrs. Smith, some fingernail scrapings alleged to have come from Mrs. Smith, a pair of women's red shorts, a blue sleeveless pullover, a woman's grey shoe with blood stains on the sole, a mauve colored pillowcase with blood stains on both the inside and outside of the case, and a blood stained serrated kitchen knife with a six inch blade.

Mr. Gemmingen told the court that tests of the blood samples alleged to have come from Mrs. Smith were of the blood group A, while blood samples taken from Cpl. Robinson were of blood group O.

A small blood sample, alleged to have been taken from the back of Mrs. Smith's left hand, was identified as being that of a human but was too small a quantity to be identified by blood group, Mr. Gemmingen said.

There was no evidence of blood on the fingernail scrapings, the shorts or the pullover.

The pillow case and the shoe, however, were said to have contained blood type of the group O variety.

The kitchen knife had blood stains three inches up the blade on the side of the knife blade. The stains were identified as being of blood group O.

The Crown's second witness of the day was a chemist from the toxicology section of the forensic sciences laboratories, Dr. Morris Shaw.

Mr. Howes told the court that on July 24 he had examined two blood samples alleged to have come from Mrs. Smith and Cpl. Robinson.

The sample alleged to have come from Mrs. Smith had 90 milligrams of alcohol per 100 millilitres of blood, while the sample from Cpl. Robinson had 180 milligrams of alcohol per 100 millilitres of blood, Dr. Howes said.

The third witness, a pathologist from Toronto, Dr. A.J. Noble, examined Cpl. Robinson's body July 16. He told the court that when he examined the body he discovered a three-quarter by one-quarter inch wound on the Corporal's left upper abdomen approximately three and one-half inches from the centreline of the chest.

The wound ran from left to right and was approximately six or seven inches deep, the doctor said.

In addition to the abdominal wound, the doctor said the body bore the marks of several scratches on the arms, shoulders and chest. He also discovered a half-inch long cut on the Robinson's head above and behind the left ear and a quarter inch bruise four inches behind the right ear.

The doctor attributed the Corporal's death to the abdominal wound, which on internal examination showed a half-inch tear in one of the major arteries that branch off from the aorta.

If such a wound were inflicted a man could die within 10 o 30 minutes the doctor said.

The doctor also testified that the abdominal wound on the body would be consistent with one inflicted by a knife of the type identified as an exhibit earlier in the trial.

Potter Welcomes Portfolio Switch

TORONTO — Dr. Richard Potter — the Belleville physician who turned politician with hopes of helping overhaul entire Ontario's health services, today ended two years directly of trial-and-error programs that transformed his province's medical practices.

The Quinte MPP told The Intelligencer he leaves his portfolio as health minister feeling he's "accomplished what we set out to do."

In today's cabinet shuffle announced by Premier William Davis, Dr. Potter becomes minister of correctional services.

He admitted he also was "very happy" to be relieved of the demands of a ministry he had tied through a period of crucial change.

Capital Budget Means 9.5-million Hike in 1975

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Trenton taxpayers will feel the pinch in 1975 with last night's approval by council of a capital budget representing a 9.5-mil increase.

The capital budget, — which will affect next year's tax rate — was debated at a closed meeting last Wednesday when councillors tried to cut frills.

Brian Fagan, town treasurer, said following last night's meeting, "councillors were able to cut $200,000 from the capital budget."

Of the 9.5-mill increase, more than six mills will be required for capital projects to begin this year. The remainder will take care of earlier projects.

Between the town and the public utilities commission more than $1.5 million will be spent on capital projects in the 1975 taxes.

Town parks and recreation were hardest hit by last week's reductions, leaving $86,000 stripped from its budget, leaving only $90,000.

The library and Trenton Memorial Hospital together had requested $50,000. This was completely deleted from the budget.

Final axes to be slashed from the capital budget was a number of over-supervisors totalling $41,800. This will be placed in the current budget which will determine the 1974 mill rate.

Mr. Fagan was reluctant to comment on the mill rate for this year saying it was now completely dependent on the current budget still to be struck.

"It's not likely we'll know how the current budget will stand until mid-April," he said.

He refused comment on how it was looking at this time and what mill increases might be expected for this year.

The capital budget touched off controversy two weeks ago when council was contacted by citizens alarmed at a projected 11-mill increase reported in the press.

Since then council urged the proposed capital budget would have to be slimmed down to afford a smaller mill rise increase. Councillors said the press should not have published all information concerning the budget.

Councillor Questions Cost of Land Services

TRENTON — Only. one councillor voted against this town's capital budget Monday night after questioning proposed servicing of town-owned industrial land.

Councillor Don Price queried whether it was necessary to spend more than $200,000 servicing land north of Highway 401 when no customers were in sight.

He was told by town hall staff there would be no customers until the land is serviced.

The 33 acres are Trenton's largest single piece of land lending itself to industrial development. Lack of serviced industrial land has been a constant headache to Trenton councillors.

According to Councillor Bob Wannamaker the land once serviced would sell for about $4,500 an acre.

Councillor Price, referring to earlier discussions — which mentioned the land as costing priced Trenton out of the industrial land business — felt no answer from municipal taxes could justify sale in neighboring municipalities.

Councillor Price offered the single opposing vote last night for the budget that spells a 9.5 mill increase for Trenton taxpayers in 1975.

This $3,000,000 services investment in the industrial parcel represents one of the larger bills included in the $1.5 million capital budget.

Parents Give Views On Open-Area Teaching

BLOOMFIELD — Two Picton parents, concerned by the, open-area at Queen Elizabeth elementary school, have protested the system in favor of closed classrooms.

Barbara Doucett and sisterin-law, Brenda Doucett, earlier observed classes in the open area for a brief period recently. Both women questioned the system in letters to the Prince Edward board of education this month.

"I do not wish to be critical, but after spending one and one-half days at the school, I am concerned students and the children who have learning difficulties of a slight nature successfully to the open-area classes," wrote Barbara Doucett.

She praised the one-to-one basis between student and teacher as practised in the open area as an excellent idea when the student wants to learn.

"But for a child who has no desire to learn, or, has difficulty in understanding, I wonder what will happen to these children who need encouragement or help to learn?"

Was "Very Disturbed"

The mother of two children who will move to level five next year, Mrs. Doucett told trustees that she was "very disturbed" by what she had seen in the open area. She expressed particular concern for problems that might be faced by slow learners.

Mrs. Doucett explained that one of her children is a slow learner and the other average.

"I am not only concerned with the calibre of education that will be given to the slow learner and all other children like her, but also the average child and other average children who have the ability to learn, but must certainly need supervision."

Mrs. Doucett in observing the open area estimated less than half the youngsters benefited from the periods.

"The only children receiving any attention from the teachers were the clever and outgoing children who demanded attention. Others never got a word of work or even opened a book. The teachers never gave these children any notice at all."

She mentioned permissive reading arrangements and suggested that a student should not miss a class completely without the teacher's knowledge.

Mrs. Doucett said she observed that most of the time the children were left to the teacher for help or correction of work. Some youngsters did not speak to the teacher or open a book during the entire period.

She referred to "a definite lack of organization in the physical arrangements" and said students sit where they want, with whom they want.

This causes no problem in some cases. But students unwilling to work often are not reprimanded for disturbing seat mates.

Mrs. Doucett said that she saw no blackboard teaching during her visit to the open area.

The classes we observed that were separate closed-in, namely French and music, were definitely better organized in that the teacher seemed to have more control over the students and the disorganization was than I had observed in the open area."

She closed, in closing, I feel that the student who has difficulty in learning would have fewer distractions in closed classrooms."

Papineau Park Project For County Planners

Details of the planned provincial park and camping ground for the Papineau Lake area in Hastings will be brought before the Hastings County Planning Board for review and consideration.

This was the assurance given municipal councillors by McClure, Wicklow and Bangor townships at a meeting Monday with Natural Resources Minister Leo Bernier in Toronto.

The meeting, arranged by Hastings MPP Charles P. Gallina, was attended by Reeve Felix Browne and councillors Tom Buckley and Dean Foster.

At the meeting the ministry supplied written information relating to practically all aspects of the project which had been discussed at the meeting.

Hastings MPP Clarke Rollins said today following the meeting that there was no indication that the ministry intended to by-pass the county planning board.

Mr. Rollins said that following discussion and answers to questions, township council members were enthusiastic in support of the camp project.

Parents Criticize Lay Instructor

Protest Religion Class Standards

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

BLOOMFIELD — A Carrying Place couple has challenged religious instruction by a layman among youngsters attending the Redmerville elementary school.

Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Sloane, RR 1, Carrying Place Monday night told Prince Edward school trustees of their objections to certain statements made to their daughter in a religious education class.

Mr. Sloane said that his seven-year-old child became concerned by an observation she said was made by her woman instructor that some persons are "as rotten as a pear are rotten" without reason.

Mr. Sloane said circumstances and environment determine the character of the individual and this fact should have been explained at school.

"Our immediate concern was: What is being taught in religion? Who is teaching religion?", he said.

He told trustees that inquiries among teachers revealed that this part of the curriculum was being conducted by a lay person residing in the area. She is unpaid for her work.

"We did not believe that this type of training was allowed in the school system. However, to confirm our thoughts, we requested and received from the Ministry of Education, copies of the Public School Act dealing with religious exercises and education in public schools ...", said Mr. Sloane.

He read the excerpt which stated that, by board resolution, clergymen of any denomination or lay persons selected by clergymen might give religious instruction in lieu of teachers.

Mr. Sloane said that he and his wife contacted the ministers who are the accredited clergymen in the area. Neither had been approached by the board for approval or consent to any religious instruction by lay people, he said.

"Why should the quality of religious education suffer?" he asked.

"We would not accept an unqualified instructor for the intricacies of the new Math. Nor should it be different for religion."

Mr. Sloane said if religious exercises are to be in schools, the subject must be the responsibility of professional qualified personnel.

He said that he does not feel the present instructor is qualified to conduct religious exercises in the school system.

"I have been told by the local trustee that no remuneration is made to the instructor for services rendered. I have found that in our society you get what you pay for. As a responsible taxpayer I want the best available for my children," said Mr. Sloane.

Mr. Sloane said that it appeared some trustees had not been informed of the conditions or regulations existing in the system.

He observed, "I expect immediate steps will be taken to investigate and corrective action initiated to improve the religious training afforded to our children."

South Marysburgh trustee James Plomer noted that any layman approved by the clergy to teach religious education might have made the statement protested by Mr. and Mrs. Sloane. He said it was the first complaint received by the board concerning religious education.

Mr. Plomer asked how trustees might define qualifications of lay people for job.

Mr. Sloane said he would feel safer if his daughter's teacher had been approved by the local clergy.

Mrs. Sloane said that she and her husband have talked with other parents who have complaints concerning the religious instruction at the school but none were willing to protest to a board meeting.

Trustees agreed to consider the Sloanes' presentation in committee.

The Metric System Is on the Way

BLOOMFIELD — Impact of the metric system from the consumer's viewpoint was discussed with Prince Edward school trustees Monday by John Anglin, mathematics consultant from Region 9, Kingston.

The 45-minute slide presentation Mr. Anglin explained how the metric system will affect the familiar measures of length, area, volume, weight, time and temperature.

Conversion to the metric system will be made since most of the world already is using it. Over 90 per cent of the world's population lives in countries that use the system. It is used in 75 per cent of world trade.

Mr. Anglne said that there are no economic pressures to switch systems that cannot be ignored.

He cautioned trustees that no one will be immune to the change.

"If you measure anything it will affect you," he predicted.

He said the metric system is much simpler than the one now in use. This is primarily because of difficult conversion factors in the present system.

"Most consumers will need to know three measures of length — centimetres, metres and kilometres," said Mr. Anglin.

He predicted that the greatest impact of conversion will come when motorists see highway signs translated from miles to kilometres. The province has set a target date of 1977 for changing all signs.

Property eventually will be measured in hectares instead of acres. This change could require the patience of four or five generations as most individuals will feel a sense of loss when told that their 100 acre property is only 40 hectares.

A new series of paper sizes will be introduced and the variety of size of items stocked will be cut greatly.

The new paper sizes will be an important asset in automatic mail sorting one day as all envelopes will be the same shape. This uniformity is vital and non-standard sizes would require hand sorting.

The litre will become the basic unit of volume and the homeowner will buy paint by the litre, instead of the gallon.

Already the impact of the new system is obvious in grocery stores where most items are labelled in both systems. Jar sizes eventually will be changed slightly to round out the metric size.

Weight watcher will measure unwanted pounds in kilograms as the conversion takes place. For the past five years all bathle born in Ontario have been weighed under the metric system.

The Fahrenheit thermometer will be replaced by the Centigrade temperature scale known as the Celsius scale. The freezing point will be 0 degrees and the boiling point 100 degrees.

With the new system there will be a more common use of the 24 hours clock notation.

Fire Hits Rural Home

SHANNONVILLE — Thurlow volunteer firefighters spent several hours fighting a house fire on the Concession 5 line, near the Shannonville Gravel Road.

The fire, reported at 2 p.m. Monday was believed to have started in an upstairs bedroom closet in the home of Jack and Agnes Hoffman.

The Moore's two teenage children, only occupants of the house at the time had managed to escape heavy smoke when firefighters arrived.

Capt. Bruce Gelthrope and firefighter Harvey Pulman entered the building, using portable air tanks, and remained there fighting the fire most of the afternoon. They used 16 tanks of air, while fighting the blaze.

Damage was confined to a closet, an upstairs bedroom and the attic of the large two-storey frame house.

Official damage estimates are not yet available.

HOME BUYER PSYCHOLOGY

Ed. McKinney
Broker, Realtor
Realty Ltd.

Buyers buy homes by comparison. The average buyer is well informed. He'll shop a particular neighborhood and home type. He'll rarely buy the first one he visits. It is too big an investment to be purchased. He will then compare at least three comparative values, He'll quickly throw out any obviously overpriced homes.

If the buyer really likes one of these overpriced homes, he may make an offer at a lower price — closer to its true value. But experience shows that he'll probably make his offer for one already realistically valued.

A Realtor can save the home seller much chagrin because he has accurate knowledge of what similar houses in his neighborhood are selling for. Those houses taken off the market because of overpricing. It makes sense to work with documented facts instead of guesswork. In the end you will be assured of obtaining the best possible price in the shortest time and with as few problems as possible.

Canadian Books

"The occasional vexations of being Canadian are perfectly illustrated," said Globe and Mail book editor William French, in a recent article, "by the recent experience of a group of school librarians. Their concordantable effort to increase the exposure of Canadian students to Canadian books is in danger of foundering for lack of money, just when it is needed more than ever."

French was referring to the problem of maintaining the Canadian School Library Association-sponsored publication, Canadian Materials. A startling grant of $7,500 from the Secretary of State, is now exhausted.

However there is a brighter side to this problem locally. We refer to the comprehensive display of the works of Canadian authors in a Belleville bookstore, in conjunction with a leading Toronto-based publishing company.

There is everything from Gabrielle Roy and Mordechai Richler to Ameliasburg poet Al Purdy and, one of the greatest of Canadian non-fiction and literary figures, Wyndham Lewis, who in Self Condemned describes the harrowing years he and his wife spent in this country, short of funds and short on reputation.

As for Al Purdy, he is now recognized as one of Canada's leading poets. The several volumes of his that are available testify to his industry and sensitivity in this medium.

Let's not forget either Belleville-born Farley Mowat, the Port Hope resident and prolific writer who has penned works on everything from boats, wolves and whales to one of the few publications by a Western author in modern times on the contemporary Soviet scene — Sibir — from which Mowat draws handsome royalties as well as well as other foreign currencies. The author's many books are liberally displayed in this Canadian literary exhibition and sale.

Out of This World

Some countries manage to keep out of the international limelight.

Albania, former European kingdom now known principally for its determined isolation and unstinting support of Communist China, is one. According to a current London Observer article, its government, headed by the durable Enver Hoxha, is having difficulty stamping out "alien influences" and "decadent thought." This is typical Communist claptrap and one reason why the world passes by countries like Albania.

Or consider Burma, which despite an authoritarian military government, has managed to stay out of the spotlight since it was fought over by British, Commonwealth, American and Japanese troops in the last war. About all we have heard of this rugged country in Asia of late is that the Americans in recent days appointed a new ambassador.

What about Central America — and especially Costa Rica, land of coffee, painted oxcarts and, we understand, no defence forces? It is of more than usual interest just now, for the size of the country's newest president, Daniel Oduber, 53, is the former Marjorie Elliott of Ottawa.

Now 42, and a classic beauty, Mrs. Oduber is a daughter of the late Colin Fraser Elliott, for many years a deputy federal finance minister, one-time ambassador to Chile and high commissioner to Australia. Her mother still lives in Ottawa.

Mrs. Oduber was a music student at McGill University in 1948 when she met her husband. For 13 years she worked with Costa Ricans in the rural areas, trying to improve coffee co-operatives and living conditions of the peasant farmers. Now, as first lady, she is looking forward to furthering this work. Costa Rica is interesting from another standpoint — its espousal of democratic government in a region not noted either for that concept or for political stability.

Under former President Jose Figueres Ferrer, Costa Rica enjoyed a fair level of prosperity, with annual income rising by eleven per cent in the last year, alone. A prominent figure in Latin America and well known beyond, Mr. Figueres is seen as a possible head of the Organization of American States should that position become vacant.

Former Prison Inmates Included

U.S. and British Programs for Disadvantaged Persons

By Dorothy Briggs in United Feature

Welfare efforts for society's "problem people" are traditionally been a matter of hand-out to the disadvantaged from various benevolent agencies. A novel approach in the United States and Britain, known as "New Careers", puts the emphasis on identifying and mobilizing the neglected talents of such people and then having them help others.

The movement was launched in the U.S. in the 1960's as part of the Kennedy administration's plan to bring more resources to poor people - to involve them in their own destinies.

Today in the U.S. there are over 500,000 formerly disadvantaged persons, among them ex-offenders, drug addicts, alcoholics, mental patients, teen-age delinquents, and just plain poor who are now fully employed in a wide spectrum of jobs in the "helping" professions, including education - mostly financed by governmental agencies. No longer recipients, they are active contributors - and now ratepayers, many for the first time in their lives.

In California, 18 young adult prisoners, some virtually illiterate, in the long records of delinquency, in many cases involving assault, were selected to participate in an experimental educational and developmental program while serving the last four months of their prison terms. Some had been involved in therapeutic community programs while confined. This was in 1965.

Lawyer Lewis Nacy Hodgkin who had seen one of the ex-prisoners on a television program, went to find out what had happened to these men. She found that one of the 18, a former San Quentin inmate, Larry Dye, who was nearly illiterate in 1965, now has a PhD in education and is on the staff of the University of Massachusetts. He has introduced conventional training programs for young offenders which, since 1965, have reduced the number of youth in prison in that state from 1,400 to 105. Another former offender, Vern Haynes, is chief of the New Careers Branch of the Federal Department of Health, Education and Welfare, administering — with a multi-million dollar budget — 15 New Careers projects in community mental health throughout the U.S.

Two others, after outstanding service in getting similar programs started in other government agencies, have enrolled full time in graduate schools. Another has just received his master's degree. Six of the remainder are directing assault, were selected to participate in an experimental educational and development projects, earning between $16,000 and $20,000 annually. Six have returned to semi-skilled jobs. And only one of the 18 is currently in prison. When the group was originally selected, correctional staff predicted that 90 per cent would be back in prison within one year.

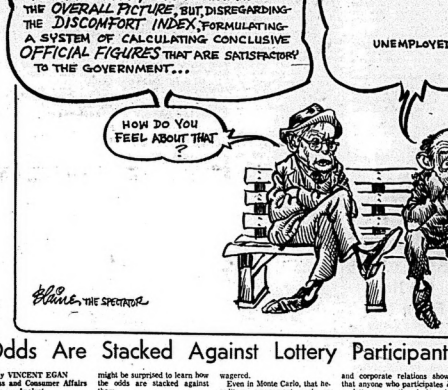
As Douglas Grant, psychological director of the project and a prime mover of this concept in areas other than delinquency, has pointed out: "The achievement of these offenders is so great that it demands a hard look at some received ideas." None of the intelligence tests on the trainees, he said, have suggested they were capable of higher education: "The man with the doctorate degree was diagnosed as a schizoid personality while in youth confinement. Another, now in graduate school was diagnosed as of dull, normal intelligence. All were at least labelled ego-syntonic personalities. Most had been imprisoned at least twice; they were violent offenders, convicted on charges of assault, armed robbery, and burglary. Reviewing their clinical records, they would be seen as a cross section of recidivists. Professional staff would write them off as men who, at best, were only going to contribute marginally to society, who would be in and out of institutions for most of their lives."

In Britain, aside from the efforts, particularly by agencies, using volunteers, "ginger" groups and self-help groups have sprung up in the past few years, emerging like mushrooms are large portions of the population who are in dire need of social services and who fall outside the usual channel of statutory and voluntary agencies.

RIT Information Service, founded by Arther Chisnell, as one example, has provided sympathetic listeners, chiefly by telephone and at a drop-in office, referrals are made to others for crash pads and jobs; donations of clothing are given as well as household furnishings. Caroline Coon founded RELEASE for young drug users, which provides legal advice and counsel, emergency accommodation, temporary jobs and counsel to talk to. The Campaign for Homosexual Equality, with its service organization PIEREO, organized by Michael Launder, provides companionship, advice and support for lonely people who are homosexual.

Voluntary agencies, like Community Service Volunteers (CSV) are expanding their programs to include a wide range of disadvantaged persons. Andrea Kelmanson, initiator of the scheme, has placed over 70 youths from Borstals, obtaining their release 30 days early from confinement to give them the opportunity to be of service to the community. Many have found a new interest and want to continue this work; for the first time in their lives, they are able to help others and are regarded as capable.

With the backing of the Home Office, a project for young offenders has just been launched in Bristol, administered by the local branch of NACRO — the National Association for the Care and Resettlement of Offenders. Young men aged 17 to 21, with extensive histories of delinquency and who face criminal charges, are selected while awaiting trial. If the magistrate agrees, they are put on probation; licence for one year to the New Careers Development Project, instead of being given a prison sentence.



The project is administered by Mrs. Cathy Mordoe, a probation officer, and Mr. James Dickie, a school teacher and former assistant governor of a Borstal. The scheme can accommodate 25 cautioned and young men at any one time. They are trained in teams of four with a leader or "linker" who is a former offender, drug user or mental patient. The training program includes immediate placement for half a day, five days a week, on the job helping others - in a hospital ward for mentally defective children, for example, or in a primary school helping the teachers, at the local probation office, in a playground, or in a local authority social service department.

Part of the training is a discussion of the experiences of the day, which offers immediate support, and encouragement. Each trainee reports to his fellow-trainees, and new services to offer. Arrangements are made for considerable use of roleplaying, psychodrama, simulation exercises, and similar techniques.

The young men learn to manage the residence in which they live, for there is no domestic staff. They have to learn to purchase and prepare food, care for the property and budget for expenses.

New ways to communicate what they have learned are stressed - such as making audio and video tapes of their experiences, conducting discussion and role-playing and presenting demonstrations to civic, community and other groups. They explore the use of the mass media and audience participation to convey social messages. In addition, projects in the community, chosen by their own discussions, increase their awareness of social problems.

At the end of the one-year program, it is hoped that sheltered jobs can be provided for those who want to remain in this kind of work.

Odds Are Stacked Against Lottery Participants

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Gambling is a major consumer business in Canada, as is shown by the figures on legal gambling alone.

But most people who take a little fling on legal lotteries might be surprised to learn how the odds are stacked against them.

Some forms of gambling such as the familiar office hockey pool or coin-tossing may be defended—setting aside possible considerations of morality—on the grounds that the profit cut is not 100 per cent of the money wagered.

Even in Monte Carlo, that hereditary amusement park an the French Riviera, the famous casino pays out 97.3 per cent of the money that its gambling patrons pay in.

But a report recently published by the lotteries branch of Ontario's ministry of consumer and corporate relations shows that anyone who participates in a lottery sanctioned by the province stands a far smaller chance of winning anything.

People bought 28.5 million tons of tickets in 18 province-wide lotteries in aid of worthy causes last year.

Only 26.8 per cent went back to those people in the form of prizes. And even this—26.8 per cent—went to the worthy causes.

The other 46.8 per cent was spent on advertising, sales commission, administration and the like.

In all, the report says, about $150 million was wagered legally in cash, $2,000 civil reflies, bingos and other events last year in Ontario. The payout to winners was only $42 million—about the same proportion as in the lotteries.

If the prize pay-out is so meagre (except to a disproportionate small number of lucky winners) and the expenses of running a lottery so high, what is the justification for them?

One reason often cited is that legal gambling serves a useful purpose in displacing illegal gambling.

But there is little evidence of this. Illegal gambling continues to flourish, possibly because the pay-out is considered to be more commensurate with the amount wagered. Other words, the sucker gets a better break.

Another reason frequently heard is that legal lotteries raise funds for projects that deserve community support. And it's true that the ostensible beneficiary is usually an attractive, appealing one—connected with sports, cultural enterprises or other popular activities.

But if only 26 cents of each lottery dollar goes to the worthy cause, this suggests that these causes and their well-wishers would be better served by more conventional fund-raising methods, or by grants from government.

Especially if (as it appears) much of the money spent on lottery tickets comes from those who can least readily afford to gamble and have little conception of the odds against them.

Township's Recreation Plans Foundering ?

Editor
The Intelligencer

Three years ago Thurlow township council passed the necessary bylaw to establish a Recreation Committee. As a result a few Thurlow citizens took the bull by the horns and succeeded in establishing a minor sports association, learn and swim program, library exchange, summer enrichment for pre-school children, for the young of our township.

After two years the committee is faced with resistance from all sides because there is no development in the field of recreation for our senior citizens and for the remainder of the adults. Some of the blame for these resignations must be placed on the shoulders of the council, who have failed to provide the impetus needed. Why can't Thurlow have a Community Centre complex where one and all can enjoy and participate? Some of the blame has to rest with the citizens who either just don't care or would rather let someone else do the work and they reap someone else's labors.

It appears that Thurlow recreation committee will slowly die unless the citizens of the township become actively involved and show their support.

Oil Crisis

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

The oil crisis has made several things clearly apparent to those who live an ostrich type existence, choosing to bury their heads in the sand rather than face the unpleasant facts of life.

First, the days of the dreadnoughts of Detroit are numbered. It is doubtful if the average citizen will be able to afford the gas these monsters consume, even if it is available.

Second, the unavailability of fuel will have a direct effect on employment and production. The days of the advertising empire seem similarly doomed. Having drowned us in nauseating piles to buy this or that for years it is long last appears as if producers will have to be limited to those things which are necessary to preserve life and health.

What a wonderful challenge faces our legislators at all levels. Even here in the city of Belleville our local councillors have an opportunity to show what they are made of.

Who is going to be the first to move to lower bus fares and increase parking fees. Sorry I forgot this is an election year — so we will have to wait until after the ballots are cast.

In the meantime look for more dizzying legislation we expect to wake up one morning to find city hall draped in Union Jacks.

A Miami socialite's deathbed regrets and decisions have prompted a $1 million bequest for medical school research into pulmonary diseases. Mary Jane Seney, dying of emphysema said, "I wish we hadn't invested so much in parties and fun. ..I should have had a lot more to give."

Testimony to the strength of the written word, Mrs. Sertel Seney's fear death moved her "I read Ruth Montgomery's book, A Door Beyond. The door opens and loved ones are there to wait for you."

This most comforting concept has succeeded in reconciling Mrs. Seney to her fate. It seems somewhat sad that she finds she must couple it with a rejection of the socializing that filled life for her and her husband until his death three years ago. If anything is to be learned from this, it is that life's regret as well as its pleasures are best experienced in moderation as the days pass.

Economic Council Reports

Federal Toadying to Quebec Means Ontario Taxes to Rise

TORONTO (CP) — An Ontario Economic Council study predicts that unless federal policies change, Ontario faces a "future of higher taxes, higher debts, and drastically reduced services, or a combination of all three."

Joe Martin, a specialist in intergovernmental relations who prepared the study for the council, expressed doubt that the co-operative federalism of the two decades 1945-65 can be achieved.

The launching of a national medicare program in 1966 and Ottawa's laxity in reacting to major tax reform proposals strained relations with the provinces so that "co-operative federalism became transformed into confrontation federalism," he said.

Another key factor in a weakened Confederation, he said, is that Ottawa may be too willing to appease Quebec.

"Quebec has a greater impact on the Canadian federal state than all the other provincial governments combined. As a consequence the federal government may be responding to Quebec initiatives, positively or negatively, and ignoring the provinces as a response on Ontario."

Mr. Martin said Ottawa lost its ability to control major national programs when it turned to open-ended grants-in-aid to the provinces.

Without these options, he said, the federal treasury can only respond to the fiscal needs of the provinces by providing them with more room on the federal income tax scale.

..."If federal policy initiated in this manner, Ontario appears destined to a future of higher taxes, higher debts and drastically reduced services or a combination of all three."

Tracing the evolution of federal-Ontario relations since 1945, Mr. Martin said it is clear that "there is now an impasse on the issue of the distribution of powers" between the two governments.

The study lists five possible future courses. They involve:

—Ottawa assuming the responsibility and cost for one or more of the major shared-cost programs, such as post-secondary education. However, this would require holdness on Ottawa's part in "convincing the province of Quebec of its merits."

—Ottawa sharing more of its revenues with the provinces;

—Continuing the status quo, a move that would "inevitably lead to increasing levels of taxation in Ontario, or a cutback in expenditure programs, or a combination of both;"

—The provinces creating an interprovincial bureaucracy that would lead to a united front against the federal government. This may not result in gains for the provinces but it should prevent "any unilateralism;"

—Dissolution of Confederation, a possibility the provinces must make sure doesn't happen.

Mr. Martin, a Toronto management consultant was executive assistant to former Manitoba premier Duff Roblin, said Prime Minister Trudeau's rise to power reinforced Confrontation federalism because he was a "less flexible person" than his predecessor, Lester B. Pearson.

He also says Ontario Premier William Davis is "more political in his approach to the federal field" than was John Robarts, his predecessor, but added it would be wrong to interpret this as the cause of the current federal-Ontario dilemma.

The report says Ottawa ignored the findings of the fact structure committee in 1968, the first realistic attempt by the two levels of government to examine their fiscal relations. The committee confirmed what the provinces had feared—that Ottawa has surplus revenues, the provinces mounting deficits.

Mr. Martin said it was a serious blow because: "No longer did Ontario feel that Ottawa could be trusted."

The study said the battle over medical care, which Ontario accepted reluctantly, was a struggle between "a federal government with a very popular political proposal, and the provincial governments who knew they could not afford that proposal."

One major fact that emerged was that there was no interprovincial mechanism to prevent such a program despite the nearly unanimous opposition among the provinces. Only Saskatchewan supported medical care.

Municipal Autonomy Is Being Wiped Out

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government proclaims its support for strong municipal governments but pursues policies that are gradually wiping away municipal autonomy, an Ontario Economic Council study says.

Lionel D. Feldman of Toronto, a municipal affairs specialist, says in a report prepared for the council the outlook for local government is bleak.

Local governments appear to be happy "playing their centuries old game of administer, keep conflicts submerged and, all, allow no real confraction of aldermen to push for certain policy alternatives."

The report says few important functions are being left to local governments to perform independently. Either the province's role is direct, such as in directing regional government or regional health centres, or indirect, as in the allocation of grants. In the case of grants the province prescribes the terms and conditions of the assistance.

Mr. Smithies said in some instances, this practice continues.

In the north, "communities receive provincial encouragement to install waste-treatment facilities discharging into watersheds grossly polluted by mills or mines."

Such industries have no "incentive to improve effluent standards, and the province is unable to enforce improvements for fear of closing the industry down."

The same applied elsewhere.

"Much of the social benefit arising from over 20 years' steady development of municipal sewage works could be said to be lost to Ontario, inasmuch as industrial pollution remains untabated.

"Treated municipal sewage discharges into the same water bodies as industrial waste."

The necessary legal basis has been provided by legislation to prevent individuals, municipalities and corporations from polluting our resources and the atmosphere, the report says. However, the economic trade-offs, made by government shows a bias in favor of less-than-strict enforcement of the legislation.

In communities entirely dependent on one major industry, strict enforcement could represent a social and economic disaster, the report says.

Pollution Price Ontario Paying For Prosperity

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's economic growth to other parts of the country because of its tough environmental policies, a report prepared for the Ontario Economic council indicates.

Other less-developed provinces may show a greater inclination to accept environmental hazards of growth, says the report, written by W. R. Smithies of Toronto.

Backgrounding the growth of land-and resources-management and development as well as conservation and environmental concerns, Mr. Smithies says the provincial government has been moving steadily forward. But considerable concessions have been made along the way.

The report says that during the 1950s, premier Leslie Frost's overriding concern was economic growth. He also strongly favored conservation.

But when conflict between conservation principles and economic development seemed likely, "growth and the associated prosperity of a locality took precedence over environmental protection."

"Specifically this meant that anti-pollution legislation was simply not enforced against industry."

Metro Kept Industry From Spreading Out

TORONTO (CP) — Major industries probably would have located in less prosperous parts of Ontario if the province had not instituted regional government for Toronto in 1954, a report prepared for the Economic Council of Ontario says.

The study on the economic transformation of Ontario since 1945 was prepared for economist D. R. Richmond.

The report also says that in its "political poker game" with the federal government, the province may be forced finally to institute a provincial income tax.

The creation of Metropolitan Toronto was one reason why a program of industrial decentralization—a regional redevelopment program—was a failure, Mr. Richmond says.

"The success of this venture in municipal reform in solving the water, sewage transportation and housing problems in the Metro area created a powerful counter-pull to industry that had begun to look to other areas of the province."

Metropolitan Toronto also "became a magnet for immigrants (and) for migrants from other parts of Canada," the report says.

Mr. Richmond, who has worked in all three levels of government but was senior economist for the council when he prepared the report, blames lack of planning for the failure, 20 years ago, to decentralize industry.

"... There were neither positive incentives nor restrictive measures enforced to influence plant-location decisions."

Mr. Richmond praised Ontario's commitment to industrial expansion, saying there is no question it was "more appropriate to the post-war period than was the federal government's concern with a possible recession."

"This conflict in emphasizes is the root of discord in the Dominion-provincial conferences in the post-war period."

The report says "the impressive success of the shared-cost program (between the federal and provincial governments) have been recognized increasingly over the past decade," but it is still a major problem.

Citizen Can't Discover Where He Can Plug In

TORONTO (CP) — For many citizens, voting is no longer a significant form of participation but an occasion of frustration, says a report commissioned by the Ontario Economic Council.

"Such frustration may well in turn contribute to the growth of apathy, alienation and violence," it said.

The study titled The Service State Emerges in Ontario, was prepared by Vernon Lang, a social policy consultant from Toronto. It involves social development in Ontario since 1945.

Mr. Lang's studies trace the growth of provincial participation in such areas as education, welfare and health.

He says citizens pay taxes to three or four different levels of government and to a variety of special funds. But a network of intergovernmental transfers of funds obscured any relationship between what goes in, what comes out and who is responsible.

"The citizen cannot find out where to plug himself in to the political process if he feels the necessity to do so," Mr. Lang said.

"Improved communication between people and government is clearly needed."

Despite some progressive taxation and other state-sponsored transfers of income, the general postwar prosperity has not altered the distribution, Mr. Lang said.

"Policies aimed at equality of opportunity have paradoxically given increased advantages to those who while mainly presenting tantalizing opportunities to many others who simply could not take advantage of them.

"This has been the situation between individuals, between communities and between provinces."

He said the "most flagrant case of interprovincial" occurred in the early 1960s when Ontario received more than its share of the federal funds made available then for "physical, mechanical and vocational education."

Ontario reorganized its entire educational system to get the most from federal cost-sharing and then reorganized again.

"Today's governments provide far more service than those in the past, but they seem to be less understood and less controlled by the people," said Mr. Lang.

The taxpayer's dollar has been the fulcrum of power for the bureaucrat to use in organizing things, ostensibly for the citizen's benefit, but inevitably for the bureaucrat's benefit as well."

Social policy must provide many opportunities for constructive human activity, he said.

"The kind of massive changes on which such policies depend can be achieved only if we carry the citizens with us . . ."

One Court For Family Laws Urged

OTTAWA (CP) — A court system designed to take some of the expense and aggravation out of such family disputes as divorce was recommended Monday.

The recommendation was contained in a working paper of the Canadian Law Reform Commission which called for "a provincial family courts with jurisdiction over all family laws—including divorce, separation, child custody and alimony.

The report also suggested "establishment of adequate premarital counselling services" which should be part of "a comprehensive program of family life education."

But it warned that the proposed courts "should not assume a direct responsibility for providing substantive counselling and guidance."

The courts would operate on a four-state process that would seek reconciliation first and make trial a last resort. They would replace the present system under which individuals may have to progress through as many as four or five courts.

The process:

—Disputing couples would receive advice on the best means of solving problems—in court or through a community service as such as a psychiatrist.

—Couples could make voluntary use of counsellors and conciliators to clarify and perhaps resolve their differences.

—Any trial would be before a judge trained in family law who could use investigative services to help him. Legal aid could be available for all parties—including a child of separating couples.

—In a divorce or separation, the court would be responsible for financial matters and would have the right and ability to enforce its decisions.

The Morning Man: He Helps You Start Your Day

By SHARON AIRBART

He'll tell you what time it is, how cold it is and what the roads are like.

He'll offer you jobs and play your favorite song and read your lost dog.

He'll even tell you a corny joke.

He's Tom Hookings and for 20 years he's been the lyrical voice you hear when you wake up, the "morning man" at CJBQ.

He says it's his job to get your day off to a good start.

Of all the things he does, in fact — the weather, the time, pet clinic, job directory, playing music — Tom Hookings thinks the jokes, the patter and chatter, are the most important.

"I like the idea of a new day," he says, and it must be true since he begins his own day, without benefit of radio alarm, at 4:30.

"And I set out to make people smile."

Tom Hookings thinks about people who are listening, about what they're going to do that day. He especially thinks about "the housewives" whom he calls his most loyal listeners.

"You think of them facing a bunch of damn dishes and a bunch of damn kids and you say something funny. She thinks 'there's that guy again' making some ridiculous statement and she has to smile. She might remember it all day."

Sometimes friends stop Tom Hookings on the street and say "Hey, I laughed at what you said this morning" and then he says he really feels good.

For the most part, though, his audience is as faceless to him as he is to them: an intimately familiar but disembodied voice they've been listening to since he came to Belleville from Ryerson Polytechnical Institute 22 years ago.

Then he was a young — 26 — announcer, a member of ten of the first graduating classes in radio, fresh from a St. Catharines childhood, a tour with the Air Force and a time of carefree world travelling.

He didn't set out, really, to become an announcer but began the radio course after thinking about a lot of things he didn't want to do.

Remembering a much-admired Buffalo disc jockey whose light approach he liked, Ted Tom Hookings developed a style and after graduation came to CJBQ, then a six-year-old station operating out of a dilapidated building on Victoria Avenue.

The same kind of serendipity that brought him to radio led him to Belleville.

Auditioning for several stations along with other students, Tom Hookings read a test piece for the CJBQ program director.

One of the first things that greeted his eyes was the word "ascendancy."

"It was a stinker," he says. "You'd think I was auditioning for NBC."

"I faked it, of course. I found out later that's the best thing to do anyway."

He got the job, along with another offer from an Orillia station. He picked Belleville because once his high school basketball team played against Albert College.

In those days he earned $27.50 a week, and did the nighttime show for the 1 to 5 working hand to hit a population of 17,000.

"There was no such thing as a soundproof studio in those days. You could hear people walking down the hall. If the couple in the apartment out back had a fight or a party, the whole town heard it — over the radio."

These days CJBQ's modern Bridge Street studios, thing are more professional but, he adds sadly, a little more detached.

Even so, people still think of the station as "our station" and there's a "whole underground of fans who regularly contribute jokes and funny stories by mail."

At one time they called with their stories but a few too many 2 a.m. calls from drunks with bad jokes forced Tom to switch to an unlisted phone number.

"Everyone I go people I know tell me jokes," he says, and admits he uses many he personally doesn't find funny.

"In the old days you needed a lot more material than you do now...you'd go for an hour or an hour-and-a-half with only two commercials. Now you don't get a chance to use much material."

Because he enjoys a highly private personal life by choice, Tom Hookings says he goes unrecognized in the community at large.

"People form an opinion of me from my voice. Most people think I'm a short, chubby little guy. I think I'm disappointed when they do see me," he says.

Even his voice, he claims, so familiar over the air, doesn't bring instant recognition.

He swears that when he calls the radio station "nobody knows who the hell I am".

A very special listener who always recognizes his voice over the radio or in person is Miriam Hookings, who is three-and-a-half.

Often when he knows his little daughter is listening he'll play a favorite song "like Sandyman" and dedicate it.

With glee, Miriam points to the radio and says to her mother, Joan, "That's Tom Hookings; that's my Dad."

Calling her "the delight of my old age", he fondly recalls a recent tour of "Daddy's work" by Miriam.

Shown the studio, she wanted to know "is that where you talk?"

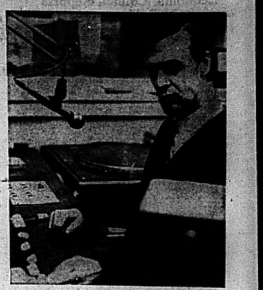
Another Hookings family member who used to visit the studio often is Uncle Hugo.

While Tom Hookings admits nobody's ever actually seen Uncle Hugo, he insists he's an incorrigible person.

"He used to tell me some terribly risque jokes," he says. "When I told them, I was only repeating what he said, of course."

Uncle Hugo's archenemy, you may remember, is John Hookilovich.

John and Uncle Hugo reappear now and again, when Tom Hookings is looking for a little on-air company early in the morning.



A little later in the day, he's joined by Ted Snider for Ted, Tom and Company, a 45-minute interview show which precedes Open Line, a show Tom Hookings hosted for six years.

Being the morning man and the phone-in show host was grueling and eventually he gave it up for Bruce Mill Johnston.

He still loves doing the early show, though, despite the pressure of fighting the fast-moving clock to "get it all in".

"People want the time and the temperature and the sports and the news — and I guess they want a little entertainment, too."

"You really get to feel that people are depending on you in the morning."

Ann Landers

Gluttons 'Emotionally Ill'

Dear Ann Landers: Will you please shed some light on gluttony? Is it an emotional illness, a case of arrested development or what?

Our adult son has a Ph.D., but he is like a child when he gets around food. He simply cannot control his appetite. To watch him eat is sickening. He hunches over the heaping plate and shovels huge portions into his mouth with such rapidity you'd think someone was trying to take it away from him.

He gorges himself until there isn't a morsel of anything left in sight. He must devour every roll, every pat of butter, every olive. If someone leaves something he says, "I'll finish it." And he does.

I know there must be some inner conflict. Why doesn't his wife understand this and insist that he get counselling? My husband and I sit silently and watch our son eat himself into an early grave. It's pathetic. What can we do?—N.D. Parents

Dear N.D.: Of course your son's emotional problems are a major factor in his gluttony, and unfortunately there is nothing you can do. You could, however, be more compassionate toward his wife. That poor woman must watch him eat more often than you, and she can't do anything about his gluttony either. When your son gets ready to help himself, he will, and not one day sooner. I feel sorry for all of you.

Dear Ann Landers: I am 16 years old and received my driver's licence last month. Today, I used my father's car to run errands for my mother. I parked the car in a department store parking lot. When I returned I noticed the right rear fender had three big dents and there were some bad scratches on the passenger's side. No cars were near me when I parked or when I returned. I'm not sure whether the car was hit while in my possession or if it happened the night before at my father's job location.

My father is blaming me for the damage and I have been told that I can't use the car anymore. Mom has taken my side and she and Dad are fighting over it. He says there is no insurance to cover this type of accident. Do you think he is being fair to me?—Middletown, N.Y.

Dear Mid.: Since this is your first offence, and there is some question as to when the accident occurred I believe your dad should give you another chance. From now on, check the car from all sides before you get in. If there is damage, report it to your dad at once. Then you'll be off the hook and in the clear.

Dear Ann Landers: Every once in a while you blow it, and you certainly blew your force when you responded to the letter about the widow in her 60s who called the manicurists men in her apartment building several times a day to "fix this" and "fix that." The repairmen were convinced that the old girl was breaking things so she could get someone to talk to.

You said she was just lonesome and added, "The landlord has no obligation to provide companionship for lonely widows."

I realize nobody gives a damn about anybody else these days, but I certainly didn't expect such a heartless answer out of you.—Ann Landers—Disappointed

Dear Disappointed: Sorry I let you down, but most buildings are short of competent repairmen. It's not fair to tie tenants with legitimate request to tie up maintenance men for social purposes.

Red Rose Becomes U.S. Anti-Abortion Symbol

NEW YORK (AP) — A movement is swirling across the United States under the identifying sign of the red rose, symbol of life.

With the objective of halting abortions, it has displayed its stand publicly with marches, rallies and vigils in many communities.

"Stop Slaughter of the Innocent," the placards read.

Church bells tolled. Messages were read, prayers said, and red roses sent to members of Congress, where bills for constitutional amendments to forbid abortions have been tied up in committees.

The occasion was the anniversary of the U.S. Supreme Court's decision permitting abortion. Since that time, on Jan. 22, 1973, estimates put the number of abortions at more than 800,000.

It involves "taking innocent human life," says Rev. Rousas Rushdoony, fundamentalist evangelical weekly, Christianity Today, likening Congress's inaction on the matter to the "silence of so many" under Hitler oppression.

The movement is an interreligious affair, involving Eastern Orthodox believers and many Protestants and Jews as well as Roman Catholics.

The coalition go by various names, usually including the phrase, "Right-to-Life" or "Pro-Life." A spokesperson of Ten Million reports it has gathered 2.5 million signatures on petitions to Congress.

Rev. Timothy E. O'Connell, a Catholic theologian of Chicago, says that by the court's decision, "our law has been robbed of the Judeo-Christian ethic," which stresses the sanctity of human life, imprinted with the divine image.

"It's really a whole new ball game," he writes in the Catholic weekly America, with human life now weighed on the scales of social convenience and utility.

In a special pastoral letter issued for the occasion, U.S. Catholic bishops said the decision ignored "scientific evidence that the human fetus is a human being in the earliest stages of development."

Among Protestants, views are so divided that the interdenominational National Council of Churches has been unable to evolve a consensus.

Tips on How to Get a Summer Job

Authorities agree that the best way to find employment is through the interest and help of friends and relatives. These people are interested in you and, of course, they are in a position to give you a personal reference.

From the employer's point of view, a student who comes with a reference from one of his employers is a "safe bet" that one who does not. It is important to keep in mind though, that your degree of success as a summer employee will be some reflection on the person who sponsored you.

If you do a good job this summer and want a job with this company again next year, you certainly have your foot in the door.

After-four and weekend jobs during school months frequently exist in summer jobs. Here again, the employer has had the opportunity to size you up a summer and if he liked what he saw, it may lead to a summer job for you.

— from "What Can I Do This Summer?" by Carl L. Bedal.

The book I have quoted from above is a 52-page publication of The Guidance Centre, Faculty of Education, U. of T., 1000 Yonge Street, Toronto, Ontario, M4W 2K8. It is packed full of ideas for students about how to find summer work. If you want one, write to The Guidance Centre and enclose 75 cents.

Dear Doris: You will be glad to be brought up to date about "Boy Eighteen and Wanting to Fall Through the Floor". He has now visited me several times, has learned to like himself enough to have some confidence in mixing with people.

Working on some of my ideas, he has left behind his phobias about people and is getting a pilot's licence!

It is wonderful what a direct challenge can do. Makes me think about the pseudo-humorous remark we see a fellow on TV make after someone has slapped him on the face: "Thank you, I needed that!" Sometimes we do need jarring — but always in a way which helps the person feel motivated and believe in him. — Psychiatric Consultant.

Dear P.C.: Wonderful news! Other readers were concerned about the same boy and I know they will be delighted that you got through to him. The young man himself deserves a pat on the back for tackling his problem, with your help.

Dear Doris: Congralulations to the 94-year-old lady! I hope I am as spry in seven years' time and will have been happy to send the poem she asked for about the old maid if only I knew it.

A good laugh, at our Foxboro 2nd Milers Club, does us all much good. I think you must be a Christian. You could not give such wise advice to people without help. I am sure. — Mrs. E. W.

Dear Mrs. E. W: If you are within seven years of being 94, congratulations to you! I hope you have continue to be just as active and interested in life as you are right now, for a good long time to come.

We have now received several versions of the "Old Maid's Prayer." If you would like one, write in again, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 25 cents.

Dirk Doris, in care of this newspaper, for the information of readers who doesn't know she'll find out from one of her contributors. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.)

AFL May Ask Oil Takeover

BAL HARBOUR, Fla. (Reuter) — AFL-CIO President George Meany confirmed today that the federation's 35-member executive council is considering calling for the nationalization of the American oil industry.

"We will most likely discuss it again," said Meany, who last Thursday criticized the oil companies for "scandalous greed."

At a news conference after the council ended its week-long mid-winter meeting, Meany said that nationalizing oil would be no more socialistic than the use of vast sums of public money for such enterprises as railways, allied corporations or school-lunch programs.

Need More

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Federal Agriculture Minister Whelan said Monday that if Canadians want milk and dairy products, "something has to give" and that something should be higher prices for the dairy farmer."

He said dairy farmers must have higher incomes and he agrees with the provincial agriculture ministers that consumers should pay.

'Bugs' Banned

OTTAWA (CP) — After June 30 it will be illegal to use, possess, buy or sell wiretapping equipment unless you are a policeman.

Justice Minister Otto Lang announced Monday that on that date Canada's wiretapping bill, passed at the last session of Parliament, will come into force.

Enough Land

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — There is no shortage of agricultural land in Ontario, Agriculture Minister William Stewart of Ontario said Monday.

He told delegates to a two-day conference sponsored by the Ontario Grain Corn Council that "we have plenty of good land to meet our needs for the present and into the future."

Trial Ordered

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — A seven-member grand jury decided Monday there is sufficient evidence to commit Tommy J. Blowing, 44, of Kingston to trial on capital murder and attempted murder charges.

Blowing is charged in the death of veteran police detective T. Bryce Cooper, 41, who died of lead poisoning 50 days after a Sept. 17 shooting incident.

Blowing, who also is charged with the attempted murder of Constable Finley Smith, is to be arraigned before Mr. Justice Thomas Haines of the Ontario Supreme Court on Wednesday.

Faces Trial

TORONTO (CP) — James Ince, a 29-year-old naturalized Canadian charged with evading the United States military draft, said Monday he plans to return to Buffalo, N.Y., next week to plead guilty to the charge.

"I talked to my lawyer and he said I have no clear legal defence even though I left the country (U.S.) long before the draft notice was sent out and I didn't think the draft applied to me any longer," Mr. Ince said in an interview.

The charge was laid in 1968, a year after Mr. Ince, who was born in Spokane, Wash., came to Canada and two months after he applied for landed immigrant status here.

Workers Poorer

OTTAWA (CP) — While average weekly earnings of about four million workers rose 7.2 per cent last year, the cost of living rose 7.6 per cent, Statistics Canada said Monday. On an adjusted basis, average weekly earnings stood at $160.89 in December 1973, compared with $151.80 a year earlier.

OK Project

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Manitoba government gave its blessing Monday to the controversial Garrison diversion project in North Dakota—at first for the time being.

Premier Ed Schreyer told a news conference he is satisfied with assurances from the United States federal government that the $500-million irrigation project will have only minimal impact on waterways in the province.

Intimidation Used

Construction Unions Battle Widens

OTTAWA (CP) — A struggle between Ottawa and Montreal union locals over control of organized construction workers in western Quebec and eastern Ontario is widening into a larger conflict a union official said Monday.

William Warchow, business agent for Local 586 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, told an Ontario public inquiry into violence in the construction industry that Montreal-based international unions are trying to gain control of workers in Hull and Ottawa.

Intimidation is being used now on the Quebec side of the Ottawa River and within two weeks it will be on the Ontario side as well, he testified on the first day of commission hearings here.

Mr. Warchow's testimony came after a morning session noteworthy chiefly for the absence of Rosaire D'Aoust, a Montreal official of the painters' union. Mr. D'Aoust did not appear before the hearing despite a subpoena.

Instead, Mr. D'Aoust sent his lawyer, Michel Decary, who requested the right to cross-examine Ottawa union official Jean Guy Denis during the hearing.

His request was adjourned by Mr. Justice Lloyd Houlden of the Ontario Supreme Court until Wednesday morning.

Mr. Denis repeated earlier testimony that Mr. D'Aoust had threatened to injure him or kill him after warning him not to continue organizing among drywall construction workers.

Mr. Warchow told the inquiry it is in Mr. D'Aoust's character to make such threats.

The union agent said his local had similar problems with international unions in Montreal challenging the right of his local to service four Western Quebec counties—Hull, Pontiac, Gatineau and Papineau.

Mr. Warchow and other union officials said that Ottawa-Hull formed an economic unit and while many construction workers lived in Quebec, most of the work was in Ontario.

To control Hull and the other Quebec counties, the Montreal unions also needed to control Ottawa, Mr. Warchow said. The result had been intimidation of workers.

Mr. D'Aoust's lawyer told County Court Judge Harry Waisberg, who heads the commission, that he had advised his client not to obey the subpoena. The authority of the order was questionable, he added.

In his testimony, Mr. Denis said he had been alternately threatened and offered money by Toronto contractor Os Romanelli and some of Mr. Romanelli's associates. Mr. Romanelli wanted Mr. Denis' union to do piece work.

Piecework pays a flat fee for a particular job and is cheaper for employers because a company does not have to pay fringe benefits and pension and unemployment insurance contributions.

Mr. Denis said he was offered five cents per man-hour worked by Mr. Romanelli's employers. The five-cent checkoff would have paid him about $50,000 a year.

When he refused he was threatened with violence, he said.

After various threats were made, Mr. Denis' 16-year-old son was knocked unconscious in his home by two men and members of the plasterers' union were intimidated, Mr. Denis said.

Later, an agreement was signed between Mr. D'Aoust's union and Mr. Romanelli's company to work on an Ontario construction site on a piecework basis.

Hydro Plans Energy Centre In Lower Lake Huron Area

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Hydro said Monday it plans to construct an electrical energy centre somewhere in the lower Lake Huron area and it is expected to become operational by the mid-1980s.

Public meetings will be held in the area, likely this spring and summer, to discuss possible location of the one or more thermal-electric generating stations, a Hydro statement said.

Adcision on the site for the energy centre will be made following the meetings as will the type of station—nuclear or coal-fired.

Last Friday, Art Mosher, an Ontario Hydro engineer, told Huron County Council that a nuclear power station would be built on Lake Huron in the general vicinity of Goderich.

"In our present schedule, it will be operational by 1985 and supply mainly the western region—London, with lines to Kitchener," he said.

A Hydro spokesman said Monday that the new station or stations on lower Lake Huron "will help balance the generation for the province.

"In Ontario Ontario five or six stations—at Lennonville, Pickering, Bowmanville and Wesleyville—are in various stages of construction or recently completed," he said.

"We now will need to balance this generation with comparable stations in the western part of the province."

In southwestern Ontario, two nuclear stations are under development at Douglas Point on Lake Huron and two coal-fired stations at Nanticoke on Lake Erie.

Control Lead

TORONTO (CP) — The Prestolite Co. announced Monday that in response to concern of residents living near its west-end battery plant, it plans to expand voluntary lead emission control practices.

Youth with Cut on Leg Died Without Warning

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — The second phase of an inquest into 23 deaths at Sudbury General Hospital last year was told Monday that a Toronto youth died "suddenly and without any advance warning" on an operating table there last June 28.

The testimony came from Dr. Robert Shire, an anesthetist who attended Randy Preske during an operation to stop bleeding from a deep cut inflicted by an electric saw on the youth's right thigh.

The inquest was told earlier that last September the hospital discovered oxygen outlets in some rooms of the hospital were emitting nitrous oxide.

Dr. Shire testified that immediately after the Preske youth was pronounced dead he placed the face mask which had been on the patient to his own face and took a whiff of the gas that had been administered for 90 minutes during the operation.

"I smelled the gas and it smelled somewhat sweet, but I didn't really consider there was anything wrong with the supply," he said.

Dr. Shire said he discontinued use of the anesthetic shortly after the operation began because the youth fought induction and displayed decreased respiration while the gas mixture was being applied.

"I did ever occur to you that there might have been something wrong with the gas supply?" the doctor was asked by Crown attorney John Takach.

"No," the doctor replied, but added:

"I wasn't happy with the fact he was deeply unconscious while no anesthetic was being administered. I was hoping that with time and with his condition improving he would come out of it."

The operation ended at 9:05 p.m. and the youth was pronounced dead at 9:30 p.m.

The youth was treated in the same area of the hospital where Catherine Dominic, 6, of Sudbury, died after an operation to reset her broken arm.

Nurses had been told during the first six weeks of the inquest—dealing only with the Dominic girl's death—that she received a gas from a wall outlet labelled oxygen. But because of a cross-over of medical-gas lines, nitrous oxide was administered.

The Preske youth's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Loyal Preske, sat through Monday's testimony, along with Randy's twin brother, Terry.

Early testimony by a doctor discounted a pathologist's report that the youth died of a heart attack induced by shock.

Dr. Marcel Prevost said he told police that "this child had died an anesthetic death . . . not as a result of the anesthetic itself but of the anesthetic manipulation."

The inquest continues today.

Indians Want 50-cent Allowances for Lunch

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — More than 150 Indian children, involved in a dispute with the Indian affairs department over a lunch-allowance program, were kept home from school Monday.

The students, residents of the nearby Garden River reserve, are enrolled in separate and public schools here. The dispute arose when their parents' proposal that they be given an increase in their 25 cent-per-pupil daily sandwich allowance.

E. R. Levert, district supervisor for the department, said the allotted quota for the lunch allowance will have to suffice because of a lack of funds since the band succeeded in having it increased to 50 cents from the original 35 cents some time ago.

"At that time council was told that in meeting their demands we were in danger of exhausting our quota," Mr. Levert said. He added there is no possible way of obtaining additional funds without government approval.

However, band Chief Nori Jones said the pupils will not return to classes until the matter is settled to the band's satisfaction.

"We were promised a number of years ago that our children would receive suitable lunches and an adequate clothing allowance if they attended the schools off the reserve," he said. "These promises have not been met."

BELLEVILLE FAMILY Y.M.C.A.

1893 — 80th ANNUAL REPORT — 1973

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

From perusal of the statistics it can be seen that the citizens of Belleville both large and small have been utilizing "Y" facilities and programs almost to the capacity of our physical plant. This brings forth the major need in the future of expanding the family "Y" to include a gymnasium, squash, handball and tennis. The demand is present but the funds are not, and we must proceed slowly towards this goal because the economics dictate this. In the meantime we have taken advantage of school gymnasiums to run our programs and this concept will be expanded as the need presents itself and the "Y" Board is appreciative of the School Board's co-operation in making gymnasium facilities available.

Volunteer leadership in all phases of the program has been all important in making this a success both from the economic and productive aspects of the operation, and I thank on behalf of the Board all the volunteers who have given their skills and time to make the year a success.

The Outreach Program under the able direction of Mr. Jack Frame was both satisfying and successful and as funds permit, it will continue.

The intangible elements which do not show in statistics should be mentioned. These include the personal satisfactions of all those who have developed new skills; the reinforcement of the real values in life for our young people gained through their association with the full-time staff, part-time staff, and the volunteer leadership, and the fellowship, members of all ages have been exposed to.

I would like to again extend to our Executive Director, Di Diamanides the thanks of the entire membership for his leadership in putting the whole operation together and making it work successfully.

A breath of fresh air entered our organization this year under the guise of Brian Bentley our new Physical Director and all who have worked with him have benefited from his enthusiasm and effective performance of his duties. To the above two professionals and to all other "Y" staff I wish to express the Board's appreciation.

To all members of the Board I extend my thanks for their help in making this year successful — without an active, enthusiastic and dedicated Board we simply can't function.

Finally to all citizens of Belleville it should be pointed out that the "Y" is not owned by any elite group of people. In effect, it is owned by all citizens and run on a non-profit basis by a volunteer Board of Directors who hire full-time staff to make it run. All those interested should feel free to get involved with the present membership, and economic status does not bar any child or adult from taking part in what is available now and what may be available in the future.

The Staff and the "Y" Board recognize imperfections in the programs and the organization as a whole, and on a continuing basis are steadily striving to correct and improve, and welcome suggestions and criticisms from all. These latter are really what keeps an institution viable and healthy.

S. D HORNE, M.D.,
President.

SUMMER SWIMMING AND WATER SAFETY

As in past years, the special "June Learn To Swim" program was once again very successful.

Featuring the teaching of swimming to non-swimmers only in order that they may have a safe summer, a total of 300 non-swimmers had registered, of whom 260 were youth. Another 210 had registered to receive swimming instruction during July and August making a total of 510 enrolled in our various swimming and water safety instruction classes this summer.

In addition to the above, many hours of recreational swimming were held for all age groups and for family swimming.

Another 10½ hours of pool time a week were allocated for public swimming and another two hours a week for a special teen-swim sponsored by the City-Recreation Arena Committee.

About 55 children from Stirling, sponsored by the Stirling Rotary Club received swimming instruction from 6 instructors in August.

A very successful Red Cross Leaders Course, the first step on the way to being an instructor, was conducted during the latter part of August ending a very busy summer in the pool.

"Y" MAJORETTE CLUB

The "Y" Majorettes club continues to train girls in the art of Baton twirling, in marching and to participate in the numerous parades held in and around Belleville each year. The club has proven very popular for the girls and is taught at the beginner and advanced levels by a competent instructor.

"LABOR-Y" FESTIVAL

The 1973 program was highlighted by a Labor Day Festival. A joint program was conducted and organized by the Quinte District Labor Council and the Y.M.C.A.

There were about 400 people in attendance who participated in the many activities offered that day. The program consisted of relays, road races, bicycle parade, fun fair, draws for prizes, dance and free food in the evening.

It is the hope of both sponsors involved that this will turn into an annual affair increasing in size each year.

OUR THANKS

In reporting the year 1973 we gratefully acknowledge the support of many individuals and organizations. It is not possible to record all, but the following are representative.

The Belleville United Community Services - the City Council - the Y.M.C.A. National Council - the Y's Men's Club - the Y's Menettes Club - the Intelligencer - Radio Station CJBQ - the Moira River Conservation Authority - volunteer leaders and workers, and many business concerns and individual who assisted us.

2. "Noon" Fitness class meets Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 12:00 - 1:00 p.m. This class is specially designed for the businessman and the professional who has a limited schedule but a great need for exercise and relaxation.
3. "Evening" Fitness class is conducted on Monday and Wednesday evenings from 7:00 - 8:30 p.m.

All three classes are somewhat similar in content and all include group exercises, jogging, use of exercise equipment, swimming and sauna. The total enrollment in 1973 was well over 90 men.

WOMEN'S PROGRAMS

There were four "Ladies Fitness" Programs scheduled in 1973. They are "Ladies Day Out" program which ran Tuesday and Thursday, 9:30 - 11:30 a.m., "Ladies Nite Out" class which ran Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 7:30 - 9 p.m., and the "Slender Shape Salon" which was conducted Monday, Wednesday and Friday mornings. These classes are all designed to aid in figure control, flexibility, endurance and relaxation. Each class included a sauna and swim.

The Fourth class was just started in the Fall of 1973 and to date has proven to be very successful. This class is "Aquabics" where ladies can learn to relax in water and also develop poise, balance, total body coordination and exercise without all the aches and pains. This class is held Tuesday and Thursday mornings, 9:30 - 10:00 a.m.

ADULT "LEARN TO SWIM"

In 1973 there were over 200 candidates enrolled in "Learn to Swim" and "Stroke Improvement" classes. These two classes teach adults the art of swimming from the very basics to the more advanced skills and many adults received their badges at many different levels.

"UNDER 8" PROGRAM

One of the most successful programs that continues to meet a real need of the pre-school children is our "Under-8" program for children from 3 months to 8 yrs. of age. They are divided into three categories, namely "Wee Folk" - 3 months to 2 years, "Kinder" - 3 - 4 and 5 years, and "Small Fry" - 6 and 7 years of age. Total enrollment for 1973 approched 600 children.

This program for pre-schoolers is based on the concepts of "movement exploration" and is intended to stimulate children to explore their capabilities in water and on land. Movement Education can provide a multitude of experiences to develop the child's motor potential and help him to live better in his cultural setting.

'Y' NURSERY SCHOOL

This program made its debut in the Fall of 1973 and meets a real need of the community. There were three different classes started with a total enrollment of 52 children aged 3 to 5.

Its program consisted of the opportunity to experiment with creative materials such as paint and clay; enjoyment of stories, books, pictures; experiences to develop wonder and curiosity about the world; movement rhythm and learning to play and share with children of their own age.

OUTDOOR EDUCATION

The Community Day Camp, operated jointly by the Recreation Committee and the Y.M.C.A. enjoyed a very successful season. There was a total of about 180 registered children for the four 2 week periods with a number of these being admitted free.

The children were bused to Vanderwater Park in the morning and returned in the afternoon to the "Y" for a shower and a recreational swim.

Arts and Crafts, Nature study, active and quiet games constituted the daily program with many special events such as scavenger hunts, sport days, dress up days, and trips being added throughout the total program.

The Klinder-Kamp for children ages 4-8 was held at the Y.M.C.A. There was a total registration of about 90 children for four 2-week periods.

These Kampers learn the basics of camping at an early age. Their program followed fundamentally along the same lines as the Community Day Camp, only they were based at the "Y" and near home. They enjoyed trips, fun days, backward days and always ended with a shower and a swim at the "Y".

LEADERS CORPS

The Leaders Corps is the junior service club of the Y.M.C.A., but it is designed not only to develop leaders and leadership for the "Y" programs but for the community as a whole.

The number involved in the Corps jumped considerably during '73 and now some 45 members (30 girls, 10 boys) ranging in age from twelve to eighteen years receive training and guidance in leadership from professional staff. All members help on a volunteer basis in our gym or swim programs or both. Regular meetings are held and sessions in both theory and practical aspects for all areas of program are conducted. Their executive coordinates all social activities ,training areas and works with the other "Y's" in the region to develop training conferences.

SWIMATHLON

The 6th annual "Y" Swimathon was held in November and was a splashing success. It attracted over 130 participants of whom 94 swam the maximum of 30 length. There was a grand total of 3226 length swam during the Swimathon providing an excellent opportunity for youth to test their endurance.

LIFESAVING

During 1973, classes of Royal Life Saving Society instruction were held with over one hundred successful candidates at the Intermediate, Bronze, Bronze Cross, and Award of Merit levels and one successful candidate at the Distinction level.

SERVICE CLUBS

Y'S MEN'S CLUB

This Y.M.C.A. service club provided valuable support for both the "Y" and the community in the year 1973. The club assisted the "Y" with the purchase of some equipment, a $1000. donation to the Building Fund, helped to sponsor leaders training events, in the community the club assisted and sponsored minor sports, the Spelling Bee and other educational and sporting projects.

Their major fund raising projects, the Radio Auction and the Christmas Tree Sale were most successful in 1973.

Y'S MENETTES CLUB

The Y's Men's wives provided assistance to their husbands in their projects, and assisted the "Y" with the purchase of drapes, a juice dispenser as well as provide valuable volunteer service to the "Y" when needed. These funds were raised through very successful book and bake sales.

PUBLIC SCHOOL "LEARN TO SWIM" PROGRAM

By special arrangement with the Hastings County Board of Education, approximately 170 elementary students from the Moira Associated School Group were given swimming instruction at the "Y" on Saturdays for a period of ten weeks the latter part of 1973, with excellent results. Assisting in the instruction were senior students from the Moira Secondary School.

The students came from Bayview, Harry J. Clarke, D. R. Aitkins, and Sir Winston Churchill public schools.

Forty students of the Mohawk Indian School also use the "Y" pool every other week, all year, for swimming instruction. Again there has been excellent results with this group.

Triplet Bulls Born at Melrose

MELROSE — The number of bulls tripled overnight on Ben McMechan's farm here. As a result his barn has become a calling -- and conversation -- centre for curious rural resident along the surrounding Tyendinaga township concessions.

Exciting attention are white-and-tan Hereford bull triplets born one week ago -- a "very unusual" event, says provincial government cattle specialist.

Neither parental strains had any record of multiple births. The bull was sold last fall after siring about 40 calves in two years for the McMechan beef herd.

The first arrival was noticed by Mr. McMechan when he checked the barn on his way to work on Corby Distilleries nightshift. The cow had been expected to produce a calf soon, and the farmer wasn't surprised at the event. But, on his way in from work the next morning, he found two more bulls

Barry Kowalchuk, area dairy cattle specialist for the agriculture ministry at Brighton, said he didn't know the statistics for multiple births of similar sex.

"I don't know what the odds are but it would be very unusual," he said.

The specialist also pondered if the triplets were identical -- which means being produced from the same fertilized egg.

If so they might be valuable for genetic study, said Mr. Kowalchuk.

Mr. McMechan admitted he had never examined the triplets -- which last weekend drew a steady stream of visitors -- in minute detail, although the calves' markings seemed similar.

"I may look at 'em a little closer now," he said.

Change Essential In Ad Business

The name of the game in advertising, as in any business, is change.

In a Marshall McLuhan -- The Medium is the Message - style address to Belleville Rotary Club on Monday, John Gould, president of Claude Neon Signs Ltd., said business must keep abreast, or preferably ahead, of change.

Acknowledging that he was not an Alvin Toffler (whose book, Future Shock, deals with the increasingly telescopic nature of time and events), Mr. Gould said he believed nevertheless that the book was already becoming a victim of Toffler's own thesis and outdated by fact that Toffler himself admitted was likely to happen).

Claude Neon Signs Ltd. itself has proceeded through a name change and constant evolution and experimentation to the point where today it is the country's leading outdoor advertiser, whose methods have been adopted abroad and which generates millions of dollars in business.

Many of the company's requirements in the sphere of graphics and video presentations are produced at the Stewart-Warner Corporation of Canada Ltd. plant in Belleville.

Underlying the concept of moving with the times, Mr. Gould said: "We are a trendy type of business dictated by the needs of clients," and he illustrated the multi-faceted nature of the graphic arts scene, which much of the business entails, with slides.

As a company whose business is outdoor advertising which also embraces the environment, Mr. Gould said Claude Neon was the largest and most diversified in its field in Canada.

He explained that adaptation to change in the sphere of outdoor advertising was to recognize its intrinsic worth, while at the same time old signs and displays were coming to be valued as were lighthouses.

In moving to revitalize outdoor advertising, Mr. Gould said also that it provided businesses with a choice. It was the most economic type of advertising and it could do things other media could not, or do as well. It could also be used on a localized basis in areas where there were potential customers.

Some people he went on, were saying it would be the predominant advertising medium of the 21st century.

As for its relation to the environment, the speaker said the word was that it definitely provided color adding: "I don't think we want to look like the bleak cities of eastern Europe.

He showed pictures of billboards placed in such a way that they not only catch the eye but enhance a particular building or property. There was no problem either with lack of power, for lighting.

Mr. Gould said his firm provided cash awards for the encouragement of the highest degree of outdoor creativeness and the firm was becoming a world leader in advertising research.

He cited use of laser beams and television and noted that Stewart Warner has a 60 ft. by 30 ft. screen in a Kansas City stadium that can give replays of football games, a concept which can be used in a variety of ways.

C. N. HEATH

Quinte Man Named Top Administrator

C. N. Heath secretary of the Ontario Cheese Producers' Marketing Board in Belleville until the late 1950s, has been named as one of the tobacco industry's top administrators.

The citation was given by Tobacco International trade magazine, which selected Mr. Heath for one of its five Men-of-the-Year awards around the world.

Indirectly, the Hastings County native's administrative experience in Belleville is linked to the award.

While secretary of the cheese board, the organization introduced the dutch-clock auction system in selling cheese. When the province's tobacco growers' organized their own board, Mr. Heath, experienced in the auction system was asked to join the new board.

He became secretary of the Ontario Flue-Cured Tobacco Grower's Marketing Board.

His citation says he now "heads a tobacco marketing operation admired throughout the world as being the very model of efficiency and order."

Born in Rawdon township, Mr. Heath is a graduate of the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph. He and wife, Irene, reside in Delhi.

$1,160 Cost For Openers

Official openings of two new schools in the spring will cost Hastings county board of education a total of $1,160.

George Waldrum, deputy minister of education, will open Stirling's senior elementary school May 6 and Harry Fisher, assistant deputy minister of education will open North Hastings senior elementary school April 24.

Cost of each opening is $580, including invitations, advertising, programs, refreshments, flowers and plaques. Most expensive items are the plaques, one for each school, each costing $200.

Getting at the Job

After placing a water pipe near a ditch, workers at the Roslin construction site of Bel-Con Engineering Ltd. get back to the job of building a two-storey structure that will house a store and three two-bedroom apartments once completed in March. Initial cost of the building is $78,000. The final cost, inclusive of engineering firm fees and finishing, is estimated at $110,000. Yesterday, workmen at the site received shipment of steel cladding that will encircle the second storey apartments.

New Building for Roslin

By March, Roslin can expect to see a new, $78,000 building completed in the community. The two-storey structure, at the corner of Highway 37 and the Roslin Rd., will house a commercial establishment on the first floor and three two-bedroom apartments above.

Each storey consists of 2,200 square feet.

Started late in 1973, the building is being constructed by Bel-Con Engineering Ltd., for a Belleville company, currently negotiating a change in ownership.

Barry Brown, construction manager with the recently incorporated engineering firm, said yesterday his company has experienced little trouble with getting supplies for the building.

"We've been quite lucky," he said. "We ordered all our materials as soon as we were awarded the contract in December. The biggest problem has been the sustained cold, but we expected that."

Workers on the site have completed the masonry work and are now constructing the wooden frame to which steel cladding will be affixed. The cladding rings the second storey apartment level.

Having escaped the effects of a cross-Canada shortage of building supplies, the engineering firm did encounter one problem, said Mr. Brown.

The water table level was higher than was anticipated. However, a larger capacity pump was installed during the preliminary stages of construction. The higher cost was absorbed by his firm, he said.

Eventual cost of the building, including engineering firm fees and finishing, is $110,000 said Mr. Brown.

Trustees' Main Concern Keep the Schools Open

By a vote of 10 to 2, Hastings county school trustees voted Monday night against strikes, lockouts and other sanctions that would close schools in the event of a teacher-trustee impasse over negotiations.

A provincial conference of school trustees earlier this month favoring such teachers the right to strike under legislation similar to that of the Labor Relations Act — in effect recommending that teachers give up their federations and become unionized.

Instead of unionization of teachers, county trustees favored settling dispute by binding arbitration in the form of final offer solution.

Should either a new form of arbitration, dictates that the arbitrator must select either the final offer of the teachers or that of the trustees, instead of making his own award.

The trustees also recommended that school board employees, including all teachers, not be eligible for positions as trustees.

The trustees were debating provisions of Bill 275, legislation that will govern teacher negotiations. The trustee recommendations will go to the Ontario School Trustees' Council for submission to the minister of education.

Both trustees and teachers have expressed dissatisfaction with the bill and amendments are expected before it goes to final reading.

Hastings trustees voted down negotiations on conditions of work. They asked that negotiations be limited to salaries and fringe benefits and that the bill "provide that sixth board consultative processes developed in Hastings county be continued."

Principals regarded by some as members of the management team, should be considered as teachers for bargaining purposes and should retain membership in teachers' federations, the local trustees recommended.

Elementary and secondary school teachers' federations should bargain together, but the process should not be legislated. At present, separate negotiations are conducted by committees of elementary and secondary school teachers. Combined negotiation is desirable, but should evolve naturally, the trustees concluded.

Rape Suspect In Custody

Officers at the Belleville detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police have arrested a 19-year-old Belleville man and charged him with rape.

Arnold Edward Snow, 19, of 224 East Moira St., was arrested early Monday morning. He will appear in court in Belleville Thursday for a bail hearing.

Stone was charged following an incident that was alleged to have happened in Sidney Township Saturday.

An unidentified 25-year-old woman was the victim of the alleged assault.

Chamber's New Look

The city's Chamber of Commerce has a new look these days. Their offices have recently been painted and now the bulletin on events occurring in the Quinte area, called What's Happening, has a new look. The bulletin changes to a magazine format and continues its complete round-up of area events. Chamber secretary, Carol Crawford, keeps busy counting part of the 3,000 copies that will soon be distributed to local banks, malls and other centres. They are also available at the chamber's offices on Front Street.

Seminar Planned

A total immersion study designed to overcome future shock is planned for a group of Moira Secondary School students April 24.

The Future Is Here is the theme of the day, planned the grade 13 contemporary English class taught by P. M. Foshi.

More than 25 speakers have been invited to conduct seminars and take part in open discussions in the areas of mass media, education, urban planning, sociology, medicine, law, politics and the economic ethics and environment.

Those participating will be grade 13 students from Moira and from other schools in the area with some of their teachers.

Monday night the Hastings county board of education entertained the concept in principle, but decided against allocating funds for the project. A delegation of students will appear before L. J. Shipton, asked for an allocation of up to $1,000 to meet transportation and accommodation expenses for speakers and to cover the cost of special films and a reception. Part of the cost will be covered by school funds and no money has been allocated for speakers' fees.

"This is a new adventure in education the kind of thing we as a board have been trying to encourage," commented board vice-chairman Ralph Weaver.

Chairman of the futures day committee is Lee Stratton, who made the presentation to the board. Other members of the committee are Bobbi Hornsby, Debbie Hornsby, Lisa Nair, treasurer and John Steadman and Beverley McGee.

Budget Stalled

Senior governments could be "welching" on supporting local emergency measures organizations, says Quinte Emergency Measures Organization co-ordinator Angus Duffy.

Budget time is marching on for member municipalities in QEMO.

QEMO meantime is financially fidgeting in the air waiting for word on funding decisions from Toronto or Ottawa on its new budget dilemma.

QEMO's executive committee has twice written — and sent telegrams — to both provincial and federal governments, but the promised funds have stimulated no response, said Mr. Duffy, Monday.

The committee meets again Wednesday night to discuss the problem, muted late last year when the federal government decided to halve the $200 per peacetime emergency agencies. Ottawa kept the $100 in its 1974 budgets, and the question remains unanswered. It was answered is whether the province intends picking up the financial slack.

The committee a month ago set a tentative budget -- a marginal increase over the $20,500 spent in 1973. But, it cannot ask its 39 member municipalities in Hastings and Prince Edward counties to include it in local government budgets — as we have been estimated -- until the grant issue is resolved.

"It's a most uncomfortable -- and embarrassing -- position to be in," says Mr. Duffy.

We have no indication even yet from either the federal or provincial governments on what to be doing.

"Perhaps the approach is to let the situation go by default, and not do anything until the last minute.Of course, that will be too late as far as we're concerned."

The announced federal cutback would mean a loss of about $7,500 to what already is "minimum budget," said Mr. Duffy.

"It's just a very poor way of doing business," said the co-ordinator. "And often happens in cost-sharing programs is that local municipalities that end up holding the bag."

Man Falls From Roof

A Belleville man, Bernard Phillips, is reported to be in fair condition at Belleville General, Hospital after falling from the roof of an apartment building in Trenton yesterday.

Ambulance attendents in Trenton said Mr. Phillips was rushed to hospital around 2:30 p.m. yesterday when he fell from the roof of a building on McNicol Street.

Phillips was reportedly working on the roof prior to the accident.

Hospital officials report that Phillips is in the intensive care unit of the hospital suffering from injuries to the right hand, the right leg and the pelvis.

Alarm Box

Belleville firefighters responded to the following call for assistance during the 8-hour period ending Tuesday at 8 a.m.:

Monday, Feb. 25, service call in front of 146 Front Street, gasoline reported spilled from a car, no damage.

Dick Redmond – Best Season

Loss of Weight Makes Difference

CHICAGO (AP) — Dick Redmond Chicago Black Hawks' defenseman, says his weight-gaining program of a year ago was a mistake.

Enjoying his best National Hockey League season, Redmond credited the loss of about 12 pounds—down to 185—as one of the big reasons for his turnabout.

"I put it on intentionally and thought it would help" said the younger brother of Detroit's high-scoring forward Mickey Redmond. "But all it did was slow me down."

"He was the victim of some bad advice," said coach Billy Reay. "Somebody probably told him he'd be tougher on defence with more weight.

"I know one thing, if he hadn't had that weight when I used him at left wing last season, he would have been fantastic."

"The difference in his play from last year to this year has been like night and day," Reay added. "Earlier this year, when our defencemen got hit with injuries, it was a blessing to have him."

Redmond, 24, now playing defence only, prefers that position to wing.

"I'm more comfortable on defence," he said. "On defence, you make things happen. At forward you worry about what other guys are going to do."

Redmond came to the Hawks in the middle of last season in a trade that sent Darryl Maggs to California Golden Seals.

Somehow he didn't seem to fit in, but this year it is a different story.

"Losing the weight and playing a lot more are the main reasons, I guess," said Redmond.

With 11 goals and 21 assists, Redmond trails only Stan Mikita, Pit Martin, Jim Pappin and Dennis Hull in individual scoring on the Hawks.

Redmond won't get a chance to improve his points total until Wednesday, when the Hawks visit Minnesota North Stars.

All NHL teams were idle Monday and only three games are scheduled tonight—Montreal at Atlanta, Toronto at Detroit and Vancouver at New York Islanders.

Horton Hockey Camp Will Be Established

TORONTO (CP) — Hundreds of hockey fans broke down and cried Monday at the funeral of defenceman Tim Horton of Buffalo Sabres, who was killed in a car crash Thursday near St. Catharines, Ont.

People began filling into the church more than 90 minutes before the start of the service for the former National Hockey League all-star.

The 400 seats in the church were filled as were two side aisles and the choir loft. Another 200 chairs were set up in the basement to accommodate the overflow crowd.

It was a short, simple service, with a eulogy delivered by Rev. Gordon Riggs, a friend of the family.

The United Church minister announced there will be a Tim Horton memorial hockey camp for underprivileged children set up on 150 acres of land owned by Horton and his wife near Orangeville, Ont., about 30 miles northwest of Toronto.

He said the camp would start this summer. No further details were announced.

Professional hockey was well represented. Among those present were:

NHL President Clarence Campbell and his executive assistant, Brian O'Neill; Ian (Scotty) Morrison, NHL referee-in-chief; Gus Bodnar, former team-mate of Horton when he played with Toronto Maple Leafs and who now manages Oshawa Generals of the Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A series; Red Berenson, captain of Detroit Red Wings; Ted O'Connor, head scout for Minnesota North Stars; Bob Goldham, former defenceman with Toronto, Detroit and Chicago Black Hawks; Leaf forward Ron Ellis, and Carl Brewer of Toronto Toros of the World Hockey Association who was a team-mate of Horton when he played with the Leafs.

FANS INCREASE

MIAMI (AP) — Attendance at National Football League regular-season games went up by 2.73 per cent last season—but no-shows increased by 63 per cent, the league said Monday. Exhibition, regular-season and playoff attendance all rose with 15,500,526 fans attending all 282 games played compared to the 15,059,356 for the same number of games in 1972.

SHARKS GET TOWNSEND

DELAND, Fla. (AP) — Florida Sharks of the World Football League signed All-American defensive back Mike Townsend of Notre Dame owner Fran Monaco reported Monday. Townsend, the Sharks' sixth-round draft pick, stands 6 foot 1 and weighs 195 pounds. He was drafted by Minnesota Vikings of the National Football League in the fourth round.

Sittler Could Reach New High for Club

MONTREAL (CP) — While Phil Esposito of Boston Bruins appears well on the way to winning his fourth straight National Hockey League scoring championship the race for the points leadership in the second half is a wide open affair and Esposito is not the leader.

Darryl Sittler of Toronto Maple Leafs has been the hottest scorer in the second half of the year scoring 16 goals and 17 assists in 20 games to bring his over-all total to 32 goals and 35 assists for 67 point and fifth spot in the scoring derby.

If Sittler maintains his average for the remaining 19 games of the season he could have a club record of 98 points, 13 more than the current record of 85, set in 1970-71 by Norm Ullman.

Sittler, who joined the Leafs from London Knights of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series four years ago, has the third highest four-season point total ever recorded by a Maple Leaf player. The all-time club leader is Dave Keon with 232 points. Sittler has 194 points on 86 goals and 108 assists in 200 games.

Behind Sittler in the second-half scoring race is defenceman Brad Park of New York Rangers, who has 27 points in 20 games. His over-all mark is 19 goals and 43 assists for 62 points, one back of sixth-place Bobby Clarke of Philadelphia Flyers. Clarke is third in the second half scoring with 28 points.

Esposito has 51 goals and 51 assists in 58 games this season and top team-mate Bobby Orr by 16 points. Orr has scored 22 goals and 67 assists in 54 games.

Ken Hodge of Boston is third with 81 points on 40 goals and 41 assists while Rick Martin of Buffalo Sabres is fourth with 38 goals and 39 assists.

In the race for the Vezina Trophy, the Chicago duo of Tony Esposito and Silke Veisor now have a nine-goal lead over the Philadelphia tandem of Bernie Parent and Bobby Taylor. Esposito and Parent each have had 10 shutouts this season and are tied for the lead in that this department.

Dave Schultz of the Flyers leads in the penalty department with 265 minutes thus far.

Howe Three Up

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. (CP) — Gordie Howe has taken command in the race for his seventh professional hockey scoring championship.

The 45-year-old Houston Aeros winger added two goals and four assists last week to take over the World Hockey Association scoring lead from Toronto Toros' Wayne Carleton.

WHA statistics released Monday showed the veteran of 25 National Hockey League seasons—including six as scoring champion—three points ahead of Carleton with 28 goals and 56 assists.

Carleton, who had a one-point lead over Howe a week ago, added only one goal and one assist in his last three games and dropped behind with a total of 30 goals and 51 assists.

CTV to Cover Gold Cup Races

PICTON—The CTV television Network has purchased the exclusive television rights for the 1974 Gold Cup Races, it was announced today by John Sikhora (chairman) and Ron Denard of the racing committee.

CTV plans to show coverage of the event across Canada on the program Wide World of Sports, shortly after the September 1 and 2 race dates.

In addition, CTV will have first option on similar television coverage for the 1975 races.

Andrews to Sue

BOSTON (AP) — The Herald/American says that veteran infielder Mike Andrews plans to sue Oakland owner Charlie Finley for $1 million and the Athletics team physician, Dr. Charles Hudson, for half that amount for allegedly damaging Andrews' ability to earn a livelihood.

The story was reported by baseball writer Bill Liston from the Boston Red Sox' training camp on a "learned exclusively basis" in Monday's editions.

Andrews lives in West Peabody, Mass., could not be reached for comment.

Andrews 30, who helped the Red Sox win the American League pennant as a rookie in 1967, committed two errors as a substitute second baseman for the Athletics in an extra-inning loss to New York Mets in the second game of the World Series last fall.

Finley and the Athletics attempted to put Andrews on the disabled list because of an alleged shoulder injury after the game, but were denied by baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn. Finley later was fined by Kuhn for conduct detrimental to baseball.

The Herald American said Andrews has "tried vainly during the off-season to get a job with a major league club."

As a result," the story says, "it's been learned that Andrews has retained a Boston law firm which will handle his damage suits against the controversial Finley and also against Dr. Hudson."

Andrews allegedly was examined at the insistence of Finley after the second game errors in the World Series. Finley then tried to have Andrews placed on the disabled list, the second baseman returned home and then was ordered re-instated by Kuhn.

Andrews says he has been examined by two Boston orthopedic specialists and has been given a clean bill of health.

Barbaro Bids for Argos

TORONTO (CP) — A partner in a Toronto insurance agency has submitted a proposal to buy Toronto Argonauts of the Canadian Football League.

Ron Barbaro also a shareholder in Cash Sports, which operates Toronto Toros of the World Hockey Association, says he has sent a letter of intent to a CFL committee that will decide who the new owner of the Argos will be.

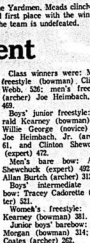
Barbaro denied, however, earlier reports that said he had an interest in Toronto North Stars.

Barbaro said: "I have been in touch with a group of Toronto businessmen and we have 75 per cent of the $3.3 million. Raising the balance will be no problem."

Barbaro said if he became the owner, he would maintain present personnel.

"My goal would be not only to continue the successful operation of the Argo organization, but to sell 30,000 more seats," Barbaro said, referring to the Canadian National Exhibition stadium expansion planned for completion in 1975.

New Orleans Keeps The Super Bowl Game



MIAMI (AP) — The National Football League voted Monday to keep next year's Super Bowl in New Orleans but said that the Jan. 12 championship game Stadium if the mammoth Louisiana Superdome is not completed.

The vote, which was not unanimous, commits the NFL to New Orleans for the game. The league had been contingering moving the game to Los Angeles or another city because of delays in the construction of the Superdome.

Commissioner Pete Rozelle said he was encouraged by reports from spokesman for the New Orleans facility, expected to be completed by the end of the year. Rozelle visited New Orleans late last week before coming here for the meetings.

The 76,000-seat stadium, in its third year of construction, initially was expected to be completed for the start of the 1975 football season but delays in the roof and in other areas of construction pushed the completion date back. The original plans estimated the structure would cost $29 million but the figure has ballooned to $163 million.

The structure is 75-per-cent complete.

Thurlow Sports Committee Busy

Interest in the Thurlow Township minor sports program appears to be at a high level, judging from attendance at the general meeting held Monday night.

The meeting attracted 30 sports enthusiasts and succeeding to a spokesman for the group, that figure is just about double the attendance for previous planning sessions.

Jerry Masterson heads up the recently formed sports committee, as president. Serving as vice-president is Tom Welsh while secretary is Linda Vader and registrar, Les Knapp.

Thurlow teams have come up with excellent records in Eastern Ontario Baseball Association (EOBA) competition in past years and in 1974, it is planned to add another entry to these ranks.

It is hoped a midget team will join tyke, pewee and bantam entries in the EOBA, Nelson Vader is Thurlow's EOBA convener.

Township youngsters will once again be offered soccer and softball programs as well as the baseball leagues. Registration fee will be $3 per sport. The family rate is $7.

No date for registrations has been confirmed. That is March 16. Other dates will be announced in the near future.

Other conveners involved in the sports group are Webb Brown, house league baseball; Dick Edwards, soccer; Dave Pound, girls' softball, and Jim Hurd, boys' softball.

In Saturday's contest, Dave Meagher, Chris Coates, and Robbie Stinchcombe scored to give Belleville the win, with Scott Terrion replying for Marmora.

Throw-in Becomes Top Scorer

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

To many it seemed George Carter was just a throw-in when he came to Virginia Squires last summer in the American Basketball Association deal in which the Squires dealt Julius Erving to the New York Nets for a reported million dollars.

But with George Gervin's departure for the San Antonio Spurs, the 6-foot-5 veteran forward has become the Squires' top scorer as well as a steady rebounder and defensive player.

Carter, playing 39 minutes a game, fired in 31 Monday night as Virginia downed the Memphis Tams 115-93 in the only game played in either the ABA or the National Basketball Association.

Lacroix Finally Gets the Payoff

NEW YORK (CP) — Andre Lacroix owns a string of houses, a business in Philadelphia, and a pocket bank account. But playing for six hockey clubs in four years highlights the uncertainty of his profession.

When Lacroix had $44,000 coming to him, he wanted the money in a bank drawing interest, and not in somebody else's pocket.

After waiting six months, the World Hockey Association paid him off.

Lacroix, 28, figures he earned his pay and bonuses when he scored 124 points last season with Philadelphia Blazers. He won the scoring title and a $4,000 bonus that goes with it.

Millionaire trucker Bernie Brown, fed up with heavy losses, sold the Blazer franchise to a Vancouver group for $1.9 million.

Lacroix, who lives in Philadelphia, didn't want to go to Vancouver and was traded in spring to New York Golden Blades, who have since become New Jersey Knights.

Brown says he settled all accounts with Lacroix and has signed releases to prove it. But Lacroix says Brown owes him, says, including $44,000 in bonuses and deferred payments.

In the dispute over the money between Brown, WHA headquarters and the Golden Blades, Lacroix said he didn't get all the money coming to him.

The centre from Lasalle, Que., threatened to return to the National Hockey League this year for the money. Last november, the WHA sent Lacroix a cheque for $44,000.

"What bothers me is all the interest I lost on that money," says Lacroix. "It was supposed to have been paid the $44,000 last May, 15 days after I signed with New York.

"I told Lacroix hopes to see the NHL and WHA merge. He says he is puzzled by the opposition of the NHL Players' Association.

"There's going to be a limit one day on how much a player can earn. A merger would benefit both leagues."

Lacroix again is in the thick of the scoring championship this year with 78 points in 61 games. His NHL career included 19 in Philadelphia in 1968, but after a mediocre 39-goal season with the Flyers, he was traded to Chicago. Black Hawks. October, 1971, for defenceman Rick Foley.

He spent more time on the Black Hawk bench than on the ice. At times, he didn't even dress.

When Brown shifted his trucking millions into WHA hockey, Lacroix jumped to the Blazers and has been a hit and had 78 assists. He had the most game winners, 11, and was largely responsible for team success in Philadelphia getting a league high of 61 goals.

Brown estimates he spent $4.3 million on the Blazers including $800,000 to settle Derek Sanderson's contract.

"It was a tough lesson," Brown says. "To survive in the WHA, an owner must be able to lose an average of $1.5 million a year for five years. I couldn't see losing that kind of money."

Crawford Champion

MANSONVILLE, Que. (CP) — Judy Crawford of Toronto is the Canadian women's alpine ski champion.

The Canadian Press erroneously reported Sunday that Betsy Clifford of Old Chelsea, Que., was the champion.

Crawford, 22-year-old member of Canada's world Cup team, clinched the title last weekend at Mansonville, Que. She was second Sunday in the slalom, duplicating her finishing position in Friday's giant slalom.

Clifford won Sunday's slalom while Kathy Kreiner of Timmins, Ont., won the giant slalom.

In the giant slalom, Crawford had a time of one minute, 36.82 seconds and Kreiner 1:37.2. Clifford fell and did not finish.

In the slalom, Crawford had times of 42.22 seconds and 40.27 seconds compared with Clifford's 38.52 and 39.91.

Players May Be On Picket Duty

BOYNONA, Fla. (AP) — It may look like a $130,000-a-year football player is not carrying around a picket sign but it's quite probable this year, says O. J. Simpson, and the public will be all for it.

"I think there's a good chance of a strike in the National Football League," the ball-carrying star of the Buffalo Bills said Monday. "The players are ready for some changes."

Simpson, a contender in the $123,000 Superstar finals here, said the greatest objections are to the so-called Rozelle rule requiring compensation for the victimized club when an athletic plays out his option and signs with another team.

"The players should be given greater freedom," he added. "I think we may be nearing a point that a player may get completely freed at the end of his contract, with no option clause."

Former Heisman Trophy winner from Southern California who set a season rushing record last year with 2,003 yards, said he is not a member of the NFL Players Association but is in ball agreement with the group's aims.

"The reason I haven't joined is a personal matter which I wouldn't like to discuss," he said.

Simpson said he intended to finish out his career with Buffalo and had no intention of playing in the rival new World Football League.

"That doesn't mean the other guys shouldn't," he said. "In fact, if I heard of a guy who had been offered $25,000 or $30,000 more to jump, I'd say, 'Go for it.'"

Success of the WFL could negate the necessity of a binding arbitration deal in contract disputes, such as major league baseball has, Simpson suggested.

The rushing star spiked the theory that the public might resent a players' strike.

"I don't think so at all," he insisted. "Our life styles have changed and people have a more realistic concept of what and who we are. If athletes can be asked not to cross a picket line when a worker or some union strikes, why shouldn't the athletes be allowed to enjoy the same privilege?"

He also denied that the public is getting disenchanted with escalating sports salaries.

"All the fan cares about is seeing a good game," he said. "He doesn't give a darn what kind of salaries we are making."

TIM FOLI

Sutherland Suspended

TORONTO (CP) — Kirk Sutherland has been suspended for five Ontario Hockey Association Senior A games for pushing a referee into the boards Friday night, the OHA announced Monday.

Sutherland was given a match penalty following a scuffle in front of the penalty box in which referee Bill Brethauer was pushed into the boards.

The forward had just finished serving a minor penalty when he confronted the referee and was then given a misconduct. He was tossed out of the game after the pushing incident.

Visiting Cambridge Hornets won 9-4.

Salary Dispute Is Arbitrated

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Montreal Expos were advised Monday that the salary dispute of shortstop Tim Foli had been arbitrated in favor of the National League baseball club.

No details were announced.

The salary case of Foli, 23, had been submitted to an arbitrator in New York last Wednesday.

The Expos' regular shortstop, Foli earned about $24,000 in 1973. He played in 125 games, missing one month of the season due to a multiple fracture of the jaw, and batted .240.

Meanwhile, the club's pitchers and catchers worked out in spring training camp Monday for the fourth straight day. Infielders and outfielders are due in camp Thursday.

FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP) — Kansas City Royals opened spring training Monday with their No. 1 catcher missing and one of the probable starting pitchers nursing a knee injury.

When manager Jack McKeon greeted his batterymen and infield players, catcher Fran Healhy was still at home in Holyoke, Mass. Nelson Briles, referred to old-timers as having obtained from Pittsburgh last winter, jogged with a noticeable limp.

Briles said he "dislocated my left knee working out in a gym Pittsburgh last Tuesday."

Briles has been tabbed by McKeon as one of his three or four starters.

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Pitcher Pete Peterson, who signed his 1974 contract Sunday afternoon, started working out with New York Yankees Monday, but Yankee pitcher Mel Stottlemyre still is waiting for more money.

Stottlemyre's agent met with Yankee president Gabe Paul, but nothing was settled. Stottlemyre is reported to be seeking $90,000 while the Yankees are willing only to match last year's salary of between $80,000 and $85,000.

Stottlemyre had a 16-18 record last season.

Tennis Leader Dies

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Herman David, 67, chairman of the All England Club, and the leading organizer of the Wimbledon tennis championship, died at his home here Monday. David was one of the leading advocates of open tennis after a long administrative career and it was largely due to his efforts that Wimbledon's annual festival of tennis became open to professionals.

WHA Accuses Appeal Mavety's Suspension

LOS ANGELES Calif. (CP) — Dennis Murphy, president of the World Hockey Association (WHA), announced Monday the immediate suspension of Chicago Cougar defenceman Larry Mavety as a result of an incident in a game Sunday night in Winnipeg.

The management of the Cougars has appealed the suspension and a hearing will be held in Chicago Wednesday.

Game reports said Mavety struck referee Bob Kolari with his stick after receiving a cross checking penalty and a 10-minute misconduct and game misconduct for waving his stick at an official.

"The incident calls for a 19-game suspension," said Murphy. "But Mavety has requested a hearing so whatever action is taken rests with the determination of the hearing board."

Murphy has appointed WHA trustees Paul Ricine of Quebec and Irv Kaplan of Minnesota to hear the case along with WHA executive director James Brownlie.

Two previous altercations with officials this season resulted in five-game suspensions and fines to Doug Barrie of Edmonton Oilers and Mike McMahon of Minnesota Fighting Saints.

Three Share Lead In Women's Curling

VICTORIA (CP) — Rinks from Ontario and Prince Edward Island have emerged as the surprises of the Canadian women's curling championship and defending champion Saskatchewan is playing as expected.

The three are the only unbeaten rinks after three rounds and share the lead in the round robin playoffs.

Ontario, represented by Dawn Ventura's foursome from the Ottawa Recreational Association, defeated New Brunswick 11-8 and then outgunned winless Quebec 10-4 in Monday's play here.

P.E.I. skipped by Marie Toole of Charlottetown, downed Nova Scotia 11-4 and then emerged as the giant-killers of the nationals by upsetting Alberta 7-6 on an extra end.

Both rinks have yet to face Saskatchewan. The Emily Parnham Yoursome from Saskatoon turned on the power by lacing Quebec 16-2 and then toppling Newfoundland 13-4. Both games were conceded after only eight ends.

"It's nice to wrap things up early," said Miss Parnham. "but our rink is really ready to anticipate some competition."

And if the Toole quartet sticks with the form it showed against Alberta, that competition might show this afternoon when Saskatchewan is drawn against P.E.I. The Ventura rink doesn't meet Saskatchewan until the ninth and final draw Thursday evening.

Alberta, represented by Marilyn Johnston's Edmonton rink, and host B.C. both have 1-1 won-lost records after losing extra-end decisions Monday. It was Mrs. Johnston who knocked Marion Ratsdiffe's Kelowna rink, the B.C. hopes, from the ranks of the undefeated with an 8-7, extra-end decision Monday afternoon.

In other third-round games, the Joyce Myers rink from Halifax gave Nova Scotia its first victory in two years by stopping Manitoba 8-5 and B.C. beat New Brunswick's Dorothy Sedgewick 10-5.

Newfoundland's Sue Ann Bartlett won her first game by downing Manitoba's Merlene Derbyshire 12-5 in the other second-round match.

Jim Croce Posthumous Success

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jim Croce was killed in a plane crash last September at the age of 30 before many people knew his name. He now has two albums topping the United States sales charts, a television special about to be released and two nominations for the music industry's highest award, the Grammy, to be awarded Saturday.

His posthumous success is the source of grief, anger and pain to the men who worked to feature his career, record producers Tommy West and Terry Cashman.

"All this success and all his records selling," says Cashman. "It would be nice if we could call him up and say, 'Hey Jimmy, you're No. 1 again this week!' We would enjoy that."

"It makes us feel very helpless," says West, who was Croce's closest friend since college days when they sang together in glee club. "It's like a guy in the Olympics making a perfect dive and just before he hits the water, the camera stops."

Cashman and West encouraged Croce to record his biggest hits, You Don't Mess Around With Jim and Bad, Bad Leroy Brown.

"We were at the point where the fight was almost over," says Cashman. "We were at the point where we could enjoy the success and the friendship."

Cashman and West were here to preview a 90-minute TV special in which they appear. Their show, A Tribute to Jim Croce, will be shown in March.

The mustachioed, craggy-faced, gentle-humored Croce is shown performing, relaxing and romping in the grass with his wife, Ingrid, and their now two-year-old son.

Croce, whose death is barely mentioned in the show, was for years "just a folkie." His first record album in the folk vein was a flop and he moved back to Pennsylvania where he worked as a truck driver.

In 1970, Cashman and West introduced Croce to a young guitarist, Maury Muehleisen, and together they recorded some tapes.

"We both knew when we heard the tapes that Jimmy had discovered how to make himself a unique," says Cashman.

"Working with Maury he found new chords and began writing about what he was."

His career began to take off. "We knew a year before he died that Jim was going to be a gigantic star," says Cashman. "The third Album was great. Every Dead inside the plane with Croce was the friend who had changed his career, guitarist Muehleisen.

"If we win a Grammy, it's going to be hard not to have Jimmy there," says Cashman. "It's going to hurt not to be able to say, 'Thank you, Jimmy.'"

Hints Drop on New Shows

LOS ANGELES (AP) — If you want to know what United States television's going to offer next season, just keep watching the tube. A majority of the pilots for next season are parasites.

Next season the U.S. networks will be out to tickle your funny bone with more comedy, warm your heart with more family dramas, stir your memories with nostalgia and thrill you with detective derring-do.

You can recognize some pilots as TV follows to movies in which the hero or heroine dies.

ABC's The Cowboys was taken from the theatrical film in which John Wayne was killed. The series carries on with the seven young cowboys.

In he CBS movie Sunshine the heroine died of cancer. NBC is developing a pilot for her surviving husband and daughter.

Everyone's been trying to come up with a version of The Waltons. First up is the CBS midseason replacement Apple's Way, which got enough comedy from the people who gave you the original. The reception has been overwhelming and the programmers will be taking a long hard look before pencilling in next year's schedules in mid-March.

The only series already signed for next September are NBC's Born Free, which has been described as The Waltons with lions; ABC's Paper Moon, which has been described as The Waltons with a little larceny and CBS Rhoda, a spinoff from The Mary Tyler Moore Show.

Detective shows seem to be on the downhill side, a sure indication of the fact that some pilots are combing cops with comedy. They are Jon the Blue, Mr. and Mrs. Cop, The Life and times of Capt. Barney Miller and Double Trouble.

Some stars from the past may return. Jackie Cooper will make a 90-minute Mystery Movie pilot for NBC called Mrs.

TV started to understand what he was all about."

Personal appearance dates increased. One night, closing a college date in Louisiana, he decided to fly the 75 miles to Texas for the next show. For reasons still unknown, the light plane he rode slid off the runway and crashed into a tree.

Stratford Company Lauded Down Under

PERTH, Australia (Reuter) — English rock star Elton John was probably unaware of it as he pounded his way through a performance before 12,000 frenzied teen-agers in Melbourne it has been having a battle with an unexpected rival for top honors during the Festival of Perth—the Stratford National Theatre Company of Canada. Theatre Company of Canada.

Elton Johnson, said the organizers of Western Australia's week-week annual orgy of culture, drew by far the biggest crowd for his performance. But the Stratford company has captured the cultural acclaim.

"The message back to the Stratford company has been tremendous," a festival spokesman said.

"It's the first time a company of this size and stature has been here and we are very proud to have them."

Theatre-goers and critics have been equally enthusiastic about the company's presentation of Moliere's Imaginary Invalid which has played to capacity houses for the first half of its program of 10 performances.

Actor-director William Hutt, playing the title role in Moliere's last play, about a hypochondriac seeking to marry a doctor's daughter to obtain free medical advice, has captured the plaudits of both critics and fans.

Writing in The West Australian newspaper, reviewer Donna Sachs said: "He is a joyous clown. A measure of the skill of Mr. Hutt's performance is the manner in which he manages to win our affection with his simple, fool foolishness."

Sunday Times reviewer Bev Pagram described the performance as "a delightful process tation . . . a treat not to be missed."

Again singling out Hutt for special credit, she added, "The rest of the cast contribute some brilliant cameo performances."

The first part of the Stratford company's Australian tour closes here Saturday with two performances which are sold out.

The 27-strong company will then travel to Melbourne for 13 performances, to Adelaide for 17 and to Sydney for 15 in the Opera House, ending April 6.

After its return to Canada April 8, the company goes into rehearsal of the Imaginary Invalid which officially inaugurates the 1974 season of the Stratford Festival June 3.

Two Join Festival Opener

NIAGARA-ON-THE-LAKE — Director Brian Murray and actress Dominl Blythe, key members of the winning combination for Shaw Festival's successful 1973 production of Fanny's First Play will be reunited for another GBS play, the Festival's season opener The Devil's Discipline.

Artistic Director Paxton Whitehead has announced that Mr. Murray will direct the production and Miss Blythe will play the important role of Judith the heroine in the Shaw melodrama.

Before Devil's Disciple officially opens the Festival's 1974 season in Niagara-on-the-Lake, May 31, the production will go on tour - under the auspices of the Ontario Office of the Canada Council — to several Maritime centres and to Belleville's Kingston. It will commence April 4 with a three-day run in Moncton. There the play will be presented with the cooperation of the Neptune Theatre. The five-week tour will play Belleville's Centennial Secondary School, presented by The Intelligencer and Quinte Arts Council.

Exorcist to Hospital
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A six-foot-two 195-pound man who fainted during a showing of the movie The Exorcist was recovering in hospital today from three broken ribs," one of which punctured and collapsed his right lung.

"I must have fallen onto the edge of an aisle seat," said Mark Reuben, 27.

"It was near the end," he said. "I read the book so I knew what was coming and I knew I couldn't watch it. It was nauseous, so I left my seat and started toward the lobby. I got maybe 30 feet up the aisle when I fainted."

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Wednesday, Feb. 27

Aries (March 21-April 19) Concentrate your efforts today on matters that have an effect on your finances, even though your interests will direct you elsewhere.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) Conditions that contribute to your material security are perking up a bit at present. Some delay that hampered you will be overcome.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) There are necessary things you should do at this time, but for some reason known only to you, you're dragging your feet. Get going.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) A friend requires your help but would be embarrassed if others knew of it. Do what you can, but do it secretly.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) Don't be hesitant about calling on one you've done a favor for in the past to assist you with your goals at this time. He'll be glad you asked.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Patience and planning should be your key words at this time. Premature action, improperly thought-out, will gain you only temporary success.

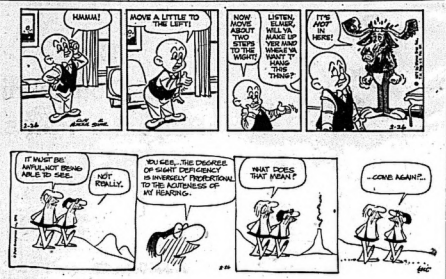
Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) You may be entitled to more of a tax break than you're taking on an investment. Check into it further.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) A proposition you will be offered has some hidden advantages that you aren't fully aware of. It's worth investigating.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Don't try to tackle something today or in your own that you don't know enough about. Get the assistance of one who does.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your creativity is crying out for some form of expression. Why not start that hobby you've been thinking about lately?

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Somehow all the things you planned to do around the house won't get done today. Too bad, tomorrow you'll even feel less like doing them.



Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) You've been thinking about something you can do that will contribute to your basic sente of security. This is a good day to start.

To Your Good Health

Estrogen Doesn't Result in Cancer

Dear Dr. Thosteson: For peace of mind and health of body, I would like to know what is the danger of taking estrogen by women going through the change of life.

I am hesitant because I have heard that estrogen can produce cancer in a woman if it is prone to it. There are several cases of cancer in my family history. What is the medical opinion?—D.M.S.

That cancer story, I realize, is widespread, but there is no medical support for it. It is true that estrogen can increase the rate of growth of a cancer that already exists, but there is no evidence that it causes cancer, whether a person does or does not have a family history of it.

I don't recommend giving estrogen just because of menopause (change of life) but I do approve use of it when symptoms demonstrate a need for it. Some women need it others don't.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: The last couple of months I have been having pains around my heart. At my checkup, the doctor said it was because I was nervous when something went wrong with the children, but I also have the pains when everything is going okay. A lot of times I can't breathe right.

Could it be too much coffee? I may have as many as eight or 10 cups before I go to bed. Should I go for any tests? These pains scare me.—Mrs. D.N.

Your doctor is quite correct that nerves can produce just such pains. You say there come when "everything is okay," but you also say that the pains come at times of sheer anxiety, or fear that the pains will return, and can cause considerable tension to make them do so. Shortness of breath in such cases is not unusual.

As to tests, an electrocardiogram would help in order to see whether there is in fact any real heart trouble, but I doubt that it would show anything.

I'd rather, to start off, suspect the coffee, because 10 cups before bedtime is a lot. It can make you tense, and should be giving you inadequate rest. Why not cut out the coffee for try a caffeine-free substitute) for two or three weeks and see what happens?

Dear Dr. Thosteson: How possible is it to become pregnant at my age (51)? I use a contraceptive (IUD) but still worry about an unwanted pregnancy.—Mrs. F.D.

Chances are pretty darned slight. If you have started menopause, even slighter.

Pass

Opening lead—♥Q

By Oswald and James Jacoby

Take a look at the North-South hands only. You are playing a three notrump contract. West opens the queen of hearts and continues the jack. East overtakes with the king and cashes the ace and another heart. You lead a small spade.

You have lost four tricks and are looking at eight sure winners—four clubs, three diamonds and a spade.

You can collect your ninth trick by means of a successful spade finesse or if diamonds break 3-3. If you know anything about probable suit breaks you know that a suit breaks 3-3 just under 36 per cent of the time. You also know that a finesse is a 50-50 proposition.

Therefore, your first thought is to take the finesse.

Now look at the East-West hands. The spade finesse works and the diamond suit fails to break.

In spite of all this the correct play is to refuse the spade finesse. Then you cash all your clubs. East has to make two discards. The first is a cinch. He chucks his last low spade. The second is different. He can't throw the king of spades and must chuck a diamond. Afterwards you make four diamond tricks and your contract.

Why was this last play correct? Because you had two chances. The diamond break or the king of spades in the same hand as the long diamonds.

CARD Sense

The bidding has been:

West	North	East	South
			1♣
Pass	1♠	Pass	4♣
Pass	5♦	Pass	5♥
Pass	6♣	Pass	7♥

You, South, hold:
♠ 9 ♥ A K 7 6 4 3 2 ♦ K 10 ♣ 7

What do you do now?

A—Pass. Your partner didn't show the ace of clubs. Therefore, he either doesn't have it or has some other weakness.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Instead of bidding one spade your partner has jumped in two notrump in response to your club opening. What do you do now?

Income Tax Time

No Need to Panic, Forms Are Simple

OTTAWA (CP) — It's time to figure out your income tax, but don't panic. This year's federal-provincial forms are no worse than last year and maybe even a little simpler.

And your friendly national revenue collector is ready to help if you can't figure your own way through the T-1 tax maze.

"Just be as accurate as you can, and call us if you need help," smiles Percy W. Kierstead, chief of information for the revenue department's assessing division.

With no changes in the tax law to worry about this time, the department concentrated on trying to streamline tax forms to help taxpayers avoid errors.

And it expanded the federal and provincial tax table to cover those with up to $34,000 in 1973 taxable income, instead of the previous year's $12,000 limit.

The tax table automatically figures both your federal and provincial tax and you may use it if you meet two other major qualifications: you have no tax adjustment, dividend tax credit or foreign tax credit and you have no income from a business with a permanent establishment outside your province of residence.

Revenue Minister Robert Stanbury estimates 250,000 more Canadians will be able to use the simpler tax table this year because of the expansion.

Tax guides mailed to each taxpayer have the correct provincial tax due along with the federal tax due, according to each individual's income. The federal government collects provincial income taxes for all provinces except Quebec, where each must file a separate provincial tax return.

There were more than three million errors among the 10,205,638 tax returns filed last year, making more work for the department and slowing the payment of refunds to some taxpayers.

"This costs us money, too," said Mr. Kierstead. "We'll do anything we can to get accurate returns filed." This includes an invitation to all taxpayers to come into their district tax office for help or write or telephone.

Mr. Kierstead suggests that telephoning—including use of the revenue department's toll-free Zenith long-distance service—is the best way for most taxpayers to get help. Visiting district tax offices usually means standing in line and letters take several days.

The telephone numbers to get help are printed on the back cover of the tax guide that comes with the income tax form.

Last year's errors included 1,154,000 attributed to the new tax legislation, which most taxpayers, presumably have since had time to figure out. Another 676,000 were mathematical errors, including income figures on the wrong line.

"This automatically doubles your income because the entries to us are from computer-coded," Mr. Kierstead said. The result will not double your tax bill, but it will mean putting your income retum in "error condition," requiring correcting by hand, and slow any refund due.

Another 1,272,000 errors last year were what Mr. Kierstead describes as "our old friends—errors that continue year after year."

These principally involved wrong calculations for overpayments to Canada or Quebec Pension Plans or persons with more than one employer during the year who paid too much unemployment insurance.

To try to solve such errors, the revenue department has put heavy black lines around the "income" and "deductions" sections of the T-1 tax forms to clarify where the totals go and where to claim overpayments.

At this time of year, all revenue department staffs in district offices are told to forget about compliance activities for the time being and concentrate on helping taxpayers figure out their problems, he added.

Last year department officials answered nearly four million queries from taxpayers, up from 2.6 million the year before, and they are bracing for the first of two big crush periods.

Employers are required to provide employees with T-4 tax information slips by the end of February and the deadline for filing tax returns is April 30.

The first big load of queries and returns comes during March. They call it the refund peak—taxpayers filing quickly to claim a refund. The other peak is late in April, mostly persons with more complicated tax situations or perhaps some who still owe money and put off paying until the last possible moment.

As usual, the department is taking on extra employees who will eventually total about 6,300, to help process returns and speed refunds. That's 1,200 more than at last year's peak.

"We believe any average taxpayer—if he takes the time to read the tax form and the guide, checks his mathematics and makes sure everything is entered on the right lines—can do his own tax return," said Mr. Kierstead.

Wells Says Strikes Not Solution

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Education Minister Thomas Wells told area elementary school teachers Monday that strikes are not the best means of bargaining in the education field.

Speaking on a panel discussing Bill 275—the bill designed to control negotiations between teachers and boards of education—Mr. Wells said that: unless someone can suggest something better than strikes or binding arbitration he would choose arbitration.

He said a teacher strike might injure relationships among teachers, students, principals and parents.

Liberal Leader Robert Nixon told the 400 teachers their case has greater political weight after demonstrations last December at Queen's Park.

"I'm not saying the only way to oppose Bill 275 is to march on Queen's Park," Mr. Nixon said. "But that's a pretty effective way."

Pioneer Times Were Hard, But Beef 9 Cents a Pound

By JIM NEAVES
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Hed Bill De Gelder arrived in Canada from Holland 64 years later, he would have been regarded as a godsend by labor-short Prairie farmers. But when he arrived in 1910, he was just another immigrant looking for work, albeit one of superior intellect and fluent in seven languages, including classical Greek.

A graduate of the University of Leyden, De Gelder was a restless young man and his experiences in the young Canadian West as recounted in his letters are fascinating reading.

Before being able to move to his own homestead, De Gelder tells of working from 4:30 a.m. to 10 p.m. for $10 a month with a room thrown in.

Herman Ganzevoort has done a masterful job translating De Gelder's letters, found in the original Dutch in the archives of the Netherlands Emigration Service in Holland, and A. Dutch Homesteader on the Prairies provides a detailed tapestry of the rigorous hardships and loneliness endured by a Canadian pioneer.

The letters are a rich source of both the trivial and significant features of homesteading. De Gelder writes about building sod and tarpaper shacks, thawing frozen eggs, baking bread, digging wells and keeping feet healthy.

To round out the personality of De Gelder, Ganzevoort was able to piece together—58 years later—snatches of memory provided by friends and neighbors who knew him on his homestead at Log Valley, Sask., 20 miles north of the Trans-Canada Highway.

De Gelder was well-liked, an interesting visitor and a good storyteller but a man who had few intimate friends and one who prized the privacy of his personal life.

In January, 1911, De Gelder wrote from Lumsden, Sask., that he worked nine hours a day for 20 cents an hour. "Five dollars is taken off per week for board, so I'm left with $5.80."

Three months later, at Regina, he wrote he was working on a railroad gang "without a minute's rest, not even time to blow your nose, and they've never heard of a coffee break in Canada."

In December, 1911, De Gelder told of his neighbors butchering for themselves and others. Beef sold at nine cents a pound for front quarters and 11 cents for a hind. But he preferred pork, at 17 to 20 cents a pound.

In the fall of 1913, De Gelder returned to Log Valley from a visit home. He arranged to dispose of his property but declined to tell anyone his plans—other than that he had learned an eighth language, Russian. It was not until his family wrote and asked about him that the neighbors realized Bill or Willem, De Gelder had simply disappeared.

Back to Normal

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP) — Production at three General Motors of Canada plants here was back to normal with Monday's night shift after a partial halt earlier in the day.

About 2,000 workers on the morning shift refused to cross picket lines set up at the plants by the International Union of Operating Engineers.

A spokesman for the United Auto Workers said the union had no contract dispute with the company, and had urged all workers to report to work at their usual time.

Federal Policy Outlined

Adequate Food Is Top Priority

OTTWA (CP) — With inflation the main preoccupation of the government today introduced a broad legislative program with heavy emphasis on a new food policy to encourage production.

The throne speech opening the second session of the 29th Parliament, also proposed legislative changes that range from equal treatment for women to the establishment of a national petroleum company. Some of the proposals fulfill earlier commitments—such as allowing provinces to participate in the ownership of banks.

An end to any rail freight rate discrimination is promised. But it is inflation, and particularly food, that gets the most attention from the ministry Liberal government which requires voting support from either the Conservatives or the New Democrats to survive another session.

"... A major element in the policy to mitigate inflation is to increase production and supply," said the government-governed speech read by Gov.-Gen. Jules Leger.

"The government's objectives will be a re-assessment of existing programs in the areas of agriculture and fisheries," said the throne speech. "The government will seek, in consultation with provincial governments, consumer groups and producers."

"The producer must be ensured a fair income for his work. His confidence in the long-term market opportunities is a crucial element in the government's policy. The producer should have access to all markets in Canada. He will also be encouraged to expand food exports."

At the same time, the consumer must be ensured a fair value from his dollar, said the speech.

"Guarantees against unduly low prices to producers must be coupled with guarantees against unduly high prices to consumers."

A main policy of the government was to maintain high levels of income, production and employment.

"The government's policy in dealing with inflation will be to step in . . . and take specific measures to increase the supply of certain goods and services, to protect those who are not able to protect themselves against the effects of inflation, to cushion consumers against sudden and disruptive price increases of essential commodities, and to prevent any group or groups from taking undue advantage of the current situation at the expense of others."

The government has been concerned with the effects of higher oil prices.

"... It must ensure that the price of domestically-produced oil does not increase at an unreasonable rate and that the price of oil be the same in all parts of Canada subject, of course, to transportation costs."

French Premier Resigns

PARIS (Reuter) — Premier Pierre Messmer's government resigned today in a surprise move at the weekly cabinet meeting.

President Georges Pompidou accepted the resignation and must now choose a new premier to replace Messmer, who succeeded Jacques Chaban-Delmas as head of government in July, 1972.

The suddenness of the resignation came as a surprise, although there had been strong speculation about the departure of Messmer, a stalwart but lackluster Gaullist often accused of being unable to restore the government's flagging morale.

Messmer's departure was seen as possibly opening the way for elevating Finance Minister Valery Giscard d'Estaing to the premiership, a choice Pompidou is reported to favor.

Pompidou is said to prefer his brilliant finance minister as his eventual successor. Because of the president's failing health, speculation has mounted in recent weeks that he would install Giscard as premier fairly quickly to groom him for the presidency.

Reagan Won't Free Prisoners

HILLSBOROUGH, Calif. (AP) — California Gov. Ronald Reagan says he will not release two prisoners whose freedom may be the ultimate ransom demand by Patricia Hearst's kidnapers.

"If you start doing anything of that kind, it would be like opening prison doors," he told reporters in Sacramento. "It would make kidnapping a very common occurrence."

Reagan said there is no legal way he can comply with any demand for free Joseph Remiro, 27, and Russell Little, 24. He can pardon convicted criminals, but he has no authority to free persons awaiting trial.

Farm Stability To Be Major Goal

OTTAWA (CP) — The government gave notice today that it intends to review farm price and income structure in an effort to boost production and level cyclical economic swings in the farm industry.

Devoting a major portion of the session-opening throne speech to farm policy plans, the government announced proposals to guarantee farmers stabilized incomes through joint government-farmer funds producers could draw on in lean times.

As well, the speech mapped out plans to ease credit to farmers, control imports, beef up the farm labor supply, supplement storage facilities, increase interest-free loans available to farmers for crops stored on farms, improve rail transportation for grain and to provide new incentives for livestock production.

The idea behind the re-shaped farm policy is to encourage all-out production of farm goods through steps aimed at providing farmers with stabilized markets and fair incomes.

The policy is a major turnabout for the government, which four years ago attempted to influence farm prices through a program that paid farmers to take wheat land out of production.

But the government cautioned that steps to guarantee against "unduly low prices to producers must be coupled with guarantees against unduly high prices to consumers."

Consumers "must be protected against disruptive increases in the price of essential foodstuffs caused by international market demand."

The government said the "re-assessment" of existing farm programs will be undertaken with consultation between provincial governments, consumers and farmers.

Objective: Reasonably Priced Food With Adequate Return to Producers

Balloon Reported Over Canary Isles

TENERIFE, Canary Islands (CP) — Search authorities reported still no sign of missing United States balloonist Thomas Gatch today despite a report that villagers had spotted him floating over the Canary Islands.

The Spanish news agency Europa reported today that villagers had seen the balloon—missing in an attempt to cross the Atlantic—over the Valley of the Orotava in the south of Santa Cruz de Tenerive.

But neither Spanish police, air traffic control authorities nor the United States Air Force base at Torrejon just outside Madrid had any word of a sighting.

Later, Europa reported that the "balloon" seen by thousands of villagers may have been a freak dust storm.

The 48-year-old bachelor left Harrisburg, Pa., 10 days ago in his bid to become the first man to cross the Atlantic in a balloon.

Coastal Spanish radio stations and air traffic authorities in Santa Cruz de Tenerife reported they knew nothing of Gatch's whereabouts. Police in Orotava and the town of Canada said they had seen no trace of the balloon.

A spokesman for the Gatch family in the United States said she had no immediate confirmation of the reported sighting.

The Spanish Canary Islands lie about 150 miles off the Spanish Sahara on the northwestern edge of Africa.

Ethiopian Navy Joins Rebellion

ADDIS ABABA (PA) — The Ethiopian navy today joined a revolt for higher pay by soldiers in northern Ethiopia and took over the African country's Red Sea naval base at Massawa, sources at the base reported.

The rebellion began Tuesday when army troops and a few police men seized key points in Asmara, Ethiopia's second largest city and the capital of Eritrea province. It is 70 miles south of Masawa.

No violence was reported, and Emperor Haile Selassie ordered the army chief of staff to Asmara today to hear the rebels' complaints.

Kissinger Gets List Of Captives

JERUSALEM (CP) — United States State Secretary Henry Kissinger arrived here today for talks with Premier Golda Meir on separation of forces with Syria amid indications he was carrying the crucial list of Israeli prisoners held by Syria.

"I've been away for five weeks, which is a considerable time, and I've now come from Damascus, where I believe we made good progress on some of Israel's most crucial concerns," Kissinger said at the airport here.

Usually reliable sources in Damascus reported earlier in the day that Kissinger had succeeded in getting the list of Israeli prisoners held by Syria since the October war.

In Damascus, Kissinger had talks with President Hafez Assad on the disengagement of Syrian and Israeli forces on the Golan Heights front.

Official sources said the secretary is due back in Damascus Friday for another round of talks with Assad after holding talks with Israeli leaders.

Before taking off for Israel, Kissinger told reporters that his talks with Assad Tuesday night and today were "constructive."

Kissinger, on his fourth Middle East tour since the October war, arrived in Damascus from London Tuesday. He also met Tuesday night with Foreign Minister Abdul Halim Khaddam.

Napanee Break-in Professional Job

NAPANEE — Police here are investigating a spectacular break-in at Sills Drug Store on Napanee's main street which Sunday netted thieves nearly $8,500 worth of drugs, cigarettes and other drug store items.

Napanee Township Police Chief Joe Paquette said the drug store owner, Amar Bastiliaso, discovered the break-in and theft around 7.45 a.m. Monday when he came to open the store.

According to Chief Paquette, the thieves entered the drug store by lowering themselves through the roof of the T. Eaton Co. next door and by breaking through a fibreboard wall, entered Eaton's storage room.

By deackriding a stairway, the thieves came to the two stone walls that separated the drug store from Eaton's. Then, using heavy bars, they pounded their way through the foot-and-a-half thick stone walls.

The hole in the wall led to a storage room in the middle of the store and, by forcing a door from the storage room, the thieves had access to the whole store.

The list of goods stolen includes nearly 18,000 amphetamine capsules, 10 electric razors, 25 Timex wristwatches and 800 cartons of cigarettes.

Chief Paquette feels the thieves were professionals who may be involved in the rash of drug store breakins that have plagued the Kingston area in recent weeks.

"They certainly knew what they were doing and what they wanted," the chief said. "By entering from the roof of the other store, they couldn't be detected. They must have been working there all night."

One of the things that bothers police is that their theft record had been untarnished in the past with only 568 worth of goods being reported stolen in Napanee for the entire month of January.

Indians in City His Inspiration

TYENDINAGA — There's one aspect of contemporary Indian life almost competely overlooked by native artists, says Clifford Maracle.

It's central figure is the Indian who has come off the reserve and strives to make his way in the big metropolis.

"This is a whole new way of life - - the Indian off the reserve, and I don't think anyone paints them," he says.

But the 29-year-old Quinte Mohawk does. And he has hit on a source of inspiration which seems to have stirred attention.

There was one firm indication of his success here Tuesday. Clifford returned briefly to his native reserve to accept a federal government cultural scholarship. The $150 grant, from the Indian affairs department, was the latest sign of recognition.

Clifford, preparing to graduate from the Ontario College of Art, has two books of his work being readied for publication. He has had entries accepted for an Indian cultural display at the Royal Ontario Museum. He's had commission from the federal government for paintings and sculptures for a convention hall at Moosonee.

The young artist early came up against life as it is off the reserve. One of a large family whose father died early, after they moved to western Ontario, he's moved around much, had a number of jobs.

But he also acknowledged his artistic impulse early and never surrendered it. In the end he secured a community college to prepare himself for art college training.

He entered OCA at a time when the institution was riven by internal disputes and the dissension turned him off. Instead of participating in the issues he concentrated on developing his own individual styl. As a result, "my art isn't influenced by the college," he says.

He drew his inspiration from the background of urban jobs and living in which he'd spent his developing years - - and his Indian origin.

He began painting Indians in the big city.

Most Indian artists still paint on reserves "making their own comment in their own way. But much of it is based on folklore and legends. What could basically happen is, I think, they could overdo the legend aspect," he says.

There is little recognition of the Indian attempting "to hew a new lifestyle in urban centres. The only time they seem to be noticed is when problems arise.

"We never hear of an Indian doing something good in Toronto," says Clifford.

In sense, his work is social comment, but "I try to make it a comment in such a way that the people involved are not going to be hurt."

The pattern for his own future is simply stated: "I hope to continue painting and sculpting - - and make it on my own."

Scholarships such as the one awarded him Tuesday "are an incentive for Indian students who are trying to make a furture by themselves," said Quinte Mohawk Chief William Brant.

The chief joined Kay Hill, the reserve's post-school counsellor and Douglas Scott, education superintendent from the Indian affairs department Kingston district office in presending the cultural award.

In Prince Edward Home Remedies Still Apply

By DEBRA S. HOOK
Staff Correspondent

PICTON — Prince Edward County has not escaped inflation, but some of its people, thanks to tradition, know how to fight it in certain areas.

Pharmaceutical costs have been hit by rising prices. But many families in Prince Edward County, the high costs a burden. They do as their ancestors did and make their own.

What follows is a collection of just a few home remedies used in the county today. They are not guaranteed to cure everyone. But county folk using them seem to think they work as well as some store patented medicines.

Cloves aid in curing nausea and upset stomach. Boil two to three teaspoons of crushed cloves in a half a pint of sweet milk. Take by the teaspoon until relief sets in.

Tobacco, although unhealthy to smoke, has its place in the list. Tobacco smoke, when blown into the ear, eases pain of earaches. Chewing a small amount in tobacco can be used to stop toothaches by placing a small amount in the cavity or by the tooth that pains.

Beeswax is commonly used for rashes, hives and eczema, to relieve itching and soreness.

Poison ivy effects can be terminated by heating the infected area with a clean white cloth moistened with turpentine. Turpentine mixed with a large amount of water is also used for a hair rinse to eliminate dandruff.

Coughs are easily made less painful by administering honey and lemon syrup by the teaspoonful at intervals during the day until better.

Teas are the most common form of home remedies, and can be made from various plants and herbs.

The seeds of the burdock plant should be pulverized after drying. A pinch of the powder, mixed with a cup of hot water, promotes sweating and cleanses the whole digestive system.

Persons suffering from coughs may find relief from Chestnut-leaf tea. The leaves should be gathered in the early fall then dried and stored. The tea is made in the normal fashion.

When bruised and boiled, sunflower seeds are an excellent tea for laryngitis, bronchitis and hoarse throats.

Home remedies are numerous and information may be found in libraries or from elders of the community. Although pharmacies and stores sell a quantity of patented medicines it is quite common in the county to make ones own remedies.

Road Priorities Set by Council

MARMORA—The problem of setting priorities for the 1974 supplementary application to the Ontario Government for road funds was wrestled with by Marmora and Lake Townships Council at a special meeting last Thursday night. The list is compiled keeping in mind that the government will probably allow only 80 per cent of the request.

Council had no trouble picking number one and two items on the list — a truck — which is expected to cost in the neighborood of $12,000, and the finishing of a section of the Moira road which began last year and will cost a further $6,000 it is expected.

The problem came when council was split on whether to apply for funds for a road into the Tom O'Connor property before or after a request for funds to resurface Centre Line Road to the Shanick Road corner.

After long discussion, the O'Conner Road, which is expected to cost $15,000, was put in third place and the resurfacing of Centre Line Road ($4500) fourth.

A similar allocation for the Ridgeway—O'Connor road was applied for last year and was turned down but council has hopes the government will look favorably on it this year. If the application is turned down it is doubtful if the road will be built this year, for council feels it would be too much on the township ratepayers to pay 100 per cent of the cost out of municipal funds, which would in effect raise the mill rate.

Council will also apply for $12,000 for road maintenance costs.

Waste Site Okayed by Townships

MARMORA — A draft proposal that Marmora and Lake Townships take over sole operation of the joint Marmora Village-Marmora and Lake site disposal site was adopted by the townships council at a special meeting last night.

The draft, which proposes that Marmora Village pay $2,500 annually toward the upkeep of the site, plus half the cost of any trench dinging, will be presented to the village council at its next meeting.

"Many of the problems that have resulted from joint operation on an alternate monthly basis since the site opened last spring will be eliminated if the proposal is adopted by the village," chairman of sanitation and fire protection Bob Drummond pointed out.

The suggestion of township takeover was made by Mr. Drummond at the February meeting of Marmora Village Council and at that time the village council indicated they were interested in the proposal but wanted to see an agreement worked out in dollars and cents.

Centennial Plans

Speaking of literary men like writer Farley Mowat — a Belleville native — and poet Al Purdy, who lives at Ameliasburg, is to recognize that here are personalities of note in the contemporary cultural scene in Canada who should be recognized locally and invited to play a part in the city's Centennial celebrations in 1978. There are others of course who should be recognized in like fashion and it will be for the committee to have them in mind in the preparations that have already begun for the next four years hence.

There are, for instance, many distinguished names from the past, and one in the literary field that comes to mind is that of Susanna Moodie who lived in Belleville in the 1840s and whose book, Roughing it in the Bush, is something of a classic. Incidentally, it is one of the works available in a paper back edition in Belleville bookstores at the moment.

We can envisage as part of the Centennial program exhibitions of manuscripts, photographs and such other memorabilia as may be available.

Indeed art and photographic exhibitions, for various age groups, adults as well as students, should be part of the Centennial scene in Belleville.

The centennial committee of the Chamber of Commerce is soliciting suggestions for 1978. Only through a full public response will we ensure that the Centennial will be as widely representative of the community as possible.

UK Scene

As Britain nears voting day in one of the most important elections in its long history it is intriguing to reflect that the swinging image is projected in the fads, fashions and early sixties, and spawned by such personalities as fashion designer Mary Quant, has passed almost into antiquity.

This has been the fate in part of Miss Quant, who still smiling and attractive and very successful at 39 nevertheless finds herself a museum piece of sorts in 1974.

The word from London is that Miss Quant's role in helping to dispel British postwar gloom was marked recently by an exhibition at the London Museum. The exhibition, entitled Mary Quant's London, showed with photographs, music and models, the bright fashion glow — including of course the celebrated miniskirt — she introduced to the UK and world scene at that time. It was an adrenalin shot she helped pump into a tired Britain, with the help of other personalities such as the Beatles and David Frost.

As it is, visitors to Britain have some difficulty in discerning any depths of misery or economic breakdown, even in the midst of the miners' strike. Comedian Dick van Dyke, listening in at Speaker's Corner in Hyde Park, said as much in a CBC preelection special the other day.

And Montreal Gazette writer Gordon Pape, in a piece from London, says the British capital contrary to its traditional image as the best place in the world these days for dining out. Pape says he speaks from three years experience of some of the city's finest restaurants. And including every type of cuisine, domestic and foreign.

Britain, thanks to the durability and spunky personality and creativeness of its people, refuses to give up — if ever there was any reason to. And to that, as Professor Higgins would say: "Of course not!"

Library Program

The Corby library's weekly story-telling program for children, allied with a social and educational hour or so for their mothers is proving very successful.

Stories for the youngsters and films and discussions for the mothers are the order of the day, and the visitors are made to feel very much at home by librarian Olive Delaney and her staff.

It is a stimulating time for the youngsters, and an escape from household tasks for the mothers, a chance for them to broaden their horizons too, and enjoy a chat.

There is another day as well, for older children on their own. All in all this is an excellent facet of Belleville's expanded library facilities.

The Job-to-Job Drifters

Canada Sees the Growth of a New 'Leisured Class'

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — There's a "whole new leisured class" of Canadians, as Conservative MP-at-Large Heward Stokes of Southern Ontario's Wellington riding sizes it up.

They are the thousands who drift aimlessly from job to job, managing to work not more than the required minimum eight weeks a year if they can help it, and "holidaying" for over 44 weeks on unemployment insurance benefits.

It must require a certain degree of determination to be able to scratch along on a grubbily marginal scale of living.

But enough of these people have reconciled themselves to this self-deprivation for the life of ease, loafing through the months at the taxpayers' expense, that Manpower Minister Robert Andras has been lecturing them publicly that his UIC is not a "vacation agency."

As chairman of the Public Accounts Committee in recent years, Alf Hales has swung something more than Front Bench weight in the Commons.

And swinging it a couple of years ago, he levered his own investigation of UIC abuses into a general government enquiry and shaking the whole UIC changes in the Manpower Department.

"Now it's time for another," he says, and promises to push for an investigation, and reform of the UIC legislation in the new session of Parliament.

Generally a mild-mannered, soft-spoken man, Alf Hales has returned from his constituency to his Commons office all steamed up over the extent of the UIC ripoff he found in poking into Manpower offices during the Winter recess.

He wandered into a small manufacturing plant in his section of industrial Ontario and established that it had been forced to pass up a $30,000 contract because it just wasn't able to hire the required workers, although unemployment in the area was rife.

"Another plant manager told me," he related, "that he was having a 28 per cent turnover in his work force of only 157 people," and joined the chorus on UIC benefits and the ease of living without working.

"In another case, a man worked for only one day at $2.25 an hour because he had figured out that if he stuck to the job all week, he would earn only $7 more than he could get from the UIC."

He personally went through the system of applying at a Manpower office for a job as part of his study.

At a glance he saw what was going wrong.

Job vacancies at the Manpower offices were listed on a row notice board.

So all the job-hunters went for the "plum" positions, regardless of aptitude, training, qualification, suitability, or any other considerations, he observed.

And there was the suspicion that some of them went through the motions of applying for jobs they knew they never had a prayer of getting, for the sole purpose of demonstrating — as required by Manpower — that they were actively looking for work while drawing their "pogey" payments.

In many cases, Alf Hales found, some of these "counter-jobs" applicants never bothered to turn up for the necessary interview with the prospective employers.

Since it takes Manpower and non-UIC counselling to begin to tease these job-fakers, it is ridiculously easy, Alf Hales found, for them to draw two or three weeks of benefits before getting rumbled.

"And when you remember there are thousands, perhaps even tens of thousands of such cases of ripoff," he says, "it isn't hard to figure out why the UIC had that billion dollar overrun."

But it is not only the "con artists" who take the taxpayers for millions of unearned UIC benefits.

There are also the innocents — the ignorant — who are not aware of the rules and regulations.

Alf Hales ran across just such a case at Quebec involving a pensioner who did not know — and was not told — that he was not supposed to be drawing both UIC benefits and Canada Pension Plan payments.

By the time the Manpower and Welfare Departments caught up with him, he had drawn $2,500 in UIC overpayments for which restitution was demanded.

"All the poor old guy had was his pension, and they couldn't take the $2,500 out of that," reports Alf Hales. "So what happens? They write it off. And again the taxpayers are stuck. So it's past time, for a dozen different reasons, to tighten the screws."

Canadian Group Discusses Soviet Naval Strength Off N. America

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

A small group of Canadian specialists on Soviet seapower and the Soviet navy met at the University of Toronto recently to determine what, if anything, Canada can do to control its growth and movements.

This wasn't all the group discussed but you can guess the answer on the above question. From the group was virtually nothing. Not only is our public opinion strongly opposed to any massive expansion of our very small naval resources to meet it, but Canadians refuse to admit the vast Soviet naval presence in there.

As one delegate put it, one of the very senior officers in the Canadian naval reserve, it's the total tonnage which the Russians have at sea at any one time which is especially frightening.

This not only includes naval forces on station and on annual manoeuvres but the growing number of fishing ships in the world-girdling Soviet fishing fleets as well as Soviet commercial shipping.

All three present threats to Canada which both our small navy knows about and our deep-sea fishing industries. But general knowledge of the massive Soviet sea presence does not exist as well as concern about its inroads.

Where the globally-placed, deep-diving Soviet nuclear submarines are concerned, the best we can do is passively share U.S. naval intelligence data given to us on their movements near our waters. An exception might be our hard response to any efforts by Soviet nuclear subs to navigate under the ice in our Northwest sea passage. This might be difficult since normal sonar techniques as advanced as they are, cannot track submarines moving beneath hidden by layers of ice.

Perhaps the best defence against the huge Russian fishing fleets complete with their own factory and motherships which thoroughly process their big fish catches at sea is legislative, yet another extension of our 12 mile territorial waters. To protect the continental shelf which is home to many of the edible fish species swept up in the thousands of metric tons by the Russian fleets, we would have to declare a 200-mile territorial limit like the Peruvians did many years ago.

As for Russian commercial shipping, we do not and cannot embargo Soviet ships from using our ports. In the recent past we have been there to move out the huge Canadian grain shipments in Soviet bottoms.

The only passenger liners still plying the port of Montreal regularly are Russian. And again the tourist trade is definitely encouraged between Canada and the Soviet Union. High over the North Atlantic and the Montreal-bound Alexandr Pushkin Soviet cruise ship, Air Canada and Aeroflot try and make a buck flying Canadian tourists back and forth from Moscow.

But all is not lost. There is a regular and highly competent surveillance of the Russians at sea courtesy of our aging and soon-to-be-replaced Argus Bomber range patrol aircraft.

And a new surveillance control ship complete with helicopter facility, a defensive armament capability, and strength-ened for ice (which our superseded ASW ships are not), is on the drawing boards.

Since 1969 and the government's change of priorities from NATO-oriented defence of the Atlantic to national sovereignty protection, the traditional role of the Canadian navy has been downgraded.

Retired Canadian Vice Admiral J. C. (Geoffy) O'Brien reminded the small meeting that in the 1950s, the Canadian fleet had responsibility for about 60 per cent of the ASW (Anti-Submarine Warfare) defence of the North Atlantic under NATO. At that time the Russians weren't yet much interested in ASW per se and the British were still heavily committed with the Royal Navy east of Suez.

Today the Americans are very big on ASW and we have about no major ASW role left to help in ocean policing. So we are down to about 25 per cent of that historic Canadian naval role.

Inflation Hits the Rich Too

Luxury Goods Move Up in Price

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs
Thomson News Service

The rising cost of living is no joke—as the rich and well-to-do are discovering when they go to buy yachts and luxury furs.

Even in such markets as these, the story is the same: Rapidly rising prices. Shortages, delays in delivery.

A boat builder with plants on Lake Ontario, C and C Yachts Ltd., has reported a doubling of sales in the latest fiscal quarter and a big gain in earnings.

It attributes the improvement, in part, to what it terms "reveled pricing."

Furs? Prices are expected to rise in the order of 10 per cent this year at Canadian retailers.

Sales are weak, despite the weakness in the stock market (traditionally, furs have been a favorite outlet for windfall stock-market gains) and the continuing opposition of animal-protection groups who decry the trapping of wild animals.

The value of good-quality furs as a long-term hedge against inflation has been established over the years. Some coats, bought new, are worth twice as a current market value equal to their original price.

That's why they are joining a growing group of valuables—from real estate to rare stamps—that attract buyers who would rather not hold their savings in rapidly depreciating cash or doubtful securities.

Mink, as usual, is the most widely sought luxury fur. Within the past year, the price of the most fashionable colors in mink have risen by one-third.

Contributing to the price push has been a significant decline in production at mink ranches over the past several years—stemming from a temporary market recession five years ago.

Canada is a major world exporter of raw furs. The fur industry shared fully in last year's big upsurge in Canadian exports.

For the Canadian consumer, however, being at the source of supply does not necessarily mean that bargains can be found right around the corner. As with Canadian-made whisky, prices abroad may well be lower than at home.

Travellers visiting the warm Mediterranean countries are often surprised to find coats, made from Canadian mink and other furs being aggressively merchandised with low prices—for which seldom realize the true price since, in those countries, bargaining is the accepted practice).

Northern Greece has a thriving industry, based largely on supplies of Canadian skins. These coats are then sold in tourist centres such as Athens and—especially—the island of Rhodes.

But even in such markets as these, prices are said to be tending higher.

Prison Parole Raises Grave Issues

Peterborough Examiner

It is only natural that the solicitor-general of Canada would defend the Liberal government's position and try to convince the voters that all is well in the operation of the nation's prisons.

But when contrary evidence keeps cropping up it is no wonder that a good many voters cannot stomach the official platitudes about prison reform, rehabilitation and amply protecting society from dangerous people.

Solicitor-General Warren Allmand was in town the other day.

By coincidence, his descent from Ottawa's ivory towers took place the same day that a judge and jury in Cobourg were dealing with the case and probing of our Liberal prison system.

Gary Genereaux, 30, of Trenton was on trial for the non-capital murder of Trenton schoolgirl, Mary Keough, whose life was ended one day last June when she stepped off a school bus 12 miles east of Cobourg.

By the time Mr. Allmand arrived in Peterborough, there was no longer any question that the brutal slaying, involving strangulation, stabbing and sexual assault, — had been carried out by Genereaux.

His lawyer told the court Genereaux did it. He had pleaded not guilty because the accused person cannot plead guilty by reason of insanity.

The killer had already graduated from Mr. Allmand's prison system. Twice before he had stabbed women. Twice he had been locked up. Twice he had been turned loose again on society.

Police testified that while Genereaux was serving time in Collin's Bay Penitentiary he sought psychiatric help but it was denied him. That he escaped after serving only five years of an eight-year sentence for repeatedly stabbing a waitress for no apparent reason. He killed Mary Keough a few months after his release.

The Examiner asked Mr. Allmand about the case. He had no previous knowledge of it so it was natural that no comments were brief and cautious. He had to be briefed.

If the story told in court is true, said Mr. Allmand, then there is surprised Genereaux was paroled. "If they have mental illness, a man has been rehabilitated, they very seldom release him," he said.

We trust we have not heard the last of this case. It will be the height of folly if solicitor-general merely gets an interdepartmental report on it, to be filed away somewhere by the self-protecting civil service.

Marie Keough is dead because the prison system run by the Liberal government is not good enough.

It is not good enough for the government to tell us their programs are 99 per cent effective when Collin's Bay inmates per cent failure brings brutal death to a little girl on the way home from school.

It is not good enough because the prison "system" had Marie Keough's killer in its hands, released him and returned him loose again anyway. If these reasonable argue that it did not know he would kill, they merely admit the glaring fact that many terrors behave as exists in the system: that no real examination of prisoners is made before paroling them.

Regional Development's Rocky Path

Brantford Expositor

It has already been demonstrated in several parts of Ontario that the concept of regionalism, at least in its simplest stages, does not run smoothly. The latest example of this has come in Norfolk and Haldimand where a bold their union takes full effect at the end of next year.

Like an engaged couple adjusting differing views on wheres the matrimonial domicile shall be, representatives of the two counties to the regional council last week worked out a compromise on the location of the seat of regional government. Unable to agree that it should be either in Norfolk or Cayuga in Haldimand, they finally mutual concessions and split the top administration between the rival locations.

This is not the ideal solutions, and it will involve inconvenience and modest extra expense. But can anyone who has followed the acrimonious debate on the matter suppose it will create permanent problems? It can be only an interim decision subject to review as the region develops. It becomes more populous. At some point in the not too far distant future, logic and shifts will indicate where the main community growth is taking place. It could be in Simcoe, Cayuga or neither. Then will be the time to decide on the long-term decision on putting both halves of the administration in one place possibly in an entirely new urban centre.

There seems to be as much pique as politics in the critical reception which the administration plan has received from Simcoe's Mayor Judd and some others in Norfolk. It is understandable that they should hope for Simcoe the prestige (and commercial benefits) that would flow from having the regional headquarters and all top staff in their town of 10,000. But the absence of unanimity as to location, Simcoe once almost voted for 25 miles away and with only 1,000 people though possessing the necessary facilities for the purpose.

However, this is a matter that needs to be viewed in a context wider than that of parochial rivalry and jealousies. Regionalism has arrived in Norfolk to stay. It is time therefore, for the rump of resisters to throw away their hatchets and think regionally and long range.

Professional Development' Days

Kingston Whig-Standard

School children in Kingston recently enjoyed two more of those "professional development days" holidays— Thursday and Friday for elementary schools; Friday for secondary schools. Very nice.

This pleasant little timerobber, granted by the Ministry of Education and seconded by local school boards, is something any "professional" group of workers would welcome— taking time off from their jobs, with pay, to learn more about the job (presumably).

Between the board and the City of Toronto, the elementary school teachers have broadened the terms of reference. "Professional" now embraces non-academic subjects, such as "The Politics of Education", which is what the Toronto Star's education writer during their recent day off, and "Women's Lib and the Future of Education", the disk served up for the City of Toronto's teachers.

There are twelve of these paid interludes in the teachers' work-year. The teacher obviously feel they are now so secure in the new way that they can get away with almost anything. Would be hard to justify if only days of doing a better job were discussed. But when theoretical disquisitions such as "the Politics" of this and that form the content of their meetings, one feels can be said to have gone too far.

Professionalism — if that's what it's supposed to be — is best demonstrated in the classroom.

Coroner Queries Doctor's Actions

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — A coroner supervising the inquest into 21 hospital deaths here told an anesthetist Tuesday that he found the doctor's operating room behavior "strange."

Coroner Ross Bennett also questioned the medical technique used by Dr. Robert Shine during an operation on Robert Fraser, 16.

The youth is one of 23 persons whose deaths are under investigation by the coroner's jury.

Dr. Bennett, after listening to almost two days of testimony from Dr. Shine, said it appeared to him that the boy reacted in two completely different ways to the medical gas and that it was likely one source of gas was used before the operation and another afterwards.

Dr. Shine said he could not recall if two sources of gas were used.

Dr. Bennett noted that when the anesthetist arrived at emergency treatment room he could not record a blood pressure on the patient.

"You said an operation was already in progress and you gave the patient an anesthetic!" asked the coroner.

"How do you justify giving an anesthetic to a patient who has no blood pressure."

The anesthetist said he did not think the operation could continue without giving the anesthetic.

"No blood pressure was detected, yet you administered halothane. . . . Do you consider this medically sound?"

Dr. Shine replied that there were no nitrous oxide outlets in the room and said he saw no cylinders of the gas on the anesthetic machine.

The youth's condition deteriorated shortly after the gas was administered and Dr. Shine said he could not explain why the youth remained unconscious.

"I was unable to make any diagnosis to explain why he was not waking up," he said.

Dr. Shine also said he did not tell other doctors present that he was concerned about the patient's unconscious state.

"You had two surgeons working three feet from you and you didn't tell them you were disturbed?" asked the coroner.

"No," said Dr. Shine.

"I find this very strange," Dr. Bennett said. "I can't understand why you didn't tell the surgeon of your concern."

Ontario Assails Bell's Rate Plans

OTTAWA (CP) — Bell Canada proposals to raise the price of pay phone calls to 20 cents and charge 25 cents for unnecessary directory assistance came under fire at Canadian transport commission hearings Tuesday.

Dan Burtnick, a lawyer representing the Ontario government—intervening in the hearing—argued that there were no justification for the two proposals.

Bell, which operates in Ontario, Quebec and the Northwest Territories, has asked the commission to approve rate increases totalling $51.8 million.

Mr. Skelton said the directory assistance charge will help alleviate the deficit the company incurs in staffing and operating the service.

Mr. Burtnick suggested that Bell should have undertaken to study the use of such charges by other telephone companies. A directory assistance charge is used by some U.S. companies and by Quebec Telephone, a small provincial telephone operation serving the Lower St. Lawrence and Gaspe areas.

The Ontario lawyer also attacked the plan to raise the 10-cent fee for pay phones to 20 cents.

He pointed out that the Railway Act requires that companies charge all persons equally for similar services, noting that this will be impossible during the three-year period Bell will need to convert its pay phones to the new tariff.

Mr. Skelton agreed that there will be some discrimination for a while, but said it was necessary and cannot be avoided.

MEMO FROM HELEN GAGEN

A GOOD TIME FOR WEIGHT CONTROL

Need to lose weight? A high percentage of Canadians do. And now, when food prices are rising, could be a good time to do it — provided you're sure to modify your diet by excluding unnecessary extras and stressing essentials in their most economical form.

Musts, even on a weight reducing diet, are milk or its equivalent (its least expensive, lowest calorie form is reconstituted powdered skim milk — but be sure to include in your diet the vitamin A lost with the cream); a vitamin C fruit or juice (citrus, tomato or vitamin C enriched) three times daily, preferably raw or canned without sugar; at least 4 vegetables, with emphasis on leafy green, yellow and raw; whole grain cereal and bread — or enriched versions if we can't get the whole grain; cooked without fat. Do investigate some of the less familiar, lower cost fish such as whiting and turbot. Ask for our summarized Guide for Calorie Counters, ask the attendant at your Miracle Food Mart information desk. And for additional information drop me a line at my Rexdale Boulevard address.

Check Out Sponsorship Of Encounter Groups

Dear Ann Landers—What do you think of Encounter Groups? Are they real or phony?—Just Asking

Dear Just: Some are real but most are phony. Before you consider joining check the sponsorship. For example, if the group is sponsored by the Y.M.C.A. you know it's probably OK.

Before signing up and handing over any money, ask if you can drop in to observe a session. If they say, "No spectators"—forget it.

Make certain you have the right, before joining, to "sit out" any part of the program if you choose not to participate. If after you join, you feel you've made a mistake and wish you hadn't, leave. Better to lose only your money than your peace of mind and self-respect.

Dear Ann Landers: I've been a faithful reader for many years and have seen myself in your column time and time again. Today you printed a letter from Your Friend in Marshfield, Wis., in expression of gratitude for the advice you gave to another wife, years before. She saw herself in that letter, took the advice, and it changed her life.

Her husband, too, had a wandering eye. Your counsel was forgive and forget. If there's a light in the window he'll come back. And don't be stubborn, take him. You won't regret it."

That column made my day. Although my husband is living with another woman, you've given me the courage to say, "I will take him back whenever he is ready to come."

A light is now shining in my window and I hope I, too, will be able to write a letter with a beautiful ending.—Lonely and Praying

Dear Lonely: I'll pray, too, and I promise, dear, if you write that letter, I'll print it.

Dear Ann Landers: My brother's daughter was married recently. He and his wife gave a large buffet reception honoring the bride and groom. My husband and I and our three children chose to stay home. We did not attend either the wedding or the buffet. Now the whole family is mad at us.

My mother says we should have notified them that we would not attend. I say since it was a buffet and not a sit-down dinner, it wasn't necessary. Mother says a wedding gift was in order, but I've been told that if you don't attend the wedding you don't owe a present. (I did give my niece a shower gift.)

The whole family says we are wrong. I say an invitation does not obligate the recipient. Please reply in the paper so the relatives can see it.—No Social Blunderer

Dear Blunderer: Here's my reply, but when you see it you'll wish you hadn't written to me.

An invitation does not obligate the recipient to attend or buy a gift, but it certainly carries the obligation of a response, whether it's a sit-down dinner or a picnic in a park.

The fact that you and your family would choose to stay at home rather than attend the wedding of your niece sends out some extremely negative vibes. I sense enormous hostility between your family and the family of the bride.

An apology would only be a beginning at patching this up. You've given them a real clop from which old mere words don't change things.

Successful Living

'Understanding' Key to Friendship

By DORIS CLARK

One of the purposes of this school is to further understanding among nations; and this starts with understanding between individuals. Sometimes it is surprising to see how these relations are alike.

People have their own ideas about the other way to behave and they judge others according to this. They put themselves, their thoughts, in the other person's mind - a place they don't belong. Many things can come out of it; but not understanding.

Very soon they stereotype people and their judgments do not necessarily fit the person concerned. People are like icebergs; and other people intend to understand them by the one-eighth they see.

Good relations among people have to be based on acceptance of what one sees and forgiveness of what one does not understand. One has to forgive, ahead of time, the suffering people will cause him; and he has to forgive himself the suffering he will cause others.

If we accept the idea that the living person is a hurting person because of misunderstanding, it may not "create a better world" but will give much peace to our relations with others.

—Jael Bickel, in International, the Organ of The International People's College, Denmark.

According to the latest reports, there are now 12 Candians enrolled at the International People's College, Elsinore, Denmark. From the U.S.A. there are 15; from Britain six; from Denmark 14; from Japan 14. There are 27 countries represented in all, from every continent.

A wonderful place indeed to develop understanding and friendship with other countries and cultures in our world.

Dear Doris: I think I saw a bit of my philosophy in one of your recent columns. I am flattered beyond words! The very thought that some idea of mine is worth passing out "to an audience"! How lucky can a feller get?

You know, I sort of thought you might like to hear of a happy marriage, for once, and I do think that Edna's and my marriage is unique. Before we were married we agreed that marriage was a "job" which had to be constantly worked at if it were to succeed. We knew that nothing magic took place half way down the aisle to the altar.

We knew that work for me would be uncertain for the first few years until seniority was adequate to demand a good promotion. We knew that we would be obliged to live in many isolated spots - - and be separateda good deal of the time.

Then there was the "Depression" and a baby. I dare say the basic reason why we were able to not only weather the storms, but find our love growing over the years, is understanding and the fact that we have kept sharing interests and retained Good Companions.

Thoughts.

Dear Thoughts: I hope all propective brides and grooms are reading. Recognizing marriage as an enterprise commanding all of the intelligent love and understanding we can give it, is the ticket that will keep you on Cloud Nine.

Confidential to Which Am I?: You feel less than masculine? Just because you avoid fights, and prefer friendliness?

In our culture we tend to associate certain characteristics with males, and certain jobs requiring physical strength. But enjoying cooking, loving poetry, being kind - these are not the sole domain of the ladies!

Begin to like yourself and realize that each one of us is a unique individual. Take care of your physique and your health in general...Then follow your star.

(Try turning your trouble into triumph by getting help from a trained social worker. Write to Doris in care of this newspaper.)

Women Join Unions

OTTAWA (CP) — In 1969, there were 2,237,000 women paid workers in the Canadian labor force. Of these, 469,235 were union members. Women constituted 21.2 per cent of the total union membership. The proportion ranged from 42 per cent in the services industry to 0.5 per cent in the construction industry.

Classes Will Expand

OTTAWA (CP) — Jane Dobell, chairman of the school board of education, predicts an increase in the size of school classes which now average 30.8 students. The need for specialists in areas such as remedial reading plus the salary demands of teachers both point to an increase, she says.

The Well-Stocked Kitchen

Cooking -- with a capital C is cheaper in the long run than hastily prepared convenience foods.

Not only that, it's probably healthier.

It's no secret that you pay a premium for that dry pork chop or that a cardboard box of "casserole helpers" with a few spices and two ounces of noodles cost five times what it's worth.

One of the ways to beat the ever-increasing price of food is to go back to "home made."

An initial outlay of little more than $25 can set you up for months to come with a variety of versatile kitchen helpers that stretch meats, improve flavor and lost all there waiting to provide an emergency meal or last minute dessert.

The secret to the whole thing, of course, is to keep the well-stocked kitchen well-stocked. Each week or month, check your supplies -- against a permanent list if need be -- and add new items one at a time as you run short.

Here's our list for the well-stocked kitchen. Your own might be a little different depending on cooking preferences.

navy beans
kidney beans

Voila! A kitchen full of hamburger "helpers".

Experienced cooks already know that well-flavored food goes farther. And experienced food-budgeters know that a good kitchen stock in the end reduces food costs, especially for the small family.

You could, for example, put together, from your well-stocked kitchen any of these main dishes with just the additional purchase of ground beef: beef macaroni dinner, spaghetti with meat sauce, meat loaf, "stroganoff", chili, meatball stew, shepherd's pie, beef procupines and probably 200 others.

On the dessert front, you can put together dozens of sweets from puddings to cookies, cakes to cream pies just with what's on hand.

Recipes for some simple desserts from the pantry shelf, along with recipes for some of the main dishes mentioned above, follow.

Lemon Pudding Special

House Now Near Showdown With Nixon on Energy Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House of Representatives is moving toward a showdown on an emergency energy bill that President Nixon has said he plans to veto.

The measure is slated to be brought up on the floor today under a parliamentary rule leaving it open to a procedural challenge from any member. House leaders said Tuesday. But before debate on the bill begins, Democrats will attempt to amend the rule so that such points of order cannot be raised, the leaders said.

The maneuvering is expected to settle the legislative fate of the bill, which includes a provision for an oil-price rollback.

Unless the parliamentary rule is amended, an oil-state representative almost certainly will object to the price-roll back provision on the ground that it was inserted in the bill by a Senate-House conference and never has been voted upon by the full House.

Most observers agree that Speaker Carl Albert would be forced to sustain such an objection and the bill would effectively be killed.

The Senate-passed measure also would provide the president with authority to price gasoline, rationing and other mandatory fuel-saving measures, but House aid at his televised news conference Monday night that he would veto the measure "if it reaches my desk in its present form."

Included in the bill's rollback provision, while "immediately popular," would lead to further shortages "which would require, without question, rationing all over the country."

Nixon also said that the energy crisis has passed, although a "serious problem" still remains. That comment drew a rebuke Tuesday from Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, who said: "The shortage remains, and so does the crisis."

Senators Henry Jackson (Dem., Wash.), Abraham Ribicoff (Dem. Conn.), and Jacob Javits (Rep. N.Y.) told federal energy chief William Simon that his credibility and that of the president are being severely questioned as a result of the statement that the crisis is over.

Simon said he believes that the president's statements were taken out of context, and an officially-sanctioned company in the Federal Energy Office said, "It is just a matter of semantics at this point" whether there remains an energy crisis or an energy problem.

Meanwhile, the American Automobile Association (AAA) said its weekly check of fuel conditions found a downward trend in gasoline availability, with stations in most areas continuing to operate shorter hours.

Atlantic Coast states and parts of the Pacific Northwest continue to be hardest hit by the gasoline shortage, the AAA said.

And the National Petroleum Council warned that petroleum consumption must be cut even more sharply this spring than it was this winter or the U.S. may face gasoline rationing.

The council, an oil industry advisory group, said petroleum consumption in the second quarter of the year must be reduced 400,000 barrels a day more than the FEO has planned.

British Management Spokesman Hits Tories

LONDON (CP) — The Conservatives have been hit by an other election-week embarrassment, adding to the uncertainty of what commentators call the most unpredictable British general election in years.

There was the traditional election-eve chorus of confidence from the party leaders, but the Tories, already embarrassed by announcement of a record trade deficit in January, found themselves on the defensive again, this time over their labor-relations law.

Campbell Adamson, director-general of the Confederation of British Industry, said Tuesday that the labor-relations law enacted by the Conservatives had "sullied every relationship at national level between unions and employers."

Both sides of industry "should be given a chance to start again," said Adamson, whose organization usually speaks for the management side of British industry in public debate.

In a worried subsequent effort to clarify his remarks about the highly controversial law, Adamson insisted that the opinions he expressed were his own personal views rather than those of the confederation.

The law has long aroused passions on the union side of British industry. The legislation forms part of a Tory attempt to establish what for the Conservatives would be an orderly system of labor-management relations in strike-torn Britain.

With voting to start in less than 24 hours, three opinion polls published today trimmed some more off the Conservatives' lead.

The government forces were at 46 per cent in all three polls. Their showings averaged 38.5 cent, while Labor averaged 35.5 and the Liberals 23.5 with minority parties accounting for the rest.

Regional Rule Won't Be Imposed

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — The Kingston area will not have regional government imposed upon it unless "an extraordinary situation" arises in which a municipality threatens proper growth and planning, Ontario Treasurer John White said Tuesday.

In Kingston for a short meeting with Mayor George Speal, Mr. White told news conference Queen's Park will not force regional government restructuring on any area unless the people want it.

"If the people . . . like the system of government they have here then by all means keep it.

"If the system which was established in 1968 is no longer suitable . . . then we will be pleased to work along at the request of the people concerned."

Although the minister said that the province has adopted the position that requests for county restructuring should come from the county itself, the minister of housing maintains certain "step-in" powers.

He said if the province's 76 townships "don't come to grips with their own planning and responsibilities, we are not going to let them imperil the neighboring municipality."

Petrochemical Industry Urged For Alberta

TORONTO (CP) — The president of Alberta Gas Trunk Line Co. Ltd. said Tuesday a worldscale petrochemical industry and other diversified industries should be established in Western Canada where there is assurance of natural gas supply and some predictability of cost.

S. R. Blair also said a pipeline should be built to bring Mackenzie delta gas to southern markets where there will be a ready demand by the 1980s, especially in Ontario and Quebec.

Outlining what he called a blueprint for natural gas development in Canada for the remainder of this decade, he told a meeting of the Toronto Society of Financial Analysts that Canadians must seize the opportunity to develop their valuable petroleum hydrocarbon components.

Mr. Blair appealed to Canadian utilities and transmission companies to make contractual commitments for Mackenzie delta and other Arctic frontier gas reserves.

Foreign Trade Deficit Britain's Top Problem

LONDON, (CP) E When a new British government takes office after Thursday's general election, it will face what may be the country's worst economic problem in peacetime.

The magnitude of the problem is easily exaggerated. But enough facts are known to enable economists to make some startling assessments of the short-term outlook.

The most immediate issue is how to settle a national coalminers' strike, without an inflationary wage award, and restore the skewed industry to a full work week.

But the most monumental difficulty is a rapidly-worsening foreign trade deficit which has already reached record levels and is running at a crippling annual rate of about $8.5 billion.

However, restoring industry to full capacity will carry with it a major hidden danger. Firms will need to step up dramatically their imports of materials to take up their production slack but it will be at least six months, economists estimate, before exports start to catch up. Meanwhile a new strain is likely to be added to the payments position.

Another severe challenge for the government will be in finding ways of curbing inflation, now running at more than 10 per cent a year, but under the level at which most experts believe rising prices become uncontrollable.

The three-day work week complicates matters as well, and the full effects are only starting to be felt.

Because wages have fallen by a fast slightly more than 11 per cent—the two days of wages lost being offset by various forms of compensation and work arrangements—while production has dropped by 30 per cent, a classical inflationary drive has continued with too much money chasing too few goods.

Added to all this is the grave impact of skyrocketing world prices for such essential commodities as oil and food, of which Britain is a major importer.

The increased world prices, coupled with the decreased purchasing power of sterling since it was set free from its parity in mid-1972, may account for more than one-third of the current trade deficit, although Conservatives contend the effects are much greater.

While some economists argue there are no popular or easy remedies available, other economists, apparently many politicians themselves, now seem convinced that any corrective effort must begin with massive overseas borrowing from the International Monetary Fund, other Common Market countries and international sources such as Canada and the United States.

These funds would be used to help finance the payments deficit and free the government's hands somewhat for stimulating an export drive.

There also seems to be a consensus that this time the growth stimulus must be restricted to export industries, while stern restrictive measures are taken to prevent domestic consumption expanding and eating up increases in output.

These restrictions may take the form of higher tax increases at all levels of income above the lowest income brackets, further cuts in public expenditure and perhaps strict controls on non-essential imports.

Great Lakes Study Attacked As Shameful Bureaucracy

WASHINGTON (CP) — Representative Charles Vanik (Dem. Ohio), in a scathing statement, denounced the Great Lakes levels report Tuesday as "a shameful indictment of the worst in bureaucratic stalled."

The report by the Levels Board of the International Joint Commission, was nine years in the making and cost $6 million. It was made public simultaneously in Ottawa and at a conference of Great Lakes congressmen here.

The report said year-round control of water levels in Lake Superior could bring small benefits to lower lakes, but rules out water-level relation for lakes Michigan and Huron as too expensive. It also called for further study on possible regulation of water levels in Lake Erie.

Vanik's prepared statement read:

"I sincerely believe that the one staff person in my office who works on Great Lakes problems could have written this report in six months."

Representative James O'Hara (Dem., Mich.), in questioning Maj.-Gen. Ernest Graves, chairman of the U.S. section of the Levels Board, said he had "a very strong feeling" that the board should be "authorized to look into the enlarging of the St. Lawrence River" in carry off flood waters.

Representative Benry Smith (Rep. N.Y.) asked whether other diversions of Great Lakes water had been considered, such as through Georgian Bay, the Ottawa River and through Hudson Bay.

Graves said he felt the only feasible diversion would be via the St. Lawrence River.

Vanik suggested today since "they're concerned about too much water in Canada—let Toronto and Montreal—maybe we can help them."

"Maybe we can move the water down through the Chicago canal in non-flood periods," Vanik suggested.

The general said there would have to be agreement between the two countries before the outflow of the Great Lakes can be regulated in any way.

New Cabinet Said Curious Mixture

TORONTO (CP) — Premier William Davis overhauled his cabinet Tuesday but opposition spokesmen indicated further changes are necessary before the Ontario government is prepared to the needs of Ontario.

Opposition Leader Robert Nixon said the changes produced "a curious mixture of tired ministers, a few bright and tired ministers in new portfolios and new ministers in troubled portfolios."

Eleven ministers retained their jobs and five were dropped from the cabinet. Seven members were elevated to cabinet rank and seven switched jobs.

Mr. Nixon criticized the premier for delaying his cabinet changes until the week before the next session of the legislature. Fourteen members had new jobs and would be unable to answer opposition questions for the first few weeks.

"While these lame-duck ministers become familiar with their new assignments, both the democratic process in the legislature and the efficiency of their departments will suffer," he said.

Stephen Lewis, leader of the New Democratic Party, said he doubted the changes would result in improved government.

"It's still the old William Davis crew that runs Ontario. The mistakes, transgressions and follies of the Conservatives will not be reversed by these little changes one jot."

Mr. Lewis was particularly critical of three decisions by Mr. Davis in announcing the makeup of the new cabinet.

"Housing gets kicked around again," he said of the move to give the portfolio formerly held by Robert Welch to cabinet newcomer Sidney Handleman, 52, who represents Carleton.

"No one is ever allowed to do a job on housing in this province and we've just set back the prospects for the umpteenth time."

William Newman, the 46-year-old member from Ontario South got the environment portfolio formerly held by James Auld and Mrs. Lewis questioned the appoint of a minister from an area "currently under environmental assault by the government itself."

"I can imagine the bewilderment of residents in Dutch Pickering (where the government is proposing the land for a major airport) or the citizen groups opposed to expressway economics and intergovernmental affairs and Mr. Lewis repeated arguments that the massive, unwieldly, centralized" portfolio should be split up.

Meanwhile, A. B. R. Lawrence, 50, said his departure from the cabinet as resources secretary means he won't seek his Carleton-East seat in the next election.

He previously served as minister without portfolio, ministers of financial and commercial affairs and health minister.

John Rhodes, the member from Sault Ste. Marie who replaces Gordon Carton as minister of transportation and communications, said the problems he will face are two-pronged. The cities of the south need urban transit but in northern Ontario "the basic need is for first-class highways to move goods and people and encourage industrial development."

Dr. Richard Potter, 59, who was told he would become minister without portfolio, ministered of health minister, admitted his blunt approach to health problems may have aggravated the controversies that swirled about his portfolio the two years he held it.

Frank Miller, 46, said he's "a little scared" of tackling the health portfolio but he served as Dr. Potter's parliamentary assistant for 1½ years "so the problems of the ministry are pretty familiar to me."

Arthur Meen, 46, who becomes Ontario's chief tax collector after an apprenticeship to Mr. White, said he accepted the revenue post "like any other assignment except I guess I'll be more under the gun than ever before."

Davis Is Called Adroit Shuffler

TORONTO (CP) — Premier William Davis performed a neat sleight-of-hand when he shuffled his cabinet Tuesday, giving the appearance of exciting change while maintaining the political balance of earlier cabinets.

It was a cabinet of trade-offs, of promotions and demotions, and one that opened up six new jobs for parliamentary assistants that Mr. Davis will be able to provide for his growing list of ambitious backbenchers.

His party holds 78 of the 117 seats in the legislature.

Significantly, the political balance was nearly changed, with eight of the shuffled ministers from ridings in the western part of the province, eight from Metropolitan Toronto and environs, six from eastern ridings and three from the north.

In the old cabinet, the balance was west and Metro, eight each; east, six; and north, two.

The new northern cabinet minister is John Rhodes, who won his Sault Ste. Marie riding by a slim majority in the last election. His entry into the cabinet as minister of transportation and communications should bolster his chances to win Sault next time around.

There were trade-offs, particularly the exchange of Sidney Handleman, Ottawa-Carleton, who became housing minister, for A. B. R. Lawrence, Ottawa-Carleton East, resources secretary, who leaves the cabinet to take over as chairman of the Ontario Heritage Foundation.

There was Don Irvine, minister without portfolio, exchanged for C. J. S. Apps, retiring from politics, both of whom represent an eastern Ontario riding.

There was Dennis Timbrell, the young Toronto bachelor as minister without portfolio, exchanged for the veteran solicitor-general John Yaremko, retired after a long career.

There was Arthur Meen, revenue minister, exchanged for Gordon Carton, another departed cabinet minister. Both represent Toronto ridings.

Mr. Carton's departure came as a surprise. A hard worker who had won plaudits from everyone in the three ministries he's handled for Mr. Davis, he was one of the few whose future in the cabinet seemed assured.

Five of the six new members ushered into the cabinet had been parliamentary assistants, which made those posts available for filling by backbenchers, particularly the able John McBeth, who long has been thought to be deserving of more recognition.

A couple of Mr. Davis's moves were seen to be outright demotions, particularly the removal of the blunt-speaking Dr. Richard Potter from health to Mr. Apps's old, low-key portfolio of correctional services. Dr. Potter was told he was being moved. He did not request it.

Mr. Potter's successor, Frank Miller, is a less-abrasive personality and is expected to cool the rising chorus of discontent and criticism of the province's health programs.

Another minister moved to what might be described as a semi-terrestrial post was James Auld, who goes from environment to colleges and universities. Mr. Auld had been one of those veteran cabinet ministers believed to be on the way out.

In promotions, there was Robert Welch, moved into the attorney-general portfolio from housing; George Kerr, to solicitor-general from being a provincial secretary; and Margaret Birch, finally promoted to a full operating minister—social development secretary—from minister without portfolio.

Yaremko Regretful Cabinet Days Over

TORONTO (CP) — John Yaremko was just a little regretful as his 16-year tenure as a cabinet minister ended Tuesday.

"That's where the action is," the solicitor-general said as he waited for the swearing-in ceremonies for new cabinet ministers to begin.

Then he brightened.

"The strength of the party is in the reshaping of its structure," said Mr. Yaremko, the last remaining cabinet link with the Frost era and the longest-serving cabinet minister of the current government.

"The most important aspect has been the continual reshaping of its leadership at the top and at the cabinet level."

Premier William Davis said Mr. Yaremko will continue to be consulted by the government on matters concerning Ontario's ethnic communities.

Mr. Yaremko said he would most like to be remembered for his contributions to "the equality of opportunity and the equality of rights within the province."

The 55-year-old lawyer has long been associated with the causes of Ontario's ethnic groups and said he plans to continue in this field as a private member of the legislature.

New Minister of Colleges Never Went to University

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario has a new minister of college and universities who has never been to either.

James Auld, who took over the new post Tuesday after Premier William Davis transferred him out of the environment portfolio as part of the wholesale cabinet shuffle, said he's proud of the environment new job.

"That'd be a first," he said in a telephone interview from Florida where he is spending his first vacation in years.

Mr. Auld was the only ministry to miss Tuesday's swearing in ceremony.

Mr. Auld, now 53, said he once planned to go to college and become an engineer but a war got in the way.

After service with the Queen's Own Rifles, Mr. Auld came home and opted for going into the family business instead of college.

Health Forces McNie to Seek Easier Task

TORONTO (CP) — Jack McNie, 54, who once said one of his greatest assets is that he never worries about "losing face", wrote Premier William Davis a week ago asking that he be relieved of his duties as Ontario's minister of colleges and universities.

Health problems had forced him to seek a less-demanding job, and Mr. Davis accommodated him in the major cabinet shuffle Tuesday.

Mr. McNie, who suffers from high blood pressure and has only one kidney, was made minister without portfolio in the new cabinet.

CP News Roundup

Nixon Lifts Beef Curbs

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon acted Tuesday to remove all restrictions on imports of beef into the United States this year. Restrictions on beef imports also were lifted last year.

Nixon signed a proclamation declaring that it is in the "overriding economic or national security interests" that meat import quotas be suspended.

The proclamation said potential imports of meat in 1974 will be 1.3 billion pounds.

Allowing these imports will increase meat supplies and thus have an impact on prices, White House spokesman Gerald Warren said.

Grants Rise

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario ministry of colleges and universities announced Tuesday an increase of 11 per cent to about $770 million in operating grants for post-secondary institutions for the 1976-75 school year.

Seat Unsafe

TORONTO (CP) — A Canadian Tire Corp. store was fined $100 Tuesday under Hazardous Products Act for selling an unsafe child's car seat.

A federal inspector testified that samples of the Teddy Tot Astro car seat failed laboratory tests which showed the seat would not have supported a child's head in a crash.

Two Eject

MOOSE JAW, Sask. (CP) — Two pilots ejected safely Tuesday when their Tutor jet trainer crashed about 15 miles southwest of here.

Canadian Forces Base Moose Jaw said Capt. Gordon Hackett of Ottawa and Capt. Ian Struthers of Trenton, Ont., were picked up by a rescue helicopter minutes after the crash and were in satisfactory condition.

Recall Products

OTTAWA (CP) — All products of Regent Chocolate Ltd. of St. Hyacinthe, Que., are ordered recalled Tuesday in Canada and the U.S.

"We have some positive identifications of salmonella eastbourne in chocolate rabbits made for the Easter market," Dr. A. B. Morrison, head of the branch said in an interview.

COME TO ME IN SILENCE — Rod McKuen.

Rod McKuen's newest book of poetry is like so much of his earlier work; the lines are gentle, beautiful, alternately lonely and happy. His love poems speak of man's wants, his aloneness, and most of all his desire to be understood.

IN ONE ERA AND OUT THE OTHER — Sam Levenson.

Mr. Levenson writes that he started out in one era and arrived in another. "The trip took half my lifetime. The times had changed." With his happy gift of humor and laughter he bridges the generation gap beautifully.

EVERYDAY LIFE IN COLONIAL CANADA — Loris Russell.

The author, who is Professor Emeritus, University of Toronto, and was for some years director of the National Museum of Canada, has had access to many fascinating sources of the history of Colonial Canada. He shows how each wave of settlers encountered pioneer conditions, cleared forests, cultivated fields and built houses. Self-sufficiency was their key to success. They grew the raw materials from them made the tools, clothing, food and other necessities of daily life.

CACTI HOUSE PLANTS — W. E. Shewell-Cooper and T. C. Rochford.

Cacti have a fascination for many people. This book contains all the information necessary for the care and cultivation of cacti and other succulents. Included are special rules on watering, temperatures, propagation, most suitable situations in the home, and attention required for cactus bowls of mixed plants.

SYBIL — Flora Schrieber.

"Sybil" is the true story of a shy, self-effacing young woman and the many selves she assumed. Since early childhood she had suffered "blackouts", long periods during which time — weeks, month, even years — seem to have been taken from her. Sixteen selves existed within the person born as Sybil Isabel Dorset, fourteen female, two male, each with different emotions, attitudes, speech patterns and sought processes.

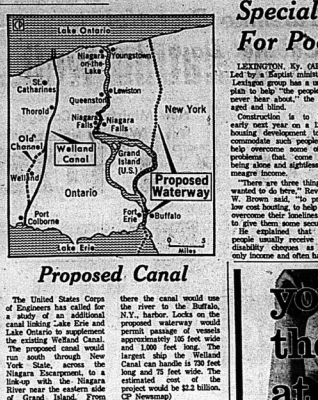
AIRPLANES: FROM THE DAWN OF FLIGHT TO THE PRESENT DAY. — Enzo Angelucci.

For anyone interested in aircraft, this is the history of the wonderful and powerful spaceships that have reached the moon. In words and pictures, the book soars through the entire panorama of flight. It provides interesting facts about the ill-fated flying boats of the earliest years of the 20th century, the wood and canvas craft of World War I, the great seaplanes built to conquer oceans, and what is probable in the near future.

EDWARD THE UNCROWNED KING — Christopher Hibbert.

In this book the author recalls the story of the spirited and handsome King who gave up his throne in 1936 to marry the woman he loved. There are many photographs, some from the Duke of Windsor's private albums, covering every aspect of his life from childhood days and early years in the Navy to his few months on the throne, and his happy years of marriage to Wallis Simpson.

THE HOBBIT—J. R. R. Tolkien.



"The Hobbit" is an enchanting fantasy and is the prelude to Tolkien's famous trilogy, "The Lord of the Rings." It is a tale of high adventure, undertaken by a company of dwarves, in search of dragon-guarded gold. There are exciting encounters with giant spiders, but the book really speaks of the triumph of good over evil and the nobility and delight of life.

Received Donations

EDMONTON (CP) — University of Alberta received gifts amounting to $433,139 between Nov. 1 and Dec. 31, 1973. The federal government was the largest contributor—$229,676. The provincial government contributed $67,185. Other sources included industry. Research is the main purpose of the gifts, with minor amounts included for, travel and general purpose grants and personal awards. Scholarships are not included.

NAME CHANGE PROPOSED

PLIXTON, England (CP) — The two inmates of Plixton have existed 20 miles apart for 1,000 years, but now the governments wants them to change their names for "bureaucratic purposes. "We are not prepared to mutilate our identity," say the 152 residents of Plixton, near Bungay. "And we are not prepared to be known as Little Plixton," protest the 60 residents of Plixton, near Lowestoft.

Proposed Canal

The United States Corps of Engineers has called for a study of an additional canal linking Lake Erie and Lake Ontario to supplement the existing Welland Canal. The proposed canal would run south through New York State, across the Niagara Escarpment, to a link-up with the Niagara River near the eastern side of Grand Island. From there the canal would use the river to Tonawanda, N.Y., harbor. Locks on the proposed canal would permit passage of vessels approximately 105 feet wide and 1,000 feet long. The largest ship the Welland Canal can handle is 730 feet long and 75 feet wide. The estimated cost of the project would be $2.2 billion. (CP Newsmap)

Victim of Nazis Opposes Zionism

JERUSALEM (CP) — A Polish-born survivor of a Nazi concentration camp and his 850 followers have a formula for peace in the Middle East that is anathema to the vast majority of Israelis: Anti-Zionism.

Founded in 1935 to defend the rights of Jews and Arabs living under the British mandate in Palestine, the Israeli League for Human and Civil Rights now espouses the territorial claims of the country's former Arab residents.

"The principle of equal justice for every human being, if taken seriously and not as a slogan, is the humanistic principle which I believe can bring about a just and peaceful solution," said Israel Shahak, chairman of the league, in an interview.

"Israel and the Western world accept implicitly that Palestinians are not human beings," he said. "The aim of the Israeli government is to expel slowly all Palestinians from Palestine."

The assault on the principle of a Jewish home and comes from a man whom Zionism brought from the Belsen-Bergen concentration camps to his present post as professor of organic chemistry at the University of Jerusalem.

The 40-year-old scholar said the Israeli authorities tolerate his unpopular views but subject him to some harrassement.

"They put pressure on the university not to raise my rank. I am searched to the skin each time I leave or enter the country. They tell students about me saying I am mad or I support Arab terrorist groups or I am a Maoist or a Communist."

He said he has received a few written threats of assassination.

Politically non-partisan, Shahak quarrels with the practicability as well as the justice of the idea of an exclusively Jewish state.

The idea that one can build a safe refuge is an illusion which should be particularly clear in the atomic age, he said. Israel had become an embattled fortress which could be destroyed either through atomic or conventional warfare.

He noted that Napoleon was eventually defeated in Russia, simply because the Russians did not give up, even though they lost many times more men and materials than the French.

The Arabs were learning that they too could sustain heavy losses and eventually defeat Israel by continuing the war and not giving up.

Shahak was particularly critical of two instruments of Israeli policy: the Jewish National Fund (JNF) and the Defence Regulations of 1945.

The JNF, a branch of the World Zionist Organization, is in connection with the purchase and development of land in Israel. A senior spokesman said recently that 93 per cent of all land under cultivation and 83 per cent of land accommodating Jewish settlements belongs.

"The JNF will only lease land, not sell it, and in no case will it lease land to non-Jews.

"The issue is not that the land was confiscated in the first place," said Shahak. "The more important thing now is that housing developments are being built not for anyone who might want to live there but exclusively for Jews. There are many towns now that are completely closed to non-Jews."

In many cases, developments are built for immigrating Jews. "This is the only government that doesn't even pretended to use the land for the people it governs, preferring to set it aside for foreigners."

Shahak said he is disturbed by the fact that two systems of law exist in Israel—civil law, based on a combination of British law and Turkish law modified by the Israeli government, and the Defence Regulations.

Under the regulations, Shahak said, any Israeli can be arrested and imprisoned without charge.

Shahak's sympathy for the cause of the Palestinian Arabs does not extend to their political leaders.

"They have wonderful intellectuals educated in the Western world but are incapable of using them," he said.

Veto powers were held by men like Yassir Arafat, commander-in-chief of the Palestinian Liberation Organization (PLO), and George Habash of the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, who had spent little time outside the Arab countries.

"They need a leader who can understand realities."

Shahak attacked the PLO declaration of 1968 that only Jews indigenous to Palestine be allowed to stay in the country after "liberation." It was not clear whether this meant Jews who lived in Palestine before 1948, when Israel was declared a state, or before 1917, the year of the British Balfour Declaration supporting the idea of a national homeland.

He also said the PLO definition of a Palestinian as anyone having an Arab father is just as pernicious as Israel's Law of Return, granting automatic entry to all Jews.

Armless Girl Learns to Drive

GODERICH, Ont. (CP) — Learning to drive was especially hard for Lynda Towse behind.

Elaine, a 23-year-old community college student, was born without arms.

But her determination and a specially fitted car have enabled her to become the only person in Canada to drive with her feet.

The car, a standard North American compact, was modified by a Clinton, Ont., automobile mechanic in consultation with the Canadian Paraplegic Association and the War Amputations Association.

The "power" steering wheel is mounted on the floor parallel with the brake and accelerator, which were raised 16 inches. The ignition and dimmer switch were also relocated so they can be reached by foot.

"I steer with my left foot and operate the accelerator with my right foot," Elaine said. "With my left foot I can reach the gear shift, the lights and the wipers and the heater."

She obtained her licence after persuading the Ontario transport ministry the vehicle was mechanically safe. The department had her fasten a cushion to the seat to increase visibility.

As for insurance, she pays only a "slightly higher rate" than ordinary drivers.

Now, Elaine is able to drive to her English classes at nearby Conestoga College.

Special Housing Is Planned For Poor, Aged and Blind

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Led by a Baptist minister, a Lexington group has a unique plan to help "the people you never hear about," the poor, aged and blind.

Construction is to begin early next year on a 12-unit housing development to accommodate such people and help overcome some of the problems that come with being alone and sightless with meagre income.

"There are three things we wanted to do here," Rev. Bob W. Brown said, "to provide low cost housing, to help them overcome their loneliness and to give them some security."

He explained that these people usually receive small disability checques as their only income and often have to pay 60 to 70 per cent of it for housing.

People who are old and blind also lead lonely lives, he continued. "There are people who haven't learned to read braille and haven't had vocational rehabilitation, don't see them on the street; they just sit at home and that is why I call them the people you never hear about."

If they live alone, they also have problems with thieves.

The Committee for Housing for the Handicapped, Inc., which will build and operate the housing, grew out of a program at Mr. Brown's church, but is not affiliated with any religion.

"When I selected the committee, I made a point to make it non-sectarian," the minister said. There are Jews, Roman Catholics and several denominations of Protestants among the 26 members.

The original seed was planted when the clergyman started a program called Blind Buddies about five years ago at his church.

"The idea was to pair off a blind person with a sighted person so the sighted person could take his blind friend to the doctor or dentist or just shopping," he said.

"When we started, we had just three or four blind people in the program, but now there are about 90. More than half are blank and most are men who are unmarried."

For the last year, the committee has been seeking land and it recently was given two acres adjoining what is to become a public park.

An architect on the committee has drawn plans for the project and three builders are making up a list of materials needed for construction.

The estimated cost is $130,000, which Mr. Brown expects to come half in donations of labor and materials, a quarter in cash and half in donations in kind.

The project will have 12 small apartments around a courtyard, with a larger apartment where a sighted couple will live to be in attendance for security reasons, in next to the sighted couple's apartment.

It will house 12 to 24 people, depending on whether they five alone or share an apartment, and the committee is considering charging 20 per cent of a person's income to five there.

"We haven't reached any decision on that, but we're toying with charging 10 per cent for rent and 10 per cent for board," the minister said. "Of course, it won't pay for itself."

Better Locks Needed

EDMONTON (CP) — A senior city police inspector says persons should demand a better quality lock on doors of homes and apartment. C. J. Bishop says the home and apartment owner is offered a range of choices in decor and convenience, but little notice is taken by the owner of the importance of new property is entitled to better built-in security than he has been afforded in recent years."

QUESTION: We understand that off the Gaspe Coast there are two locations where islands have been set aside as bird sanctuaries. Can you tell us how they may be reached and something about the area?

ANSWER: The two bird sanctuaries that you refer to are probably, Bonaventure Island at Perce and Rocher-aux-Dis-eaux in the Magdalen Islands.

At the eastern extremity of the Gaspe Peninsula on the Gulf of St. Lawrence, Perce is in one of the most scenic locations on the continent. This summer resort is best viewed from Mont Ste. Anne, which can be ascended on foot, or in a horse-drawn carriage.

Rocher Percé (Pierced Rock), an interesting rock formation offshore, rises abruptly from the sea. At low tide it may be approached on foot, over a sandbar.

Bonaventure Island, three miles off shore is a bird sanctuary which shelters 14 varieties of wildfowl. Boats are available from Perce; a trip around the Island requires about 1¼ hours. Visitors may land on the Island where a guided trail leads to the top of the cliffs overlooking the bird ledges.

An enjoyable 7-mile automobile trip may be taken around Mont Ste. Anne. Starting north up the steep hill outside Perce, pass the Three Sisters Cliffs overhanging the sea, the Overlook and the Big Bowl, a rock formation on the mountainside. Turning southeast on Chemin du "Pal"- pass the Observatory and Amphitheater rock formations and Mont Blanc. St. Paul's Anglican Church marks the descent into Perce.

The Magdalen Islands located in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, 155 miles from the coast of the Gaspe Peninsula, were first visited by Jacques Cartier in 1534 but were not settled until 1774 when the Acadians fled Nova Scotia. They made up nine islands and several islets covering 35,000 acres.

This remote area now has a population of about 13,000 and a growing economy. Farming and fishing are the main industries; Magdalen lobsters are said to be the best in the world. Visitors will find sand-dunned beaches, rocky coastlines and a countryside sprinkled with quaint houses. French is the spoken language, but many Magdalenians also speak English.

The eight main islands are connected by bridge and sandbars. The island of Rocher-aux-Oiseaux, a large bird sanctuary, may be visited by boat through arrangements with the local fishermen. The Magdalen Islands are accessible by boat from Pictou, N.S., Charlottetown and Souris, P.E.I. Daily air service is available from Charlottetown, P.E.I., and Moncton, N.B.

Second War Museum Is Planned

PORTSMOUTH, England (AP) — Got any used tanks, artillery, assault craft or, above all, a Second World War assault glider?

If you have, Ken Barton will probably be glad to hear from you. For this ancient British seaport city is planning a memorial museum to the men who died on both sides when the Allied invasion fleet set out for France on D-Day—June 6, 1944.

Said Barton, who is Portsmouth's director of museums: "This is the ideal place. We're trying to get all manner of military relics of those days."

The museum is being fitted up in old Fort Widley, originally built to protect this naval stronghold from possible French invasion. It has miles of underground tunnels and galleries cut into the hillside, as well as a huge arena once used for exercising horses, but now being tidied up for the display of larger exhibits. It is hoped to open the museum as a major tourist attraction in time for the 30th anniversary of D-Day next June.

Hundreds of assault gliders were towed over the English Channel by Allied aircraft in the invasion of Nazi-held France. The gliders were not built to last. "There must be one still in existence somewhere," said Barton. "It would make a splendid centrepiece."

The organizing committee is also trying to trace surviving German prisoners-of-war who stayed on after the war's end to do reparation work, using the old fort as a barracks.

"We'd like to hear what life was like there in those days," said Barton. "There must be some of them still about. And the little human stories and souvenirs might be just as interesting as some of the bigger pieces of hardware."

Bingo Booming

OTTAWA (CP) — The pooh-com-like sound of plastic balls bouncing in a cage, the droning call of the announcer and the victory shouts of "Bingo" have become a way of life for thousands of Ottawa residents, for the capital, as in many other Canadian cities, bingo is booming.

Saturday, Monday and Tuesday are the big nights, with crowds packing several auditoriums for a few hours' dalliance with Lady Luck. Prizes run up to $1,750 for the night's jackpot.

Veteran players can handle a dozen cards at once, checking them alertly as the numbers are called.

The mechanics of the game are simple. Most bingo halls use a plastic cage full of numbered table-tennis balls. The balls, bouncing in an air blast, are retrieved one at a time and their numbers called out. Each card is divided into five squares numbered between 1 and 25.

When a patron's card contains a number that is called, he covers the appropriate square with a marker. The basic game—there are a number of variations—ends when a player covers five squares in a five, horizontally, vertically or diagonally.

For some players, bingo is simply a way of relaxing, an alternative to the television set or a stool at the nearest bar.

For others, it is an obsession. Addicts say they spend up to $20 a week and, with luck, may clear $1,000 in a year.

Bingo is a descendant of a children's game, popular in carnival shows of the 1800s. It has flourished under a score of names but bingo has the strongest following now.

Ottawa, with its thousands of civil servants, has long been a Mecca for bingo. Service clubs, schools, churches and "other worthy causes raise hundreds of thousands of dollars from bingo games.

Canada's Hefner

Eric Cymbaliuk of Edmonton says it's time Canada was represented in the "skin book market." That's why he and an unnamed partner are prepared to spend $750,000 to make a success of Canadian Casanova, a magazine to be released by Canadian Play Boy Holdings Ltd. Cymbaliuk says "If you follow the teachings of (Playboy publisher Hugh) Hefner, a great master, you can't go wrong." (CP Photo)

Pancake Tuesday

The symbolic meaning of Shrove Tuesday — often called Fat Tuesday — was demonstrated yesterday at St. Michael's when eight classes had pancake lunches. Clearing out the cupboard before Lent, traditionally a time of fasting, was discussed by the grade two and three students of Mrs. Carmeilta Shannon. Some students even made placemats for the occasion. Then the mothers arrived to prepare lunch. Mrs. Betsy Broadbridge serves her son Lee his fourth as Jim Lynch awaits another helping. Class record for pancake eating was six.

Intake Pipe In BUC Budget

Construction of the intake pipe at the city's water purification plant is planned for inclusion in the Belleville Utilities Commission capital works budget that will be submitted to city hall in the near future.

During a meeting Tuesday, manager Neil Britton told commissioners construction of the new intake pipe and surge tank in 1974 will cost an estimated $450,000.

Funds to cover costs will come from a sum of $600,000 the commission has built up over the years to decrease the size of an eventual debenture issue. Mr. Britton said the money had originally been slated for expansion of the filtration plant.

The intake pipe, of riveted steel construction, is about 50 years old and requires replacement.

Commissioners have repeatedly expressed concern that it might collapse if required to operate under continued pumping.

Included in the 1974 capital works budget is the extension of a 16-inch watermain from Bell Blvd. to Centre St. Estimated cost of the main is $225,000, a sum for which debentures will be called.

Yesterday, Mr. Britton said, "I thought we would be able to squeeze both of them into available funds without asking for debentures.

"If we really wanted to sharpen our pencil, we could do it. But I question the wisdom of squeezing the costs into available funds."

Though he could not foresee any major expenses for water works within the near future, he said he is not "enthused" with using all funds currently available.

"Then we would be forced into a debenture system of raising funds," he said.

"We're fairly clear with respect to electrical works. Basically, we need substations within the next five years. The load is growing with each year."

Over the next five years, Mr. Britton said an attempt will be made to cover the total $600,000 cost of subsidiary construction and extension of distribution systems from capital funds. In 1974, $120,00 is needed.

Mr. Britton will review the utilities's capital works budget individually with commissioners before it is submitted to city hall for inclusion in Belleville's five-year capital works budget.

City manager Albert Elliott is currently preparing the city budget to go before council for approval. Ontario Municipal Board approval of the total five-year budget is also required.

Neighbor Heard at Murder Trial

By PETER GOODSPEED
Staff Reporter

The murder trial of Barbara Bertha Smith of Trenton, went into its second day yesterday with evidence from three witnesses, one of whom was the woman who found the body of Cpl. James Robinson in Mrs. Smith's Front Street apartment July 16.

Mrs. Smith is charged with stabbing Cpl. Robinson to death last July 14 or 15.

The main witness to appear before the six-man six-woman jury yesterday was Nellie Barry, who lived in an apartment directly below that of Mrs. Smith.

Mrs. Barry told the court that while watching the late movie she fell asleep and was awakened around 1 a.m. by the barking of her dog. She said she heard someone enter the building and a little later heard voices arguing.

Mrs. Barry claimed she heard Mrs. Smith say, "Oh, Jim you're hurting me," and a little later, "You're not coming in, you're too drunk." She said she thought the voice came from outside the apartment building.

After falling asleep once again, Mrs. Barry said she was wakened once more by arguing that seemed to be coming from outside. The only voice she could make out clearly was that of Cpl. Robinson, who, Mrs. Barry said, was calling her (Mrs. Barry) by her first name.

Mrs. Barry said she went to her front veranda to see if she could see anyone. All she could see was Cpl. Robinson's car parked in the driveway.

Mrs. Barry then went back into her apartment and, after checking on her grandchildren, went to the bottom of the building's stairway to see if she could hear any voices coming from upstairs.

She then returned to her apartment and found Mrs. Smith sitting on the chesterfield.

Mrs. Barry told the court that Mrs. Smith said to her, "Nellie, you've got to help me. I've hurt Jim ... He went at me with a pillow. I backed up and threw something at him."

At Mrs. Smith's urging Mrs. Barry went up to the second floor apartment and found Cpl. Robinson lying on his back at the foot of the bed in the darkened bedroom.

Cpl. Robinson was clad only in his underwear shorts and was lying holding his left side with his left hand, Mrs. Barry said.

At first Mrs. Barry thought that Robinson was drunk and tried to lift him, by his armpits, onto the bed. However, when she moved him she saw the carving fall out of his left hand which was smeared with blood and noticed a small incision in his abdomen.

Mrs. Barry told the court that Robinson felt "cold and clammy" and stared at her with fixed eyes when she tried to place him on the bed. She thought Robinson was "dead or dying" she said and immediately phoned for an ambulance from Mrs. Smith's apartment.

When the ambulance arrived, Mrs. Barry showed the attendants to the bedroom and told them they would find Robinson at the foot of the bed.

Robinson was not there, however, but was found in a clothes closet in a "half sitting position," Mrs. Barry testified.

In cross examination, Mrs. Barry told the court that she had known Mrs. Smith all her life and helped raise her for two years when she was just three. She also said that she had known Robinson since Christmas of 1972, when she had met him with Mrs. Smith.

When asked about Robinson's character, Mrs. Barry said that he had been drinking heavily for three or four months prior to his death and that he was aggressive when drunk.

Mrs. Barry also said that Robinson was "too possessive" in matters concerning Mrs. Smith.

One the afternoon before his death, Mrs. Barry said, Robinson was drunk and had an argument with Mrs. Smith over a $20 bill that he had taken from her purse.

The last time Mrs. Barry had seen Mrs. Smith and Cpl. Robinson together was the afternoon of July 14 when the two of them had left her apartment to go to the Chesterpark Mess at CFB Trenton.

Other evidence tendered during the trial yesterday included the introduction of nine photographs and one large-scale diagram of Mrs. Smith's apartment.

The photographs, taken by the Trenton police department's identification officer, PC Walter Hepditch, showed various scenes of the apartment and included pictures that showed the presence of a blood stain at the foot of the bed and pieces of broken pottery, believed to have come from an ashtray, in the livingroom and the entrance to the bedroom.

A third-year — medical student, Murray Girotti, who was employed in the Emergency Room at Trenton Memorial Hospital on the night Cpl. Robinson was taken to the hospital also gave evidence as to the emergency procedures he took prior to deciding that Robinson was dead.

Mr. Girotti said that he felt Robinson had died around 1:40 a.m., July 15, and that on his arrival at hospital he appeared to be in a state of profound shock and was suffering from circulation failure.

A fourth witness, Dr. John Bonn of Trenton testified that Mrs. Smith attended upon Mrs. Smith at the Trenton Police Station around 4:10 a.m. and had taken a blood sample from her for use at the forensic sciences laboratory in Toronto.

Dr. Bonn said that at the time he saw Mrs. Smith he found her to be "reasonably alert and coherent but tense and nervous."

He also said that she may have been drinking prior to his seeing her but did not appear to be intoxicated.

The trial continues today at the County Courthouse on Pinnacle Street.

Fire Levels Farm House

TWEED (Special) — The large house of Gerald Morton on Highway 37 about two miles north of Tweed was destroyed by fire this morning.

Tweed volunteer firemen were called to the scene but were unable to contain the blaze. Reports from the scene about 8 a.m. indicated the house was all but consumed by the blaze.

Kingston will hold a music festival March 4 through 9 as sponsored by the Kiwanis Club, with the assistance of the Kingston Music Club. This is the second year for the festival that had 350 entries last year.

Richard Potter - A Happy Man

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

"I've learned patience — more than anything else."

From a politician it might appear a paltry admission.

But the politician is Richard Potter, musing on his ministry of an Ontario Cabinet posting that became a cockpit of controversy: Health service delivery.

And patience was not a notable part of the Potter public personality when the Belleville physician first solicited vocations and pitched into provincial politics as Conservative MPP for Quinte.

As a backbencher he often appeared to bristle with criticism of tardiness in public affairs — reactions often extending to his own ruling Conservative administrative. Impatience and Potter seemed as inseparable as surf and sea.

Nonetheless his hip-shooting style excited public attention. Eventually, it didn't impede personal political progress. In 1971 years he moved up to the front benches — as minister without portfolio. Then, in February 1972, he won the appointment that gave him most satisfaction. Restructuring of his province's health services had always been his avowed political goal. He became health minister.

The Potter appointment came at a turning point in the thrust of health programming.

Now policies — and their administration — had to be hammered out for delivery of health care services.

Inevitably, there brewed controversy, which broke intermittently into furious criticism from physicians, professions, press and public. He'd grasped the assignment with relish. Often it seemed he was holding the biggest rattle in provincial public affairs.

Tuesday, as he confirmed his new appointment as correctional services minister in Premier David Cabinet shuffle, Dr. Potter could be retrospective about the results of his handling of the health portfolio:

"There's no way I've solved all the problems — But, I think we've done pretty well.

"When you try to break new trails for such programs it's difficult dealing with the professions, the public, the civil service — all of whom have ingrained methods of doing things."

His main drive was toward developing alternate means of delivering health care. These included a major goal — extending health insurance coverage to nursing homes.

"We've gone a long way — and the machinery is working," said Dr. Potter.

Changing the climate of thinking about a "whole new approach to health services" also involved winning consideration of the federal government.

He ends his assignment in the health portfolio with the feeling "it's been worthwhile."

But it also was two years of high pressure that he says he's glad to shed. At one point he ran the ministry from a hospital bed, recuperating from painful spinal surgery.

The two years "was a pretty heavy strain," so much so, on "two or three occasions" he had considered requesting a change of portfolio, he says.

He has little comment about his new tasks. First he wants to visit the institutions under his new ministry and see what the situation is before making any comments.

But: "I'm hopeful that in this new ministry I won't have the same pressure on me."

For one thing, the political anvil work of the past two years has taken much him away from his home riding more than he liked.

While his local party executive have assisted with grassroots problems "I've had very little time to spend in my riding, not as much time as I wanted.

"I'm hopeful that in this new ministry I won't have the same pressure on me."

Hams Help With Rally

Hams radio operators in the Quinte area again provided communications for the Canadian Rally in the weekend of Feb. 9 and 10..

More than 100 cars entered the rally and 20 finished the course.

The Quinte Amateur Radio Club sent members with mobile units to checkpoints to relay information on car numbers to the control centre in Toronto. Howard Frallick was in charge of the l area control in this district.

The radio club meets the second Wednesday of every month at Loyalist College. Information on its activities can be obtained from Robert Brain at 962-7777.

Warmup Time

Although the accordion is almost as big as she is, Faith Cummings did well in the accordion solo section of the Rotary Music Festival. Ten-year-old Faith attends Harmony Public School and was warming up for her performance in the 10 years and under category held at Belleville Collegiate Institute yesterday. The festival continues until Thursday with workshops taking place Friday and the Festival of Stars at 2 p.m. Sunday at Centennial Secondary School.

Sing Along

Patients at Belleville General Hospital were entertained for nearly three-quarters of an hour last night by the Trenton barbershop chorus, The Trentones. The Trentones, a group of about fifty men who belong to the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barbershop Quartet Singing in America stopped by at the hospital's third level activity room yesterday before they competed in the Belleville Rotary Club's Music Festival.

Cabinet Shuffle Foils Cottagers

The Papineau Lake Cottagers' Association, in Toronto Tuesday to protest plans for development of a provincial park and camp ground in their area, got sidetracked by yesterday's provincial cabinet shuffle.

Association representatives had expected to meet with Hon. Leo Barker, minister of natural resources, but the minister was tied up with Premier Davis cabinet announcement.

Instead of meeting with Mr. Bernier, the delegation met with the deputy minister and made arrangements to meet later with the minister.

"We will be revising our brief in the light of new information and will meet with the minister during the third week of March," said Harold Carruthers of Belleville, past president of the cottagers association.

Association members are protesting the provincial park development, claiming that it could make for environmental problems and would reduce the market value of their cottage properties.

There are now between 250 and 300 cottages situated on the North Hastings lake.

On Monday, Felix Browne, reeve of McClure, Wicklow and Bangor, and two of his councillors met with the natural resources minister regarding the planned park development.

Mr. Browne and his council had earlier expressed concern over the proposed park development, but following Monday's meeting were reported by Hastings MPP Clarke T. Rollins to have become enthusiastic supporters of the project.

Mayor Seeks Information

Mayor Robin Jeffrey has requested the Belleville Utilities Commission to "halt park" coft figures involved in placing existing above-ground electrical services underground along Bridge St. West.

In making her request during a commission meeting Tuesday, she said she was investigating the matter raised earlier this month by a group of area residents.

Ready, Class . . . Sing

St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church was filled with the sounds of music yesterday. And a large part of it came from young voices making up school choirs competing in the Rotary Music Festival. John Milley, an instructor at Sir John A. Macdonald, leads a sixth grade class at his school into song. Although the school was edged out by a choir from George Vanier School, the effort was nevertheless worth it for the 37-member group.

Flames, Leafs Foiled Again

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Atlanta Flames and Toronto Maple Leafs were foiled again Tuesday night in their bid to make headway in their battles for the last place in the West and East divisions of the National Hockey League.

While Vancouver Canucks and New York Islanders played list-lessly to a 1-1 tie that had been arranging before a small Montreal Canadiens edged the Flames 6-5 in Atlanta and Detroit Red Wings rolled to a 7-3 decision.

"This was my second hat trick in the NHL," said Lemaire. "I got my other one about six years ago against Detroit. This one was more satisfying. One over the Leafs at Detroit.

Unbeknighted Claude Larose provided the Canadiens' first-power play goal-his 40th goal performance, the second of his NHL career. Pete Mahovlich scored twice and assisted on one of Larose's counters. John Gravelle netted a single marker for the Wings who won their third straight game. Redmond raised his goal output to 40, putting him seven games ahead of his pace last season when he scored a team-record 53.

Vancouver 1 at N.Y. Islanders 0

The Canucks and the Islanders played a close-checking, cautious playoff-style game. The tie kept the Islanders one point ahead of the Canucks in the struggle to stay out of last place in the NHL's East Division.

Denis Potvin of New York and Dennis Kearns of Vancouver exchanged first-period goals and the goaltending Smiths, Billy of the Islanders and Gary of the Canucks, kept the shooters at bay thereafter.

"I'm trying to get the team to play disciplined hockey like the Islanders, said Phil Maloney, Canuck' new coach.

"I'm very disappointed with the tie because this was our first chance since Dec. 1 to get out of the cellar.

Islanders' coach Al Arbour was cautiously because we didn't want to lose," he said.

Whalers, Toros in Showdown

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

New England Whalers and the Toronto Toros play tonight in a showdown for first place in the East Division of the World Hockey Association.

And not a moment too soon, either, because breathing down their necks are Quebec Nordiques, who crushed Winnipeg Jets 7-1 Tuesday.

The Nordiques, who are idle tonight, are firmly settled in third place, only a single point behind the Whalers and Toros, who are deadlocked in first with 92 points each.

The Whalers, who have not been out of first place since Dec. 20, will be making their first appearance at home since the announcement last week that the team will move to Hartford, Conn., at the end of the season.

The Toros have gained a point streak which included a 2-0 decision Sunday over New England.

The Whalers, coming off a tedious road trip on which they split six games, tonight will be without defenceman Paul Henley, sidelined with a knee injury; Tom Webster, out with a head concussion; and, perhaps, penalty-killer John Danby.

Danby suffered a whiplash injury in the game at Toronto Sunday.

But either WHA action Tuesday, Chicago Cougars defeated Los Angeles Sharks 4-3 and Houston Aeros edged Vancouver Blazers 3-2.

Winnipeg 1 at Quebec 7

The Nordiques struck four times in rapid succession idle in the first period with goals by Michel Parizeau at 14:11, Real Cloutier at 14:46, Gerald Pilote at 16:02 and Serge Bernier at 17:10. Bernier's goal was his 20th of the season.

Quebec goalie Richard Brodeur's shutout bid was snapped by veteran Ab McDonald with 15 seconds remaining in the second period. The loss left Winnipeg in third place in the West, four points behind Minnesota Fighting Saints.

Vancouver 3 at Houston 2

Third-period goals by Gordon Labossiere and Murray Hall enabled Houston to victory over Vancouver. Hall's goal was the winner for the Eastern Division leaders at 12:12. It was Houston's second consecutive victory in the game. The Blazers did prevent Gordie Howe, league-leading scorer, from earning a point.

Los Angeles 7 at Chicago 4

Duke Harris provided two goals to lead the Cougars to the win over the Sharks. Harris' first goal gave Cougars a 2-1 lead in the second period and his second provided a two-goal edge late in the third period.

Clippers, Bears Share First

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Baltimore Clippers had to settle for a share of first place in the American Hockey League South Division Tuesday night after being held to a 2-2 tie by the lowly Boston Braves.

The tie enabled the Clippers to move into a first-place tie with the idle Hershey Bears. The Clippers and Bears have each played 61 games.

In Tuesday's other AHL game, Jacksonville Barons defeated Fort Red Wings 4-3.

Tonight's schedule has the Clippers visiting Cincinnati Swords, Richmond Robins at Hershey and Springfield Kings at New Haven Nighthawks.

Markham Stops Soviet Midgets

Other Markham goal scorers were John Tonelli and Wes Murray.

Right-winger Vladmir Lapshin was the only scorer for the Soviets.

The Markham team, currently in the quarter-final playoffs in the Ontario Hockey Association Bantai Junior B league, is made up of midget-age (16-year-old) players.

The loss, before a Maple Leaf Gardens crowd estimated at 8,-000, was the first defeat suffered by the Soviets who posted a 4-1 record on their Canadian tour.

The Royals were strengthened by three midget-age players from the Toronto Marlboros and Tonelli, a Toronto-Eglinton winger Mark Napier and centre Ken Solomon from the Toronto Red Wings.

Defencemen Steve Harrison also was recruited from the Marlboros midget hockey League for the game.

Markham opened a 2-0 first-period lead and added the third margin to three goals before the close of the second period.

Lapshin broke Royal goaltender Reg Millen's shutout bid at 2:38 of the final period. Millen had replaced starter Jim Baxter at the 13:54 mark of the second period.

Hard-hitting and close checking by Markham accounted for the Soviets who posted a 4-1 record on their Canadian tour.

Playoff Positions Decided

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Central Junior Hockey League went right to the wire before deciding its playoff positions, finally sorting out the opponents Tuesday night.

Smiths Falls Bears, the league champions, have only one remaining game, tonight against the fifth-placed Warriors in Brockville, before the playoffs open Friday in Smiths Falls.

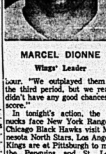
Their opposition in the best-of-seven semi-final will be fourthplaced Cornwall Rangers, who wound up tied with Pembroke Lumber Kings but missed third place by having won fewer games than the Kings.

Third-place Pembroke opens in Nepean against the second-place Raiders Saturday in their semi-final.

Tonight's game in Brockville was postponed Dec. 4 when ice there was unplayable.

In deciding the final positions Tuesday, Nepean defeated Gloucester 6-4 and sixth-placed Rockland Nationals nipped Pembroke 7-6 on Gary Young's goal at 18:25 of the third period.

Luc Charbonneau scored two other Rockland goals, Terry Feindel, Gaetan Lachapelle, Mike Peterson and Gilbert Lecavalier one each. Lecavalier's boosted his season's output to a record 73 goals. Feindel set the record at 69 goals last year with Hull Festivals.



Steve Croucher with two goals, Randy Burman, Terry Woermke, Peter Palibiski and Steve Waddington scored for Pembroke.

In Gloucester, Paul Millman and Mike Eaves lived up to their all-star status with two goals each. Eaves also gave him 54 for the season and a new rookie record. Pat Hahn had set the record last year with Pembroke at 50 goals. Bill Tanchak and Larry Skinner scored once each for the Raiders.

Mike McMike, Marc Aubry, Pierre Guindon and Steve Dawe scored for the Rangers.

Chicoutimi Coming On

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Those noises emanating from the depths of the Quebec Major Junior A Hockey League's East Division are being made by Chicoutimi Sagueneens.

The Sagueneens, spared the embarrassment of last place in the five-team division by Trois-Rivieres Draveurs, edged Sherbrooke Beavers 5-4 in overtime Tuesday night.

It was the third victory in a row for Detroit Red Wings.

Meanwhile, in the only other game, Trois-Rivieres lost 5-2 to Cornwall Royals who lead the West Division race.

Jean-Paul Leblanc, with an assist from Pierre Dube, scored the winner for the Sagueneens with 36 seconds gone in overtime.

Fernand Leblanc of Sherbrooke had tied the score 4-4 in the third period.

Michel Dubois and Jean Lafrance paced for Chicoutimi while Denis Martel and Dwane Bowen took the same for the Beavers in the first period.

Jean-Guy Dufour of Chicoutimi and Byers scored in the second to keep the game deadlocked.

Dube gave the Sagueneens a 5-4 lead in the third before Leblanc tied it.

The Draveurs, now six points behind the Sagueneens, had a 2-0 lead early in the first period on goals by Alain Daigle and Mario Rouillard.

But Gary MacGregor made it 2-1 before the period ended and, after a scoreless middle session, the Royals tied it 2-2.

Pierre Brassard then scored twice for the Royals and Don Jones added a single.

In games tonight, the Draveurs visit Quebec Remparts and Drummondville Rangers meet the Juniors at Montreal.

Bassett to Lalonde

World Football Won't Go Away

TORONTO (CP) — "The World Football League won't go away, even if there's no team in Toronto, and the Canadian Football League will still have to compete for players," says Jack Bassett.

The part-owner of the WFL's Toronto Northmen was replying to Marc Lalonde, federal minister of health and welfare, who expanded Tuesday on the anti-WFL stand he took in a speech last week in Ottawa.

Lalonde told a news conference he hopes to convince the owners of the Northmen to fold.

"If they don't then we'll have to take up our responsibilities as a government," the minister said.

Lalonde said he didn't believe the Northmen would start play in Toronto's new $25 million stadium with the Argonauts, operating in Canada because it poses a threat to the survival of the CFL.

"This is a free country," Bassett said in an interview after the news conference. "A guy can start a business. We haven't broken any laws and we're not going to.

"If he (Lalonde) is trying to influence people, you'd think he would phone us. He's not going to convince anyone by rushing the hackles of Torontonians.

"I'm not saying we're going to fight Lalonde. I haven't spoken to Mr. Lalonde. He does all his talking to service clubs and press conferences. If we meet I'll try to convince him we're not evil.

"We're in business," Bassett continued, adding that he has no plans to move the club to the United States or to sell it.

The Northmen announced Tuesday the signing of assistant coaches Jerry Fry and Jim Rountree, both former CFL coaches.

Rountree was assistant to Leo Cahill with Toronto Argonauts until Cahill was fired by him. Cahill has since joined the Northmen as general manager.

Rountree and Fry join John Hadden, coach of the Dayton, Ohio, who was appointed head coach last week.

Lalonde said he hopes to meet soon with Bassett and said he believes he can persuade him to pull out. If not, the minister said, the federal government has between five and 10 possible alternative actions that it can take.

"I don't want to specify any at this particular time because I hope the matter can be resolved without having to resort to the big stick and that people will see that it is in their best interest and the best interest of Canada that they comply without having to resort to legislation or regulations.

Lalonde said that if the Toronto market can support two pro football team, then the second one should be a CFL expansion franchise.

However, he said the government was not prepared to offer assistance in building a football stadium for any proposed expansion team.

Lalonde said the government has been pressured since 1972 to the intrusion by U.S.-based football leagues. He recalled that in 1972 the government refused to allow the CFL to expand to the United States and took a stand against possible expansion of the National Football League to Canada.

The minister said he took the stand against the WFL after two meetings—one last fall and another two weeks ago—with the CFL executives.

Lalonde said CFL commissioner Jake Gaudaur, former CFL president David Loh of Ottawa and newly-elected president Jim Hole of Edmonton met with the government leading to protection for the Canadian league against the WFL.

"They expressed their concern about the threat a second team in Toronto would create and the fact that this would seriously jeopardize the future of the Canadian Football League," Lalonde said.

CASA Reverses Stand

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — The Canadian Amateur Softball Association (CASA) has reversed a Jan. 12 ruling that declared the Ontario Fastball League (OFL) professional, it was announced Tuesday night.

In a statement released here by Dee Murphy, the association's first vice-president, CASA President Bob Van Impe of Saskatoon said the Western Canadian Major Fastball League (WCMFL) would retain its professional tag, although teams would be allowed to participate in amateur competition.

Van Impe's statement said a meeting of the CASA national executive in Ottawa Saturday found "there appeared to exist a reasonable doubt that OFL players were professional within the meaning of the CASA and its affiliate, the Ontario Amateur Softball Association," Van Impe's statement said.

Challenging the Forwards

Rob Duncan, Peterborough Lions goalie, was top performer in defeat during Tuesday night's playoff action. Rob wanders out to challenge Belleville forwards John Sergeant and Mark Coates (background). The goalie was fortunate on this play. The puck went off the goal post. Moments later, Coates had his fourth goal of the game.

Mark Coates Sets Pace

Cats in 4-game Sweep

By MIKE BRADSHAW
Sports Staff

PETERBOROUGH — Mark Coates and the Belleville Bobcats put it all together in the third period last night to oust the Peterborough Lions from Metro Junior B quarter-final play in four straight games.

Coates beat Lions' goalie, Rob Duncan, four times in Belleville's 5-3 victory.

"That guy Duncan's sure if hard to score on," commented Coates after his performance, "they aren't that good a hockey club, but he makes them look like they are."

The Bobcats had trouble scoring on Duncan all the way through the contest, particularly in the third period when the Cats really poured on the pressure.

"He's the only thing that made it look like a series at all," said coach Moe Hunter, "any other goalie and we probably would have had twice as many goals."

"He's good," added Coates, "but he gets a lot of help from his defence. It's almost impossible to stand in front of their net without having one of those guys all over you."

Three of the Belleville shots Duncan didn't stop rattled off the goal post; two of those in the third period.

Coates was the only Cat who stood in front of the Peterborough net and got away with it.

On all four of his goals he bought he took but a few seconds before shooting so as not to be checked by a Lion defender.

"We didn't skate as well as we should have," said coach Hunter, "the boys were willing to pick up, but we've got a ways to go before we take on Pickering."

Peterborough came out in the first period and skated all over the Cats.

"That bus trip up here takes a lot out of you," said Bobcat manager, Ruta Soule. "it can really slow you down in the first period."

The Lions played a tight checking, man-on-man game for the first 30 minutes, rushing in on Belleville goalie, Bruce Clark, when the opportunities arose.

"I'm Sid Bruce didn't let the bus ride affect him," said Coates, "or we really would have been in trouble."

Clark stopped the Lions on both breakaways and robbed Peterborough marksmen of goals on four other first period occasions.

"The defence was playing fairly well tonight," commented Clark, "but what really helped was the fact that a forward on each line was coming back and checking the second man in front of the net. Mark (Coates) was always backchecking."

Coates, John Sergeant and Mike Watt, one Bantam, came through with strong checking performances in the first and second periods to help the Belleville goalie whenever the Lions posed a scoring threat.

Belleville wins the best of seven quarter final series 4-0.

Tim Yohn, Dave Taylor and Dave Fleschi all played well in their defensive positions to aid Clark in his times of need.

Peterborough had a 2-1 lead at the end of the first period on a pair of tallies from Paul Johnston.

Coates replied for the Cats with his first of the night on a nice, give-and-go pass play with Norm Jones.

The two teams exchanged goals in the second period. Cord Hendren scored for the Lions and Coates for Belleville. Mark's goal was the result of another smooth passing job in a power play situation. Grant Goegan and Yohn received assists.

Belleville completely controlled the third period, but never beat Duncan until the 8:38 mark.

Dave Taylor started the ball rolling for the Cats when he tallied on a slapshot from the blue line to tie the game at two.

Mike Watt was removed from the 'Hustlers' in the final period for "defensive purposes" and replaced by Andy Ricketts.

Ricketts drew an assist on the winning goal. Coates' fourth of the night.

Mark took the puck from John Sergeant in the Lions corner, skated behind the Peterborough net, swooped past the side of the goal and hammered the puck past Duncan.

Three minutes later, at 17:56, Coates tallied his fourth when he banged in the rebound from Barney Holmes' shot. Holmes had slapped the puck off the goal post. Watt also got an assist on the final goal of the game.

Belleville outshot the Lions 37-31, while Peterborough took five penalties to the Cats three.

Friday night the Bobcats travel to Pickering for the first game in their best of seven semi-final series.

Four-goal man for the Bobcats, diminutive Mark Coates is set to slip the puck past Peterborough Lions' goal tender Rob Duncan as the Belleville star registers his third of the night. Bobcats moved to Metro Junior B semi-finals by putting Lions on the sidelines in four straight games.

Gas House Shooters Have an Off Night

Gas House Hockey League shooters were not up to their usual scoring tricks in Tuesday night's tripleheader at Memorial Arena. The six teams accounted for only 14 goals.

Doctors' Ron Green was the only goalie to post a shutout. He blanked The Intelligencer 4-0 in an abbreviated game.

Rosebush Fuels came up with their third win of the season, defeating Chuckwagon Foods 4-2. It was Chuckwagon's 12th loss.

In the other contest, the Yardmen upset Rollins Lumber, chalking up their fifth win of the campaign, 3-1.

The Intelligencer - Doctors match was called at 18:21 of the third period when players on both sides forgot hockey and turned to the rough stuff. The game's 15 penalties included a five-minute roughing sentence, a misconduct and a game misconduct.

Bill Van Zoten had three goals for Doctors. Paul Knutson added the other marker.

Leading Rosebush to its win was Bob Growden with two goals. Jim Drummond and Neil Goyer each counted once. Checking in with a pair of assists each were Harold Babcock and Ken Dean. Bob Chuckwagon goals were supplied by Jack Zylstra.

Yardmen got two goals from Chuck Kemp to turn back Rollins' Herb Lickford was the other marksman for the winners. Keith Dickey combined with Scott McLaren and Damon Richardson for the lone Rollins goal.

The Belleville Dixie Lee front line of centre Bobby Wolfe, and wingers Danny Hounslow and Charlie Doran is making up for lost time.

Put together as an attacking unit a few weeks ago, the threesome has responded with a rash of goals and assists.

Doran led the charge with two goals and two assists. Wolfe scored twice and drew one helper while Hounslow was right in step with a goal and two assists.

Rob Soule shot the other goal. Defenceman Jim Mulroney earned two assists with single helpers for Jamie Robertson, Tony Parks and Tim Jaques.

BCI Juniors Pull Together

Teamwork more often than not pays off with success in sports as in other endeavors.

Bill Mipler, coach of the junior boys' basketball team at Belleville Collegiate Institute credits a pull-together attitude for his team's fine showing this season.

When the squad won the annual Frontenac Secondary School Tournament in Kingston on the weekend, it was the fifth such title for the team this year. And the club's four wins in tourney play at Kingston brought its season record to a solid 38-7.

While coach miller admits readily that his squad is not the most accurate in the province when it comes to putting the ball up for points, he is quick to point out that a sturdy defence makes up for this shortcoming.

On the way to the top hoosrs at Kingston, the BCI team recorded wins over Queen Elizabeth Collegiate of Kingston, Cobourg West, host Frontenac Secondary School, and Adam Scott of Peterborough.

The Belleville school had things its own way on the march to the final against Adam Scott. But the Peterborough squad extended BCI before bowing 70-67 in double overtime.

It was BCI over Ukrotinezac, 49-34 in the semi-final which followed victories posted in matches with Queen Elizabeth (31-16) and the Cobourg representative (44-30).

Selects Tuning Up For Tourney

Tim Horton Selects, Belleville's Juvenile "B" hockey team made an excellent showing in an exhibition contest with the Triple A Western Tire team on the weekend.

The Tiremen scored a 4-3 win in the well-played match.

Dave England, Martin Thistle, Peter Crawford and Jeff Brown took care of the winners' scoring. Picking up assists were Crawford, Thistle, Glen Woodley, Steve Sully, McKay also helped himself to an assist while Ron Elmy and Don Cowan also earned a helper each.

The Selects are getting in as many games as they can as the squad tunes up for a March 17 Juvenile AA Tournament in Kingston.

Minor Bantams Top Brighton

BRIGHTON — (Special) — The Belleville McIntyre Maines Minor Bantams defeated Brighton Bantams 10-8 in a game played here last night.

Gary Frederick fired five goals for the winners, with Mike Bryant adding two. Others were Nelson Frederick, Andy Plane, and Danny Vance. Jim Skhake added three helpers, while Tim Coates added two.

BRISCOE WINS

PARIS (Reuter) — Benny Briscoe of Philadelphia knocked out Australian Tony Mundine in the fifth round of their scheduled, 12-round middleweight bout Monday.

Sport Briefs

MacGREGOR HURT

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Rangers said Tuesday that right wing Bruce MacGregor will be sidelined for the next two weeks with a strained right knee. MacGregor suffered the injury Friday in a National Hockey League game against California.

STOTTLEMYRE SIGNS

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Mel Stottlemyre moved closer to becoming the first $100,000 pitcher in New York Yankee history Tuesday when he signed a contract for the 1974 season. Stottlemyre agreed to terms—for a reported $97,000—after a 2½-hour meeting with club president Gabe Paul and said his goal was to have the kind of season that would make him a $100,000-a-year player in 1975.

ROOKIE INJURED

MESA, Ariz. (AP) — Rookie relief pitcher Leon Hooten, a right-hander with Tucson of the Pacific Coast League last season, sprained his right ankle in Oakland A's practice Tuesday. Hooten slipped and crashed into the batting cage while working out with the American League baseball team.

Perfect Record For Saskatchewan

VICTORIA (CP) — Saskatchewan is in undisputed possession of first place but skip Emily Farnham of Saskatoon is unsure of the position of the Prince Edward Island rink in the Canadian women's curling championship.

The strong Saskatchewan rink, attempting to keep the national title in the province for a sixth straight year, ran its streak to five straight Tuesday with a 10-4 triumph over the P.E.I. rink skipped by Marie Toole of Charlottown, and an 8-6 squeaker over stubborn Nova Scotia.

After defeating P.E.I., Miss Farnham said she "sorta likes Marie's position for the rest of the week."

The P.E.I. position became stronger after Mrs. Toole, supported by Cathy Dillon, Jennie Boomhower and Pauline Johnston, boosted her won-lost record to 4-1 with an easy 11-3 romp over British Columbia.

With four rounds remaining, including two today, Miss Farnham feels the Charlottetown foursome has the best closing draw of any of the top contenders. The P.E.I. champ face Quebec, winner of only one match, and winless New Brunswick today's two draws.

Mrs. Toole's rink finishes up Tuesday against Ontario and Manitoba. The Manitoba representatives skipped by Marilee Derbyshire of Portage La Prairie also have won only one game but Ontario might provide a real challenge for Mrs. Toole's rink.

Ontario, represented by Dawn Ventura's Ottawa rink, shares second place with P.E.I.

Miss Ventura's rink, the surprise of the round-robin tournament here, dropped from the unbeaten category Tuesday when upset 8-4 by New Brunswick's Sue Ann Bartlett.

In other fifth-round games, Alberta's Marilyn Johnston needed only six ends to defeat Manitoba 9-1 and Quebec edged New Brunswick 9-8.

Ontario's 7-6 extra-end victory over the Alberta rink from Edmonton was the surprise of the fourth round. Mrs. Johnston had been rated Saskatchewan's chief threat.

In other fourth-round games, B.C. squeezed past Newfoundland 8-5, Nova Scotia robbed New Brunswick 14-5 and Manitoba nipped Quebec 9-8.

In addition to the P.E.I.-Quebec game, other sixth-round pairings today are: New Brunswick and Newfoundland, Nova Scotia against B.C., Ontario and Manitoba and Alberta and Saskatchewan.

Key Man Leaving All in Family

LOS ANGELES (AP) — This is the week John Rich packs it in and leaves All in the Family.

Unless you watch the credits you may not be familiar with the name. But Rich, with his 18-hour days, is as responsible as anyone for the success of this top-rated CBS comedy series which is also seen on the CBC network.

He's produced or directed every show since its debut in January, 1970, most often doing both. In the beginning he directed 37 consecutive shows. He's also the host at the tapings, doing the audience warm-up.

Rich, 43, who says the job turned my hair gray and put 20 pounds on me," leaves Tandem Productions at the end of the week to set up his own production company.

One of his many functions on All in the Family was to keep its comedy topical, despite the fact that the shows are taped six weeks before airing.

"Topicality comes to you by reading the newspapers," he said. "It's not by any magic or manipulation. We're just careful of what's in the newspapers. We have our people talking about what America's talking about.

In a show taped last fall Archie Bunker got locked in the cellar when he went down to check his empty oil tank. Richie said: "The original concept was that Edith failed to call the oil people. His line was "to the Thank you, Edith.' In rehearsal I thought that was too much responsibility to put on Edith and changed it to 'Thank you, Archie.'"

The next day the Yom Kippur War broke out in the Middle East and by the time the show was on the air six weeks later the United States and a full-fledged energy crisis.

Last summer, when the Watergate hearings were under way, some people thought All in the Family was reshooting the reruns to include Watergate jokes. "Things were being said the winter before and we had included them," Rich said. "By summer everything was up to date."

Earlier this year they taped a show in which Archie rushes to the hospital after eating mushrooms he thinks are contaminated. The day of the taping stories began to break that the Food and Drug Admin tration was recalling cans of mushrooms. The story was still current when the show was aired.

"It's like going over Niagara Falls without a net," Rich said. "It would be easy to repeat one stunt every week—Archie's burned over or his dishwasher. You could do it, but I think the public would get bored."

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Comedian Redd Foxx remained in hospital Tuesday undergoing tests to determine whether he will be able to return to his starring role in the NBC television program, Sanford and Son.

FOXX, 51, entered the hospital during the weekend after suffering an apparent relapse of a nervous condition that has kept him off the top-rated comedy series for several weeks.

Foxx's spokesman said the results of the tests are expected to be known Thursday. After that it will be determined whether Foxx is well enough to resume work.

FIRST WATER SHOTS — Underwater photography began in 1892 when Frebchman Louis Boutan photographed a Mediterranean spider crab.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Thursday, Feb. 28

Aries (March 21-April 19) — Your re-not at your sharpest in business or commercial dealings today. If you aren't careful someone will take advantage of you.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) — It would be a mistake to assume something is a certainty when it's only half-finished. Don't brag about incomplete accomplishments.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) — Something is amiss in a relationship important to you. Nothing will be resolved if matters aren't discussed with candor.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) — Try to avoid situations today where money is exchanged with a friend. A misunderstanding is likely.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) — Something's going on around you that you're not fully aware of. It has a negative effect on your image. Watch your associations.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — Be careful not to take on more responsibilities than you're capable of handling, especially where work is concerned.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) — More caution than usual is required if you're handling or using something that belongs to another.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) — An important decision you'll make today will be based upon optimism instead of facts. It could prove costly.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) — Early in the day be particularly attentive to the way you're involved in. Avoid doing things too hastily.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — Normally you manage material affairs wisely and know how to get the most from what you spend. Normally, but not today.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) — Some trimming is required in your household expenses. Figure new ways to lighten up the budget.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) — Goals you have in mind need more clarification, else you won't achieve the desired results. Be specific in your aims.

Shoemaker Chest Cause Not Known

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My daughter, 4, was born with what my doctor calls a "shoemaker's chest." The area between the breasts is pushed in and her ribs are very prominent.

The doctor says surgery may be necessary when she is older if her lungs do not have enough room, but he does not recommend surgery for purely cosmetic reasons. I would like to know if this seems to be the correct advice.

I have been upset many times by people who happen to see her chest and they act as shocked and ask questions I can't answer.—Mrs. A.K.

The defect is also called funnel chest, or "pectus excavatum," meaning depressed chest.

When friends and relatives ask questions, give them only the various terms, tell them the cause is not known, but that the need for surgery is being watched. And there is no hurry.

The specific cause is, as I said, not known. One theory is that the position of the fetus in the womb has something to do with it. This has not been proved. The thought has been advanced that perhaps a tendon or other structure draws the breast plate inward, but this has not been proven either.

All we know is that it happens from time to time—just as some babies are born with "pigeon chest," which is the opposite. The degree of both conditions varies widely.

The advice to defer surgery was correct. The little girl has a lot of growing to do. If the depression is mild, it may be improved by pushups or other exercises that affect the chest wall. An intermediate depression may require surgery if, with a severe depression, there is insufficient room for the space needed for heart and lungs, then surgery can be performed. The decision for this can be determined by lateral x-rays of the chest. As to surgery for purely cosmetic reasons, All I can say is I would not undertake it without careful consultation first with a chest surgeon.

In my event, surgery usually is not performed until well after age 6. It can be done at any time up through puberty at which time the bony structures become fixed.

Meantime take care to keep the upper airways clear. Problems related to tonsils or adenoids should be treated or corrected.

There is some tendency of youngsters with pectus excavatum to slouch, perhaps in response to remarks made by friends or relatives, so be careful about posture. See that she learns to stand up straight with her shoulders back, rather than slouching which, of course, just makes the defect that much more obvious.

By Oswald and James Jacoby

The late Ely Culbertson was not only the first great contract authority, he was also one of the keenest psychologists on problems of play.

His jump to seven spades was based on the fact that he was playing the Culbertson four-trump 1s this convention a four notrump bid showed either three aces or two aces plus the king of a bid suit. Ely was looking at the ace and king of spades so he knew that his partner held the other three aces.

West, one of the top players of that day, led the seven of hearts as soon as the bidding was over.

Ely thought over the opening lead for 10 minutes and then called for dimy's queen of hearts. The finesse succeeded; Ely drew trumps; and claimed.

As it was being congratulated, Ely explained that he decided West was the sort of player who would try to give declarer an immediate problem and that the bidding had marked North with all the side aces.

If Ely had refused that finesse he would not have made the slam. Since the hand occurred in a total-point team match, it looked like a tremendous swing but it wasn't. At the other table North decided to bid seven notrump and East selected the jack of hearts as his opening lead. Declarer had no problems at all.

German Universities Besieged by Radicals

BONN (Reuter) — University professors in West Germany no longer live in an ivory tower. The temples of learning are more like beleaguered fortresses as the radical minority of left-wing students pursue their "march through the institutions."

Taking advantage of the wide degree of academic freedom traditional in German university life and the powerlessness of the authorities to expel them, the New Left is openly trying to dictate what will be taught and who will teach it.

The president of Frankfurt University, Erhard Kantzenbach, recently cancelled all lectures and teaching in the economics classes for first- and second-year students, confessing he was unable to control the extremists.

The president, a Social Democrat, was earlier forced to call in riot police to protect a professor of economics from Marxist students.

For weeks the radicals had prevented the professor from lecturing by making such a tumult that he could not be heard. They tore the microphone out of his hand, scattered his lecture papers in the air, threw stink bombs, shouted, screamed and kept up a rhythmic hand-clapping to drown his voice.

What makes the situation ironic is that the professor, Wolfram Engels, 40, is a descendant of Friedrich Engels, the man who, together with Karl Marx, laid the foundations of communism in the 19th century.

The present-day Engels holds different political and economic views from his famous ancestor. At last October's general elections he stood as a candidate for the conservative Christian Democratic party.

Ever since then he has been a marked man. Students waving banners inscribed "Drive Out Engels With Marx" have invaded his lectures. In a recent newspaper interview, the professor revealed that his wife Marianne, who used to be one of his students, telephoned several times a day to find out if he was still unharmed.

Since October he had been able to give only one lecture. His audience consisted of 13 students and 100 police while outside another 200 police with clubs, shields and crash barriers stood guard in a cordon around the building.

"It sends me into a cold fury to see how a few radicals can destroy the university," he said. "My teaching value is practically nil. Nonetheless I am not going to give up."

A second Frankfurt University professor, psychologist Fritz Sselbwold, who had been similarly treated by student-agitators for months, cancelled his lectures and said he was negotiating for a post at Mainz University.

Frankfurt University has a long liberal and left-wing tradition and is located in the "red" state of Hesse which has been ruled by the Social Democratic party since the Second World War. Hesse has a particularly tolerant university law.

The Federation for Freedom of Learning, formed by hundreds of professors and lecturers alarmed at the trend, issued a statement in condemning "radical terror acts" by students at Frankfurt and calling for changes in the university law so that students who use force to disturb the work of the university can be expelled.

Frankfurt is only one of the hotbeds of political agitation.

Heidelberg, Bonn, Munich, the Free University in West Berlin and many others all have their quota of radicals.

In Lower Saxony, which has five universities and educational institutes of the same level, the interior ministry said recently that the New Left—a term covering scores of Communist and Maoist organizations—dominates nearly all the student bodies although they form only a small minority of the total number of students.

Looking For Models

NEW YORK (AP) — You don't have to be a professional model to be used in advertisements and commercials. A national campaign of the Pepsi-Cola Co. during 1974 will consist of people in the street, on bicycles and in playgrounds. Crews travelled more than 100,000 miles throughout the United States to accomplish the task.

Men Excluded

HAMDEN Conn. (AP) — The Connecticut League of Women Voters says it won't go along with a national proposal to admit men as voting members to the 53-year-old organization. Mary Erlenger, state president of the league, said most members believe an exclusively female organization will be more effective but national leaders fear embarrassment if it supports the Equal Rights Amendment and denies membership to

Poet Writes First Novel

By DINA SUDOW

Alden Nowlan's poetry has earned him a Governor-General's Award, among other honors. He received University of Western Ontario President's Medal for the best short story of 1970.

Now his first novel, Various Persons Named Kevin O'Brien, has been published and an episode from the book has brought him another President's Medal.

The story traces the early life of Kevin O'Brien through a series of impressionistic vignettes in a village in Nova Scotia. Lockhartville has been passed by time and progress. . . . one of those villages . . . that are more isolated now than they were 50 years ago."

Its inhabitants mirror the village. "Men whose fathers crossed the continent to harvest wheat or sailed schooners to the West Indies now stay at home and wait for their welfare and family allowance cheques. . . ."

O'Brien, now a journalist in Western Canada, returns for a weekend to his home town. He is reluctant to return because he feels like a "prisoner of a past that he is unable either to accept or reject."

Throughout the weekend, he rerives his past in flashbacks: As a shy introspective youth participating in the brutal mock-warfare of his schoolmates and vomiting secretly afterward; day-to-day life with his family; leaving school to work in the town sawmill and his awkwardness making him the butt of his fellow workers; seduction by a farmer's wife and her eventual desertion.

The story is nowhere as bleak as its setting, for Mr. Nowlan has peopled his novel with a rich assortment of characters, described with warmth and humor.

There is a grandmother who greets death by singing bawdy ballads; the father, a failure himself but with answers to every situation; the Communist cook at the sawmill who wraps O'Brien's lunch in copies of the Daily Worker in an attempt to convert him to socialism.

Various Persons Named Kevin O'Brien: by Alden Nowlan; $6.75 Clarke Irwin.

Freeze On Oil Might Go On

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says the federal government is planning to extend the price freeze on petroleum products for an additional 90 days, until the end of June.

The newspaper also says that the government is believed to be planning to enlarge the number of products affected by the freeze to include lumber fuel, chemical feedstocks, aviation fuels and asphalts.

The newspaper says lubricants and chemical solvents sold in quantities of five gallons or less and marine and aviation fuel to sold to foreign shipping and airline companies would not be affected.

It quotes an official in the office of Energy Minister Donald Macdonald as saying the question of the price level of Western Canadian crude is still under discussion by federal and provincial officials.

However, the newspaper says, an oil company official who had been attending the talks indicated an extension of the price freeze already had been decided upon.

The federal government introduced the price freeze last September and Prime Minister Trudeau said it would last until the end of January. Since then it was extended until the end of March.

$4 Million Plaza Bancroft Proposal

BANCROFT — Plans were unveiled here Wednesday night for a proposed $4 million shopping centre.

D. B. Landers, executive vice-president, Vanier Leaseholds Ltd., Montreal, told a public meeting of his firm's intention to locate the 200,000-square-foot enclosed plaza on Highway 62.

Vanier Leaseholds is currently negotiating sale of the property just north of the downtown area, with owner Ted Kelusky, who operates a village meat-cutting business.

Plaza plans call for chain department store, a chain grocery store, both unnamed by Mr. Landers — and 45-50 independent merchants.

Mr. Landers said the plaza, which could open in fall 1975, would give space preference to new local businesses.

Village council members and downtown merchants were invited to the meeting.

Site of the proposed climate-controlled plaza is now zoned residential.

Aborigines Greet Queen With Demands for Land

CANBERRA (AP) — Several hundred aborigines drowned out the national anthem as the Queen arrived at Parliament House today. And later as she was opening Parliament, another aborigine held two officials at gunpoint four miles away.

The gunman was talked into surrendering and no one was hurt.

The Queen and Prince Philip displayed no displeasure over the aborigines' chanting of "Land rights now" drowned out God Save the Queen as the royal couple walked up the steps of Parliament House.

The Queen, in the Australia's Labor government speech from the throne, said the government will eliminate legislation discriminating against the aborigines and will pass legislation to grant land rights to aborigines in the Northern Territory. The aborigines want to be able to get title to land rather than being settled on reserves or in settlements where the government owns the land.

Invasion by Somalis Feared As Ethiopian Forces Mutiny

ADDIS ABABA(AP) — Emperor Haile Selassie named a new premier and granted broad military pay increases today in a move to end a troop revolt that has swept Ethiopia.

It appeared that Ethiopia's 40,000-man military forces got most of what they wanted following three days of non-violent rebellion against the government of Aklilu Haptewold which resigned Wednesday after four generals were unable to negotiate an end to the mutiny.

Instead, the rebels in Asmara, in northern Ethiopia, took three of the generals hostage and sent the fourth one back to Addis Ababa with new demands.

The government accused Somalia, Ethiopia's neighbor to the east and southeast, of massing troops along the border to inflame the situation. Military units from near Addis Ababa headed south and east, and official sources reported skirmishes between Ethiopian soldiers and Somalis who crossed into Ethiopia's oil-bearing Ogaden desert.

Somalia has long claimed more than a quarter of eastern Ethiopia, much of it desert inhabited by nomads of Somali tribes.

The army mutiny broke out on Tuesday in Asmara, the country's second largest city, among the 10,000-man 2nd Division, who constitute nearly one-fourth of the army. It spread Wednesday to the navy in Massawa, north of Asmara, and then to other army units in eastern Ethiopia and the air force.

Lewis Supports Throne Speech

OTTAWA (CP) — Although Prime Minister Trudeau still has to flesh out the legislative proposals outlined Wednesday in the throne speech opening the second session of the 29th Parliament, his minority Liberal government once more was assured of extended life by the New Democratic Party.

Although the Opposition rejected the anti-inflation proposals contained in the speech, NDP Leader David Lewis told a news conference his party would oppose any Conservative non-confidence motion based on the speech.

At a news conference following the formal ceremonies, Mr. Trudeau pledged to solve such problems as fast-rising oil and food costs without resorting to wage-price controls advocated by the Opposition.

He said the government will continue a selective approach, such as its subsidies to protect the poor against rising bread and milk prices while encouraging more production to slow inflationary pressures.

Discussion of a new-price national oil policy was continuing with oil-producing provinces. The price being sought would be higher than now-frozen domestic petroleum prices, but lower than the sharply increased world price that Eastern Canada pays for imports.

Other major subjects included in the speech were:

—Assistance to farmers and fishermen to purchase or modernize equipment and to encourage young farmers. Act to be established.

—An agricultural stabilization plan to encourage rational production decisions, an end to discriminatory freight rates and improved grain rail transport.

—Unemployment Insurance Act amendments as part of a comprehensive review of the programs and substantial assistance to native and rural housing programs.

—Establishment of a federal human rights commission to protect women from discriminatory practices and a national petroleum corporation as outlined in the last parliamentary session.

—Increased contributions and pensions under the Canada and Quebec pension plans.

Turnout of British Voters Is Good Despite Bitter Day

LONDON (CP) — A heavy turnout was reported today as British voters faced biting winds and snow flurries to have their say in the country's crisis general election.

Authorities reported long lines at some polling stations even before they opened and the trend appeared to be continuing.

Meanwhile, an opinion sampling conducted overnight showed the governing Conservatives with a three per-cent lead over Labor giving them a chance of a slim over-all majority in the 635-seat Commons even if the resurgent Liberals maintain their current strong showing. But it still indicated a close finish.

The Queen has interrupted her tour of Australia to return to London early Friday and greet the next prime minister.

As results begin to trickle in a couple of hours after the voting ends at 10 p.m. (5 p.m. EST) tonight, they will be radioed to her aircraft as it flies home.

The latest poll, published in The Evening Standard gives the Conservatives 39.7 per cent of the vote, Labor 36.7 and Liberals 21.2.

Other poll findings continued to place the Conservatives in the lead as well, with Labor running a close second and the Liberals in third place. But the margins are considered extremely close and most of the polls were wrong in the last election.

Whatever the outcome of the election, one thing appeared certain: The nation is in for a period of economic austerity.

The voting for the 635 seats in the House of Commons—increased from 630 by redistribution—began at 7 a.m. (2 a.m. EST). The polls close at 10 p.m. (5 p.m. EST).

Two factors made this the most unpredictable election since the Second World War. One was the redrawing of constituency boundaries; the other the upsurge in Liberal support.

The result was excited talk about a possible coalition government, or a minority government dependent on the Liberal's for staying in power.

Despite the opinion polls, experts were uncertain about the effect on which the increased Liberal support would be translated into parliamentary seats:

About 40 million voters will decide the issue. It is expected counting in all but 194 of the 635 constituencies will be completed before Friday morning. The tally will be completed later Friday.

The victorious party will have to contend with inflation and Britain's worst economic crisis since the Second World War.

Ulster's Election Violent

BELFAST (AP) — Bombing and shooting ushered in Britain's election day in Northern Ireland today, leaving at least six persons wounded.

British troops shot two young men during the night in a clash in the Falls Road area of West Belfast, a stronghold of the Irish Republican Army's Roman Catholic guerrillas.

A land mine wounded two soldiers, one critically, near the border with the Irish republic.

A bomb in Belfast injured a man and a girl and damaged the home of Tom Donnelly, a candidate in the election from the Catholic Social Democrat and Labor party. Donnelly and his family were unhurt.

Another bomb wrecked a Catholic school at Trillick, in County Tyrone.

Israel Drafts Demands

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israel is drafting up its proposals for a disengagement agreement with Syria that would call for the list of prisoners of war demanded from Damascus as a condition for withdrawal.

Premier Golda Meir said the proposals will be given to the United States State Secretary Henry Kissinger to take to Syria when he returns to Jerusalem Friday from Cairo.

But Israeli officials said she made clear to Kissinger that Israel is not going to meet Syria's demand for a commitment to withdraw eventually from all the Golan Heights territory captured from Syria in the 1967 Arab-Israeli war.

Officials said any disengagement line with Syria must run through the territory Israel captured in the October, 1973 war, although a final boundary negotiated as part of a general peace agreement may be drawn somewhere through the territory taken in 1967.

The officials said Israel will never give up all of the heights and let Syrian guns return to the the plateau from which they regularly shelled Israeli farms and fisheries.

Diplomats in Damascus said Kissinger must return with a draft agreement acceptable to the Syrians or the Geneva peace talks will not resume and the oil embargo against the U. S. will continue.

Rebel Police Take Over City

CORDOBA (AP) — Argentina's second largest city was all but paralyzed today as about 800 rebel police officials held the leftist provincial governor and vice-governor captive in a police communications centre.

Right-wing groups apparently supporting the police rebellion were seen carrying out armed searches of leftists' homes. Two powerful bombs exploded, partially destroying a newspaper printing press and a judge's home, police sources said.

Scattered gunfire was heard in various parts of Cordoba as leaders of a moderate Peronist group threatened a city-wide strike in support of the police.

About 250 federal police were sent from Buenos Aires, 430 miles to the southeast. Army troops were put on the alert at nearby barracks.

The Supreme Court murder trial of Barbara Bertha Smith, 28, of Trenton, entered its final phases yesterday with the Crown resting its case and Mrs. Smith taking the stand to testify on her own behalf.

Mrs. Smith is charged with the stabbing murder of Cpl. James Robinson, of Trenton, in her apartment July 11.

Nine Crown witnesses testified yesterday, with Pt. Lynn Begbie, of the Trenton Police, presenting the major piece of the Crown's evidence, a signed statement made by Mrs. Smith July 13, testifying to her involvement in Robinson's death.

PC Begbie told the court that he, along with Det. Sgt. S. W. Vickers had met Mrs. Smith at her apartment building on the night of Robinson's death and had accompanied her to the police station for questioning.

While in the detectives' office Sgt. Vickers asked Mrs. Smith for her name, age, address and occupation. The constable testified that she gave that information and then blurted out: "I had gone home. He started slapping me. I picked up a knife and stabbed him. I didn't mean it. I didn't mean it."

Sgt. Vickers immediately told Mrs. Smith to stop speaking and charged her with non-capital murder. He cautioned her and asked her if she wanted to make a statement.

Mrs. Smith agreed to make a statement and did so.

Part of the signed statement read as follows: "About 4 p.m. June 9 Robinson and I went down to the Legion Club at 61D. We stayed till about 8 p.m. I left alone and Jim stayed. I got a ride with a friend and went to the Quinte Hotel. About closing time I went home alone. When I got home, I looked on the door, he wouldn't let me in. Finally, he let me in and he started to hit me. I hit him with an ashtray, and he still wouldn't leave me alone. I got the knife from the drawer, and I was just trying to scare him. I didn't mean it. My God I didn't mean it. I didn't mean it. He was coming toward me and the knife went into his stomach and he fell on the floor. I ran downstairs to Nellie's (Mrs. Nellie Barry testified Tuesday) and Nellie phoned the ambulance after she went upstairs and looked at him. I went down to Nellie's apartment."

In the statement, Mrs. Smith also told police that the stabbing incident occurred in the bedroom.

After PC Begbie read the complete statement to Mrs. Smith she signed it, he testified.

Constable Beggie testified that while the statement was recorded, read and signed, Mrs. Smith appeared to be upset and was crying. Her tone of speech and manner were "quite normal" even though she spoke rapidly.

Mrs. Smith did not appear to be inhibited when she voluntarily marked in any way other than having a spot of dried blood on the back of her left hand, he said.

Sgt. Vickers' testimony corroborated that of PC Begbie. However, he testified that just before he charged Mrs. Smith with non-capital murder she said: "He wouldn't leave me alone and I stabbed him."

The last witness called by the Crown was Bessie Prigsle, Mrs. Smith's next-door neighbor.

Mrs. Prigsle told the jury that on the night of Robinson's death she had heard a man and a woman arguing in Mrs. Smith's apartment and had heard Mrs. Smith say: "Well why in hell couldn't you have left me alone, then?"

After she heard Mrs. Smith speak, Mrs. Prigsle said she heard a woman crying and heard her voice go off into the distance. She never heard the man's voice again and five minutes later saw the ambulance arrive outside the apartment building.

Counsel for the defence, Jo-Ann Devlin-Young, Q.C., told the jury in his opening remarks that the defence theory rested upon the contention that Robinson contributed to his own death by his actions toward Mrs. Smith in the past and on the night of his death.

The Crown and the defence were in agreement that Robinson died of a single stab wound inflicted by a knife held by Mrs. Smith, he said. However, the defence contended that Robinson contributed to his own death that Mrs. Smith acted out of self-defence and that Robinson's death was an accident.

In her testimony, Mrs. Smith told the jury that she had met Robinson two years ago at a Trenton hotel and that he had lived "off and on" with her during their relationship.

She also said they had fought on numerous occasions and she had tried to force him to leave her alone at times going so far as to call the police to evict him from her apartment.

"On one occasion, she said, Robinson had pushed her down stairs.

On the night of Robinson's death, Mrs. Smith said, she had driven to a special event from the Quinte Hotel to find that Robinson had locked her out.

When Robinson finally opened the door, he grabbed her; threw her onto the couch and slapped her. They fought on the couch, Mrs. Smith said she managed to push Robinson onto the floor and ran into the kitchen after throwing an ashtray at Robinson as he went into the bedroom.

In the kitchen, she grabbed a knife from the cutlery drawer and walked toward Robinson as he came after her, with a pillow in his hands.

When asked why she took the knife from the drawer Mrs. Smith replied: "I was wanting him to leave me alone. That's all. I just wanted to scare him. I didn't mean to hurt him."

Mrs. Smith said the jury that she couldn't remember if she threw the knife at the pillow in Robinson's head or if Robinson walked into it.

I don't remember even the knife going into him," she said. "We were just going toward each other in the front room. He staggered and I run. I didn't know I hurt him when I run."

Under cross examination by Crown Attorney, Mrs. Smith said that she could not account for the fact that the shoes and one of the earrings she had been wearing the night Robinson died were found in the bedroom.

Trial Take 4

In her testimony she maintained that she had never been in the bedroom, where Robinson was subsequently found, but had been in the living room and kitchen only.

When Robinson staggered and fell, he fell through the bedroom doorway, she said.

Throughout her testimony, Mrs. Smith repeated "I didn't mean to hurt him," and "I just wanted to scare him."

Hastings MP Comments On Speech from Throne

The "comprehensive review" of operations of the Canada Manpower Centre, Unemployment Insurance Commission promised in Wednesday's throne speech at the reopening of parliament has drawn criticism from Hastings riding member Jack Ellis.

"I will be only an internal whitewash and promises of a clean-up" stated Mr. Ellis, as he commented on the speech Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. Ellis has been urging a full-scale investigation of the UIC.

Mr. Ellis said the speech from the throne to some extent was simply a rehashing of the previous throne speech and dealt mainly with oil and agricultural problems with little effective control of inflation.

He said the blame for inflation was placed squarely on international pressures, the government's position being that wage and price controls would not be effective.

The new food policy announced with measures to guarantee "reasonable food prices" was said by Mr. Ellis to be something the government should have done a year ago instead of setting up a food prices review board headed by Mrs. Beryl Plumptre.

The government's proposal for increased availability of manpower to help boost food production was said to be a "complete turnaround" from previous policy when farmers were being paid for not growing certain crops. However, there was no indication of how this was to be accomplished.

And referring to the promise of one dollar price for all Canada, Mr. Ellis said again there was no indication in the throne speech as to how this was to be achieved.

The Hastings member admitted, however, that there were some provisions in the throne speech that would be worthwhile if followed through.

Loans to establish and modernize farms could be worthwhile.

Also withdrawal of the means test for payment of the Canada Pension to persons over 65 would be welcome.

Mr. Ellis noted that previously people between 65 and 70 were discouraged from taking part-time work following retirement because their earnings went to reduce the amount of their Canada Pension.

This despite the fact the retired person had become from the part-time work.

Mr. Ellis also welcomed the move of discrimination against women in regulations regarding the Canada Pension.

Townships Ask Study On Papineau Lake Park

While agreeing in principle to the idea of a provincial park and camping area within their areas, councillors for the municipalities of Hastings, Percy Clare, Wicklow and Bangor in North Hastings are still to be convinced that Papineau Lake is the proper location.

That is the opinion of municipal reeve Felix Browne, who with two of his councillors met with Natural Resources Minister Leo Bernier on Monday to discuss the provincial proposal for a park of approximately 1,000 acres at Papineau Lake.

Following the meeting, Hastings MPP Clarke T. Rollins said it had been agreed that the park proposal would go before the Hastings county Planning Board for review and consideration.

Before agreeing to the Papineau Lake site, Reeve Browne says his council is asking for a full fledged feasibility study by the county planning board to be followed by a recommendation.

The feasibility study to be asked by the northern township would cover all economic and environmental aspects of the proposed development.

Mr. Browne Wednesday said he wanted his people to know that council was waiting for a recommendation from the planning board.

"We support the idea of a provincial park in our area but there will be no decision until a recommendation is received from the planning board," he said.

The reeve said his council would "go along" with the recommendation from the planning board.

Today, county planning director Neil Carney stated he came to comment on the matter before the official request for a feasibility study was received.

He expected, however, that the planning board would want detailed information on what the province was planning for the park before any study could be commenced.

When the provincial park proposal for Papineau Lake was announced in January, Reeve Browne and the Papineau Lake Cottagers' Association voiced immediate objection.

Forget Map, Ask Someone

The provincial cabinet, isn't the only thing that's been shuffled around lately. Belleville has almost overnight been rearranged and points of interest relocated.

The Four Seasons, Hotel normally to the west of the downtown Bobs Lake area, is miles east of the city. The Ontario Food for the Deaf likewise has had its first move in its 100-year history.

It too has miles east east of the city instead of the few miles west it actually is.

The downtown area has relocated two miles from where one would expect to find it.

And the city's yacht club and docking facilities are now in the land-locked heavy traffic area of Highways 401 and 14.

Drastic urban renewal? City planning guru beserk? It's none of these things. But a visitor to the city might get lost following a map put out last week by the city's Chamber of Commerce and included in its regular community events brochure. Mayor Harry Hooper in Belleville.

The trouble came about from an error mixing up the key and its corresponding number on accompanying map.

And where are the chamber offices themselves located, should one want to pick up a copy of the bulletin? According to the map, the offices usually located downtown are now four miles to the, west on the highway to Toronto. And the chamber reports the brochures are disappearing at a fast rate.

Constable's Dismissal

Issue Settled Out of Court

From the Toronto Bureau
Of The Intelligencer

TORONTO A dispute between Trenton police constable Carman Schwager and the town's police commission has been settled out of court here.

An Ontario Police Association spokesmen made the announcement today.

Derwin Laiten told the Toronto bureau of the Intelligencer Schwager will return to work Monday.

A settlement was reached Wednesday he said, eliminating the need for a divisional court hearing here.

Laiten said he expects to receive official confirmation of the settlement from police commission counsel in the next few days.

"There's no problem right now", he said.

The controversy behind the dismissal of Mr. Schwager brought two days of arbitration last summer when it was decided the provincial arbitrator had no authority to adjudicate the case.

Mr. Schwager was released from the Trenton force when it was the opinion of the police commission that a knee problem hampered him from carrying out his duties as a police officer.

Commission chairman Hugh Campbell refused any comment earlier this week when first word came of the out-of-court settlement proceedings.

Mr. Schwager, not sure how complete the arrangements were at that time also declined making any comment only that he hoped to be back at work soon.

"I report back to work Monday morning," said Mr. Schwager this morning.

He said both sides were still negotiating certain matters and declined to comment on the question of pay lost over the past years.

Details should be ready by next week, he said.

Police Chief David Saunders said he had heard nothing about the settlement and did not know when Mr. Schwager would be coming back to work.

Power "Crisis" Debated

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — If someone tells you you should be turning off your lights to cushion the energy crisis — don't believe him.

Charles Hilton, chairman of Trenton's Public Utilities Commission arranged a Wednesday meeting with marketing personnel from Ontario Hydro to try and chart the extent of the problem and reasons behind steadily escalating costs of electrical energy.

Mainly concerned about the alleged crisis, he queried Hydro how it justified increasing rates 10 per cent a year but can still sell off surplus power to New York and Michigan.

Ontario, in its participation in the North American Power grid, sells 8.25 billion kilowatt hours of energy to the United States for $8.5 million a year.

Hydro spokesmen said there is no electrical energy shortage and rates are necessary for continual improvements to the power system.

The power Ontario sells New York and Michigan is surplus used as backup during maintenance of plants' shutdowns.

Of electrical power manufactured in the province, 62.8 per cent comes from water-turned turbines, 22 per cent from coal-fired plants and 16 per cent from nuclear stations.

The remainder comes from gas power or purchased from Quebec.

Explaining why Ontario sells to the States, K. D. Taylor, Hydro marketing manager, said "we are making use of power plants that we will have to use ourselves at a later date."

Because Ontario sometimes overdraws on its electrical supply, another spokesman said, "There'd have been times in the past decade we'd have been up the creek if we couldn't draw on south-of-the border surpluses."

Questioned about federal moves to turn out lights and turn down thermostats, Mr. Taylor did not subscribe to the urgings. He said "if you turn out the lights, you have to make up the difference somewhere when heat loss is considered."

Andras Writes On Premiums

BLOOMFIELD — An inquiry into employer-employee premiums has been clarified to Prince Edward school trustees in a letter from Honeywell-Minister Robert Andras.

Board members recently supported a resolution from Lambton County trustees opposing the increase in unemployment insurance premiums.

In his letter Mr. Andras said: "I am determined that the unemployed who are genuinely doing their best to get work will receive their rightful benefits and our utmost assistance in their efforts to find new jobs. But I am equally determined that those who are not entitled will not receive benefits."

They Need Social Awareness

Handicapped Grow Militant

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff reporter

PICTON — There is growing militancy among today's young handicapped persons who have refused to be content to speak and lobby for themselves.

John Butler, service club relations, Ontario Society for Cripple Children (OSCC) told Picton Rotarians that many well-educated young adults with physical handicaps have wants that must be made known.

For persons confined to wheelchairs it may be impossible to visit the local library, a theatre or a restaurant alone. Town halls and civic centre also may lack the wider doors and ramps required by the handicapped.

Mr. Butler said the Rotary Club could become involved in creating a public awareness of these limitations faced by the handicapped.

"It's up to you to take the lead in this. You have a responsibility to make the needs of the physically handicapped known," he said.

Employers should not regard the handicapped job applicant with revulsion or pity. He should be considered for his ability to do the job and his reliability.

"Why can't a properly trained girl in a wheel chair be a steno or a file clerk?" he asked.

Expanded Take 2

The speaker noted the annual Easter Seal campaign with its target amount of $1,800,000 will open March 14.

He said there are 13,000 physically handicapped children in Ontario, today this year the Ontario Society for Crippled Children will spend $3,715,000 on these youngsters. Approximately $225,000 of this is a provincial grant or tax money.

The grant is used to provide a drug and equipment program for children with Cystic Fibrosis.

Necessary drugs for one month for one child with this disease today costs his parents $225.

In 1964 the government assumed care of these youngsters to alleviate some of the funding hardships experienced by their parents.

Instead of setting up a costly ministry department for Cystic Fibrosis, the government approached the Ontario Society for Crippled Children and offered financial aid.

The money is administered in the society's terms of reference. Prime responsibility for the physically handicapped child rests with the parent. Secondary responsibility is government's the third the society's.

Children are provided with their medical needs as well as braces artificial, limbs home nursing programs and treatment facilities. There also is a camping program.

Conservation Areas Available to Pupils

BLOOMFIELD — The Prince Edward Region Conservation Authority this week met with school trustees the to promote student use of conservation sites.

Henry Leavens, PERCA Chairman attended the meeting with Kenneth Musclow to explain available resources.

It was noted that Macaulay Mountain conservation area features new educational centre and ski lodge.

At Massassaga there is a 60-acre bloc of undeveloped land with 1½ miles on limestone. There is a hardwood forest of oak with value as an ecological study.

Beaver Meadow another conservation site, is essentially a climax forest that will be left as a wilderness. There is minimum development of this site and overnight camping is unlikely to be permitted. Possibly, secondary students could use the area for backpacking expeditions.

North Marysburgh trustee Dorothea Carson asked if trees at this site were identified by plaques and was told that this was not done because of possible vandalism.

Students hiking through the conservation area can rely on guide books for identification of tree species.

Mr. Musclow said that a SWEEP (Students Working to Enhance the Environment) program is planned for Prince Edward this summer and will employ a crew equal in size to the group hired in 1973.

Two Escape Car Crash

STIRLING — Two people escaped injury when a car swerved off Hwy. 14 Bridge Road Wednesday and took out two guideposts.

Provincial police said the small automobile was driven by Daniel McLennan, 21, 164A Front St., Belleville, who had a passenger.

Damage to car was estimated at $700. The accident occurred about 1.5 miles west of here.

School Pop Vending Protested

BLOOMFIELD — Installation of soft drink vending machines in Prince Edward elementary schools has drawn criticism from a Picton parent who has requested the board to reconsider its decision.

Mrs. Ann Walmsley says, "In essence I do not agree with the sale of pop and hot chocolate in the public schools of this county."

She notes, in a letter to trustees, that board administrators D.A. Shortil has been quoted in the press as saying that the matter was thoroughly surveyed and investigated before a decision was made.

"As a parent I was never surveyed. And, it is my opinion that only an irresponsible attitude on the part of an adult would place a public school child in a situation to determine what is best for his own nutrition and health, in terms of his same survey."

Mrs. Walmsley says that she discussed Mr. Shortil's attitude that the beverages sold through vending machines are available to youngsters, in any event, through other outlets.

"With the escalating costs of food and the further need to spend money on food wisely, I feel it is the responsibility of the board of education to promote good health and to support the Dental Health Program, which is an excellent idea," she wrote.

Mr. Walmsley asks that trustees give the question of soft-drink vending machines in schools more serious consideration. She suggest soup and milk as better choices for students.

Concern for student use of these vending machines also was expressed to trustees this week in a letter from Amado woman, Mrs. Thomas Rupert.

Mrs. Rupert observes, with "the outrageously high cost of food today, many parents can't afford to give his children 15 cents a day for soda pop (caffine, sugar and worse)!" That same 15 cents should buy 15 gm. of protein food in milk."

James Plomer, trustee for South Marysburgh has moved that an adhoc committee be reactivated to discuss the question of vending machines' dental authorities. The motion thoroughly with medical and carried.

Dr. Potter's New Post

Premier Davis' anticipated cabinet shuffle has arrived, to be marked by the transfer, among others of Health Minister Richard Potter.

Dr. Potter, who becomes Minister of Correctional Services in place of Syl Apps, who is leaving politics, left a strong mark on the health field. His tenure saw more controversy stemming from his actions than from those of any other, not forgeting the troubles in the conflict of interest spheres of Dalton Bales and John Yaremko, and that working holiday fight to Cuba of A. B. R. Lawrence, all of whom are leaving the cabinet.

Dr. Potter is a physician who badly wanted the health post and got it. He alienated some and made most people under him stay on their toes at least. He accomplished this by his own personal industry and the force of his own personality — and he got things done, among them establishment of the Queen's Self-Care unit, a pilot project here in Belleville for the rest of the province, which has attracted a good deal of favorable comment.

The former Belleville mayor also had an eye to spending ceilings and the eradication of unnecessary duplication of hospital services — again, policies which caused mixed reactions around the province. And there was the controversy over the denturists. He urged new attitudes too among his fellow doctors.

Through it all, Dr. Potter remained a man of conviction and dedication .His new post in Correctional Services should offer the same kind of opportunities for innovative and imaginative programs in which Dr. Potter excels. If the minister did not please everyone in his initial try at Cabinet level, that does not have to be the measure of his success as a cabinet man which was, rather, that he injected new life into a system that was in danger of falling behind the times and got people thinking about progress in health matters — a discipline that holds so much significance in the lives of us all.

Lives Wasted

The 60-year-old father of one youth and an investigating police officer said it all, in the aftermath of that awesome tragedy in Oakville.

Said the policeman: "There's a good 200 years of life that will never be." And that was a conservative estimate.

And the father: "Really, they were OK kids. It was not a bad crowd . . . I feel sorry for most teenagers. They don't seem to know where they're going and how they're going to get there."

Most of the victims, he said, had been visitors at his home at some time. They would play the stereo and play checkers and "most important they were welcome . . ." which they apparently were not at some of the other homes.

There is a moral here, a lesson to be learned from this tragedy and from the poignant words of the two men close to the situation. It has to do with a lot of things — mainly perhaps it has to do with love, or the lack of it, a matter of belonging or drifting without purpose.

Winter's Charm

Driving around the countryside these days is to see the kind of classic winter landscape that artist Cornelius Krieghoff for one immortalized on canvas. And here and there are youngsters on skates, making the most of myriad patches of ice, in one of those trials that would have been the answer to Belleville prayers a little while back when the local carnival was largely thwarted by springtime conditions. Zwicky's Island, where recent floods gave way to ice, has been attracting skaters (with milder weather again expected this could change soon) and to visit a little farther afield, say North Bay beach near Consecon, is to see the water frozen into strange and wonderful shapes. Here too weekends brings out skaters where close to the beach the ice surface is smooth. We get the feeling that, with fitness in many people's minds, there is a greater readiness these days to get out in the open, on skates, skate, ski or sled, including cross-country style, rather than rely on motorized winter activity. In other words, a return to the old-fashioned way.

Politics Without Planning

Economic Inefficiency at Root of Failure of Marxism

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

How Marxist is a Marxist regime these days?

Comparing the activities of Marxist governments with the philosophy of Karl Marx as outlined at great length in Das Kapital, how close has any modern Marxist state come to his concepts?

In the broad sense of accepting the Marxian dialectic, that capital and labor the two exploitative elements of the capitalistic system must clash to form the new order, many Marxian systems have been true to the original philosophical position.

On the other hand Marx devotes no more than 12 lines in one of the world's largest books on political philosophy to economic planning. And yet when the new Marxist political order is created, state planning becomes the crux of the new system.

And state plans have been the stumbling block of every Marxist system beginning with the early NEPs (New Economic Plans) of the Soviet Union in the late 1920s and early 30s.

In Eastern European Marxist economies since 1945, in Cuba under Castro, in the brief but highly chaotic Marxist regime of the late Chilean president Salvador Allende, central planning always went awry.

The much-publicized Soviet "shift" of the early 1960s to the new economics of Prof. Liebermann was merely an acceptance of Western and capitalistic method that local economic entities must have their own decision-making and regional planning.

The Gosplan (State Plan), the base of Marxian economics, is a creature Marx never envisaged. By and large Das Kapital having envisaged the dialectic and the state it would produce left them to a future historical process.

It's that historical process, or rather the many accidents of history affecting the development of Marxist states, none of which Karl Marx lived to see, which has affected world Marxism.

The first mistake was the fulfilment of Marxian expectations not in the highly industrialized state where Marx said it could only flourish, but in the decaying gut of Imperial Russia.

Today we would call the declining Romanov empire a major under-developed country. The fluke of history which brought Lenin back to his homeland courtesy of an Imperial German High Command who wanted to use him to destroy czarism, would rebound on Germany herself.

Not only was Lenin immensely successful in Russia, but for a time after 1919, a fallen Germany seemed on the verge of turning to Bolshevism.

The historical fluke: if, for like, have pursued the spread of Marxism. Then, a brief 20 years ago, could possibly have visualized Cuban Marxists rubbing shoulders with Chinese and Vietnamese Marxists?

If they are flukes of history, the fates have dealt very well with the enforcers of Marxism. Better than one of every four human beings today live under Marxist fears that the addition of the central banks' liquid holdings to the newly unified market would result in a surplus supply.

The fears soon proved groundless. Since then, the population for gold on the London bullion market — which is the one (not Zurich or Paris) that sets the trend — has doubled.

From the perspective of history, there's nothing very surprising about this. Man has always turned to gold as the ultimate store of value and standard of reference.

Nothing else matches it. Only gold endures so brilliantly, so purely, so immutably, no matter what the temperature or other vagaries of nature.

Little wonder, then, that its ancient appeal should be felt so strongly at a time when people everywhere, from Addis Ababa to Zurich, see the cost of living soaring and the value of their savings shrinking.

They also see the inflationary spiral gaining momentum rather than diminishing, while their governments can only bury their heads in the sand and put the blame on "world conditions."

And as the economists proceeds that political leaders lack the will and the ability to halt the erosion of money, then those who fear (whether rightly or little or a lot) tend to behave in a way that only makes inflation worse.

One of the oldest London bullion dealers, Mocatta and Goldsmid Ltd., predicted at the turn of the year that the price of gold would reach $175 by mid-February, reach $175 in 1974—not realizing how early in the year its prediction would materialize.

"Such a price movement would be almost totally related to inflationary fears," the firm noted.

(On the Winnipeg Commodity Exchange, the price of gold futures contracts maturing in April, 1975, has already surpassed the $175 figure.)

Who is reaping the advantage of the high gold price?

Individual speculators and hoarders, of course. Also the important gold-mining industry centred in Northern Ontario and Quebec, and the gung-ho thousands of Canadians who invest in our producing gold miners.

But on a broader scale, the big gains go to the many gold-producing nations, South Africa and the Soviet Union—neither of which pursues the many international contests for political popularity.

A Wolf Legend Confirmed

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Re: Wolf Country Legend, The Intelligencer, Feb. 21, 1974

As a former C.P.R. employee I can recall this particular wreck very well.

It was not a circus train, as related by Mr. Hughes, but C.P.R. passenger train No. 19 running between Montreal and Toronto.

The accident, which will be remembered as one of Canada's worst rail disasters with loss of many lives, occurred on a Sunday afternoon in the spring of 1935. Passenger train No. 19 met part of a freight train head on at Dockrill siding which was located 4½ miles east of Lens station. I worked at this wreck for three days.

The passenger train's express car, which was demolished, contained several crates of Russian wolves enroute to a zoo. It is possible some escaped.

Mr. Hughes' theory could bear some merit as I have seen from time to time wolves of a larger variety than the coyote which inhabit this area.

Trenton Council's Meetings

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I commend the excellent piece "Council Scared of Public" by staff reporter Colin Bruce.

Mr. Bruce provided a real service in focusing attention on the desire of Trenton council to keep their committees of the whole sessions secret. There is no justification among politicians of all levels of government to keep the real work of council, legislative and federal government business from the public eye and ear.

One is left wondering what secrets the councillors of Trenton have to hide. Pretty soon, if they get their way, council meetings will have the rubber stamp appearance of Hastings township meetings.

Here in Belleville, there is never a session without a private session. Of course there are some things that should not be discussed in public but they are not so regular as to warrant the need for an established part of the proceedings.

I was impressed with Mr. Bruce quoting the old saying "If the public doesn't know anything it won't know enough to ask questions".

How very true. The mouth of the provincial Tory party, Darcy McKeough on a recent Front Page Patton program, made no bones about subscribing to a similar philosophy.

The best assurance the public has against this type of thing is a vigilant press.

Two-Tier Price System Ends

Inflationary Pressures Dictate Rush to Buy Gold

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

In the rapid escalation of gold prices, we are witnessing the workings of one of the most primal instincts in man.

Ever since last November, there has been a worldwide rush to buy bullion. There had been a brief dip in gold prices in December, coinciding with the end of the two-tier price system that had been established in March, 1968.

The two tiers, or price levels, consisted of the $35-an-ounce figure that the United States had clung to since 1934 and which was to be retained for dealings among central banks, and of a free price for, trades among industrial users, commercial banks, speculators and so on.

By late 1973, world inflationary pressures blew the two tiers apart. For a short, the free-market price of gold fell

Pensioners Seek Relief From Education Tax

Editor
The Intelligencer.

The purpose of this letter is to acquaint the citizens of Belleville with some facts to bolster our 'case' to the City Council for relief of the education tax for certain citizens of Belleville who are 65 years of age or over.

We are only asking for relief for pensioners whose income is $2,400 annually if single and $5,000 annually if married.

1. Toronto-Preston-Aurora-Hamilton-Peterborough provide assistance to senior citizens of $100 rebate of education tax.

2. Legislation has been introduced at Queen's Park authorizing all municipalities in Ontario to assist homeowners with repair and home maintenance expenses.

3. The education tax is a special burden to old age pensioners as they have low average income. Statistics Canada reports that families with the head of families over 65 years of age had incomes of less than $5,000 in 59.9 per cent of tax returns. It should be noted that inflation cuts deeply into their income. A person retiring with $5,000 income in 1961 now finds that purchase that brought 100 cents worth of goods in that year now buys $3100 worth in Jan. 1974. Taxes and high cost of living continue to worsen their lot. The cost of living is up by 58.4 per cent from 1961.

4. These senior citizens have paid the education tax for 40 to 50 years and have seen it double over the past few years.

5. The provincial government is now paying 60 per cent of the cost of education to the municipalities, with the federal government financing 50 per cent of post secondary education. There are over 1,800,000 pensioners in Canada today. These people had much less opportunity to save from their earnings as these were much lower than earnings today. There were no baby bonuses; scholarships, medicare, LIP, OFY or government grants for their children's education.

6. Wages in industry have increased 58 per cent since 1961 and by 83 per cent in construction.

7. All figures we use are taken from Statistics Canada sources.

8. All our staff except our secretary typist are unpaid volunteers. We have 18 directors unpaid plus 10 other volunteers working in homes, the lot of the pensioners in Belleville.

We hope this information will shed some light on our recent brief to the Belleville city council.

Committee Appointments

I see the city has announced it's appointees to the various boards and committees.

A newspaper advertisement asked for interested citizens who wished to be of service to their fellow man to apply.

Dying Boy Fought in Vain To Move Hospital Gas Mask

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — A 18-year-old Toronto boy who died after undergoing a two-hour, 15-minute operation for a leg wound in Sudbury General Hospital last June 28, struggled with a face mask doctors thought was supplying him with oxygen, a coroner's jury was told Wednesday.

Randolphe Freake died about 45 minutes after coming out of surgery performed by Dr. A. N. Mathur. He had sustained a severe cut to his right thigh while operating an electric saw.

The youth's death in the second of 23 the jury will study. It took six weeks to hear all the evidence pertaining to the death last summer of six-year-old Catherine Dominic of nearby Dowling.

Donna White, emergency department nurse, testified she gave the youth what she believed to oxygen through a face mask shortly after he was brought to the hospital, but he kept pulling the mask off in obvious irritation.

Dr. Robert Shine, the anesthetist during the operation, had testified earlier that the youth resisted when he used a face mask in the anesthetic induction procedure.

Dr. Mathur said he was bewildered by the death and "really didn't have an answer why the patient died."

He testified he "was happy with his condition" following the operation and concluded the youth was in no danger.

"You were not concerned for his life?" asked Crown Attorney John Takach.

"No, in the least," Dr. Mathur replied.

He said he went into the hall to inform the youth's brother of the situation and returned to the emergency room to find the youth had suffered a cardiac arrest.

Dr. Mathur said Dr. Shine had removed an indo-tracheal tube from the youth's throat while he was out in the hall and replaced it with a face mask.

He said it was "unusual" that the youth did not wake up during the operation. Dr. Shine had testified he discontinued the anesthetic for the last 45 minutes of the operation because of the patient's deep unconscious state.

Dr. Mathur said the unconscious state was "unexplainable" and that Dr. Shine had never informed him that the anesthetic had been discontinued.

"We were really happy, about the result of the procedure," he said. "The patient was doing well.

"The pathologist said he could not find any anatomical cause of death."

Previous testimony had indicated a possible misconnection of oxygen and nitrous oxide pipes in the hospital.

The inquest continues.

Profit, Not Health, Said System's Aim

TORONTO (CP) — Profit, not health, is the prime purpose of the health care system, Dr. Jerry Green of the Health Liberation Collective said Wednesday.

Dr. Green was speaking at an open meeting sponsored by the collective and the public affairs department of Toronto Arts which pitted two members of the collective against representatives of organized medicine, the drug industry and the Ontario government.

Dr. Bette Stephenson, president elect of the Canadian Medical Association, said co-operation rather than confrontation between the users and providers of health care is required.

Dr. Green also said the drug industry has shaped medicine, making it drug oriented. These drugs treat symptoms, so nutritional, psychological and environmental causes of illness are often ignored, he said.

"Western medicine is the drug-and-surgery oriented. We don't address ourselves to underlying cause which should be delved into, because that takes time and effort which most professional health workers are not willing to give."

GNP Gain in 73 Best in 7 Years

OTTAWA (CP) — The nation's economy showed its greatest gains in seven years in 1973, a rise of 7.1 per cent in terms of real growth after deduction for the steepest inflation in 22 years, Statistics Canada said Wednesday.

The report, coinciding with the government's speech from the throne, said "an extremely strong rise" in unfilled business orders showed the economy's expansion would have been even greater had it not been for shortages of equipment, some materials, skilled labor and manufacturing capacity.

Prime Minister Trudeau, commenting on the throne speech, said the government would encourage more expansion to ease shortages and lower prices.

"Gross National Product at market prices rose by $15.3 billion, or 14.8 per cent, to reach a level of $118.7 billion. This was the largest percentage gain registered since the early 1950s, when expansion was associated with rapidly rising prices during the Korean War period," Statistics Canada said in its report on 1973.

The gross national product is the sum of all private and government output.

Detroit Plans New Minicars

DETROIT (AP) — Big Four auto-makers are eyeing plans to build minicars—smaller and lighter than their present subcompacts—to compete with successful foreign imports.

Spokesmen for the companies are tight-lipped about industry prospects for building cars smaller than the present Ford Pinto, Chevrolet Vega and American Motors Gremlin.

But sources say top auto executives at General Motors, Ford, Chrysler and American Motors are giving such plans a close look in hopes of introducing minicars for the 1976 or 1977 model years.

Charming Swiss Village Is Ideal for Skiers

BREIL-BRIGELS, Switzerland (CP) — This charming village of 600 population is in the heart of one of the best Swiss ski and summer resort areas. And the snow stays late in the high Alps, usually right to the end of March.

Breil-Brigels is in the heart of The Grisons, largest and least-populated of the Swiss cantons (provinces) and crossed by some of the most famous Alpine passes.

Most of the inhabitants speak Romansh, derived from popular Latin. The language has died out in most places but is still one of the country's four official languages, together with German, French and Italian.

This village is such a Romansh stronghold that it is the only place where the Romansh name, Breil, precedes the German Brigels. Usually the double name is for official purposes only but Breil-Brigels sticks to the two.

Until recently Breil-Brigels was just a summer resort, well off the beaten track with natural mountain charm and hiking.

Two years ago the villagers decided to build a ski run on the slopes of 6,700-foot Crest Ault. A chair lift that can handle 600 persons an hour goes half-way up to a pleasant restaurant and a T-bar extends the rest of the way.

The rolling glade slopes offer safe skiing to anyone beyond the beginner stage and some 30 picturesque brown wooden shelters are scattered around. Other ski lifts in nearby villages provide a wide variety of slopes.

Breil-Brigels also invites a summer stop of a few days. It is a typical rural village with some homes combining a barn underneath or to the side.

A local blacksmith does wrought-iron work and most of the graves in the churchyard of Maria-Himmelfahrt bear his unique crosses. The church itself has 14th-century altars and a 16th-century Madonna.

In keeping with its rural traditions, the village permits no large buildings. The biggest hotel is the five-storey, family-owned Hotel Kistenpass. Its spring rates are about $16.60 each for a room without bath but with full pension.

The entire village has only 150 beds in hotels and guest homes and some 300 in private homes.

To get to Breil-Brigels from Zurich, the non-stop entry point from Montreal via Swissair or Air Canada, take a train to the canton capital of Chur, pronounced Ker, and another to Tavanasa. Then transfer to a yellow postal bus that carries both mail and passengers in comfort.

A unique feature for cancer buffs is the town shepherd who blows his horn at 7 a.m. to advise farmers to let out their sheep, which he leads to their mountain pasture. On their return in mid-afternoon they stop for a drink at the village fountain.

The farmers combine to pay him $5 a day and meals, each farmer providing him with a breakfast and dinner for-every two sheep. The post of town shepherd is considered an honor and the incumbent, in his 70s, is grooming a successor.

Rural Resort

Milk delivery from a can strapped on the milkman's back is part of the rural charm of Breil-Brigels in the heart of one of Switzerland's best ski and summer resort areas. It was only two years ago that the village built a ski run on the slopes of the 6,700-foot Crest Ault. (CP Photo)

Quarter Of Germans Lack Baths

BONN (Reuter) — Germans may have the reputation of being the world's cleanest people, but recent findings have stained their image.

One survey by a research institute in West Germany established that 22 per cent of the population had no bath, shower nor toilet in their homes and that nearly half a million German men wear their white shirts longer than a week.

Another survey found that half the population never brushed their teeth and four in every 100 had never been in a bathtub.

Nevertheless, 43 per cent of Germans themselves believe they are the cleanest people in the world.

West German expenditure on soap alone amounts to 235 million marks (about $75 million) annually. Every year, the country's 60 million citizens use 181 million tubes of toothpaste, 280 000 tons of washing detergent and 1.2 billion rolls of toilet paper.

Add to this the well-known Saturday picture of the German family man lovingly washing his car while his wife vigorously polishes the windows of their house, and you may understand a little better how myth of the clean German was born.

Researchers attribute this zest for cleanliness to a number of reasons particularly to a feeling that social prestige depends on a clean appearance.

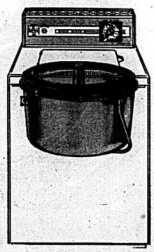
Seventy per cent of the population think that a person who is clean enjoys a better reputation. Sixty-nine per cent believe that cleanliness provides better chances with the opposite sex and 60 per cent expect to gain more friends by keeping their finger nails and ears clean.

Why then are Germans not as clean as they should be?

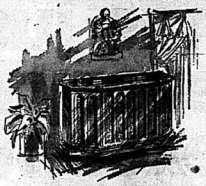
Scientists believe that people associate cleanliness only with outward appearance, an attitude which supposedly starts with the education of children. For how do you explain to a child the potential danger of infectious, but invisible bacilli?

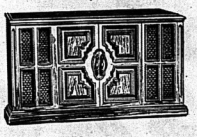
Of over 3,000 school children asked by a federal Centre for Health Education survey why they should wash themselves in the morning, 70 per cent correctly ticked off the answer "so that no infectious bacilli can grow on the skin from the dirt."

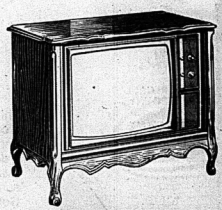
But 60 per cent also thought they should wash "so they don't smell." Forty per cent thought personal hygiene was necessary "so that one looks clean" and 28 per cent said "because parents want it that way."



One survey found that conditions in West German hospitals are far from ideal. Of 50 hospitals polled only one in two cleaned its mattresses more than once a year, and only one in three its pillows.







Still Stands

ALTANTA, Ga. (AP) — The state pardons and paroles board has refused to commute the 20-year-old college girl convicted of stealing a $5 chair. "It's up to the judge," said board chairman Owci McCall after the decision. "We assume Judge Lamar Knight had his reasons. We do not wish to question the judiciary."

Pentagon Bosses Said On Speed During Crisis

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Charles Schuster, a United States psychiatry professor, said Wednesday top Pentagon officials developed "full-blown psychoses" from amphetamine abuse during the Cuban missile crisis of 1962.

Dr. Schuster, pharmacology and psychiatry professor at the University of Chicago, told a drug-use symposium that number of senior military personnel took enough amphetamines during the four-day confrontation to develop the psychoses.

One of the common symptoms of amphetamine abuse is paranoia or delusion of persecution, he said.

In an interview later Dr. Schuster said U.S. Army medical authorities have become "more critically aware" of the hazards of the stimulant.

Alkaline-type Batteries Can Explode Warns Grey

OTTAWA (CP) — Alkaline-type batteries can be potentially explosive or leak corrosive chemicals if improperly installed, Consumer Affairs Minister Herb Gray warned Wednesday.

The danger occurs when batteries in products using four or more cells are installed in other than the proper order, Mr. Gray said in a news release.

Accused Man Tried Suicide

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — A woman who had been living with a man accused of killing a Kingston policeman told an Ontario Supreme Court jury Wednesday that the man, Tommy J. Blowing, 44 had tried to commit suicide four days before the shooting incident.

Blowing has pleaded not guilty to a charge of capital murder in connection with the death of Detective Bruce Cooper, 41.

The policeman died in hospital 26 days after the shooting incident last Sept. 17 at Blowing's home.

Mary Veley, mother of 12 children, told court that Blowing had been depressed over an illness, his inability to hold a job and a presumed lack of family affection.

"Four days before the shooting he took an overdose of pills," she told the jury.

Quinte Women

Marylea Burtt, Chairman

Chairman of the Belleville Transit Commission, Marylea Burtt has recently been reappointed for a three year term.

The first woman in Canada to be appointed to such a position, she has headed the commission for the past six years.

"Some aldermen were surprised that a women was interested in transportation instead of playgrounds and swimming pools, but none of them objected to my appointment," Mrs. Burtt recalls.

Because her three-day-a week job (as receptionist and bookkeeper for her husband, chiropractor Dr. Ross Burtt) is not a demanding one, she can devote more time and energy to her city hall post than could a man who had a full-time job.

Although she thinks women are thus suited for city positions, Mrs. Burtt has no patience with "women's lib".

"I believe in equality of opportunity," she says, "but I don't think women should be hired just because they're women.

"Women must prove themselves equal to the job."

Mrs. Burtt has demonstrated her own ability in a number of ways. She has negotiated union contracts during her term, has been instrumental in the planning of the new bus garage and offices, and has increased the number of buses and routes.

She has studied pollutions and traffic in the city, and has tried (still unsuccessfully) to interest more people in taking buses to work, in order to lower the annual deficit in her department.

Marylea Burtt likes the challenge of her job, and plans a very busy three years ahead. And after that?

"Maybe I'll get involved in education," she says.

Looking Ahead

OTTAWA (CP) — The Ottawa board of education will study a proposal to establish a school to demonstrate a course of study geared for the 1980s. Trustee Don Francis said programs should be set up to consider the vast changes to come in teaching methods or the school board would be in trouble 15 or 20 years from now.

Throne Speech Promise Welcome and Overdue

By CHERYL HAWKES

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition critics and spokesmen for women's groups reacted cautiously Wednesday to a government promise of legislation to end discrimination between the sexes.

The throne speech opening the new session of Parliament forecast creation of a federal human rights commission, a recommendation of the 1970 report of the royal commission on the status of women. Canada and Quebec pension plan changes were predicted plus removal of some discriminatory regulations governing federal employees.

Gordon Fairweather (PC—Fundy Royal) said: "I anticipated more than what was mentioned, but I still consider it a forward step and I'm grateful for what is mentioned."

Katie Cooke, chairman of the government's advisory council on the status of women called it "excellent . . . and bloody well about time."

"The commission had better have some legal clout, or there's no point in setting it up," she said.

Mr. Fairweather said the new human rights commission will need "a firmly entrenched Canadian Bill of Rights" to be effective. The bill has taken a number of legal beatings before the high courts.

Senate's Speaker May Soon Retire

OTTAWA (CP) — In a year as the Senate's first woman Speaker, the only interior decorating Muriel Fergusson has found time for is to line her offices with visitors and the things they bring with them.

However, the Speaker's chambers are moved into last January at the start of the 1973 parliamentary session have acquired a homey touch in look. Despite beamed ceilings, gleaming oak bookcases and lightly polished furniture, things look to be in a state of semi-chaos.

"Must get this library organized," she apologizes, as an aide searches for a missing volume of Senate Debates, "and that couch has to be moved out of here sometime—it really doesn't belong here."

It's obvious the 76-year-old widowed lawyer from Fredericton, N.B., has been too occupied with the responsibilities of her job—that of refereeing Senate debates and entertaining—to give much thought to how the pencils are lined up on her desk.

Works of several Canadian painters hang on the walls. Tables and bookshelves display some of her many gifts from people invited to her chambers.

The path to the Speaker's office is well-worn—more so, Senate observers agree, than it ever was during the terms of her predecessors.

"Why I've had members of the Commons tell me they've been here for years and had never even walked down to this end of the building," she tells you.

The petite, energetic, 71-year Senate veteran is said to have raised more dust—and also ruffled a few feathers—carrying out the duties of her office than anyone before her.

Tourists or school children visiting the Parliament buildings might be tempted to find Murl Smith, her secretary, beckoning them in for a tour and brief chat with the Speaker.

A parliamentary restaurant manager was quietly advised that "as long as I am Speaker" the waitresses he employs to serve at Senate Fergusson's parties should receive the same pay as the waiters.

Social functions often carry her through until after midnight on days that begin around 8:30 a.m. Still she finds time to attend meetings of many associations to which she belongs, crochets part of a dress for Mrs. Smith, arranges flowers in her chambers or dip into her collection of Canadian literature.

Close friends say she is obviously in her element meeting and bringing people together with her warm and likeable personality. She looks younger and healthier as Speaker, they say, than she did when serving on Senate committees, making trips to China, Hungary, Africa or Washington while participating in parliamentary delegations and speaking to groups across the country.

"All this entertaining isn't just for fun, though, you know. It's my job." She pauses, then adds with a characteristic giggle, "But it sure is fun."

She says she would like to end her Senate career as Speaker.

Legally, she may remain in the upper house the rest of her life, since she was appointed long before a 1965 law made retirement compulsory for senators at 75.

"But I voted that everyone should get 75% at least. I think it would be inconsistent if I stayed on."

If she decides to retire sometime after her 75th birthday next May 26, she will probably go back to Fredericton "to pick up where I slipped out."

Mrs. Fergusson once practised law in the New Brunswick capital and served for a time as a city councillor and deputy mayor. Her lawyer husband died in 1942.

"I haven't any definite plans, . . . I could go back into my law practice, or do community work. . . . There's a real need for experienced voluntary workers.

"I could do some more travelling, . . . The more you see, though, the more you realize there is to see."

She says she feels more confident when she presides over Senate proceedings than she did a year ago. The cue cards she once relied on often drop to her side now and the rare disorderly senator may find himself snapped back into his seat with a few firm words and a citation from the rule book by Madame Speaker.

She recalls those first few uncertain weeks when she was furiously studying the Senate rules.

"Looking back on it," she laughs, "I wonder how I ever had the nerve to get up there."

Ann Landers

He's Too Fat for Chairs, Dinner Hostess Worried

Dear Ann Landers: Please tell me what to do. I couldn't look anyone in the face and ask this question.

A very lovely couple moved into across the hall. I have had some nice, friendly coffee klatches with the woman and my husband has had a few short visits with her husband in the corridor and elevator. We would like to invite them to our next dinner party, but (I don't know how to say this delicately) the man is so fat I don't think our dining room chair could hold him.

Would it be insulting to ask her to please bring the chair he sits in at home? My husband says I simply can't do such a thing. Any other suggestions?—Blank Wall

Dear Blank: If your dining chairs are dainty, why not use two of your sturdiest living room chairs (even if they're upholstered) at the head and the foot of the dining table. Your husband could sit in one and the neighbor in the other. It would be less obvious to the guests that there was a "problem."

Dear Ann Landers: I am an epileptic, and I'm fed up with people being afraid to go any place with me for fear I will get an attack. Teen-age years are hard, even when you aren't an epileptic, so please, Ann, print my letter.

Most epileptics have seen a doctor and are taking medication that controls their attacks. I am not saying it is impossible for an epileptic on medication to have an attack, but it's unlikely.

If an attack should occur, tell people not to panic. It isn't necessary to call a doctor unless the attack lasts more than three minutes.

See that the victim is placed on the floor, flat, and make sure there are no objects nearby he can knock against. Put a wad of paper the size of a tennis ball between his jaws so he won't swallow his tongue. Open a window and make sure he has plenty of air. Wait for him to regain consciousness and let him rest awhile.

The most important thing to remember is that you are dealing with a person, not an animal.—Dennis the Epileptic

Dear Friend: Thank you for a letter that will surely educate a great many people.

Dear Ann Landers: It's obvious you don't have a son or you could never have printed such a stupid answer to "Daughter-in-law."

I'd like to respond to that self-righteous little witch, since you didn't do one thing to put her in her place.

Dear Daughter-in-Law: You seem to have a lot to say about what a rotten job I did raising my son. Why didn't you write "Dear Mom and Dad?" The boy did have a father, you know. Or do you think the stork brought him?

Girls like you make me sick. You have quite a load of anger for "lousy mothers." Do you honestly believe there are no "lousy children?"

Since you've made it clear that I did such a miserable job on your husband, please don't ask me to babysit with your children anymore. I'd hate to have a hand in ruining them, too.—You Know Who I Am

Dear You Know: You can't say- I didn't give you equal time. If your daughter-in-law recognizes herself, you haven't heard the last of this. And neither have I.

Reader Sees Facts as Filth

Paws.

Somehow
I feel a tenderness
Toward little furry paws.
There is great mystery
In Mother Nature's laws.

The paws of dogs
Who shake a hand with me.
The feet of kittens
Chasing tails in glee

The poem goes on to mention other tiny feet and the desire of the poetess to guard these little paws from things that harm". The writer, Elizabeth Harrison, was a kindergarten teacher, and Humane Education was very dear to her heart.

The poem is to be found in a book of her poems entitled, "From My Heart", 50 or 60 of them in all, with same charming sketches illustrating many of our furred and feathered friends. Write to me if you want to know how to obtain a copy, which is just $1. Proceeds go to Humane Education.

Dear Doris: I had all respect for your column and read it every night, before I read that piece about the 18-year-old girl who lived with a married man or kept company with him till she became pregnant. She should jump in the canal, where her dear mother would never know.

It's very sad to see the trash and filth our dear teenagers are exposed to. It's a miracle we have so many respectable ones.

I am greatly shocked with your attitude to publish such filth. I quit taking the paper after that.

Disgusted.

Dear Disgusted: Do you think your solution of having her jump in the canal is consistent with what you say in your second paragraph - - where you speak of "our dear teen-agers"? And what makes you think that the "dear mother" would never know?

If the mother is dear and the daughter is dear to the mother, I would be hopeful that there would be greater sympathy between them than you indicate in your scathing remarks. I don't like filth either, but I do ask for an ability in my readers to face facts and try to come to helpful and hopeful conclusions about them.

Flee Gold, Advice

Power Base Shift Seen

TORONTO (CP) — Recent spectacular increases in gold and commodity prices are danger signs and investors should sell their holdings in both, says Frederick H. Hatt, president of E. M. Saunders.

The rampant speculation and price increases in all commodities cannot be sustained, he says, adding that these markets are in "the final frenetic stage, suggesting a distinct possibility of a massive blow off."

This applies to all highly-leveraged assets, including real estate.

Mr. Hatt says he bases his advice on analysis of the stages of the current business cycle, what might be called in retrospect a "supercycle" when the magnitude of its effects on the financial community is measured.

There is no logical way to time the end of a supercycle, he says, but there is historical evidence to suggest that a dramatic shift in the international power base is always ing indicator.

This power base appears to change in a given order— first, militarily, then economically and finally, politically.

"The military and economic power base has changed; we are in the process of the final stages of the transfer of political power."

This dislocation leads to a number of economic calamities including the final outbreak of controlled inflation to hyperinflation, resulting in unsustainable losses on invested assets, panic selling of paper assets for gold and commodities and labor unrest.

The panic stage forces the change in the monetary and political power base.

Mr. Hatt says the end of a supercycle always comes when the power base changeover has occurred. The terminal stages of this type of cycle appear evident today.

Food, Fuel Once Again Power Key

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP) — The world's attention abruptly shifted last year back to the basics of food and fuel after two centuries in which industrialization was the key to power, the president of Mutual Life Assurance Co. of Canada said Wednesday.

The events of 1973, said John H. Panabaker, created fundamental shifts in the balance of power and "a whole new economic strategy for Canada is required by this radically-changed international order."

The free world's security blanket, the American dollar, failed in 1973, Mr. Panabaker said. As a result of the politics and economics of oil, the balance of world power had shifted significantly against the United States.

OUR BOARDING HOUSE with Major Hoople

Rail Transport Solution Sought

OTTAWA (CP) — One of the major government goals this year will be to tackle and clear away regional problems in rail transportation, say transport department officials.

Elaborating on the government throne speech, they said at a news briefing that programs to deal with complaints against freight rates and rail freight service are already under way.

The government is also wrapping up details of a national urban-transportation development corporation which would try to provide better transport systems for cities. This would include equipment and ways of co-ordinating transportation.

The throne speech opening the new parliamentary session said that steps will be taken to end discrimination in freight rates. A new ports policy would be announced bringing ports under a "comprehensive port structure" allowing considerable local management authority.

Other measures included urban transportation corporation and the long-delayed railway relocation legislation which would shift rail lines from downtown areas to city fringes.

The throne speech also promised to improve "grain rail transportation capabilities."

On freight rates, transport department officials said the government is at various stages of negotiation with the railways and different provincial governments on how to handle freight tariff problems.

Whelan Triumphs In Farm Policies

OTTAWA (CP) — For Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan, new farm and food policy initiatives outlined in Wednesday's throne speech mark the end of a long, carefully planned campaign.

After 15 months in the portfolio, the 48-year-old farmer from Amherstburg, Ont., has convinced the cabinet that a healthy farm industry depends on heavy production brought about by price and income protection for farmers.

The result may be higher prices to consumers, he has argued, but they would be steady prices unaffected by the traditional ups and downs of the farm economy.

Four years ago, the government agreed to a plan by Otto Lang, minister responsible for the wheat board, that would ease farmers out of a time of depressed prices by cutting wheat production.

Now it has taken an opposite tack, opting for a combination of import controls on food, stabilization funds, enlarged storage facilities and other instruments that can be used to isolate the country from erratic price changes brought about by alternating periods of want and abundance.

Mr. Whelan has been campaigning for such a system throughout his term as actively as he campaigned against such programs as the production-slashing wheat plan during his years as a backbench MP.

Consumers' Chief Pleased

TORONTO (CP) — Maryon Brechin, president of the Consumers' Association of Canada (CAC), said Wednesday federal government plans to increase aid to farmers have the potential for increasing food production and helping the consumer.

The CAC has been suggesting guaranteed loans to farmers for some years, she said, commenting on measures announced Tuesday in the throne speech.

Volkswagen introduces the perfect car for its time.

The perfect car for its time is a new Volkswagen called Dasher, a remarkable car that does everything you want a car to do these days.

For example, high power and good gas mileage normally don't go together. But Dasher has an astounding new, four-cylinder engine that does a hot 0-50 in 8.5 seconds and also gets 28 miles out of the gallon.*

If you're like most people you want a roomy car. And you want lots of trunk space. But you also don't want a big car. Well, Dasher solves the problem. Technical innovations — some of them will amaze you — have kept Dasher's machinery incredibly compact. So while the car isn't big, the part where the people go is big.

Best of all, wait till you see how Dasher handles. Dasher's drive wheels are up front, right under the engine. This gives you control you've never felt before in a conventional car. As well as traction on curves and in mud and snow and ice that's nothing less than spectacular.

Dasher also comes with a miraculous little thing called the Skidbreaker.

Miraculous, because the Skidbreaker causes the Dasher to move straight ahead as you brake, when one side of the car is riding on ice or snow, a normally ticklish proposition.

Dasher is designed to be reliable (who knows how better than we?). It needs maintenance only at 10,000 mile intervals. It's made easy to repair. It takes electronic analysis. And it's covered by one of the most advanced plans of them all, the VW Owner's Security Blanket.

The Volkswagen Dasher. Once again we've found out how to do it years ahead of anybody else.

A new kind of Volkswagen.

Tax Tips

Capital Gains Tax Explained

For further information call the District Taxation Office. If you live in a toll area, ask your long-distance operator for ZENITH 6-0000 and your call will be placed without charge.

Q. Regarding the tax on capital gains, what if property was acquired before January 1, 1972, at a cost of $2,000 and was worth only $1,000 on Valuation Day. If later this property was sold for $2,500, will the capital gain in this case be $500 or $1,500?

A. In this example the capital gain would be $500, the actual gain over the period of ownership, one half of which would be taxable.

Q. How would I be affected if I acquired an investment before January 1, 1972, at a cost of $800, the fair market value of the investment on Valuation Day is $400 and I sell the investment at a later date for $300. Do I have a capital loss of $500 or $100?

A. In this case you would have a capital loss of $100, the difference between the fair market value on Valuation Day and your actual selling price, one-half of which, or $50 would be deductible from income.

Q. What is the general rule as far as capital gains or losses are concerned? How are such gains or losses accounted for by a taxpayer?

A. The general rule is that one-half of capital gains are included in income and taxed at a person's normal rate of tax. When dealing with capital losses, one-half of such losses may be deducted against one-half of capital gains. In addition an individual taxpayer may also deduct up to $1,000 of capital losses against other income.

Q. What happens if I sell my home at a price greater than it cost me? Am I going to be taxed on any profit or gain that I make?

A. No If a taxpayer uses his home only as his principal residence, that home together with up to an acre of surrounding land, if the land contributes to the use and enjoyment of the home, will be exempt from capital gains tax.

Q. What do you mean by the term principal residence?

A. A principal residence will generally be considered as any type of structure owned by the taxpayer and ordinarily inhabited by him.

Q. What if I own a summer cottage? Could the cottage be considered my principal residence since I spend a considerable period of time there each year?

A. Yes, provided you have lived in the cottage at some time during the year. Where a taxpayer has more than one home, he must declare which of them is his principal residence.

Q. Along with a home, nearly everyone owns personal and household effects, an automobile, a boat, or many other similar items. When would I stand if I sold or disposed of this type of property? Would I be subject to the capital gains tax?

A. The term used to describe the items you refer to is personal-use property. Where a personal-use item does increase in value over time and is worth more than $1,000 such as a summer cottage for example, a capital gain from the sale of that item would be subject to tax.

Most personal-use property will not increase in value and will not, therefore, give rise to a capital gain when sold. On the other hand, capital losses will not be allowed should they arise from the sale or disposal of personal-use property.

Q. I understand there are special rules regarding the acquisition and sale of certain works of art. Could you explain these rules briefly?

A. Yes. Works of art such as prints, etchings, drawings, paintings and sculpture, jewellery, rare folios, manuscripts and books, stamps and coins are referred to as listed personal property. Gains on the disposition of these assets when sold for more than $1,000 are subject to the capital gains provision. Losses are only deductible from gains from this type of property.

Q. Do I have to have a recognized evaluator and pay him in order to meet the requirements for Valuation Day?

A. No. If the taxpayer can establish a fair market value as of December 31, 1971 himself, from documents that confirm his basis of valuation, that method will be acceptable to the Department. Insurance valuations, property tax assessments, details of sales of comparable property are sources that could be taken into consideration.

Q. I live in a trailer. Can this be classed as a principal residence?

A. Yes. Any type of structure that you own and ordinarily inhabit may qualify as a principal residence.

Pipeline Work Under Way

A parade of side-boom tractors lays 36-inch diameter pipe in the ditch as Trans Canada PipeLines begins its $100 million 1974 construction program near Ramore, in northern Ontario. Trans Canada is installing 154 miles of 36-inch diameter pipe to complete the looping of the original line in northern Ontario and the work has been started in the winter to facilitate construction through the muskeg.

N.W.T.

The 28-year-old northern Indian leader was seen describing to his Alberta counterpart how the territorial Indians went about winning the first part of their court case on Treaties 8 and 11.

Athabasca Oil Sands Once Sold for $1,604

FORT MCMURRAY, Alta. (CP) — Headmen Seapotaikinum Cree and Adam Boucher scrawled their Xs on a government treaty paper in a move reminiscent of the storied sale of Manhattan Island by the Indians for $24 worth of beads.

It was 273 years after the Dutch purchased Manhattan that representatives of 138 Crees and Chipewyans sold the Athabasca oil sands, one of the world's largest reserves of petroleum, for $1,604.

But Alberta government officials and Alberta Indians now are wondering whether the 1899 sale firmly transferred ownership to the government for good.

The government is carefully watching negotiations in the Northwest Territories and in the James Bay area of Quebec where the natives stand to collect millions in settlement money, said Al Adair, Alberta minister of northern development.

Indian claims on land in the Northwest Territories are particularly pertinent because of a tattered 75-year-old document known as Treaty 8.

It was this treaty, signed in 1899, and Treaty 11, negotiated 22 years later, which the treaty Indians of the North are challenging in their courtroom claim to 400,000 square miles of the Mackenzie Valley.

Treaty 8 is particularly interesting to the Alberta Indians because the territory involved includes the Athabasca oil sands of northeastern Alberta.

Last fall, Mr. Justice William Morrow of the Supreme Court of the Northwest Territories ruled that the North's 7,000 treaty Indians have an aboriginal interest in most of the Mackenzie Valley.

He wrote that the Indians had a right to file a caveat—a legal term for declaration of interest—on the property. The caveat would warn prospective developers that the natives have an interest in the area.

The caveat, however, was ordered held until all appeals in the precedent-setting case were exhausted.

But simply because the foundation of Treaty 8 was shaken in the N.W.T. does not necessarily mean it could withstand up in Alberta.

The Indians of the N.W.T. have always looked on their situation as unique.

One of the basic platforms of the N.W.T. Indians' case was the fact that none of the natives ever set up reserves with the land offered to them in the treaties. In fact, the northern Indians have not even gone so far as to take advantage of the treaties' offer of one square mile of land for each family of five.

The treaty Indians of the N.W.T. did collect their yearly allowance and their supplies of ammunition and fish nets but didn't take the land.

This was the basis of the northern Indians' claim that when the treaties were negotiated, the Indians understood them to be peace treaties, not documents surrendering their land to the Crown.

In Alberta, most Indian bands have set up reserves with the land they gained in the treaties.

But Alberta Indians are interested in seeing whether they have any claims to the vast oil sands.

Plan Provision Disputed

Realtors' Brief Claims Housing Inadequate

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

In a four-point brief submitted to the Quinte Planning Board Wednesday, local realtors claim Belleville's draft official plan places less emphasis on housing development in the city than it does on the provision for industrial use of land.

The brief, written by a Quinte Real Estate Board committee, was recently endorsed by the Quinte Home Builders Association.

It states in part, "Housing is one of the most basic and urgent needs of the people we serve today. We suggest that industry is well catered for by all levels of government, but it is imperative that our representatives strive for a better deal for residential development."

A disproportionate amount of land has been designated for industrial use in the city, the brief claims.

Undeveloped land designated residential will be allowed to increase by only 50 per cent as opposed to the draft plan's provision for doubling existing industrial acreage. More land should be made available for housing to offset the present "acute shortage", the brief urges.

Servicing of undeveloped areas, either by the city, when funds are available, or by a subdivider is found to delay the use of land for housing purposes and therefore drive housing prices upward.

The brief claims greater emphasis will likely be placed on providing services for industrial land.

"We know from past experience that servicing of residential areas tends to have a low priority in civic budgets."

It recommends an immediate start on a program to service residential land. This will result in quick improvement in supply and would help control the inflationary spiral in land and home costs.

Realtors also request that no "hard and fast rules" be set governing the type of housing to be provided in the city within the next 20 years. There is still a strong desire by people in the Quinte area to own their own homes, it claims.

Currently, the draft official plan states future housing stock should be 45 per cent rental accommodation and 55 per cent owned. In addition, 40 per cent of city housing should be in horizontal multiple dwellings or townhouses and the remainder in apartment buildings.

The brief suggests areas outside the city limits should also be taken into consideration when forecasting residential land use. Whether or not a formal annexation takes place, planning should recognize physical realities.

Specifically, realtors recommend the elimination of the designated industrial area east of Stanley St. and south of the Canadian National railway tracks. In its place is suggested higher density housing than the single family dwellings further south.

Finally, the brief strongly urges consideration be given to wishes of hillcrest area residents for high density housing in their area. Possible highrises would promote the redevelopment of Hillcrest.

Artist's Concept of New $500,000 Office

Mayor Kicks Off Office

Not only did Mayor Robin Jeffrey turn the first sod at the weekend site of a new $500,000 office building, but she let fly a shovelful of dirt to ceremonially start excavation at the corner of Dundas Street and Applewood Drive. Building contractor Maurice H. Rollins (from left), Royal Bank of Canada representative Douglas Noble, and owner-developer, Harwest Properties branch manager Jack Loewen, participated during the ceremonies. The Royal Bank branch, to be the third in Belleville, is a major tenant in the new three-storey building.

West End Site for Bank

Construction began this week on a new three-storey Dundas St. West office building valued just under $500,000 by Jack Loewen, branch manager of owner-developer Harwest Properties.

The Oshawa-based firm currently manages some 100 apartment suites in Belleville.

Wednesday, Mayor Robin Jeffrey officially welcomed Mr. Loewen to the city after turning the ceremonial first spadeful of dirt at the Dundas St. West and Applewood Drive site.

The offices, on a corner lot facing Applewood Dr., were designed by Belleville architect Paul Wiegand. The contract has been awarded to Maurice H. Rollins Construction Ltd..

With a facade of grooved concrete and smoked glass, the building contains a total of 18,000 square feet. The exterior of the upper storey will be covered with anodized steel cladding. The $500,000 price tag is inclusive of architect's fees and furnishings. The projected completion date is August.

Principal tenant of the new structure is the Royal Bank of Canada. Several other city groups, both commercial and professional, have expressed interest in locating offices in the new building, but Mr. Loewen left them unnogued.

Wes Kelley, Royal Bank information officer in Toronto, said the bank branch, to be the third in the city, will carry a full line of services.

Asked why the bank decided to locate in the western hall of Belleville Mr. Kelley said bank officials felt that there was a need in the area. Particularly, it was felt Belleville was expanding westward and the bank would be providing service to a growing population.

Mr. Loewen said the decision to locate on the present site was primarily prompted by two factors. It is on Highway 2, a main thoroughfare, and is near a residential area. The developer estimated 400-800 homes are located in the vicinity.

He added it was difficult to acquire land right in the city.

UCS Head Resigns

Claiming purely personal reasons, Wayne Wickson has tendered his resignation as board president, United Community Services directors. He has held the position since mid-1972.

He said his duties with the social welfare agency have not been leaving him time enough to pursue studies at Queen's University in Kingston.

The agency's board is expected to act upon Mr. Wickson's resignation at a meeting scheduled next week. As first vice-president, Virginia O'Rourke has temporarily assumed Mr. Wickson's duties.

Rezoning OK

Rezoning of Belleville General Hospital land slated for a proposed multi-level parking garage has been approved by the Subordinate Planning Advisory Committee and will be recommended to city council for acceptance at its meeting next week.

Wednesday, SPAC members agreed to rezoning a parcel of hospital property from park and industrial to residential.

Hospital board of governors remain undecided as to the size of the garage. Currently several different plans are being considered.

Jury Critical of Jails

A Hastings County grand jury has described jail cells at both the Trenton and Belleville police departments as "inadequate", "depressing" and bleak.

The six-man three-woman jury made their comments in a report tendered to Ontario Supreme Court Justice Campbell Grant yesterday at the County Court House on Pinnacle Street.

The jury toured both the Trenton and, Belleville police stations as well as the Centennial Manor in Bancroft and the Hastings County Court House as part of their jury duties Tuesday.

The report referred to the Trenton police station as "be ing one of the oldest police buildings in the County" and said that "cells for custody of arrested persons are inadequate in that they lack toilet facilities in each cell and it is very unfortunate that human beings be confined in this atmosphere, even though the average length of time an arrested person is held in these cells is less than 10 hours."

In discussing the technical facilities at the station, the jury said these were adequate for a town the size of Trenton, but recommended that additional space, such as a locker room and a larger lunch room, should be made available for the police staff.

Police cells at the Belleville police department were described as being "depressing", since "the bleakness of the cells combined with the hard cement beds would be very depressing to any person before held in custody."

The jury recommended that mattresses of some non-inflammable and easily washable material be provided for the use of persons being held in custody at the Belleville station.

The administrative offices in the Belleville station were described as of a "very high stature" and were said to be adequate for the size of the police force and the city.

In discussing the Centennial Manor, in Bancroft, the grand jury's report said that the building was maintained in excellent condition and the kitchen area was spotless even though it was dinner time when they inspected the institution.

The craft room was praised also for the quality of material on display and the interest it held for the manor's residents.

Recommendations tendered by the jury concerning the manor included a suggestion that washroom facilities be increased in each dormitory corridor; that the linoleum floors be replaced in the washrooms and that four-bed rooms be discontinued when other similar institutions be designed, since they prove to be a major problem as a result of personality clashes.

The Hastings County Courthouse was found to be in a good state of repair and of adequate size. The jury recommended that several chairs on the second floor be repaired or replaced. They also noted that there were no accommodations for lady barristers in the courthouse.

In thanking the grand jury for their report, Mr. Justice Grant said that it reflected the care and sincerity with which the jurors went about their duty and was evidence of the continued need for the grand jury system.

In recent years the provincial government has indicated that it would like to do away with grand juries throughout the province.

Board Approves Waterfront Plan

Site plans for the Lamplighter Realty Ltd. 72-unit waterfront apartment building will be forwarded to city council for acceptance at its next meeting.

This action follows a recommendation by the Subordinate Planning Advisory Committee after study site plans Wednesday. The plans and a scale model of the eight-storey development off South Front St. were presented to SPAC members by a delegation composed of company solicitor George Murray and Bel-Con Engineering Ltd. representatives.

The recommendation is subject to the approval of the city engineer as to requirements set down in the developer's agreement.

Last night, Mr. Murray urged committee members to give formal approval to the plans and recommend acceptance to council. He said minor changes had been made but all improved the building, valued over at $1 million.

Lamplighter plans to build a crescent - shaped luxury apartment complex on the west side of South Front St. at the water's edge. Docking facilities, above and below ground parking and a building recreational facilities are planned for the site formerly owned by Moira Schnarr Ltd.

Low VD Rate Accurate

Hastings and Prince Edward counties' venereal disease rate, one-third that of the rest of the province, accurately reflects the picture here.

Dr. R. C. Lenk, medical officer for the two counties' health unit said he obtains accurate reports on all cases of VD discovered in the counties. Physicians are required to report all new cases to the health unit so that contacts may be traced and treated. In addition, Dr. Lenk receives reports of all positive laboratory tests of residents of the counties.

Board member Elva David raised the question of accuracy of VD statistics, reading from a report that suggested doctors in some places don't report patients with VD.

Dr. Lenk said a VD clinic would not be feasible here, partly because of the low incidence of cases and partly because it would be difficult in a small city to preserve the anonymity of clinic patients.

"You would have to advertise the time and place of the clinic and everyone showing up at that time and place would be revealed," he said.

"No patients would come."

Dr. Lenk said the province has only two or three VD clinics, for the same reason that one would not be feasible here.

In response to a question from health board chairman Jean Smith, Dr. Lenk said a high school VD screening program would not be worth the time and expense. There are very few cases would be discovered that way, and the present reporting system is adequate.

Bulldozer Blade Kills Roblin Man

A Roblin man, Carl Richmond, 81, was killed Wednesday when the blade of a bulldozer under which he was working collapsed and pinned him to the ground.

Ontario Provincial Police from Belleville say that Richmond was trying to place some timbers under the tracks of a the bulldozer when a hydraulic line broke and the blade fell upon him.

The accident occurred around 2 p.m. at Chisolm Mills just north of Belleville off Highway 37.

Mr. Richmond was reportedly working with his bulldozer, trying to pile sawdust which had caught fire and was smoldering underground, when his machine became stuck and he tried to free it by placing timbers under the tracks.

As official at the Mills said today that small fires in the sawdust pile were a regular occurrence, but only one to fight them was by using the bulldozer to bury the smoldering ashes.

Thurlow volunteer firefighters answered a call at the scene to try to control the smoke while rescuers attempted to free Richmond from underneath the blade.

Mr. Richmond was pronounced dead at the scene by Dr. Gervase Dr. E. E. Hosein, of Roslin.

Health Unit Stays Put

Preventive medicine will continue business at its old stand, unit 2 at the east end plaza, for another five years.

The Hastings and Prince Edward counties health unit has decided against a move to the former Zellers Cavell Regional School of Nursing building at Belleville General Hospital. It will take a 5,000 square foot lease on its present location and will take over the store immediately to the south of No. 1. The enlarged premises are necessary for the dental health clinic now operating in conjunction with the health unit.

Monthly rental for the Belleville Plaza location is $750, amounting to $1.90 a square foot for 5,000 square feet. Rental at the hospital would have cost the health unit $4 a square foot for 4,500 square feet. In addition, the health unit will save the expense of moving.

Bylaw Tabled

Members of the Subordinate Planning Advisory Committee Wednesday again tabled the city's proposed sign bylaw for further review by Quinte Planning Board professional staff and city solicitor John Miller.

During last night's meeting in city chambers, members pointed out several clauses had to be clarified before SPAC could recommend acceptance to city council.

Northern Buys Florida Plant

Northern Electric's printed circuit board production facilities here will be augmented by the purchase of the assets of AVM, Florida Inc., by its American subsidiary, Northern Telecom Inc. of Nashville.

This was announced this week by John G. Lobb, president of Northern Electric Company limited.

AVM, Florida Inc., manufactures printed circuit boards and is a subsidiary of AVM Corporation of Jamestown, New York.

The 60,000-square-foot AVM plant in Magnolia Park, Florida has a work force of about 50 people and manufactures printed circuit boards for electronic apparatus.

The acquisition provides immediate capacity in the U.S. to augment printed circuit board production facilities at Montreal as well as Belleville.

Hastings Manor administrator Kenneth Yorke (left) shows Manor resident Ed Hogle the plaque he received from staff members at retirement party Wednesday. Mr. Yorke is stepping down after 26 years as home administrator. Looking on is Mrs. Yorke, who acted as home matron for 20 years before leaving about six years ago.

Hastings Manor Says Farewell to Friend

Staff members and residents at Hastings Manor today are bidding farewell to their long-time Manor administrator, who is leaving after 26 years on the job.

Kenneth Yorke, who since 1945 has had close relationship in his work with older people from the county and city, is retiring.

And Wednesday, manor residents and staff members gathered to tendered Mr. Yorke a retirement party and showered him with gifts in appreciation of his long-time service.

In addition to an engraved plaque from the staff, Mr. Yorke received a bouquet of flowers, a gift certificate for $183 to purchase seeds and supplies as well as a purse of money contributed by manor residents.

The manor auditorium was packed with standing room only for the brief presentation ceremonies concluded by hearty singing of Auld Lang Syne and For He's A Jolly Good Fellow.

In bidding official goodbye to his "staff members, Mr. Yorke said he gave to them the responsibility of caring for "my friends."

"You must be kind, "keep in mind that this is their home and that you are working for them."

He suggested that if they want to make a decision involving the manor's residents that they ask themselves if this was the way they would do with their own father and mother.

"That has been my philosophy over the years and I recommend it to you" he said.

To the residents, Mr. Yorke said his farewell message goodbyes and best wishes were the greatest satisfaction.

Although Mr. Yorke's continuous association with the county dates back to 1948, his experience actually goes back a further 18 years to 1930-when as a young man he worked for two years at the county home.

He then took up farming in Sidney township and it was this experience that showed to good advantage in county home farm operations showing a profit until the lands were sold some years ago.

Mr. Yorke became county home administrator when it was still situated just east of the Glen Ellis Hotel on the Kingston Road. The home moved to present quarters in 1951.

At that time there were only 60 residents at the home and a staff of five. Today there are 120 residents in the Manor and a staff of 135.

During the present administrator, however, no bed care was offered residents who, if ill, continued to stay in bed than a day or so, went to the hospital.

"The whole attitude toward the older people has changed," Mr. Yorke says.

Until only a few years ago administration of the manor was a husband and wife team with Kenneth's wife, Muriel, was matron at the home for 20 years and now works as part time administrator at the Belcrest Villa nursing home.

Taking over the responsibility of administrator at the Manor will be Glen Whitehead who has been Mr. Yorke's assistant for the past six years.

Doug Favell – First Chance

It's Win and Play For Leaf Goalies

TORONTO (CP) — Doug Favell, Eddie Johnston and Dunc Wilson won't take regular turns playing goal for Toronto Maple Leafs any longer.

Leaf coach Red Kelly says he's developed he'll drop his three-goalkender rotation system and stick with one goalie as he long as he keeps winning for the National Hocker League club.

To begin with, that one goalie will be Favell, who will start tonight against New York Islanders in Uniondale, N.Y.

The Leafs have been the only club in the league to use a regular three-man rotation this season, although several other clubs do carry three goalies.

Favell and Johnston said Wednesday their play was affected adversely by the irregular work the rotation system gave them.

"I guess all three of us are used to playing at least 50 games," said Favell. "I like three games in two nights. The second night I always feel better."

"The rotation system meant time for brooding after bad games and time for cockiness after a good game to get a hot streak going," said Johnston, who played in Tuesday's 7-3 loss to Detroit Red Wings.

The end of the rotation system leaves one problem unsolved for the Leafs, who have a seven-point edge over Buffalo Sabres in the fight for fourth place and a playoff berth in the East Division.

They'll only be allowed to protect two goalies when the WHL holds its expansion draft of Chicago Black Hawks and Washington Capitals in June.

In the interim, they'll have to trade either Johnston, Wilson or Favell or risk losing one of them.

Whalers Alone In First Place

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Boston-born John Cunniff helped New England Whalers kick Toronto Toros out of first place in the World Hockey Association East Division Wednesday night.

The former Boston College star scored twice as the Whalers tripped the Toros 5-3 in Boston to break a tie between the two clubs for top spot in the division.

Wednesday's goals gave the left-winger five in four games since the Whalers called him up from Jacksonville Barons of the American Hockey League.

The win put New England in the driver's seat in the first-place fight. They lead the Toros by two points but have three more games to play than Toronto.

Toronto had grabbed a share of first place with a 3-0 win over the Whalers Sunday night in Toronto.

Tonight the Toros have to deal with Winnipeg Jets at Ottawa while the Whalers visit New Jersey Knights.

Cunniff broke a 2-2 tie with a 25-foot shot off a rebound late in the second period, then scored New England's fifth goal in the third period. Pat Hickey scored twice for the Toros.

In Wednesday's other game, Minnesota Fighting Saints edged Los Angeles Sharks 5-4.

Saints 5 Sharks 4

The Saints won their fifth in a row and strengthened their hold on second place in the WHA West Division, opening six-point lead over the third-place Jets.

Mike Walton picked up two assists for the Saints and moved past Toronto's Wayne Carleton into second place in the scoring race.

He has 82 points and Carleton 81. Gordie Howe, the leader, has scored 94 points for Houston Aeros.

"It doesn't matter how old he is," said Walton of Howe, "I know he is playing better than he did with Detroit a few years back when his wrist was bothering him."

"I don't know if he can keep up the pace or not, but I think the next week will tell. We've got four games in five days and I would be nice to string together some points."

Wayne Connelly scored twice for the Saints but it was Ted Hampson who scored the winner on a third-period play engineered by Walton and Bob MacMillan.

Besides the Winnipeg-Toronto and New England-New Jersey games, tonight's schedule has Cleveland Crusaders visiting Minnesota, Vancouver at Quebec Nordiques and Houston at Chicago Cougars.

One-game Suspension And Fine for Mavety

LOS ANGELES (CP) — Larry Mavety of Chicago Cougars may have started something in the World Hockey Association—penalty suspensions.

The 30-year-old defenceman was suspended for one game and his sentence Wednesday and escaped with a $200 fine and a reprimand from Commissioner Clarence Campbell.

Mavety made the appeal after he was suspended Monday by Dennis Murphy, president of the WHA, following an incident in a game last Sunday at Winnipeg.

Mavety was given a misconduct after receiving a cross-checking penalty, then a 10-minute misconduct and a game misconduct for waving his stick at an official, struck referee Bob Kidall with his stick.

However, a WHA committee, which met in St. Paul, Minn., said Wednesday that, outside of evidence showed "that Mavety's striking of referee Bob Kidall was not deliberate, an involuntary accidental act without premeditation."

The committee consisted of WHA trustees Ben Hatskin of Winnipeg Jets and Irv Kaplan of Houston Aeros, along with League executive director James Brownlt.

Fred O'Donnell Signs Multi-year Contract

BOSTON (AP) — New England Whalers of the World Hockey Association announced Wednesday the signing of forward Fred O'Donnell, who bailed at being traded by Boston Bruins to Vancouver Canucks of the National Hockey League.

Whalers general manager Jack Kelley said O'Donnell, 24, had been signed to a multi-year contract effective Oct. 1. Kelly said negotiations for the signing before O'Donnell was traded by the Bruins to Vancouver earlier this month.

"I'm very happy to be joining the Whalers," O'Donnell told a news conference.

"They have shown me a first-class organization. Just the over-all situation, my personal life and such, made the decision for me."

"Fred will be very much a part of the Whalers' future," Kelley said. "I hope this is the beginning of a number of players presently playing in the NHL who we hope will be playing for us in the future."

The Whalers announced last week they plan to move from Boston to Hartford, Conn., where a new civic centre is under construction. The team will play home playoff games in Springfield, Mass., this year and start the 1974-75 season there until the Hartford arena is completed.

O'Donnell was traded by the Bruins to the Canucks with centre Chris Oddleifson, who reported in Vancouver. The Bruins acquired high-scoring forward Bobby Schmautz in the deal.

O'Donnell had five goals and five assists in limited action in 22 games with the Bruins this season.

Phil Maloney, coach and general manager of the Canucks, said in New York Tuesday that he was contemplating legal action against O'Donnell over his refusal to report to Vancouver.

Hawks Finally Catch Flyers

By NEIL CAMPBELL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

After spending more than two months chasing Philadelphia Flyers, Chicago Black Hawks have a piece of first place again in the National Hockey League West Division.

Helped by a routinely brilliant performance by goalie Tony Esposito, the Hawks stopped Minnesota North Stars 3-1 to move into a first-place tie with the Flyers.

Dennis Hull – 2 for Hawks

Esposito spotted the Stars a goal by Bill Goldsworthy in the second minutes of the game, then shut them out for the rest of the night.

He finished with 26 saves.

It was a return to form for Esposito, who allowed four Pittsburgh goals in a loss Sunday night when a win would have put the Hawks into a first-place tie.

The February pursuit of the Flyers had been a hot one for the Hawks until Sunday. They had 10 wins and a tie to show for the 11 starts in the month before taging that game.

Esposito only once allowed more than one goal in that 11-game stretch, giving up eight goals in all and chalking up five shutouts.

Once Esposito had Wednesday's game under control, Dennis Hull took care of the offence.

He set up a first-period goal by Lynn Powis to tie the game, scored himself in the first period to put Chicago in front and then scored an insurance goal, his 32th of the year, in the third period.

In Wednesday's other games, New York Rangers downed Vancouver Canucks 4-2, Pittsburgh Penguins beat Los Angeles Kings 4-1 and California Golden Seals tied St. Louis Blues 2-2.

Rangers 4 Canucks 2

Vancouver coach Phil Maloney was unhappy—for the first two of his team, Richard Lemieux and Bobby Lalonde, and later with referee Andy Van Hellemond.

Lemieux and Lalonde weren't dressed for the game because they failed to show up for a light workout on the ice day. Maloney called it "a disciplinary action."

Maloney, who said he recommended Van Hellemond to the NHL when he saw him in an amateur game a few years ago, questioned his calls and "also questioned his ancestry" after some of the calls Wednesday.

The Canucks claimed that two Ranger goals were scored with New York players illegally parked in the crease. Vancouver goalie Gary Smith also squawked so loudly about one of them he was given a misconduct.

Jean Ratelle scored the first stone.

Cornerstone 2 Up

Reid's Stalled By Belvedere

Reid's Dairy was stopped in its bid to move into the Quinte Hockey League finals last night, but Cornerstone Builders moved one step closer. Reid's fell to Belvedere Hotel, 5-1, to narrow Dairymen's lead in the best of seven series to three games to two, with Cornerstone going two games up, 3-1, via a 2-1 win over Stinson Construction.

Paul Mackham scored the winning goal for Belvedere at the 4:17 mark of the third period of the game, which saw 19 minor penalties called to the losers. Larry Marshall scored the other Belvedere goal, as well as adding an assist to Mackham's winner.

Paul Zakos fired the only marker for Reid's, with 49 seconds remaining in the second period. Lionel Boily drew the helpers.

In a game which saw only five penalties called, four to the winning Cornerstone team, Phil Meeks and Doug Jodoin scored one goal each, with Soden recording the shutout. Meeks added an assist, while Al Mott aided in both scoring plays.

Play returns next week to the regular night (Thursday) once again, with Reid's taking on Belvedere in the first game at 8:15, while Stinsons and Cornerstone go at it in the second game at 9:45.

Basketball Playoffs Under Way

Loyalist College will be the scene of three Bay of Quinte High School basketball games today as the squads meet to decide who will represent the area in Central Ontario Secondary Schools Association AA play.

In the midget game at 4:30 p.m., Belleville Collegiate Institute hooks up with Moira Secondary School. The juniors take to the court at 6 o'clock with Trenton High School facing Bayside Secondary School. BCI will meet Trenton in the senior match.

Moira defeated Centre Hastings Secondary School, Wednesday night to qualify for today's midget match-up, while BCI was getting by Centennial Secondary School.

In junior, Bayside put Napanee Secondary School on the sidelines and Trenton got by Moira.

BCI and Trenton scored wins over Centennial and Moira, respectively, to qualify in the senior section.

The absence of Quinte Secondary School from last night's senior action was due to the fact that the team has moved up to AAA for OSSA competition this year. The team captured all-Ontario AA honors last year.

Quinte will be involved in Bay of Quinte group playoffs at Bayside, Saturday.

Playoff Dates

The Belleville Bobcats start their best of seven semi-final series with Pickering Panthers tomorrow night in Pickering, however the other semi-final series will probably not get under way until early next week.

Pickering downed St. Mike's in their series, four games to one, to advance against the Cats, who put out Peterborough in four straight games.

Bramalea has disposed of Oshawa Legionnaires in the same unhospitable fashion, four straight games, however Markham is having a little more trouble with Wexford Warriors than some expected.

That series is all tied up at two games each, with the fifth game of the series going tonight in Markham. The sixth game is in Wexford Friday night, with a seventh game, if necessary, to be back in Markham Sunday night.

Dates for the second, third and fourth game in the Bobcats-Panthers series have been released. Game 2 goes at Belleville Memorial Arena, Sunday night and the teams return to Pickering for the third game, Tuesday. Game 4 is set for Belleville, Friday, March 8.

Four Colleges Play For Eastern Honors

Basketball at the college level has taken on new meaning for the players this season. And it's all because of a change in format for the playoffs.

In other years, the top two teams in each division took part in Ontario Colleges Athletic Association (OCAA) championship play. This time around, there's something new.

Each of the four divisions will hold its own championship playoff to determine the finalists who will play for the OCAA title at Windsor's St. Clair College, March 8-9.

Loyalist College will host the eastern division championship with four teams battling it out for the right to make the trip to Windsor.

The basketball action gets under way Friday at 2:30 p.m. when St. Lawrence of Kingston hooks up with Sir Sandford Fleming of Lindsay. At 4:30, host Loyalist Lancers take on Algonquin of Ottawa.

Consolation and champion ship finals are scheduled for Saturday. The losers of Friday's games meet at 11:30 with the two winners matched off for the title immediately following the consolation contest.

Because of the new format, fourth place and the final berth in the eastern section's playoff was undecided until the last meeting between Sir Sanford Fleming, Lindsay and Peterborough teams Lindsay got the nod.

Loyalist finished in third place while Kingston's St. Lawrence was first and Algonquin, second.

Before Friday's opening game, Arthur McFarlane, director of student services at Loyalist, will preside at opening ceremonies. The pre-game ceremony is set for 1:45 p.m.

Rob Stinson, athletics supervisor for Loyalist and Lancer basketball coach, is coaching the event.

He is confident his squad has the ability to knock off Algonquin, in spite of the fact the Ottawa team came out with a marked advantage in height.

"We've got to clear the boards and force their players to shoot from outside in order to get the job done," offers Stinson.

"It will take a strong defence and the players must go all out for the full game, but we can pull it off," observes the coach.

In three meetings during the regular season, Algonquin came up with a perfect record against the Lancers. The Loyalist squad held Algonquin to a four-point margin of victory, playing at home but indicates, it was a different story. Lancers bowed by point spreads of 19 and 26 in two visits to Algonquin.

Swords Back In First Place

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

All it took was a few wins—eight of them—last 10 games—and a little help from Richmond Robins to put Cincinnati Swords back on top of the American Hockey League's South Division.

The Swords, defending AHL playoff champions, defeated Virginia Red Wings 4-1 Wednesday night to move one point ahead of Baltimore Clippers and Hershey Bears.

The Robins kept the Bears in second place by taking a 7-5 decision.

In the other game, Springfield Kings defeated New Haven Nighthawks 7-5.

Cincinnati now has 75 points, while Baltimore and Hershey each has 74.

Swords 4 Wings 1

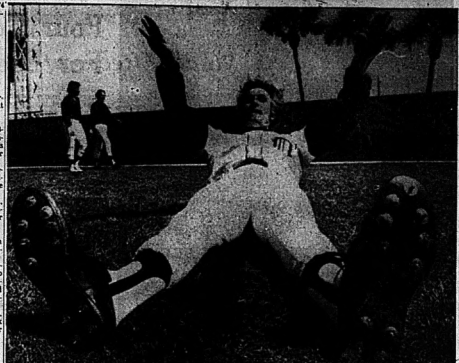
Larry Mickey and Peter McNab scored goals late in the third period to give the Swords the victory.

Goals by Jim Nichols and Joey Robertson gave Cincinnati a 2-0 lead in the second period before Eugene Sobchuk narrowed the deficit with a goal at 9:38 of the third.

Robins 7 Bears 5

Richmond outshot Hershey 48-43 behind a two-goal performance by Larry Wright. It was the first win for the Robins over the Bears this season.

Serge Lakovenisse, Larry Keenan, George Pesut, Doug Volmar and Rene Drolet got the other Richmond goals.



Don Selling, Jim Pearson, Terry Ewasiuk, Steve Andrascik and Hank Nowak replied for the Bears.

Kings 7 Nighthawks 5

The Kings got three goals in less than five minutes in the final period to break a 2-2 tie.

Mark Heaslip and Norm Dubey paced the Kings with two goals each, while Jim Atamanenkon, Wayne LaChance and Pete Harasymo added the others.

Bill Plager, Jerry Byers, Alain Langlais, Rick Chinnick and Dave Lee connected for New Haven.

At Sudbury, Schutt scored two goals and added three assists. Russell picked up two goals and two assists and Crowley scored once.

Jim Maxfield and Bob Blanchard got the other goals for the Wolves, who outshot Kingston 55-23 in the game at Sudbury.

John Bialas and John Fielding replied for the Canadians who trailed 4-1 after the first period and 6-1 entering the final 10 minutes.

At Hamilton Rick Bourcier, Ron Ramsay, Jim Fortunato, Pete Sturgeon, Mike McKegney and Terry White scored for the Rangers.

Greg Hickey scored the Hamilton goal.

Bears Edge Warriors

BROCKVILLE, Ont. (CP) — The Smiths Falls Bears edged Brockville Warriors 5-4 in the last game of the Central Junior Hockey League season Wednesday night.

Des Allen scored twice and Don Robertson, Gary Nichol and John Kennedy once each to give the Bears their 30th win of the 50-game schedule. The Bears lost 17 games and tied three to end the season with a league-leading 63 points.

Smiths Falls will receive a bye into the semi-finals where it will travel to Nepean for their first semi-final contest Saturday.

was the Warriors' 30th loss this season. They won 16 games and tied four for a fifth-place finish with 36 points.

Nepean Raiders finished second, Pembroke Lumber Kings were third and Gloucester Rangers fourth. Rockland Nationals won only 13 games to finish last.

13 Players Selected, Draft Kept Secret

QUEBEC (CP) — Jacques Plante, coach and general manager of the World Hockey Association Les Nordiques, has confirmed published reports from Edmonton that the league held a secret draft of junior hockey players Monday.

But Plante refused any further comment on the draft.

The Edmonton report said it obtained details of the draft in a long-distance telephone interview with a player agent.

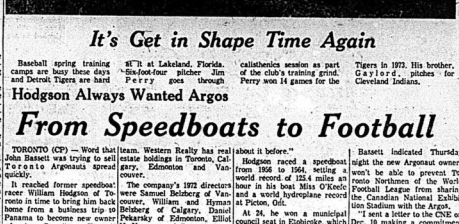
The report said 13 players from the Western Canada Hockey League had been picked.

Plante said the draft was held because the WHA wants to circumvented difficulty last year in competition against the NHL for top junior players.

In Montreal, Clarence Campbell, president of the National Hockey League, said the NHL had no basis for complaint against the WHA. He said the leagues had reached separate, tentative agreements with the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association covering the drafting of junior players.

He said it would be up to the CAHA to determine whether the WHA had contravened its proposed agreement with the amateur body by conducting the draft.

Neither professional league has signed a current pact with the CAHA.



He said the proposed pact between the NHL and CAHA called for an amateur draft to be held after completion of the professional draft—the Canadian junior championship series—or approximately May 15.

In Ottawa, a CAHA spokesman said it was too early to say whether the secret draft contravened the WHA proposed draft agreement.

"We haven't received the WHA final proposal so how can we comment on the draft," he said.

It's Get in Shape Time Again

Baseball spring training camps are busy these days and Detroit Tigers are hard at it at Lakeland, Florida. Six-foot-four pitcher Jim Perry goes through calisthenics session as part of the club's training grind. Perry won 14 games for the Tigers in 1972. His brother, Gaylord, pitches for Cleveland Indians.

Hodgson Always Wanted Argos

From Speedboats to Football

TORONTO (CP) — Word that John Bassett was trying to sell Toronto Argonauts spread quickly.

It reached former speedboat racer William Hodgson of Toronto in time to bring him back home from a business trip to Panama to become new owner of the Canadian Football League team.

Bassett announced Thursday he had agreed to sell the Argonauts to Hodgson and Western Realty Projects, Ltd., for $3.3 million.

The deal still needs approval from the league but general manager Ralph Sazio of Hamilton Tiger-Cats said there should be no difficulty.

Sazio said the actual deal will be between Baton Broadcasting, which is headed by Bassett, and the two purchasers.

It was not announced how Hodgson and Western Realty would divide ownership of the team. Western Realty has real estate holdings in Toronto, Calgary, Edmonton and Vancouver.

The company's 1972 directors were Samuel Belzberg of Vancouver, William and Hyman Belzberg of Calgary, Daniel Pekarsky of Edmonton, Elliot N. Yarmon and Ross Hanbury of Toronto and S. Joseph Tanenbaum, Jr., of New York.

Hodgson said Thursday he worked 26 years "making money to buy the Argos." He heads a chain that has five hotels in Canada, two in London and one each in Jamaica and Panama.

"I always wanted the club," Hodgson said. "I should have bought it when (former owner) Harry Sonshine put it up for sale but I didn't have the money then.

"I have been serious about buying the club the last two years. I've spoken to Bassett about it before."

Hodgson raced a speedboat from 1956 to 1964, setting a world record of 123.4 miles an hour in his boat Miss O'Keefe and a world hydroplane record at Picton, Ont.

At 24, he won a municipal council seat in Etobicoke, which was then a suburban township. He held office for four years.

Bassett indicated Thursday night the new Argonaut owners won't be able to prevent Toronto Northmen of the World Football League from sharing the Canadian National Exhibition Stadium with the Argos.

"I sent a letter to the CNE on Dec. 10 making a commitment for the Northmen to use the field," said Bassett.

Emily Has Respect For Her Opponents

VICTORIA (CP) — There are some who are ready to concede Saskatchewan the Canadian women's curling championship for a sixth straight, but skip Emily Farnham of Saskatoon is ignoring them.

She has too much respect for Ontario and British Columbia's rinks which Saskatchewan must face on today's windup draws here.

"Anyone who refutes to respect Marion Radcliffe (the B.C. skip from Kelowna) or Dawn Ventura (the Ontario champ from Ottawa) "is asking for trouble," said Emily. "At this stage of the game, I can do without trouble."

Although it is the Farnham rink's first taste of national competition, they are favored to keep the national crown in Saskatoon for a sixth year.

The Saskatoon rink cleared what they felt was "our biggest hurdle" by defeating Alberta's Marilyn Johnston 6-5 Wednesday afternoon. They ran off their seventh straight victory by downing Manitoba's Merline Darbyshire 8-4 in the evening.

The Radcliffe rink put a big crimp in Ontario's plans by defeating the Ventura foursome 10-7 in the seventh round. That left both B.C. and Ontario with 5-2 records and allowed Prince Edward Island's Marie Toole of Charlottetown to move into the runner-up position with a 5-1 record.

Welland Leads Series

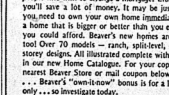
WELLAND, Ont. (CP) — Three goals in the third period carried Welland Sabres to a 6-3 victory over Niagara Falls Flyers in Southern Ontario Junior Hockey League playoff action Wednesday before 1,817 spectators.

The victory gave Welland a 5-1 lead in the best-of-seven quarter-final series. Next game in the series is Friday at Niagara Falls.

Niagara Falls led 1-0 after one period and 3-2 after 40 minutes.

In the third, the Sabres, who outshot the Flyers 39-33, scored three unanswered goals.

Norm Ethier and Doug Mason led Welland each with a pair of goals. Randy Montgomery and Jim McCabe got the others. Montgomery's goal came with his team short handed.



John Flynn, Buffy Dupuis and Derrell Stamp replied for Niagara Falls.

In todays game, Windsor Spitfires meet Detroit Junior Red Wings and Guelph Biltmores travel to Chatham to play the Maroons.

Expelled

ATHENS (AP) — Thanasis Intzoglou, who has on several occasions played for the national hockey team, was expelled Wednesday from his club, Panionios of Athens, on charges of accepting bribes to assist his team's defeat in the National Cup tournament. The club's executive council said Panionios won the game against Ethnikos of Piraeus—in overtime in which Intzoglou did not participate.

Commission Endeavoring To Tidy German Border

WEST BERLIN (Reuter) — When Germany was divided into two states it created a geographical jigsaw puzzle which has still not been fully sorted out 25 years later.

The 800-mile frontier abounds in anomalies revealing the tragedy and the absurdity of the partition.

In some places, one side of the road is Communist while the other lies in the West. The border, sown with minefields and patrolled by Communist armed guards with orders to shoot, bisects villages and even houses.

For the last 12 months since the two German states signed their "good neighbor" treaty putting the seal on partition for the foreseeable future, a joint commission has been surveying the frontier with a view to tidying up the muddle.

Hundreds of small, odd-shaped pieces of land on both sides of the frontier have to be fitted into the giant jigsaw.

One of the strangest anomalies is in Berlin where a tongue of land not much larger than two tennis courts belongs to the West but the only way of reaching it is through the Communist wall.

Erlengrund is a small spit of land sticking into the Havel River where the wall comes down to the water's edge and makes a sharp turn along the shore.

Weeping willows and elm trees give the little promontory a peaceful appearance but the owners of the 33 weekend cottages and allotments live on the Erlengrund and the neighboring colony of Fichtenkrae are literally "up at the sharp end" in the East-West confrontation.

When the little plots of land were established in 1921 they could be reached by walking along the river bank. But the East-West dividing line which runs straight out to the middle of the river now cuts them off.

East Germany has provided two iron doors in the wall, each fitted with an electric bell, so the owners can reach their property.

After negotiating the controls, a cottager can relax for an afternoon snooze in a deck-chair safe from door-to-door salesmen, his creditors and the attentions of visiting relatives.

But the waters surrounding the spit of land are "red." In order to bathe, paddle or drop a fishing line, the cottager has to retrace his steps through the wall and out the other side, showing his identity papers and special pass again, to reach Western waters 50 yards away.

The right-angle formed by the 10-feet-high concrete wall is strewn with deep sand carefully raked so that footprints can be instantly detected. From the two iron doors double rows of black and white painted posts lead to a glassed-in cabin where two or three armed guards sit.

When the bell rings the guards press a button and the door is opened by remote control. The visitors must not walk outside the posts. Are there mines under the sand?

Towering over the scene is a timber observation post from which more guards peer down through binoculars while offshore police patrol boats are alert for possible East German defectors.

Since the 1972 agreement, two larger enclaves at Eiskeller and Steinstuecken have been incorporated into the West by trading other pieces of territory for access routes.

During past crises, British armed cars were used to escort children to school while Allied troops were landed by helicopter in guard these little suburban islands.

The frontier was originally drawn in 1945 by the victorious powers of the Second World War to demarcate their occupation zones.

They followed old parish, borough and county administrative boundaries which had no relevance to modern development.

The settlement of 1972 appears to have partly defused the Berlin powder keg. But Chancellor Willy Brandt's efforts to achieve more humanity on the border have been less successful.

East Germans who crost the death strip are still being shot. The Communist government continues to strengthen the frontier obstacles, minefields and trip-wire guns.

Mamora

Mr. and Mrs. Grenville Meiklejohn of Marysville will be at home and Mrs. Hiram Mumby of Springbrook returned home last Tuesday from a month long holiday in Orlando, Florida; visiting Linda and Bob Kuck and their family in Ohio on their way home.

Reports of the gas shortage in the United States are not exaggerated, Mrs. Meiklejohn reported. Their holiday travelling was restricted this year because they were afraid to travel very far in case they would be unable to buy gas. They saw many long line ups at the gas stations and found that station operators were rationing gas at $2.00 worth per customer.

Lillian Walker, Judy Nobes and Sandra Somerville will be attending a Hair Show sponsored by Radiant Beauty Supplies at the Holiday Inn in Peterborough on Wednesday evening.

Effort Is Made to Avoid Side Effects of Progress

LONDON (CP) — The problem of adverse side-effects which go hand in hand with many technological advances—especially in environmental fields—has led to a concern over the social responsibility shouldered by scientists and technologists.

Side-effects are generally not foreseen and therefore not avoided, such as the destruction of natural pest control by broad-spectrum pesticides.

In London, however, an experiment is under way to provide society with an early-warning system for technological dangers. The new approach involves the Science Affiliation of a group of establishment scientists with a group of their severest critics in a single body called the Council for Science and Society.

Backed by a grant of £80,000 from the Leverhulme Trust to cover its first three years of operation the council will seek to identify technological trends that present potential future dangers and then set up working parties whose reports, whether approved by the council or not will be published to provoke public discussion.

The first chairman is Sir Michael Swann, principal of Edinburgh University, chairman of the BBC and a biologist who three years ago produced the Swann report on antibiotics in animal feed.

The point of the council is not that it should be a debating platform but that it should above all disseminate widely its views on matters of future public welfare.

The idea of such a council giving a sharper focus to the "diffuse debate about the social responsibility of scientists" was put forward in an article in the scientific journal Nature in 1971. It was written by Paul Sieghart, a retired barrister

Farm Marketing, Public or Private?

EDMONTON (CP) — At a time when farm income is at the highest level in history, Canada's agriculture industry is facing major decisions.

With almost guaranteed sales of all they can grow, farmers have been asked how they want their produce handled, told the transportation system is inadequate and warned that the future is clouded.

The most important decision is whether agriculture wants more government involvement in marketing or whether it should be controlled by the private sector.

Advocates of both avenues have been active in recent months. The campaign has been stepped up by the private sector since rapeseed producers rejected a plan to place the marketing of their product under the Canadian Wheat Board.

The wheat board has come under attack from the private grain companies and the huge Prairie wheat pools have been accused of eliminating the competitive system.

While there are national provisions for establishing marketing boards for any commodity group that wishes, such boards have come under fire from the Consumers' Association of Canada and the beef marketing board was criticized by the federal food prices review board.

The traditional problem in agriculture has been lack of price stability for products. Many observers feel stability can only be accomplished through more government controls.

Glen Plaxton of Regina, Saskatchewan Federation of Agriculture president, says agriculture now is moving more in the direction of stabilization as the industry becomes more complex and the need arises for leveling out farmers' incomes.

"Programs will vary with commodities and may be government or joint government-producer financed. . . . It may well be that one of the payments for stability will be more controls than some want or think they need."

C. O. Swartz of Winnipeg, chairmen of Northern Sales Ltd., says Canada is moving away from the open market system and losing potential world markets in the process.

Mr. Swartz said in the United States the privately-operated grain trade increased its export sales by 50 per cent last year while Canada's sales, through the wheat board, decreased 33 1-3 per cent.

But supporters of the wheat board reply that the U.S. now is faced with a domestic grain shortage which may involve having to buy back its own grain at higher prices or import grain from other countries.

Because of the wheat board having control, Canada will never be faced with that problem, they say.

In a bid to provide price equality across the country for feed grains, Otto Lang, minister responsible for the wheat board, placed oats and barley pricing outside the board. However, the board retains control of movement of the grains.

This is seen by the National Farmers Union (NFU) as the thin end of the wedge to destroy orderly marketing, with all grains eventually being placed on open market.

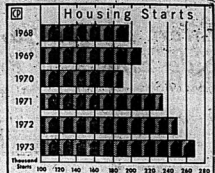
The feed grains policy also has come under attack from the Saskatchewan and Manitoba NDP government and the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool.

Roy Atkinson of Saskatoon, NFU president, said the feed grains policy was the "most blatant attack" on orderly marketing since the 1920s and farmers should reject the program and concentrate on having all grains placed under wheat board control, "no matter where they are sold."

M. M. Hunchinson, United Grain Growers president, says farmers who believe in a competitive system will have to act now to preserve what is left of the grain-handling system.

He said real competition has not existed in the grain elevator system since the beginning of the century and there has been a "steady erosion for the last 50 years of what remains of the competitive system."

Competition is good for farmers and has the most to offer but the "whole trend of thought in this country seems to be moving toward a government-run way of life," he said.



The NFU, an organization that believes in collective bargaining for farmers, says the day is long gone when an individual farmer can compete with huge multi-national corporations.

Strongest among the private enterprise supporters have been Western cattlemen, but even their stance is being questioned.

Eugene Whelan, federal agriculture minister, says the public can safely be led to believe Canadian cattlemen are a "free-wheeling bunch of right-wing radicals who only want the government to keep its cotton-picking fingers off the beef industry."

This does not support the facts because the industry "has received more help from the federal government than a long list of other agricultural industries."

Housing Starts

New Housing

The number of housing starts in Canada in 1973 reached a new record of 268,539 units, an increase of 7.4 per cent over the previous high set in 1972. Figures released by Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation showed increased construction in all provinces except Alberta and Manitoba. The 1973 figure was a gain of 18,615 from the 249,914 starts in 1972. (CP Newsmap)

Cypriots Harness Energy From Sun

The Greeks and Turks on this sun-blessed island harnessed the sun for their domestic energy needs long before the oil crisis and Arab embargoes. Nearly every villa and house has a solar water heater on its roof.

Engineers in Mediterranean countries have estimated that sufficient sunshine hits the roof of a home to supply more than 10 times its daily power needs. About half that is needed to heat water.

Oil is an expensive commodity here. Sunshine is not. The sun shines 340 days a year.

"It's the energy of the future," said Marius Ioniides, production manager of Metalco, the island's leading manufacturer of solar water heaters.

He said his company, which has been making the heaters for eight years, has been receiving an increasing number of inquiries from abroad since the onset of the energy crisis.

In an interview in his factory office, Ioniides said the water heaters were developed by Australian engineers in the mid-1950s but first introduced in this part of the world, in Israel, about 10 years ago.

"At present the technology is not advanced enough for them to be used in northern latitudes," Ioniides said. "But I read recently British scientists were trying to develop a heater that would work on cloudy days."

For the same reason, cars powered by solar energy have not been practicable. A driver would find himself stalled in a rainstorm.

But solar energy has been used to power lunar modules in United States space shots.

Ioniides predicts the energy crisis will spur technological advances necessary to extend the uses of solar energy.

In Greece, he said, engineers are experimenting with the solar water heater principle for small electric power stations. The sun heats water to a certain temperature, then oil boosts it to be higher temperature needed to drive the turbines. This at least results in a saving of oil.

One factor that accounts for the popularity of solar water heaters in Cyprus is cost.

A solar water heater in Nicosia costs the equivalent of $400. A conventional water heater sells for about half the price, but as Ioniides says, "you amortize the price of a solar water heater in fuel or electricity savings in about three years and one lasts for about 20 years."

The sun's rays are filtered through a glass-enclosed black absorber plate that magnifies the sun's heating power against serpentine copper pipe. The pipe collects solar heat and transfers it to an adjoining water tank.

In midsummer, the water reaches 150 degrees. Domestic scientists have determined most people prefer their bath water in the 110-degree range. And the higher temperature is adequate for all other household needs.

Award Established

TORONTO (CP) — The Outdoor Writers of Canada organization has announced the establishment of an award in memory of Pete McGillen, one of the country's outstanding newspapermen and outdoor writers. A $500 grant will be awarded to the person who best reflects the organization's aims of stimulating interest and appreciation of the outdoors.

STEPHENS-ADAMSON DUAL AWARDS

The response to the Stephens-Adamson Co. suggestion system necessitated two meetings of the Committee during February in order to approve awards.

Mr. I. A. Sinclair, Manager of Industrial Engineering, is shown presenting Messrs. Bruce Craft and John Stubbs with their merit award cheques.

Betty Leighton Returns

TORONTO (CP) — Betty Leighton, whose long theatrical career has been devoted to Canadian drama, returned to Toronto in January to star in Treplawney of the Wells, a play about 19th century London.

Although she was born and brought up in England and now lives in the United States, Miss Leighton has been in the limelight of every major theatrical development in Canada for the last 20 years.

In the early 1950s, she was one of the first leading ladies of the Stratford Festival, the first star of Ottawa's historic Canadian Repertory Theatre and a pioneer with Toronto's Crest Theatre Company, the Shaw Festival at Niagara-on-the-Lake and the Manitoba Theatre Centre.

In Treplawney of the Wells, by Arthur Pinero, Miss Leighton played Mrs. Mossop, the keeper of the theatrical boarding house in Victorian London in a romantic comedy dealing with artists in society.

"I never wanted fame or fortune," she said in an interview dealing with her abundant enjoyment as an actress in Canada. "I just want a corner to act in. I never had the ambition to be a star.

"When I look at the people who had that ambition today, I'm glad I didn't. I just wanted to be a working actress."

Work has been plentiful ever since she played 500 continuous performances for the Ottawa repertory theatre.

After Ottawa, she devoted her talents to many seasons of summer stock at Peterborough, Kingston and across Canada.

Her latest international appearance was on Broadway in the ill-fated musical production of Cyrano, in which she starred with Canada's Christopher Plummer, before the show closed abruptly.

At Toronto's St. Lawrence Centre this season, she will also appear in The Good Woman of Setzuan by Berthold Brecht, and in Color the Flesh the Color of the Blood, about the early days of Halifax, by Michael Cook.

LOS ANGELES (Reuter) — Television actor Stu Gilliam, 40, was fined $25 in superior court Wednesday for brandishing an axe in a threatening manner during a restaurant argument last September.

Superior Court Judge Edward Rafeedie imposed the sentence. A jury last month found Gilliam guilty of assault.

It was alleged during the trial that Gilliam went out to his car to get the axe after an argument in a restaurant about being given a table.

Gilliam is star of a now-cancelled TV series, Roll Out.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (Reuter) — Entertainer Sammy Davis Jr. left hospital Wednesday after spending two days under observation for chest pains diagnosed as a minor gastrointestinal disorder.

A spokesman at the Diplomat Hotel in nearby Hollywood said Davis would resume his show there tonight.

NEW YORK (AP) — Magda Gabor, older sister of Zsa Zsa and Eva, took another step Tuesday towards divorcing TV bor Heltai, her sixth husband.

Miss Gabor filed a separation agreement in the New York State Supreme Court, clearing her way for a divorce under the state law. She started legal action against Heltai, an economic consultan, last June, 10 months after their marriage.

Before Heltai, Miss Gabor's most recent husband was the late actor, George Sanders, who once was married to Zsa Zsa.

Lucy Will Quit Show

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Lucille Ball will end her weekly series with this season's show after 23 consecutive years as television's queen of comedy.

Miss Ball, 62, said in an announcement Tuesday she will not be back next September with Here's Lucy.

But she said she would continue in television and make a series of specials for CBS.

Miss Ball's decision to retire from weekly television was not a complete surprise. A report had circulated a few weeks ago that she was considering giving up the show after the March premiere of her new motion picture, Mame.

The red-haired entertainer and Desi Arnaz, then husband the time, began I Love Lucy in 1951 and made television history. That show almost single-handedly established the television comedy as a television form.

In 1958 she and Arnaz, who by that time had acquired RKO Studios, went into a series of one-hour specials. Miss Ball and Arnaz were divorced in 1960 and she subsequently sold her interest in the studio.

The Lucy Show, premiering in 1962, was her first solo performance without Arnaz. She switched to Here's Lucy in 1968. Miss Ball and comedian Gregg Morton were married in 1961, and he became her executive producer.

Robert Wood, president of the CBS television network, said: "I join 50 million fans of her Monday night series when I express my disappointment over her decision."

Two Back for Traviata

TORONTO — Covent Garden soprano Maria Pellegrini and La Scala tenor Ruggero Bondino, stars of the Canadian Opera Company's 1973 Rigoletto, will be featured together for the second consecutive season in the company's new production of Verdi's La Traviata, during the Canadian Opera's 20th season this fall at O'Keefe Centre.

Co-ordinator in the production which opens Sept. 12, is Lotfi Cornelia Optbof, last season's splendid Figaro in the Barber of Seville.

Maria Pellegrini, who will sing the role of Violetta, has scored triumphs with the Canadian Opera as Madame Butterfly, Gilda and Aida. Since 1967 she has appeared regularly at London's Sadler's Wells and Covent Garden, winning critical acclaim as Gilda, Butterfly, Lia (Turandot) and Nedda (I Pagliacci). Other engagements have taken her from the Teatro Verdi in Trieste for Massenet's Manon and the Teatro Commonale in Genoa for Chrysothemis in R. Strauss's Elektra, to the Vancouver Opera Association for Butterfly. The Italian-born soprano received her musical training at Toronto's Royal Conservatory of Music and Opera School.

Since his debut in Milan as the Duke in Rigoletto, Ruggero Bondino, who will sing Alfredo in the Canadian Opera's Traviata, has appeared with many of the major European opera houses, including the Vienna State Opera, Barcelona's Teatro Liceo and the Paris Opera. In 1965 he created the role of Oreste in the La Scala world premiere of Pizzetti's Clitemnestra. Bondino, who made his Canadian Opera debut last season and the most recently sung in Monte Carlo (Des Grieux in Manon), Rome (Rodolfo in La Boheme) and Naples (Alfredo in Traviata).

Veteran Canadian Opera performer Cornelia Optbof, who will sing Germont, has appeared with the Company in roles ranging from Guglielmo in Cosi fan tutte and Enrico, in Lucia di Lammermoor to Valentin in Faust and Amonsaro in Aida. With over 40 roles to his credit in Italian and repertoires, Optbof has appeared with many leading North American opera houses including the San Francisco Opera, where he co-starred with Joan Sutherland in Donizetti's Maria Stuarda.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Friday, March 1

Aries (March 21-April 19) Daydreaming, lack of focus on what you're doing increases probability of mistakes in your paperwork today.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) Be sure financial dealings you have are with those you trust completely. Look out for smooth salesmen.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) Don't bank too heavily on one who makes you promises, but has yet to keep them. His word is just a shallow today.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) You may be in a complex of measures unworthy of your ideals to gain something you want today. Don't—you'll later be found out.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) Be wary of one who is more complimentary today than usual. This person has an ulterior motive beneath the sweet talk.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Someone you'll be with today has a way of making you feel insecure. You try overly hard to impress him. Don't bother.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) It would be unwise at this time to try to implement ideas in which you don't have complete faith. Wait till you do.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Spending beyond your projected income now is gambling with the odds against you. Try to live within your means.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You need much more information than you have to make a wise decision today. Be patient. There's always tomorrow.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Something other than your work will be on your mind. This will put your efficiency well below par.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You'll be rather indifferent about money today. This could lead you to speculate or waste funds you know you shouldn't.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) If your house is going to be left unattended be sure you don't leave the doors unlocked.

'EGGS BEAT THE SAME'

Egg whites do not necessarily beat higher when at room temperature than when refrigerator cold. However, it takes a few seconds longer to beat the cold egg whites to the same volume.

Reflexes Often Sluggish in Old

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I was recently advised during a physical checkup that I have no reflexes in my legs or arms. Is that bad? If so, can anything be done? — Y.J.G.

Not necessarily bad — and unless the doctor investigated and discussed problems that might be related to it, I think you can dismiss it from your mind.

The knee reflex (when the doctor taps you below the gnat of kneecap) may be sluggish or absent if the muscle is tense. Nervous tension can mean muscular tension, too.

One trick that is employed, if the question of the reflex appears to be important, is to have the patient clasp his hands together, and on signal have him try to pull his hands apart. At the same moment the knee is tapped. This will often produce a response.

These reflexes may become sluggish or absent in an older person — you didn't mention your age. Or in patients with low thyroid function, which is not uncommon. Diabetes also can cause absence of the reflex.

If, in some cases, the absence is due to a nerve disorder, there usually are other symptoms. Sometimes you mentioned these. I wouldn't expect that to be a cause of concern for you.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: There have been articles that grease for frying french fries, etc., should not be used more than three times at the most. How about reusing butter or oleo? Is it all right to reheat it over and over? — C.U.

Reheating can change polyunsaturated fats into saturated. Further, the heating produces aldehydes and ketones that alter the taste. I'd recommend that the no-more-than-three rule be followed with any type of fat you use for such frying. Including oleo and butter.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Would you give me a list of foods that are not to be eaten by a person with mild diabetes? I know that sugar is taboo in all forms — candy, etc. R.W.F.

Except for foods containing sugar in one form or another, there is really no food that is taboo for a person with diabetes.

But since foods that contain no sugar, chiefly protein, can be converted into sugar by the doctor taking advantage of the goal of the diabetic is to limit total food intake so that your weight will not create more sugar than he can tolerate.

Since the total amount varies from person to person, and is modified further by the amount of exercise and the amount of medication, arriving at the proper amount is done with close cooperation from your doctor, who can also tell you periodically to see that your blood sugar level remains satisfactory.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My wife's headaches start with the following drives me nuts. When she is through washing the dishes, she puts tyem on a plastic type drain board. Many times she neglects to clean the drainboard of leftover bits of food, specifically, etc., on which she puts the clean dishes after washing.

Maybe somethingin your column might reach her on tye unsanitary prospect. J.S.

Pretty sloppy housekeeping, isn't it? I have no formula for correcting that trait, and if anybody else has a cure, let me know, I'll pass it on.

The health danger is that bits of food can be shreedingfac e for germs and cause diarrhea, cramps and such.

Draining dishes instead of after the task is all right — but if the drain board contains garbage (and that is the word for it) it's taking a needless chance on making the family ill. ©

By Oswald and James Jacoby

A match-point duplicate bridge player would probably go down in three contracts. He would look over dummy; decide that his objective was a normal contract and take the diamond finesse in an effort to score as many overtricks as possible.

A winning rubber bridge player would make the contract. He would win the first spade and study the hand just long enough to see that if West held the king of diamonds the notrump would wheel in even though West made his king. Then he would see that trouble was in store if East held that very important card.

Apparing the ♦ of the Coote word ARCHA he would ask himself: "How can I make this hand if East holds the king of diamonds?"

Then he would see that the king just might be singleton. He would lead his 10 of diamonds at trick two and then rise with dummy's ace. Caution and percentage play would be rewarded. The king would drop, and he would run off the rest of the diamond suit and be sure of at least 10 tricks.

He would probably make it 11 although perfect discarding by East and West would stop that second overtrick.

SHAWANO'S TOPS FOR INVESTMENT
In today's skyrocketing prices, Shawano is an outstanding investment.
Many lot owners have seen the value of their land increase by 100% or more.
Buying a lot at Shawano is an investment. Investment that is ever before for three reasons. One, the province is running out of recreational land. Two, sale of crown land for cottages is halted. Three provincial planing regulations have restricted future development. You can still buy a big ½ acre lakefront lot at Shawano for $6,900 with 10% down and excellent financing.
Shawano is the beautiful 1,000 acre wilderness recreational area in the historic Highlands of Hastings, 32 scenic miles north of Madoc via Highway 62. Marvelous swimming, boating and fishing.

Holy Terror of Courts Says He's Inarticulate

VANCOUVER (CP) — New British Columbia Supreme Court Justice Samuel Martin Toy describes himself as "a very inarticulate fellow outside the courtroom."

"I'm just a holy terror—or I was—in the courtroom; I will cross-examine and talk until the cows come home but outside of that atmosphere I really have very little to say," he said in an interview before he was sworn into office.

"I've got no notable quotes, I don't profess to be a crusader or anything of that nature."

Mr. Justice Toy talked as he sat in his office at the law firm Boyd, King and Toy housecleaning his files to make way for a new career.

The new justice, appointed Jan. 17 along with fellow Vancouver lawyer John Bouck, is a lanky, bow-tied, crew-cut 45-year-old. He graduated from University of B.C. law school in 1945 after working "just hard enough to get through."

Mr. Justice Toy was a bit stunned about his appointment to the bench.

"I received a phone call from the minister of justice a 9 o'clock on the morning of Thursday the 17th and by 5 o'clock the following morning the deed was felt accompli and I could no longer practise."

He said the appointment caused him some embarrassment in cases he had scheduled. "But the rule is inflexible. Once the appointment has been announced you can't practise law any more."

When asked if the honor of a Supreme Court appointment carried with it the penalty of a certain amount of isolation, he replied:

"That terrifies me, but I don't think it necessarily has to be.

"It's a worrisome factor because nobody, much less myself, likes to be isolated."

Mr. Justice Toy, who was born in Toronto and grew up in Brantford, Ont., took a roundabout route to a law career.

After four years at Upper Canada College, he attended the Royal Canadian Naval College during 1942-47.

"That's how I first got involved in the West Coast and the reason I finished up here.

"Although I signed up at the naval college during wartime, it took six or eight months before they processed those applications and I got there after the war was over," he said. "I must confess I never seriously considered entering the navy as a permanent career."

After graduating from naval college, he went to University of Toronto and graduated in 1950 with a bachelor's degree in applied science. Two years of law at Osgoode Hall were followed by the move to B.C., graduation and articling.

Mr. Justice Toy said most of his experience was in courtroom work. "I've done a lot of work for the attorneys-general's department and I've had the privilege of acting for the defence."

Mr. Justice Toy and his wife Margaret have four sons and one daughter, ranging in age from 11 to 18 years. Away from the courts, he finds his relaxation on the ski slopes.

"Skiing is my bag right now. On weekends, for six months of the year, I do the best I can to ski two days a week."

TALKS ON AIRSHIPS

LONDON (CP) — The first international conference on airships is to be held here in April with 300 delegates from Europe, the United States and Asia discussing engineering and operational problems. Due to the world's transport and fuel difficulties, experts say the airship may have a promising future.

Pampering Potato

The lowly potato is being pampered as never before, due to demands by British housewives for damage-free packaged produce and more stringent quality standards imposed by the Potato Marketing Board. The pampering includes development of this harvester delivery elevator which automatically adjusts to maintain a minimum distance between the elevator and potatoes already in the trailer. (CP Photo)

Mararishi Maresh Extends Kingdom

NEW DELHI (Reuter) — Maharishi Mavesh Yogi, the Indian guru who once counted the Beatles among his followers, has drawn up a plan to extend his spiritual kingdom throughout the world.

Although the Beatles announced their disillusionment with the "jet-age guru" in 1968, his science of creative intelligence (SCI), popularly known as transcendental meditation, claims a world following.

There is a Maharishi International University at Los Angeles, and courses in SCI are offered at Harvard, Yale and other universities, says the American director of the Indian program, David Vendel.

It is all part of the world plan which the Maharishi proclaimed in January, 1972, after seven days of silent meditation with 2,000 followers on the Mediterranean holiday island of Majorca.

The aim is to set up 3,600 SCI teacher training centres throughout the world.

Each centre would train 1,000 teachers and organizers and they hope this will mean a teacher for every 1,000 people in the world.

SCI supporters say its study would enrich everyone's life, help the individual develop his potential and "achieve the spiritual goals of mankind in this generation."

Transcendental meditation is said to eliminate mental stress and tension, improve perception and promote efficiency.

It is only recently that the Maharishi has stepped up his efforts to bring SCI to the land of his birth, where gurus and mystics are in plentiful supply.

The plan was launched in India with advertisements in major cities offering a free demonstration with color TV." Since only four Indian cities have television, none of them color, that was a big attraction.

The color TV proved to be videotapes on a television screen showing the Maharishi surrounded with flowers explaining the virtues of SCI to a Western audience.

About 200 people saw the first show in New Delhi at a community centre in a well-to-do residential area of the capital.

Vedovi said 60 people had signed up for the six-week courses of 33 lessons, costing a total of about $10, which will qualify them to spread the gospel.

Warm Days Slow Work In Alaska

COLD FOOT, Alaska (AP) — Warm weather, of all things, has slowed work at this trans-Alaska oil pipeline base camp.

Temperatures in the teens, combined with a shortage of snow, have deterred construction of a road of snow parallelling the future pipeline.

Crews at the Arctic Circle camp, 100 air miles north of the Yukon River, are constructing the road on an ice bridge across the Yukon. It will run to the Brooks Range.

"We need 30-to 50-below weather to do this kind of work effectively," said Mort Schierhorn, project manager.

"The colder weather makes the snow freeze up faster and harder when we pack it down."

Eight hundred heavily laden trucks are scheduled to cross the bridge with construction equipment before April, making drops at five road camps.

More than $3 million in construction equipment is already here. The snow-covered rigs have been sitting idle since 1968 while a legal battle was being fought over the pipeline.

Crews are building the 75-foot-wide ice bridge by pumping water from the river onto the surface of the natural ice until a five-foot-thick bridge is made.

They compact the snow road and let it freeze rock hard. This provides a smooth roadway until spring and does not disturb the environment.

The ice road melts during spring breakup and the workers remove whatever trees and brush have been used to build up low spots. Streams that cross the road will flow unhindered in the spring, say pipeline spokesmen.

Cold Foot got its name from the 75-below temperatures often experienced here during the winter, and warm weather wasn't one of the problems Schierhorn expected to face.

During the warm spell, he said, instead of the water freezing nightly, it took three days on solidify, delaying the job.

A bulldozer fell through the ice further complicating the job. But it was recovered and is running again.

The camp here will be used as bases for building the permanent all-weather secondary road from Prudhoe Bay to the Yukon. This road is already complete from Fairbanks to the Yukon.

From the permanent road, crews will construct the oil pipeline from the Prudhoe Bay oil fields south.

They work hard, but many of them clear $500 a week after taxes. They are racing to beat the warm road-melting temperatures of spring.

Leper Isle Demolition Test Plot

VICTORIA (CP) — Once an exile for lepers, Bentinck Island's 112 acres of tangled arbutus and tall fir trees now serve as a playground for Canadian Armed Forces demolition crews.

The 13 white crosses in the weed-choked cemetery and the dank, tumbledown buildings testify that the tiny island, 19 miles south of here, was once the home of those who came to die.

The island was originally set aside as a lighthouse station but was later designated a leper colony and so used for 32 years until the last inhabitant died of old age in 1956.

At one time the island had a total population of 22 but the colony became unnecessary with the development of sulfa drugs which made the treatment and cure of leprosy possible.

Like Bentinck, Kendrick Channel, the narrow, help-tangled strip of water that separates it from Vancouver Island, has had its unhappier hours.

Some 50 years ago, 10 men drowned when the Dutch freighter Kendyk sank in the channel in a fog.

The forces have inherited the island and use it as a training ground for demolition crews who confine their activities to the rocky foreshore.

The last resident on the island was a former patient, an elderly Chinese whose leprosy had been arrested, but who preferred to live out his days on the island.

When he died the leprosarium was officially closed.

'Gulag Archipelago' Black Market's Best

MOSCOW (Reuter) — Moscow's unofficial second-hand book peddlers have already chosen the best-seller of 1974 for the city's black market.

They say it will be Gulag Archipelago, the latest work to be published—in Paris—by the dissident Soviet novelist Alexander Solzhenitsyn, which bestows the history of labor camps in this country from the time of Lenin up to Stalin's death in 1953.

Solzhenitsyn, whose other major works are banned in the Soviet Union and who was expelled from the Soviet Writers' Union in 1969, has been officially branded as a traitor for publishing this last book abroad.

The main problem for the samizdats (second-hand market) in books in Moscow will be getting enough copies to meet a fraction of the black market demand.

When Russian-language copies do filter through—past strict frontier and postal inspection—their black-market price is likely to be high.

Book pedlars, who operate outside hotels and the many second-hand book stores, know that in past decades it has always been the forbidden book which tops the poll.

When Boris Pasternak wrote Doctor Zhivago in 1957 he was called "something less than a pig" by one high Soviet official for publishing it in Italy and threatened with deportation.

But Doctor Zhivago soon headed the Moscow black market's best-seller list at many times the cover price.

Book pedlars reckon that a work in heavy demand and difficult—or dangerous—to procure will sell for at least 15 times the original price.

Black marketeers usually station themselves near a state second-hand book store and intercept customers taking in books for sale and valuation. They offer more money or ask what else the owner has at home he might sell.

Conversely, if someone badly wants a book he can place an order with the black market.

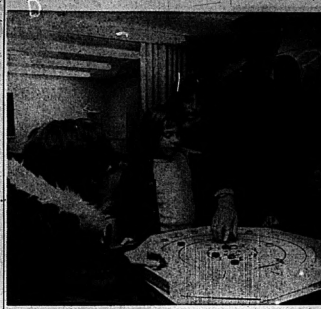
The pedlar only needs a telephone number and a time to phone—since most Moscow numbers are shared—and he will get in touch after a check through black-market resources.

Russian books of almost any kind printed before the 1917 Bolshevik Revolution are prized editions which today rarely reach the black market, though they are on sale in state second-hand shops.

Reprints in book form of the Stalinist purge trials in the 1930s of such former leaders as Nikolai Bukharin still are eagerly sought. Bukharin, principal figure in the 1938 trial, was shot.

Out of sheer curiosity many Russians want to read whatever is banned by the government, or is hard to get.

There is an old Moscow joke about a father who finally gets his son to study the classics by having his secretary type them up and telling the boy they are underground publications.



All the famous dissidents in Soviet literature—Isaac Babel, the great short-story writer of the '30s; Osip Mandelstam, the poet who perished in a labor camp; Yuri Olesha, who satirized the bureaucrats; Mikhail Zoshchenko, who parodied the Soviet way of life, have been churned over in the Moscow black market.

Memoirs of Soviet marshals such as Zhukov and Rokossovsky also still find an eager market because the Russian reader may look for some information here about the conduct of the Second World War which he will not find in official reports.

Yevgeny Yevtushenko, once the angry young man of Soviet literature and now more of an establishment figure, became a pillar of the black market when his poem about the Nazi extermination of Jews in Kiev, Babi Yar, fell into official disfavor.

For Solzhenitsyn, demand among the Moscow book black marketeers is nothing new. His earlier book, One Day in the Life of Ivan Denisovich, which described the horrors of labor camp life and was published in 1962 under Khrushchev, has become an illicit collectors' piece.

Prices for his Gulag Archipelago are likely to top the list for some time to come. This is a book which Soviet security authorities will make strenuous efforts to keep from the public.

Making Friends

Constable Wayne Cochrane offers pointers to players in a game at the Sandy Hill Community Centre in Ottawa. Cochrane is a member of the youth liaison-section of the Ottawa police force, which was set up in 1964 to fight delinquency. One member of the section described his job as "making friends with kids and showing them cops aren't pigs." (CP Photo)

Scooped

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Publisher Pedro Joaquí Chamorro got a scoop when his newspaper La Prensa reproduced documents allegedly showing that some government officials received imports duty-free. Strongman Gen. Anastasio Somoza Debayle then had his own paper Novedades do a little digging. Chamorro subsequently admitted he was returning a 1973 sedan on which he too had paid no import tax.
